GIFT OF CONGREGATION

AT HOME-COMING SOCIAL.

First M. E. Church Flock Show Their Esteem for Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Charles M. Anderson.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church a "home-coming" social was held in Vincent chapel last night, marking the resumption of fall activities. The attractive chapel, resplendent in all its recent improvements, including new furnishings, was thronged with members and friends of the church, and the occasion was noteworthy for the genuine sociability on the part of everyone.

Perhaps, one of the most interesting features of the affair was the great surrpise given to Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Anderson, in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the wedding, which occurs today. Henry A. McGee, who had charge of the program, called the pastor and his wife to the platform and, then in a felicitious speech, presented them with a silver box, containing $200 in silver certificates.

Mr. McGee recalled in complimentary terms the good work of Dr. Anderson, in which his wife had been such an able assistant, referring to the "home-coming" and the renewing of the ties that bind the pastor and his wife with the congregation. Dr. Anderson made a happy response, in which on behalf of his wife and himself, thanked everyone for the substantial gift and expressions of good will. The presentation was accompanied by hearty applause.

During the evening there was an excellent program of music, presented by Mrs. Theo. White Lillard, violinist; Miss Jubilee Rowley, Miss Mildred Burnett and Miss Beth Martin on the piano, while Miss Helen Whitney sang "Nonsense," by Lear. Her sister, Miss May Vincent Whitney accompanied her on the piano.

The program was followed by the serving of refreshments and a social time. Mrs. G. H. Whitney, Mrs. S. H. Tugwell and Mrs. Judd Stuart comprised the entertainment committee. Mrs. Frank Rowley was chairman of the refreshment committee, while Mrs. John Valliant was the chairman of the whole affair, assisted by a large committee of women.

The chapel, thoroughly renovated and improved, including a handsome new carpet, was greatly admired. These improvements were made by the Ladies' Aid Society through funds raised during the past year.

SURPRISES PARTY FOR MISS MAMIE JAEGER.

Miss Lucy Rhodier, of Spooner avenue, with a number of her young friends surprised Miss Mamie Jaeger at her home, 318 Lee place last night, and the young folks enjoyed the event to the utmost with games, music and dancing. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Among those present were the Misses Bessie Carson, Louise Kitchen, Sadie Williams, Cora Kennedy, Catharine Winzenried, Margaret McCarthy, Christina Conrad, Mamie Nugent, Alicia Regan, Mollie Traynor, Alicia O'Loughlin, Nettie Schlick, Barbara Schlick, Florence Mahoney, Elsie Theis, Esther Mitchell, Sophie and Lena Jaeger and Maire Foster, the last three of Cranford; and Messrs. Garrett Keating, Charles Rhodier, Leonard Schlick, Herman Theis, Albert Jaeger, Frank Schlick, Thomas Matell, Joseph Greene, James Kyle, William Allen, John Winzenreid, John McCarthy, Charles Jaeger, Albert Jaeger, a cousin; James Traynor and Albert Rhodier.

To Continue Boys' Club.

At the meeting of the Physical committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, held last night, it was decided to continue the work among the boys as last year in the boys' club, which was instituted for the benefit of those boys who could not afford to join the association. Aside from this matter nothing, but routine business occupied the time of the committee.

An Awful Awakening.

Sleeping soundly on the seat of his truck yesterday afternoon at Central avenue and West Seventh street, William Cargus, a driver for Mrs. Mary Hague, of 1047 West Front street, fell from hs perch and sustained injuries about the head and face which necessitated his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital.

A REAL LIVE COP WILL PROTECT SCOTCH PLAINS

The plaint of the citizens of Fanwood has at last been heeded and a special officer has been appointed to patrol the town at night in an effort to preserve the peace and quiet of the neighborhood. The decision to appoint George Rabig, of Elizabeth, was arrived at last night at the regular meeting of the Fanwood township committee, and carries out the provisions of a resolution made several months ago.

The committee had considerable difficulty in finding the right man for the place, but the selection of Mr. Rabig seems to have met the conditions.

Mr. Rabig has been in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey for several years as a detective, and it is believed he knows how to handle the situation which confronts him in the township. The main trouble has been rowdyism at night, disturbing the slumbers of the residents.

WOMEN'S BIBLE CLASS SOCIAL AT HOPE CHAPEL

The members of G. Stuart Simons women's Bible class of Hope chapel, were the guests of the leader at an enjoyable social and dinner in the Sunday school rooms last night. The affair was the third of a series which are being given to promote sociability among the attendants. There were about seventy-five present.

During the evening Mr. Simons and G. Herbert Condict spoke briefly and songs were given by Mrs. L. R. Howard and Thomas Hendry and recitations by Mrs. W. B. Grannatt. An added feature was the display of post card pictures on a screen by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. P. Veysey. By means of a machine on the style of a stereopticon, Mr. Veysey could reproduce the view on any ordinary post card and some decidedly attractive scenes were shown.

Following the program refreshments were served by a committee composed of Mrs. William Terry, Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse and Mrs. A. Snyder. The waiters were selected from the men present and beside Mr. Simons and Mr. Condict included James Penny, Donald McInnes, Thomas Hendry and Robert Hangliter.

Ask for Administration Letters.

The Plainfield Trust Company has applied for administration of the estate of John B. Conover, in the surrogate's court of Middlesex county. Mr. Conover died May 8, 1910. The personal estate is valued at $130. The matter will come up September 21. Ella A. Randolph, of Piscataway township, has also applied for administration of the estate of Clinton F. Randolph, who died June 27, 1910. The personal estate is valued at $100. This will come up September 12.

Funeral of Edward Hayman.

The funeral services of Edward Hayman, who died in New Orleans several days ago, were held yesterday, from the home of his uncle, S. F. Sabocher, of Rahway road, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. There was also a beautiful display of floral tributes. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Walter Sherwin in Town.

Walter M. Sherwin, of Westervelt avenue, paid a short visit to friends in town yesterday. He is appearing with Klaw and Erlanger's production of "Ben Hur," appearing as "Messala," and dramatic critics everywhere have given him unstinted praise. The attraction is appearing at Trenton this week and Atlantic City next week.

Reception for Rector and Bride.

The wardens and vestry of Grace church have issued invitations to a reception to be given at the parish house, Tuesday evening, October 11, from 8:30 to 11 o'clock, to meet the Rev. and Mrs. E. Vicars Stevenson. The rector and his bride are expected home this week from a month's honeymoon abroad, and they will return to Plainfield in time for the reception.

A Case in Proof.

"There's good in all things," so they say,
And though some things that come your way
A negative conclusion oft compels,
You'll surely find the adage true
In one particular, if you
Invest in Coal that Geo. O. Stevens sells. ***

MOY RESIGNS FROM G. O. P. CITY COMMITTEE

Having obtained from Mayor Fisk the necessary permit to hold carttail meetings, George W. V. Moy, the Bi-partisan League and Democratic candidate for the mayoralty, will make open air addresses beginning next Saturday night. At the meeting at Reform hall on Thursday night, when Mr. Moy opens his campaign R. Henry Depew will be the presiding officer.

Today, Mr. Moy sent in his resignation as a member of the Republican city committee. The letter of resignation was received by the secretary and will be acted upon at the next meeting of the committee. He gives as his reason, though not stating it in the letter, that as a candidate for office he should not be a member of the committee. He is vice-chairman of that body.

WOMEN AND ECONOMICS CLUB LECTURE COURSE

The Monday Afternoon Club will open its season on Monday, October 3, with a lecture entitled "Women's Invasion of the Industrial Field," by Vladimir G. Simkovitch, director of Co-operative Social Settlement Society, New York. This is one of a series of five lectures for the season on the general topic, "The Relation of Women to Economics."

This well known club of 125 women has always had success in its selection of lecturers, last season being particularly fortunate. The topics announced below for the coming winter are of unusually interesting character and will doubtless bring together large audiences.

The second lecture which will be given by Leighton Calkins, of this city, a New York lawyer and president of the Plainfield Country Club, will have for its topic "The Legal Status of Women" and will be given on October 17. The other topics are: November 7, "The Responsibility of Society to the Child," by Owen R. Lovejoy, general secretary, National Child Labor committeee November 21, "Woman Suffrage," (in favor of woman suffrage), by Anna Howard Shaw, president National American Woman Suffrage Association; December 5, "Democracy and Women," (against woman suffrage), by Mary A. Jordan, Professor of English Literature, Smith College.

GRANT WINNER OF CUP; DEATH FOLLOWS AUTOS

Frightful results of the Vanderbilt cup race have come to hand since the running of the race this morning. At least three men have been killed, two of them drivers of cars in the race, and one other who it is said, was one of the spectators but who ventured on the track at a wrong time and with his wife was thrown headlong over a fence into a vacant lot and killed instantly. This was Ferdinand Zinva, manager of one of the departments of the Pope-Hartford Co. Mrs. Zinva was so badly injured that she is not expected to live.

Harold Stone, who was driving a Columbia car, drove into a stone wall while traveling at the rate of sixty miles an hour and was instantly hurled to death and his car demolished. His machinist, whose name could not be ascertained at press time, was also killed outright. C. H. Frey, who was driving a Mercer car in the Wheatley Hill sweepstakes was thrown into the air by the bursting of a front tire and his machine wrecked. No further details could be ascertained, although it was said that at least eleven other persons were injured.

The race was won by Grant in an Alco car, time, 4-15-48; second, Dawson (Marmon), 4-16-23; third, Aitken (National), 4-17-29.

Apple Stealers in Court.

Charles Barry, Jr., and Charles McConnolly, both fourteen years old, were arraigned in the borough court this morning on a charge of stealing apples from the premises of James Church on Somerset street and annoying Mrs. Church. They were severly lectured by Recorder Dolliver and fined $1 each. A third boy named in the complaint failed to appear and will be arraigned Monday.

—Florence Newlan, aged seven years, of Brunswick avenue, near the city line in the West End avenue, was admitted to the contagious disease ward of Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday, suffering with scarlet fever.

CLUB HOUSE CONTRACT

Work on the Watchung Council, K. of C., Home to be Started Monday.

TO BE FINISHED DECEMBER 15.

H. H. Hoffman Contractor—Description of the Plans—Arthur A. Cannon Building Committee Chairman.

At a meeting of the building committee of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, last night, the contract for alterations to the property on East Front street purchased for a club house was awarded to Henry H. Hoffman. This includes all the work, with the exception of the heating system, for which bids are now being received. Contractor Hoffman will begin next week and is to have the building ready for occupancy by December 15 next.

The present brick building on the premises, formerly known as the Lindsey property, will be completely transformed. Almost the entire interior is to be torn out and everything but the four walls will be new. Even these will lose their identity, as they are to be stuccoed on the outside to give an effect akin to Spanish architecture.

One of the most notable improvements on the outside will be the erection of a large porch on the east side, nineteen feet long and thirty-five feet wide. This will be encased in glass during cold weather and will be used as a reception and smoking room. The front entrance is to be overhung by a large glass marquise and French windows facing Front street will give a distinctive clubhouse appearance.

The first floor of the interior is to be taken up by a large reception room, directly in front, a parlor back of it and a smoking room to one side. The plans call for a glazed tile fireplace in the reception room and other features to give a cosy and homelike appearance. All the rooms on the ground floor will be finished in mission style.

A broad staircase will lead to the second story of the building, where the assembly hall and pool, billiard and smoking roms are to be located. The assembly or meeting room will have adequate ante rooms, and taken altogether will be one of the most commodious in the city. It is the idea of the council to ultimately build an addition in the rear for the installation of bowling alleys.

The property has a frontage of seventy-five feet and extends from West Front street to Green Brook. The grounds will be put in first-class shape and next summer will present a beautiful floral appearance.

The building committee which has had the plans in charge and which awarded the contract is composed of Arthur A. Cannon, chairman; M. D. O'Keefe, H. P. Greenwood, T. J. Shirley, J. J. Kenney, John C. Traynor and J. Trainor.

DEFICIENCY OF 1.91 IN RAINFALL FOR SEPTEMBER

The monthly weather report for September, shows that the precipitation was 1.91 inches below the normal, indicating the extent of the dry spell. The mean temperature was 2.7 degrees above the normal, while the prevailing direction of wind was northeast. The rainfall from January 1 to October 1, of this year, is 31.78 inches. The normal for the same period of time is 38.19 inches, there being a deficiency of 6.41 inches. The statistics for the month follow:

Highest temperature, 93 degrees, date, 6th; lowest, 43, 23d; mean temperature, 67.1; normal, 64.4; mean maximum, 77.8; mean minimum, 56.3; mean daily range, 21.5; greatest daily range, 38 degrees; monthly range, 50 degrees; total precipitation, 2.54 inches; normal, 4.45 inches; greatest precipitation in twenty-four hours, 1.82 inches; dates, 1-2; number of days .01 inch or more precipitation was eight; number of days clear, 8; partly cloudy, 15; cloudy, 7; date of thunder storm, 6th; date of rainbow, 14th; dates of fog, 21-27.

Will Attend Taft Dinner.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and County Chairman Frank H. Smith will be among the guests at the dinner to be given to President Taft in New York, tonight.

FELL FROM WORK CAR; MUST AMPUTATE FOOT

Lawrence Sunda, an employee of the Public Service Corporation, fell from the work car on which he was working at the corner of Richmond street and North avenue at 6:30 o'clock last evening and was severely injured. He was taken to Muhlenberg hospital in the ambulance, where it is feared that his right foot, which was crushed under the wheels of the car, will have to be amputated.

Sunda is 22 years old and resides at 824 George street. It is not known what caused the man to fall, but it is believed that he lost his balance while passing from one end of the car to the other and fell with his right foot directly under the forward trucks and the motorman could not stop the car in time to prevent the accident.

Edward Eskeson had to explain in the city court this morning to Judge William N. Runyon why it was that his daughter went to school in rags and why his nine-year-old boy stayed away from school three days last week. It was rather a pitiful tale.

Eskeson's wife died eight months ago, leaving seven children for her husband to care for. It has been a hard task, although assumed willingly. Rising at 4 o'clock in the morning to prepare breakfast for his brood, cooking, washing dishes, then working ten hours a day, has been the portion of the father.

The attention of the Organized Charities had been called to the conditions existing in the Eskeson household through the neighbors, who declared that the children were dirty and uncared for. An investigation by the society revealed the neglect, not wilful, of the little family, and measures were taken this morning to correct it.

Judge Runyon listened patiently to the story told by Eskeson and found that he had tried to get a woman to look after the children, but had been unsuccessful in obtaining the right sort of person. He cannot afford to pay much, but he is willing to give a home to some elderly woman who will assume charge of the little ones for a while or until they are better able to take care of themselves.

Eskeson is employed in a local factory and earns about fifteen dollars a week; besides this, he boards his brother-in-law, which brings in a fair sum, but with the big family of children it seems hard work to make both ends meet.

SAW THE PASSION PLAY, RECEIVED BY THE POPE

After having enjoyed the high honor of a private audience with Pope Pius X and having witnessed that impressive performance at Oberammergau the Passion Play, David T. Kenney has returned from a three months' trip abroad. His wife and daughter accompanied him in his travels, which covered France, Switzerland, Italy, Belgium, Holland and England.

Mr. Kenney is a knight of the Papal household, a much coveted honor bestowed by the Holy Father on Catholic laymen who have rendered distinguished service to the faith, and as such was received privately by the Pontiff. He was accompanied by Pishop Kennedy, of the American college at Rome, and as he was about to retire from the Pope's presence received the Papal blessing.

Mr. Kenney was deeply impressed by the Passion Play. He said that it was hard to bring himself to the realization that it was a performance so sincere and devout was the acting and so faithful was the reproduction of the Life of the Saviour on earth. The Plainfielder happened to be in Brusse's at the time of the conflagration at Belguim's fair, which he characterized as an international calamity

Struck by Auto.

While driving through Madison avenue between West Second and West Third streets in a runabout, Warren Walp, an employee of the Public Service Corporation, struck Robert Goldstein, a twelve-year-old boy, who ran directly in front of the machine. Walp immediately put on the brakes and the boy got up and ran away. Upon investigation by Walp he found that the boy was uninjured, but considerably frightened.

WIDOW SUES MFG. CO. FOR $25,000 DAMAGES

Suit has been instituted by Mrs. Emma Langfeld, of Philadelphia, against the Hall Printing Press Company, of Dunellen, in which the widow, who is administratrix of the estate of her late husband, Edward Langfeld, seeks to recover damages for his death. It is recited in the declaration of the complainant that Mr. Langfeld was at work at the premises of the defendant company last spring, engaged with other men in installing a system of automatic sprinklers.

While engaged in this work he was caught between a traveling crane and the side of the building, receiving injuries that caused his death soon afterward at Muhlenberg Hospital. The widow seeks to recover $25,000 damages, and has retained Senator George S. Silzer as her attorney. Alvah A. Clark represents the Hall Printing Press Company.

STATE ENDEAVORERS MEET ON WEDNESDAY

It is expected that close to 400 delegates will be in attendance at the annual State convention of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor, which will be conducted in the Third Presbyterian church, Trenton, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. The Mercer County union, of which Herbert A. Schultz is president, will be the host.

C. Dudley Wilson will be the soloist at the evening sessions. The choir of the Third Presbyterian Sunday school will lead the singing, in charge of Edward W. Dunham, at the evening sessions. The choir will also furnish special selections at the Wednesday and Friday night services. Thursday night special music will be a vocal solo by Miss Edith Charles.

The Wednesday evening session will be presided over by H. Harry Moore, second vice-president of the State Union, and the speaker will be Rev. Dr. S. Park Cadman, of Brooklyn.

The convention proper will open Thursday morning. Mayor Madden, of Trenton, will deliver an address of welcome, and following greetings from representatives of various churches a response will be made by State President Sproull.

During the afternoon addresses will be given by Henry W. Hicks, general secretary of the Young People's Missionary Movement; Rev. Willis L. Gelston, secretary of the Young People's Work, Presbyterian church; Rev. E. M. Gearhart, president Northumberland County C. E. Union, Pennsylvania; Rev. Dr. Robert E. Speat, W. D. Howell, former field secretary of Minnesota, and A. J. Shartle, general secretary Pennsylvania State C. E. Union.

The speaker of the evening will be Rev. T. Albert Moore, of Toronto, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Rev. A. Pohlman, of Philadelphia, and Rev Dr. William Carter, of New York, will be the speakers at the Friday morning session, while the afternoon will be given over to junior work. The Friday evening session is primarily for Christian Endeavorers.

Will Present "Are You a Mason?"

Another large audience enjoyed the performance of "Prince Karl," by the permanent stock company, at the Plainfield theatre, last night, the individual and collective work of the company being noteworthy and calling forth frequent applause. This play will be given this afternoon and evening. On Monday, the company will present "St. Elmo" at Perth Amboy, returning to play "Are You a Mason?" the next four days of the week.

Women's Societies to Rally.

There will be a grand rally of the women's societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Every woman of the church and congregation is invited. There will be an interesting program and a missionary talk by Mrs. Maguire, wife of the pastor, and tea will be served.

Lectured on Palestine.

Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, delivered a lecture on Palestine to a large audience in the Congregational Memorial church, Newark, last night. He was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bushnell, of Newark, while there.

"What the Preacher's Wife Did?"

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will preach tomorrow morning on the subject of "The Yoke," and in the evening, "What the Preacher's Wife Did?"

TRAYNOR FOR $1,500 JOB

TWO OTHER CANDIDATES.

Vacancy Caused by Refusal of Governor to Re-appoint McCardell—Appointment to be Made Wednesday.

As he has the support of the Republican county and city committees, it is expected that Governor Fort will appoint John C. Traynor, an assistant in the tax office, as a factory inspector. The vacancy is caused by the refusal of the Governor to reappoint Andrew McCardell, whose term expired on September 2.

Both County Chairman Frank H. Smith and State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman have endorsed Traynor for the appointment and it is said that Labor Commissioner Bryant considers him well qualified for the place. The office pays $1,500 a year and the term is three years.

Other candidates for the place are Tenement House Inspector William L. Gloak, a member of the Plainfield Common Council, and Lewis V. Hoagland, of Elizabeth, a census supervisor and a defeated candidate for a Republican Assembly nomination. Mr. Gloak's present job pays him $1,200 a year with an eight-hour day. Mr. Hoagland fought the party organization at the primaries.

The appointment will be made on Wednesday, it is believed, and the successful man will begin his duties at once.

MEN'S CONFERENCE CLASS TO RESUME FALL SESSIONS.

The Men's Conference Class of the First Baptist church, of which John G. MacLaughlin is the president, meets regularly every Sunday afternoon at the church, at 2:45 o'clock. The class has issued an attractive "welcome letter" inviting men to join this "fraternal undenominational, democratic organization."

The fall sessions will begin tomorrow afternoon under the leadership of H. W. Herrman and Prof. B. J. Phelps. This is the third year of the class, beginning with a membership of five and now numbering over seventy-five. Efforts will be made to double the membership this year. A class banquet will be held soon to recognize the steady growth in numbers and enthusiasm as well as good works of this association of men for men. All men are welcome.

JUDGE ARMSTRONG FRACTURES A RIB.

Former Judge E. Ambler Armstrong, brother of Thomas S. Armstrong, of this city, met with a peculiar accident at his summer home, Lawrenceville. The ex-judge was in the act of getting out of his bathtub when his foot slipped and he fell heavily on his side against the outer rim of the tub.

At first it was thought that he was only suffering from a badly contused hip, but the pain kept getting worse and a physician was summoned. The latter stated that one rib was fractured and that the patient would have to be kept quiet for at least two weeks in order to guard against complications.

Alfred W. Dunavan Engaged.

Mrs. Wilhelmina R. Hahn, of East Second street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Minnie Helene, to Alfred Warren Dunavan, of East Second street. Both Miss Hahn and Mr. Dunavan are active members of Trinity Reformed church, the Sunday school, Christian Endeavor Society and other departments of church work. The date for the wedding has not been fixed.

Released on $5,000 Bond.

Francisco Ferranto, the only eye witness to the murder of Battista Lahi, alleged to have been committed by Francisco Antonnozzi, and who was held under $5,000 bail for his appearance before the grand jury, was released yesterday afternoon, Arthur Giles, M. C. VanArsdale and William Smalley furnishing the bond.

C. E. Society Rally.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will hold a rally service at 6:45 o'clock tomorrow night. The subject will be "Self-Centered or Christ-Centered." There will be special music. The meeting will be in charge of the prayer meeting committee, and all interested in Endeavor work are invited.

GOOD WORK.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Plainfield still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, 304 West Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "A dull, heavy, bearing-down pain in my back bothered me a great deal, especially when I caught cold. I also had frequent headaches and was at times so dizzy that I could scarcely see. If I did much stooping or lifting, my back became very lame and though I usel plasters, I was relieved only for the time being. Finally on the advise of a friend, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. They acted in every way as represented and in a short time rid me of all symptoms of kidney trouble. I am pleased to recommend a remedy of such undoubted merit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

UNION COUNTY ORPHAN'S COURT.

IN MATTER OF THE APPLICATION of Louis Morel, Administrator of Louis Morel, Deceased, for Sale of Land, to Pay Debts. Order to Show Cause.

Louis Morel, Administrator of Louis Morel, deceased, having exhibited to this Court under oath, a just and true account of the personal estate and debts of said deceased, whereby it appears that the personal estate of said deceased is insufficient to pay his debts, and requested the aid of the Court in the premises: It is, on this twenty-first day of September, nineteen hundred and ten, ordered that all persons interested in the lands, tenements, and real estate of said Louis Morel, deceased, appear before the Court, at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, on the twenty-third day of November, next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why so much of the said lands, tenements, hereditaments; and real estate of the said Louis Morel, deceased, should not be sold as will be sufficient to pay his debts, or the residue thereof, as the case may require. And it is further ordered, that this order be set up and published in one of the newspapers of this State, as by the statute directed.

By the Court.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A most enjoyable evening was spent last night by the members of the Baptist church and its friends at the rally social held in the parlors of the church. A pleasing program of games and music was enjoyed, after which refreshments were served.

Rev. Mr. Hollingshead is expected to return today from his vacation, which has been spent at his home in Ohio, and will occupy his pulpit at the Methodist church tomorrow at both services.

The tickets for the B. and E. Co.'s dance, which is to be held at Becker's auditorium on Friday night, October 7, are selling well and the affair will no doubt be a financial success.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be Sunday school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching, 10:45. At the close of the sermon the monthly communion will be held.

A business meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the Methodist church. Following the business session a social hour was enjoyed by the members.

The employes of Seeley's Mill who have ben enjoying a Saturday half holiday during the summer months, start the full Saturday again today.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Rev. J. J. Allen, pastor of the Baptist church, will preach at both services tomorrow. At 10:30 the subject will be "Characteristics of the True Christ," and the evening service will be held at 7:45. The Sunday-school will meet at 12 o'clock noon and the Christian Endeavor at 7 o'clock.

WHY LEWIS STICKS AS BANKING COMMISSIONER

The office of State commissioner of banking and insurance is regarded as too good a political plum to be handed out gratis by a Governor who is just about to leave office, and this is the reason why Vivian M. Lewis is not going to resign the place until it will be too late for Governor Fort to fill the vacancy.

Mr. Lewis' term as commissioner expires in 1912, and the Republican leaders feel it could be dispensed to far better advantage than to permit Mr. Fort to give it to some one whose appointment would not aid in any way in helping the organization in its fight to carry the State. The salary is $6,000, and the berth is one of the best in the State.

Had Mr. Lewis followed his own inclinations he would have resigned rather than place himself before the public in the apparent position of making sure of one position in case he could not secure a higher one. But the old heads in the party pointed out that the appointment would be a nice one to distribute in case he should succeed in landing in the Gubernatorial chair.

Down at the State house there is talk that Alfred N. Dalrymple would like the commissionership. While the place is a good one, and the Essex County chairman would undoubtly like to fill it, there has been nothing yet to indicate that such would be the case.

CHOLERA EPIDEMIC HAS BIG HOLD IN SIBERIA.

The cholera epidemic has taken a strong hold in Amur Province, Siberia, twenty-six cases with twelve deaths being reported from that section during the week ending September 23. Of these, twelve cases and seven deaths were at the capital, Blagovieshtchensk. Gerghana, in Turkestan, is also included in the cholera zone and has reported six cases.

On the whole, however, the situation is improving. The totals made up at the sanitary bureau show 198,246 cases and 92,329 deaths since the outbreak of the epidemic.

In the week of September 17 to 23 the cases and deaths numbered respectively 3,038 and 1,474. These included deaths by provinces as follows: Samara, 248; Kiev, 176; Saratov, 111; Simbursk, 101.

There has been a considerable falling off of cases in St. Petersburg, yesterday's record being fifteen with five deaths. During the present week there were 215 new cases and eighty deaths in the capital and 393 patients in hosptials.

Congress of Nations

Two Days to Be Devoted to Celebrating the People and Products of Each of Six Great Nations.

Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 3 and 4, FRANCE
Wednesday and Thursday, Oct 5 and 6, IRELAND
Thursday and Friday, Oct. 7 and 8, ITALY
Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 10 and 11, GERMANY
Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 12 and 13, ENGLAND
Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14 and 15, U. S.

In a city so cosmopolitan in its character as Newark, there are gathered many people of foreign birth and many others descended from them—all with more or less love for their native land or the land of their fathers. So we have many more Germans than many good sized German cities, many more Irishmen than many Irish cities, many more Italians than many Italian cities, and so on.

We have planned this two weeks' Congress of Nations as a compliment to the people of those nations and the nations under their wings, and during these two weeks we will make special displays and have sales of goods coming from these different nations—devoting two days to each of six big nations, beginning with France, from which comes, perhaps, more of our goods than from any country. This event will in no way conflict with the ordinary course of trade and the everyday features that bring the people of all nations to the store will be many and varied.

We Cordially Invite Frenchmen and All Others to Participate in

GOLF.

Word has been gleaned to the effect that the Midland Golf Club, of Garden City, is arranging to hold a three-day tournament for women over the Salisbury links some time in October. The exact days have not been fixed as yet, as an effort will be made to avoid a conflict with any other tournament.

It looks as if the Englewood Golf Club would soon have about all the foremost women golfers in the metropolitan district on its roster. Miss Lillian B. Hyde, the metropolitan champion, is up for membership, and so is Mrs. S. T. Hayes, a promising Salisbury player. Mrs. T. H. Polhemus already has joined.

An executive committee meeting of the United States Golf Association was held recently, when the Skokie Country Club, of Glencoe, Ill., was transferred from allied to active, or voting membership.

The Nashville Golf Club was elected an allied member. A draft of a special set of rules to govern bogie competitions was presented, but no action further than accepting the report was taken, except that the committee voted to have the rules submitted to the delegates at the annual meeting to be held at Chicago on January 14.

Heretofore the national body had refused to recognize the need for a set of bogie rules, but it seems to have at last yielded to pressure.

GOLF WIZARD'S OPINION

HE PLAYED THIRTY-SIX HOLES.

Thirteenth the Only "Flunky" Hole He found—Approves Most of the Others—Guest of the Club's President.

It will be interesting to members of the Plainfield Country Club to know what Walter J. Travis thinks of their golf course. The "old man" or "American wizard," as he has often been called, played thirty-six holes at the Country Club on Wednesday, afterwards dining and spending the evening with Leighton Calkins, and several friends who were invited to meet the famous player. Mr. Calkins has an ambition to give Plainfield a golf course which shall be a really good test of the game, although he does not think that for this purpose it is necessary to have a very long course. When the three new holes are opened up next year, the total length will be almost exactly 3,900 yards out and 3,000 yards in. While not long, this is championship length; and Mr. Calkins has always felt that excessive length is not necessary. His plan has been rather to obtain scientific trapping, and good turf, with a moderate total length. In this plan he has been supported by R. S. Rowland, chairman of the green committee, and by the trustees. And now Mr. Travis endorses this plan.

In getting Mr. Travis to come out and play over the course, the idea was not merely to give the members an opportunity to see a famous player play—the most consistently straight and accurate player, if not the most periodically brilliant player, in the world—but also to get his opinion on the plans which have been outlined for improving the course. Mr. Travis was in entire accord with the theories of the local players, and said that nothing would do more for the game than to have a club devote its energies towards good turf and scientific bunkering, contenting itself with reasonable length. He said that the only really bad hole on the course is the thirteenth which he called "fluky." He pronounced the first hole "superlatively fine" owing to the accurate second shot required, and he made the same comment with respect to the fifth, eighth, twelfth, fourteenth and seventeenth. He said that the eighteenth was as good a short one-shot hole as one could find, and spoke highly also of the seventh, eleventh and sixteenth as very good one-shot holes. With pot bunkers, or traps, on the front corners of the third, fourth, ninth, tenth and fifteenth holes, he thought that no better two-shot holes could be laid out. On the ninth hole he suggested deep pits at the left of the green; and on the twelfth hole two pot bunkers just short of the green, down the slope a little, leaving a space between, about ten feet wide, as he expressed it "just to entice a man to run his ball up between the traps, with condign punishment at hand if he fails to pull off the shot properly."

The bunkers already built he regarded as good, except that those that are shallow should be deepened down to at least three feet or more.

Mr. Travis also made valuable suggestions as to turf. He approved of the plans of the trustees to use the fescue seeds, which are slow growing, but produce a wiry hard turf requiring little water (except during the seeding time), and which in time actually crowd out and kill off the summer grass and weeds.

Mr. Travis said he was amazed to find so good a course in New Jersey, and that the configuration of the ground on all but a few of the holes was wonderfully good. Considering its length (only about 5,400 yards at present) he said it was "not so easy as it looks," and that the approach shots to many fairly short holes like the tenth, sixth, twelfth, fourteenth and seventeenth, required such careful placing that it was not exactly as easy as it looked to get the regulation "four." Mr. Travis also had a good word to say for the green committee and professional, because of the general condition of the course, especially the greens, in so dry a season.

Mr. Travis hopes to come out again in the near future. "When I get on to your greens," he said, "which are not at all bad, I expect to get down more fairly long puts and add more threes to my card." Mr. Travis had only eight holes out of thirty-six over fours, and on four of these he took three puts owing to unfamiliarity with the greens and a little overconfidence once or twice where he putted quickly, thinking I had a sure thing."

—The October meeting of the Common Council will be held Monday night, when several matters of more or less importance will be considered.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., October 1, 1910.

PROCRASTINATION.

While thousands of dollars of the people's money have been expended, whether wisely or not is immaterial, in investigations relative to sewage disposal systems, municipal ownership of water, consolidation of city and borough and what not, procrastination of the most inexcusable sort has characterized the attitude of the Common Council for years on the question of a sanitary system of garbage collection and disposal. Year in and year out the Board of Health has been begging the city fathers to rid the community of a disgraceful condition—ramshackle old carts going about collecting the refuse—and to establish a sanitary service to be operated by the local government. The recommendations made by the Board are to be found in the following extracts from that body's annual reports:

1902: "A municipal control of the collection and disposal of the garbage" was recommended.

1903: "A municipal control of collection and disposal of the garbage" was recommended.

1904: "A municipal collection and disposal of the garbage of our city" was recommended. It was also recommended that some system be adopted before the coming summer of 1905.

1905: "I would strongly recommend, both from a sanitary and economical standpoint the adoption of some proper collection and disposal system (of garbage) before the summer of 1906."

1906: "The question of garbage collection has been thoroughly discussed in previous reports. I would now respectfully urge that measures be taken to obtain some collection system for the coming summer of 1907."

"The present method of garbage collection and disposal is not only very inadequate and unsanitary, but is also a constant menace to the health of the city, and unless something is done at once to improve these conditions, serious results may at any time develop. This question of garbage collection has been brought to your attention on several occasions, and each time has been referred to the Public Affairs Committee, and there pigeon-holed and never even reported back to your Honorable Body," etc.

1907: "We would again call your attention to the unsightly, unsanitary and unsatisfactory methods employed in the collection of garbage. Other cities have grappled successfully with this problem during the past few years, and there is no reason why Plainfield should delay any longer in taking action on this most important matter."

"The most serious question with which we have to deal has been and still is, that of garbage collection. Plainfield has now reached the size when the only satisfactory solution of this problem is a collection of the city's refuse under municipal control. More nuisances arise from accumulations of garbage than from any other cause. Complaint after complaint has been received of the failure of garbage men to collect from their regular customers. Besides the irregularity in collections, the work is done in an expensive, unsanitary and unsatisfactory manner. * * * Complaints of this character could be entirely done away with if the city should collect the garbage and refuse; and until this is done, we will continue to receive complaints from the same source."

1908: "The present methods of garbage disposal are still unsanitary and unsatisfactory, and a menace to the health of the community. It is earnestly hoped that this problem may soon be solved by a proper municipal control."

"I would again urge the necessity of some action toward a proper sanitary collection of the garbage of our city under municipal control."

1909: "This coming year I would strongly recommend * * * that we request the Common Council to consider the question of a proper collection and disposal of garbage."

Utterly disregarding these requests, the householders, who by right are entitled to have their garbage removed and the expense met out of the taxes they pay, are compelled to hirecmen to do the work. How long, we ask, will the people tolerate such procrastination?

Wonders Bring Crowds to "Hip."

"The International Cup," "The Earthquake" and the splendid "Ballet of Niagara" with its Indian coryphees and poetic "set" of Niagara Falls for a background continue to attract twice daily crowds to the New York Hippodrome. It is generally conceded that nowhere else, either in this country or abroad is there to be found a show to compare with this in point of size and scenic splendor. For one price of admission one is enabled to see three complete performances, not to mention an entire circus—and this year's circus is thought by many the best ever seen at the big playhouse. Performing lions, bears and elephants add their antics to the amusing stunts of the equilibrists, equestrians and clowns. Silvers and Marceline continue to please both young and old patrons and the "Yacht Race," "The Shipwreck," the sprightly "Flag Number" as well as the great earthquake effects and aquatic finale with the rainbow flying ballet, all contribute to the attractiveness of the big show.

At 2:45 in the afternoon the Sunday-school will hold rally day exercises. The Christian Endeavor will meet at 7 o'clock and at 8 o'clock the pastor will preach on the topic, "The Life Beyond or After Death—what?"

PERSONAL.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk left this morning for Saranac Inn, Franklin county, New York, where he will remain until Monday.

Hugh B. Sweeney, registrar of the Plainfield Business College, has returned from a week's trip through Hunterdon, Warren and Morris counties in the interests of the institution.

Miss Jane Hyde and Miss S. A. Raddell, of the faculty of the Lady Jane Grey School, of Binghamton, N. Y., who have been the guests of Judge and Mrs. Delevan A. Holmes, of Rockview avenue, for the past ten days, returned home today.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lowry, of Eastern Ohio, left for home today after a three weeks' visit with their cousins, Andrew Love and family, of Duer street. They expressed the opinion that Plainfield is an ideal place to live in and they thoroughly enjoyed the mountain scenery.

CONGRESS NOMINEES AND A POSSIBILITY

With the holding of the Third District Congressional Democratic convention in Red Bank this afternoon, at which Woodrow Wilson, Democratic Gubernatorial nominee, was present, all the Congressional nominations of the two big parties in New Jersey will have been made.

It is believed that Mayor Thomas J. Scully, of South Amboy, will be the Democratic nominee in the Third. In that event the Republican and Democratic nominees who will be voted for at the November election and the nominees of the minor parties already filed, are as follows:

First District (Camden, Gloucester and Salem counties)—*Henry C. Loudenslager (Rep.), Joseph E. Nowrey (Dem.), Leo M. Harkins (Soc.), Charles C. Dempsey (Pro.).

*Renominated.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Cole, of Stanton, have just celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage.

George W. Chesser, of North Woodbury, has a sweet potato on exhibition that is the shape of a human being.

Samaul Waram, of Woodbury, who was bitten by a mad dog and was treated at the New York Pastuer Institute, has returned home in the best of health.

Frederick Beck, forty-eight years old, of 417 Ocean avenue, Jersey city, a brakeman in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, had the thumb of his right hand cut off Thursday afternoon while coupling cars at Port Liberty.

Ezra B. Marter, of Glassboro, landlord whose license recently was revoked by Judge Starr, has applied to the Supreme Court to set aside the decision on the ground that one sale to a minor is not sufficient cause for a revocation of a license.

William Fisher, a farmer of Hurffville, has decided not to prosecute the boys who entered his melon patch and helped themselves without permission. Fisher has forgiven them on the ground that he once was a boy and can tell of similar expeditions.

Swept from the top of a load of hay by the upper part of the barn door entrance of his farm at Rio Grande on September 14, Jeremiah Crowell, sixty-eight years old, died Thursday in Cooper Hospital, Camden. Internal injuries he sustained caused paralysis from the waist down.

Atlantic City baymen are mystified over the finding of a new hat, a collar and a cravat in a sharpie belonging to Captain George Doughty, which was washed away a week ago and recovered Wednesday on the meadows at Low Water Thoroughfare. It is feared the owner of the wearing apparel was washed overboard.

Death Thursday evening scored another triumph over a mile-a-minute flier. John Filman, breathing his last on a shore express while being whirled from Cape May to Camden. Squeezed between the arm of a derrick and the side of a building at an operation on which he was employed at Cape May Point, Filman's unconscious body was placed on the first northbound train.

This is figuring week in the Camden Chancery Court, the cause thereof being the suit of Mrs. Sarah Allen for an injunction restraining the Cumberland Glass Company from operating its plant pending the outcome of an application for a receiver. Mrs. Allen, who is a heavy stock and bondholder, charges mismanagement and disputes the values of the various plants as scheduled by the defendant corporation.

Only the promptness of William Bryant, driver of the Second district ambulance, Camden, Thursday night prevented Michael Maley from being killed under the wheels of the vehicle, in what the crew avers was a deliberate attempt at suicide. Maley was hurried to Cooper Hospital, where it was found that he was unhurt, and he was locked up on a charge of attempting suicide. Denying that he sought to end his life, Maley, who is thirty-six years old, and lives at St. John and Royden streets, said one of his ankles gave way as he was crossing the street, causing him to lose his balance.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

3 best plays in town—best comedy, best drama, best farce:

At the Comedy Theatre—"The Little Damozel", 41st., E. of Broadway., evenings 8:30; matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Henry W. Savage offers Monckton Hoffe's delightful comedy of London's Bohemian world. "It grips your heart"—Press.

At the Lyric, 42d., west of Broadway. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Henry W. Savage offers great mother-love drama, "Madame X."

At Nazimova's, 39th St. 39th, near Broadway. Henry W. Savage offers "Con & Co.", laughing tornado. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday. The principal roles are apportioned among Maude Odoll, William Burross, Harry Stone, Ben Hendricks, Tom H. Walsh, Grace Franklyn, Molly Roland, Gustav Hartzhoim, Suzotto Gordon, Charles F. McCarthy, Gilbert Douglas, James H. Morrison and F. T. Leaming.

Fred Terry and Julia Neilson come to New York city this month under the management of Klaw & Erlanger for a brief American engagement in "The Scarlet Pimpernel" and "Henry of Navarre." They bring their own company with them. Their visit to America will last only ten weeks.

Adeline Genee, who will make her farewell appearance on the stage this season under the management of Klaw & Erlanger, will open her season in Philadelphia this month in "The Bachelor Belles" by Harry B. Smith and Ray Hubbell.

Arrangements have been completed between David Belasco and Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger by which "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm", by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson, will be brought into Mr. Belasco's Republic Theatre in New York on Monday evening. This will enable "The Country Boy" to continue its run uninterruptedly at the Liberty Theatre.

What Charles Frohman is presenting in New York this week: Empire Theatre, 40th street and Broadway, evenings 8:15; matinees Saturday 2:15. 19th season: "John Drew excels himself in his best vehicle in years."—Evening Sun. John Drew in the new comedy, "Smith," by W. Somerset Maughan, author of "Jack Straw," "Lady Frederick," "Mrs. Dot," etc. Criterion Theatre, 4th street and Broadway, evenings 8:15; matinees Saturday 2:15. Henry B. Harris presents the season's latest success, "The Commuters," by James Forbes. Lyceum Theatre, 45th street near Broadway, evenings 8:15, matinees Saturday 2:15. G. P. Huntley and Hattie Williams in a new play by the author of "Love Watches," "Decorating Clementine." Knickerbocker Theatre 38th street and Broadway, evenings 8:15, matinees Saturday at 2:15. The greatest of all the great Gaiety Theatre, London, successes, "Our Miss Gibbs," by the author of "The Arcadians," with an international cast of over 100 English and American favorites.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Alice Russon, she whom the Scottish papers called "A Pretty June Rose," when she played across the water in "The Dashing Young Duke," is playing Eileen Cavanaugh in Charles Frohman's production of "The Arcadians." Miss Russon has never, not even as "Peggy, The Dairy Maid" had a part that fitted her as that of this dainty, gay little Irish girl whom Jack Meadows, the racing man, is in love with. Not only does she look the part but her sweet voice and graceful dancing have ample opportunities to score. "The Arcadians" will appear at the Plainfield theatre, Monday night.

Dynamite as Cow Food.

William Olmsted, a Stamford, Conn., dairyman, has lost four cows this week from dynamite. Four others are recovering from an illness due to the same cause. The cows chewed several pounds of stick dynamite and swallowed it. The explosive had been placed in a feed box behind the barn.

LONG VOYAGE FOR YALE AND HAVARD

The oil-burning turbine steamships Yale and Harvard, the swiftest coastwise ships in the world, will make their last trips between New York and Boston this week. They will then be prepared for the longest voyage they ever will undertake, that is, from New York to San Francisco through the Strait of Magellan, about 15,000 nautical miles. They will take no passengers and it has not been decided yet whether or not their skippers will go with them.

Reports of the sale of the two ships have been current for several weeks and are now officially confirmed. They have been purchased by a Pacific Coast company, which will use them between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The two boats, which will be replaced next spring between New York and Boston by two new boats, have been profitable investments to their owners and have practically paid the cost of construction, $1,500 000 each, since they were put into commission. They will leave New York for San Francisco on October 10 and are expected to make the trip in about fifty days.

ODD VERDICT GIVEN IN MECHANICS' LIEN SUIT.

Though $42.65 was claimed by Peter Tazio from Elizabeth A. and William H. Hands, and no offset was filed, the jury trying the facts before Judge Adams, in the Circuit Court, Newark, gave a verdict of $2.96 in favor of the Hands Thursday afternoon. The puzzle of how the jury arrived at the verdict could not be solved by the court.

The action was brought to enforce a mechanics' lien for cement work done on a house belonging to the defendants on Myrtle avenue, Bloomfield.

The verdict is defective, as no claim of offset was made by the defendants, and if not set aside by the court on its own motion a motion to that effect will be made by W. C. & E. Headley, attorneys for the plaintiff.

Under a new act extending the jurisdiction of district courts passed by the last Legislature mechanics' lien claims for less than $500 will hereafter be enforced in the lower courts.

FEAR LOCKJAW WILL KILL SEVEN-YEAR-OLD.

Another tetanus case which, it is feared, will end fatally, is under treatment at the City Hospital, Newar. The patient is Geo. Varian, seven years old, of 201 Belmont avenue, who was taken to the institution Thursday afternoon.

The boy's case is parallel to that of Florence Pavey, six years old, who succumbed at the hospital Monday night. In both cases the tetanus was caused by the infection of vaccination scars.

About two weeks ago the left arm of the Varian boy was vaccinated and the wound was healing nicely. A short time ago the boy while playing in the street got some dirt in the wound and lockjaw developed rapidly. Seeing that the youth's condition was serious, the family physician notified the Board of Health, which had the lad conveyed to the hospital in an ambulance.

REAL MENAGERIE NOW AT TRENTON ALL YEAR.

The State house at Trenton is soon to become the home of numerous rabbits, guinea pigs and other animals which will be used for scientific purposes by the laboratory of the State Board of Health. When the new wing was built and the laboratory was removed to the State house the board asked that quarters be fitted up for the various animals upon which they wish to experiment.

The State House Commission rebelled, and, so did a number of the high State officials, the result being that no live stock quarters were provided. The State Board of Health was persistent, and finally secured the consent of the commission to install the necessary quarters upon the roof of the capitol.

State Architect George E. Poole spent yesterday afternoon examing the roof of the building, and finally spent yesterday afternoon examining rear of the gidled dome where the necessary rooms will be built.

Drought Worries Farmers.

Farmers in Monmouth county are complaining of the prolonged drought, which has caused them considerable inconvenience. A number of them have been compelled to resort to the mill pond for their supply of water for cattle and some of them cart it several miles. Many wells on the farms have gone dry and others are so low that the farmers are afraid to draw water from them for their stock. The crops were too far advanced for the drought to do them any damage.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

"Oh, it's not much good saying to you that that's a selfish way of looking at life. But you've never had any lessons, and I suppose you never will have. You'll go on getting what you want, and taking it for granted that you ought to get it till the end."

"I hope so sincerely," said Val without shame. "But I shan't get one of the things I want most unless you promise to write to me."

She shook her head. "I can't promise that. I wouldn't if I could. As for getting your news, I shall read it in the papers, which are sure to chronicle all Lord Loveland does and says and a lot he doesn't do or say. I shall see rumors of your engagement, then an announcement. I wonder if it will be the survival of the prettiest—Miss Coolidge—or if you'll be knocked down—on your knees—to a higher bid?"

"You're not letting me get much pleasure out of my last moments with you," he complained, his blue eyes really pathetic. "Do you despise me, after all?"

She looked up at him. "Only one side of you," she answered a little sadly. "But—you're rather like the moon. We see only one of her sides. The other we have to take on faith. Perhaps it's silly of me, yet sometimes, in some moods, I do take your other side on faith."

"What is there—on that side?" he asked eagerly.

"I don't know. And I'm sure you don't. You probably never will, for the light shines so brightly on the one turned toward the world. Now it must be 'goodby,'"

"Don't forget me. Think of me sometimes," Loveland implored as he wrung the little hand she held out.

"I will think of you sometimes," she said as if mechanically repeating the words.

"Try to think the best of me."

Lesley and Mrs. Loveland all got their luggage dumped down under letter "D" before a single "L" box had appeared. Then when Val's did come and the property of other impatient "L's" at the same time the outside world was lost to view. Loveland got hold of a good natured custom house man, who, considering the indubitable fact that he was dealing with a British subject and believing the "Britisher's" statement that he was merely on a visit to America, made no unnecessary trouble.

Very few minutes were wasted in the examination, though Americans all around were suffering severely. Nevertheless, when his keys were in his hand again and Val was ready to separate himself and his belongings from the seething mass of anxious "L's," Miss Dearmer and her aunt had vanished off the face of the dock.

CHAPTER VI.

FOXHAM REDIVIVUS.

LOVELAND tried to put thoughts of the girl out of his head as he drove through the exciting streets of New York, which seemed to him colorful and strange as a vast flower garden sown regardlessly. But, despite the rush and roar of "elevated trains" above his head, the swift whir of electric trains to left, to right of him on a level and the bizarre effect of the skyscrapers, which turned long thoroughfares into shadowed valleys, he could not throw open his mind to the rush of new impressions. This brilliant New York made him feel, after all, a person of comparatively small importance.

Loveland had heard of the Waldorf-Astoria. Men he knew who ran over to New York on such errands as his own stopped at the Waldorf-Astoria or Holland House or the Plaza, and Val, who believed that the best was only just good enough, would not risk hiding his light under a bushel. True, he had very little money, but he had plenty of invitations and was certain to have more. A couple of days at the most expensive hotel could not break him, and Jim and Betty Harborough's millionaire friends would probably expect him to be conspicuous.

Loveland's intention had been to ask for a small room, high in situation and low in price, but once inside the immense red brown building, which looked vast enough to hold half New York, pride tied his tongue. Pretty girls, beautifully dressed, and prosperous looking men, with facial expressions as supercilious as his own, were standing within earshot, and Loveland could not resist satisfying an impulse of boyish vanity. He announced to a superior gentleman at a desk that he wanted a good room with a bath. His charming voice and "English accent" attracted the Americans near him, and under his mask of indifference Loveland was aware of the attention he excited.

The superior gentleman thought for a moment and consulted a book. Then he said that he had no single rooms with baths disengaged at present, but that there was a suit consisting of bedroom, bath and parlor—just one suit, and that probably would be gone in another minute.

The hint of rivalry decided Loveland. "Very well; I will take it," he said. "Here's my card, if you wish to know to whom you are letting your rooms," he went on haughtily in response to a sharp glance from shrewd, experienced eyes. And the hotel clerk read aloud, "Marquis of Loveland."

"MARQUIS OF LOVELAND."

At this every one who had been staring at the handsome, arrogant young Englishman began to stare, and Loveland was not displeased.

"My luggage will be here soon, I hope," he said, showing several metal disks about which his ideas were rather vague. The clerk answered civilly that the trunks ought to arrive in half an hour or so, and a smart youth in livery was told off to show Lord Loveland his rooms.

They were very luxurious rooms, almost too luxurious, and Loveland experienced a faint qualm as it occurred to him that he had neglected to ask the price. "But they can't come to more than five or six pounds a day at the worst," he thought hopefully.

He had brought his suit case in the cab, and as the letters of introduction were in a little portable writing desk contained among the fittings he got out the packet to read over the addresses. All the friends to whom Jim and Betty were commending him lived in New York, and Cadwallader Hunter had said that most New Yorkers were at home in November.

Loveland was just deciding that the letters had better reach their destination before night when his baggage appeared. Loveland touched an electric bell in his bedroom, demanded of an unexpectedly responsive telephone that the hotel should produce a valet and criticised the product adversely when it came.

Luncheon time was near, and Val was hungry, but he would not leave wardrobe and jewelry to the discretion of a strange servant. In a mood swinging toward impatience he sat down on a cushioned sofa to watch the valet's proceedings.

The larger of the two noble portmanteaus was opened, the neat square of gold braided and coroneted brown velvet with which Foxham always covered the contents of each box was removed, and a pile of clothing was deftly excavated.

Loveland's face changed from attention to surprise, then to bewilderment. "By Jove," he exclaimed, "those don't look like my things!" Then, springing up alertly, he began to toss over the pile as the hotel valet deposited it upon the bed, to toss it over as a haymaker tosses hay. But in the midst he drew back his hand as if he had inadvertently touched pitch. "Jove!" he stammered again.

"Wrong luggage, sir?" ventured the servant.

Loveland did not reply. He did not even hear, for his thoughts had taken a trip of record quickness across the sea and were already in London chasing a mystery. But if the valet had stopped to think an answer would have been unnecessary. The keys fitted the portmanteaus, and there were the big initials and the small coronets which distinguished Lord Loveland's property from the vulgar trunks of the common herd.

Had Foxham gone mad? For the moment Loveland could think of no other explanation. The portmanteau was filled with discarded garments, many of which Loveland had given to Foxham at parting. Other things were there, too, which Val dimly remembered having actually seen on the person of Foxham, and it was from the touch of these contaminated remnants that he recoiled in disgust.

"Open the other portmanteau," he directed, flushed now and anxious eyed.

The hotel servant obeyed. Another neat square of brown velvet was whisked away, and piles of shirts were revealed, but save for a deceitful top layer they were not Loveland's shirts. They might have been bought ready made in the Edgemere road—probably had been—by Foxham. There was underclothing also, but not the pale pink, blue and heliotrope silk variety affected by Foxham's master.

"Now the hatbox," Loveland went on, almost sure that he was talking in his sleep.

There were hats in the hatbox—Foxham's hats, perhaps, certainly not Lord Loveland's. And in the boot box, which came next, were boots which even Foxham would have found it difficult to give away.

Only the custom house official's good nature and haste and Loveland's complete absence of mind on the dock had delayed discovery until this moment, but now that the secret was out there seemed nothing to do if not to rage helplessly.

Loveland sputtered a few colorless words, but was still too bewildered by the catastrophe to become volcanic. The eruption would follow later.

"What shall I do with the things, sir?" the valet wanted to know.

"Do with them?" repeated Loveland, exasperated by the creature's calmness. "Pitch 'em into the fire, get rid of them anyhow, out of my sight; and be quick about it. I've been robbed in my own room."

No wonder Foxham had not asked for wages in arrears. No wonder he suddenly developed a defunct grandfather with an eccentric will. From the moment he heard of the proposed trip to America he must have been quietly planning this coup, a coup worth making for the sake of the brand new wardrobe, to say nothing of the jewelry. And, hot with rage, Loveland ran over in his mind the contents of that missing jewel box, the pearl studs which Lady Kitty Manning had given him on his last birthday, each one of the three worth £50 if it was worth a shilling. How he wished he had sold the things, as he had been tempted to do and would have done if they had not been the gift of a pretty woman! The diamond and enamel sleeve links, too, and the sapphire buttons—a hundred pounds more in Foxham's pocket; then the cravat pins in two long rows on a white velvet background. Loveland could see them as he had seen them last—a cherished collection representing not only so many golden sovereigns, but so many queens of beauty, the charming givers.

What a rogue to send his master off to a strange country stripped practically naked, and how the master longed to have the rogue within kicking distance instead of safe across the sea!

How was he to fight on the tilting ground of society and car away a millionairess when his sole possessions consisted of what he stood up in and the contents of a suit case and a cabin trunk?

Luckily Foxham had not been able to annex his master's letter of credit, but Val had uses for the hundred and fifty pounds other than buying a new outfit. How he wished now that he had not played bridge quite so often on board ship, emptying his pockets of spare cash! The scrape he was in was as hard to win out of as a black London fog, and while groping for light a mild question from the hotel valet did not sweeten his temper.

"Am I really to carry all these things away, sir?"

"Oh, go to the devil and take them with you!"

The servant bolted toward safety with a leaning tower of Foxham's garments on his arm. It was nobody's business how he meant to dispose of them, and a second later he would have passed the danger line had not a page-boy selected that identical instant to knock at Lord Loveland's door.

Man and youth collided. The top heavy pile of clothing crumbled into ruin, Foxham's loathed shirts and waistcoats blotting out the threshold. What the valet said long habits of servitude rendered inaudible, but what Loveland said might have been heard at the end of the corridor. And there were listeners nearer—Major Cadwallader Hunter and a companion who "represented" one of New York's leading newspapers.

Major Cadwallader Hunter had been somewhat doubtful of his wisdom in paying this uninvited call. He had hinted that he might drop in at the hotel to see how Lord Loveland got on and had not been encouraged to do so. But Tony Kidd of the New York Light was a pretty good excuse for persevering, and he certainly had been badly in want of an excuse.

The journalist, sent down by his paper to meet the Mauretania, had just exhausted the available supply of homecoming millionaires when he spied Major Cadwallader Hunter and carelessly culled him by the way as worth a short paragraph at the bottom of a column.

Cadwallader Hunter was glad of a paragraph anywhere, but thought he saw his way to one higher up, perhaps even with a headline. So he happened to mention "a connection of his," the Marquis of Loveland, who had been on board, though for reasons the noble name did not appear on the passenger list, and Mr. Kidd took the bait. Loveland was described by his alleged cousin as a "dear boy," so handsome, so clever, one of the oldest peerages in England, etc., in the Grenadier guards, don't you know, and all that sort of thing; had gone on ahead to secure rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria, though invitations had been showered upon him by the best people on board ship. As soon as he could escape with life and luggage Cadwallader Hunter intended to pay a friendly call and inspect Lord Loveland's new quarters.

Of course Mr. Kidd wanted to call, too, and get a "story" for his paper. But at this suggestion the bear leader shook his head. Charming fellow as Loveland was when you knew him, he was rather a difficult man to approach and had some ridiculous prejudice against American pressmen. Certainly, unless influence were brought to bear, he would refuse to see Mr. Kidd. But Cadwallader Hunter would like to do the Light a good turn and give the paper a chance for a "scoop." He would take Mr. Kidd under his wing and use his persuasive powers to obtain some sort of interview.

When, arriving at the hostelry, he had talked for a few minutes with pleasant condescension to a hotel clerk his self esteem had so risen that he no longer dreaded a cold reception. Nor did he receive one. His welcome was, on the contrary, far warmer than he had expected, and the hot blast of Loveland's wrath swept him back a step or two, so that he trod hard upon Tony Kidd's most pampered toe.

A difficult young man to approach, indeed.

The representative of the New York Light was a brilliant journalist with a keen sense of humor, and a headline jumped into his head as Cadwallader Hunter stamped upon his toe—"A Difficult Young Man to Approach." He thought he saw his way to something rather choice for tomorrow morning's Light.

YOU yourself can play the masterpieces of music---can interpret them to suit your own taste or can play them just as the masters would play them---if you have the 88-note

Hallet & Davis Piano - Player

"The Soloist" is a device by which a slight pressure accentuates the air of the piece you are playing. Other simple levers give you a wide range of artistic expression.

Maybe you have found that SOME Player-Pianos require laborious and tiresome pumping. Not so with the Hallet & Davis--you hardly notice the slight effort required, thanks to the perfected pneumatic action. And there's a "rest-shelf" to save the strain on the wrists while playing --what other player-piano is so convenient?

Then when you wish to use it as a regular piano, the player mechanism is instantly and easily enclosed.

The cost is less than you may have imagined--$750---and you cannot buy a BETTER player-piano at ANY price. This wonderful result has been made possible only by the splendid organization of the Hallet & Davis Piano Co.--its 75 years' experience, immense capital and systematic efficiency and economy of manufacturing. We sell DIRECT TO YOU.

$10 a month and up is all you need to pay us--and we will make you an attractive proposition on your old piano.

The Conway Player-Piano at $585, and the Lexington at $495; club plan; are the other good values--the best at the price.

Come in and play over your favorite pieces--no obligation or importunity--and you'll be delighted to see how easily you can enjoy this unique pleasure.

REV. MR. HOWARD RESIGNS

On Advice of Physician He Ends His Pastorate at Hope Chapel.

FOR SIX MONTHS NEEDED REST.

Announcement on Ninth Anniversary of His Pastorate—Crescent Avenue Trustees Will Consider Resignation.

Much to the surprise of his congregation and friends throughout the city, Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard tendered his resignation as pastor of Hope chapel at the morning service yesterday. The occasion marked the ninth anniversary of his installation to the pastorate, and it was his first appearance at any gathering in several months. He had been in the Adirondacks and Maine during the past summer, and his decision to retire from active work came after the realization that only complete rest for at least half a year would enable him to continue in the ministry.

Mr. Howard informed the chapel members of his determination after the customary announcements, and spoke as follows:

"There is another announcement to be made this morning which I come to with hesitation and regret. Every member of this congregation has known that your pastor has not been perfectly well since the very hot weather of the summer. It is a great satisfaction to be able to announce that the most thorough medical examination has declared that there is no organic trouble, but on the other hand, the doctors have said that there is a condition resulting from strain that will require six months more of complete release from church work before perfect health can be obtained. In view of this fact, I have this past week written to the Session of the Crescent Avenue church, offering my resignation as pastor of Hope chapel, so that the way may be clear for the taking of immediate steps to secure a guiding hand in the chapel affairs.

"Today would have been the beginning of the tenth year since my coming to this place, and I am glad to be able to feel that the nine years have been years of much happy fellowship in the service of our Lord and Master in this community. I especially regret having to close this fellowship without the opportunity of going about to bid farewell personally to all the members of the congregation, but it seems to be one condition of that speedy and complete recovery which all desire that I shall get away as promptly as possible. Therefore I can only say good-bye to you all together, and ask you to pass on my farewell and Godspeed, one to another so that those also who are not here this morning may receive them. Jesus Christ has been the Leader here, and will be still. My last word is only the old simple and earnest appeal to you each and all to follow Him—now and always. Follow Him and uphold the hands of every other servant of His who may seek to minister in this place."

The resignation will be considered by the Session of the Crescent Avenue church Wednesday evening, but is final so far as Mr. Howard is concerned. He has completed plans to leave the latter part of the week for the home of his mother at Glencoe, Ill., and will be joined by his family on November 1. He will remain there indefinitely. His pulpit will be filled by supplies until a successor can be named.

Mr. Howard came to Hope chapel direct from Union Theological Seminary, New York, which he entered after being graduated from Williams College in 1898. He succeeded Rev. G. K. Newell, now pastor of the St. Cloud Memorial church at South Orange. Mr. Howard quickly endeared himself to the congregation and it has enjoyed a steady growth under his leadership. He was indefatigable in his work and only those with whom he came in contact are able to

MRS. LOUIS O. BARTON SUES FOR A DIVORCE

The records in the Court of Chancery at Trenton, show that Mrs. Mabelle A. Barton, of this city, has brought suit against her husband, Louis O. Barton, on charges of desertion and cruelty. Louis O. Barton disappeared some time ago and nothing has been heard from him. Notice of the suit which is being served by publication appears today in the local papers.

The couple were married on September 3, 1906, and wor a while appeared to live happily together, but trouble arose and Barton deserted his wife without any apparent reason aside from the frequent quarrels which are alleged to have taken place.

They were married by Rev. George A. Houghton n New York. In her petition Mrs. Barton asks permission to resume her maiden name, which was Smith. Barton was formerly a singer in the choir of the First M. E. church in this city and was employed in a law office as stenographer.

The notice by publication of Mrs. Barton's suit is because she does not know of her husband's whereabouts at the present time.

MISS AMY C. CASE DIES OF PARALYTIC STROKE

Miss Amy C. Case, who was a resident of this city for about twenty-five years, died Saturday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Willis Sheppard, of Hopewell, following a long illness, and a stroke of paralysis about a week ago. She left Plainfield last May to make her home with Mrs. Sheppard and since that time failed rapidly. While in Plainfield she made her home with Jeremiah Moore, of West Fourth street, being a housekeeper there for many years. She was a native of Flemington and was about fifty years of age.

She was a member of the First Baptist church, this city, and a regular attendant at the services and also the Sunday school. She was a devout Christian woman. She is survived by two sisters, one living at Ringoes and the other at Flemington; also one niece, Mrs. Sheppard.

Funeral services will be held from the Baptist church, at Hopewell tonight at 8 o'clock, and another service will be held at Flemington tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The burial will be at Flemington.

MISS EMMA S. GRANNATT BRIDE OF W. A. LA MOTT

Announcement made today of the marriage of Miss Emma S. Grannatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Grannatt, Sr., of West Fourth street, and Wilbur A. La Mott, of Elizabeth, came somewhat as a surprise to the many friends of the bride. The couple was married at the parish house of Trinity Episcopal church, New York, on September 14. While they informed their immediate relatives of the fact, it was not generally known until Saturday evening, when a reception was given to the bride and groom at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Bradley S. Hall, 87 Fairview avenue, in honor of the event.

The immediate members of the family and friends were present to offer their congratulations and the bride received a large number of handsome presents. During the evening refreshments were served by DeMolli & Co., caterers of this city.

Prior to her marriage, the bride, who is extremely pretty, held a responsible position in the office of County Registrar Frank H. Smith, at Elizabeth. The groom holds a fine position with an electrical concern at Garwood. The couple is residing at Roselle Park, where the groom had a completely furnished home.

Romanzo's Antics.

Luigi Romanzo, an Italian employe of the Water Company, celebrated pay day on Saturday by getting drunk. He gave Patrolman Meyer a lively chase on Sunday morning at a very early hour, jumping fences and hiding among some grape vines on East Third street, where he was finally located by the aid of a flash light. Luigi was penitent this morning and as he was vouched for as being usually a sober and industrious man, Judge William N. Runyon allowed him to go with a reprimand.

LEWIS TO SPEAK HERE

The Republican Gubernatorial Nominee is Coming on Thursday, Oct. 13.

HIS ITINERARY ANNOUNCED.

Griggs, Stokes, Fort, Martin and Record as Spellbinders—Fowler Also Counted Upon—Briggs Chairman.

Following a conference with Vivian M. Lewis, Republican candidate for Governor, Senator Frank O. Briggs, chairman of the Republican State committe today announced the following itinerary to be followed by Mr. Lewis during the campaign: October 5, Hackensack; 6, Mt. Holly Fair, afternoon; Hoboken, night; 7, Warren county; 8, Sussex county; 10, Monmouth county; 11, Ocean county; 12, Burlington county; 13, Plainfield; 14, Trenton; 15, Elizabeth; 17, Newark; 18, Perth Amboy; 19, Englewood; 20, Gloucester county; 21, Somerset county; 22, Hunterdon county; 24, Mercer county; 25, Cumberland county; 26, Cape May county; 27, Paterson; 28, Salem county; 29, Camden county; 31, Jersey City. November 1, Orange; 2, New Brunswick; 3, Passaic; 4, Morristown; 5, Atlantic City; 7, Newark.

Mr. Lewis has been personally assured by both former Assemblyman William P. Martin and George L. Record that they would take the stump in his behalf as a candidate for Governor. He also expects to be aided in his campaign by Representative Charles E. Fowler, who, notwithstanding his defeat for a renomination, is said to be willing to do all in his power to further the election of the head of the ticket.

Former Governors John E. Griggs and Edward C. Stokes will be conspicuous among the Republican speakers in New Jersey this fall. Governor Fort is also expected to deliver two or three campaign speeches to be arranged for by the State committee. Former Senator William M. Johnson, of Hackensack, has also assured Mr. Lewis that he will make as many speeches for him as his health will permit.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES AT TEMPLE BAPTIST

Rally day exercises in charge of Mrs. Edward Baker, Jr., superintendent of the intermediate department, took place in the Temple Baptist Sunday school yesterday afternoon. The school has the graded system. Promotions and the awarding of diplomas were the order of the day and L. W. Randolph addressed the school on the topic, "The Tree and Its Fruit."

From the junior to the intermediate department the following were advanced: Lucy Johnson, Christine Vestegarde, Gilberta Van Nest, May Touchon, Maria Renwantz, Weslie Giles, John Cartwright William Simon, Arthur Campbell, Margaret Johnson, Percy Robinson and Leon Touchon.

Only six were promoted from the intermediate to the senior grade as follows: Carl Gullberg, Christopher Meyers, Jr., Harry Huff, Victor Crook, Alexander Campbell and George Lund.

Rewards for church attendance and for the completion of the home work of the intermediate department were given to Mary Conway, Harold Griffin, Esther Johnson, Bessie Griffin Enid Johnson, Wesley Giles and Isabel Lines.

Mr. Randolph gave an interesting talk and held the attention of the children throughout his interpretation of the value of fruitfulness in every department of life. Miss Rose Baker recited the story of Jacob's vision. The wanderings of the Children of Israel in the wilderness were vividly described by Esther and Enid Johnson.

Special Meeting of Freedom Castle.

There will be a special meeting of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, tonight, to make arrangements for attending the funeral of the late member, Albert H. Leivers, to be held from the home of his son, Frank L. Leivers, 103 Belmont avenue, North Plainfield, tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock. All sir knights are requested to attend the funeral, wearing caps, badge and gloves.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a cake sale in its rooms on Madison avenue Friday afternoon, October 7.

LILLY BREMMER MISSING

Pretty North Plainfield Girl Supposed to Have Eloped.

STARTED HOME LAST MONDAY.

Had Been at Norfolk, N. Y., For Summer—Believed to be in Albany, N. Y., Now with Newark Man.

Wihtout so much as a postcard to indicate her intentions Lily Bremmer, of 76 Greenbrook road, has disappeared and it is supposed that she has eloped. But her father, John Bremmer, is still in hopes that this is not the case and he is prosecuting a search in New York today which was begun last Saturday.

According to Mrs. Bremmer, who was seen this morning, her daughter Lilly had been spending the summer at Norfolk, N. Y., and started for her home in North Plainfield last Monday. Since she was put on the 23d street car at the Grand Central Station in New York, only a glimpse has been had of the girl and that by a Miss Frank, at 444 Third avenue in that city. There Miss Bremmer was entertained for a while or until she could change her dress, when again she was started homeward by Miss Frank

When she left Mrs. T. F. Rowland, of West Seventh stret, who put her on the car in the first instance, Miss Bremmer had a check for $80, which Mrs. Rowland had given to her. It is through this check which was drawn on the Butchers and Drovers National Bank of New York, that it is hoped to trace the girl.

Word was received this morning from Albany, N. Y., that a young woman answering in every detail the description of Miss Bremmer, had been seen to alight from a train at the Albany depot in company of a man about 35 years old, whose description tallies with one whom it is suspected Miss Bremmer had become acquainted with in Newark. Mrs. Bremmer said this morning that the only man whom she knew had paid any attention to her daughter was a widower twenty years older than her daughter, and that she had frowned on the proposed match. Since then there had been no symptoms of an attachment in any other quarter. But the acquaintance in Newark which was gathered from other information may have been going on without Mrs. Bremmer's knowledge and it may prove to be a bona fide elopement.

Suspicion points to the latter theory. Miss Bremmer is known to have bought a suit case in New York which she did not need especially as she had others. Her trunk has not arrived from the country yet so it is impossible to ascertain whether she also has that with her on her present tirip.

As a matter of fact the parents are as much in the dark as to the young woman's movements as are the police in New York, who have been asked to look for her. The girl had a good home and everything she could wish for and her relations with her parents have always been pleasant. It is feared that the shock to Mr. Bremmer who suffers from heart trouble will be more than he can stand, but, notwithstanding his feeble condition he is prosecuting his inquiries with vigor.

Miss Bremmer is described as being a pronounced blonde, 22 years old and of medium height. When she disappeared she wore a blue princess dress, a dark blue coat, a black sailor hat with red ribbon and carried the new straw suit case.

SUNDA DIES FOLLOWING AMPUTATION OF FOOT

Lawrence Sunda, the employe of the Public Service Corporation who fell from the work car on Richmond street on Friday and whose foot was amputated as a result of having that member crushed under the wheels, died yesterday morning at 1.45 o'clock from shock and loss of blood. The body was removed to Cole's undertaking establishment and his friends notified.

Sunda was trying to pass from one end of the car to the other when he slipped and fell with his right foot under the trucks. One wheel passed over the foot before the car could be stopped, and while no time was lost in getting him to the hospital, he lost considerable blood, and the shock of amputation was more than he could stand.

Democrats Meet Tonight.

There will be a meeting of the Democratic club in the clubrooms on North avenue tonight. Some prominent speakers will be present to address the members.

DIED WHILE AT DINNER

Albert H. Leivers Fatally Stricken by Heart Disease on Saturday.

ONCE IN COMMON COUNCIL.

He Was a Member of Heavenly Rest Church and K. G. E.—Wife, Three Sons and Daughter Survive Him.

Albert Howard Leivers, a former resident of Jefferson avenue, this city, a machinist and at one time a member of the local Common Council died suddenly Saturday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock while eating his dinner at his home in Westfield. Heart trouble was the cause of death. Mr. Leivers had been complaining about his heart recently, but his condition was not considered serious. He had just taken his seat at the table, when he fell over, in what the members of the family thought was a faint. Before Dr. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, could reach the house the man was dead.

Mr. Leivers resided in this city for several years, being employed at the Pond Machine Tool Works. He served one term in 1897, as a member of the Common Council from the Fourth ward, succeeding Isaac S. Randolph, who resigned. He took Mr. Randolph's place on the various committees to which the former was assigned.

Mr. Leivers was a member of the Church of the Heavenly Rest and was a trustee of the church. He was also a past chief of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle. Since residing at Westfield, he was employed at the C. & C. Works, Garwood. He is survived by a wife, three sons, Frank I., George Howard and Henry and one daughter, Viola.

The funeral will be held from the residence of the son, Frank I. Leivers, 103 Belmont avenue, North Plainfield, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

RUNAWAY GIRL CAUGHT AT NORTH AVE. STATION

Patrolman Cornelius McCarthy was much surprised shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon to see a little body, hatless and coatless, jump from the baggage car of the 1:24 train and hike it up the railroad tracks as fast as it could go. Becoming suspicious that the girl, for such it proved to be, was trying to evade somebody, he gave chase, and after a while came up with her. Not giving any satisfactory replies to the patrolman's questions, McCarthy took her to headquarters.

Captain Frederickson questioned the girl, who is small for her age, and finally got her to tell where she was from and why she was running away. She said she had been working for Mrs. Thomas Richards, of 32 High street, Somerville, but that she did not like it and wanted to get away. Captain Frederickson held her until Mr. Richards could be communicated with, and later he came and took her back to Somerville. The girl will be placed in an institution.

MISS SUSAN DUNHAM WEDDED IN TENNESSEE.

Miss Susan Dunham, daughter of W. C. Dunham, of Atlantic City, formerly of Craig place, the borough, left Thursday for a suburb of Chattanooga, Tenn., where she was married Saturday night to Frank Berry, formerly a local resident. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a small gathering of relatives and friends.

Previous to her marriage the bride had been living with her aunt, Mrs. Giles, of Grove street. Mr. Berry was employed in New York by the Davis Construction Company and was recently sent by the firm to Tennessee to superintend the construction of a big bridge contract. He will be there for the next three years and he and his bride will make their home near Chattanooga.

Brien's Remedy.

Stephen H. Brien, who claimed that he had been suffering with chills and fever was up before Judge Runyon this morning, charged with being drunk. He acknowledged having imbibed with the intention of curing his chills, but took too much. He was discharged.

Complain About the Dust.

Residents along the line of the trolley on West Front street are suffering a great deal from the dust nuisance. The coating of oil put on the street early in the summer has outlived its usefulness and the trolleys and automobiles make conditions almost unbearable.

DINNER AT HUNT CLUB GIVEN BY E. S. HOOLEY

The weeky chase of the Watchung Hunt Club was enjoyed by a large number of riding members Saturday afternoon. Starting at the Netherwood Farms, the members chased the hourds over the mountains, the first check being on top of the mountains near the Mountain Park Inn. From that point they came down to Somerset street, and thence back to the clubhouse where Edwin S. Hooley entertained about fifty members and frinds at an elaborate dinner.

The Eureka Trio together with a song and dance artist provided a fine prdogram for the guests. Judge William N. Runyon, one of the guests, help to entertain with some popular songs. There were guests from New York, Brooklyn, Newark and this city.

Those who followed the hounds in the chase included Miss Mabel B. Hooley, Brown Rolston, H. A. Bourne, Albin Trojan, Schuyler Casey, Harry Rose, Henry L. Finen, Rufus C. Finch, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Brown, Huntsman Henry Watkins, Charles Wildey, together with a number of grooms who were exercising their horses.

MISS MARY A. ARNOLD A NONAGENARIAN, DEAD

Miss Mary A. Arnold, aged 94 years, who has been a resident of this city for the past twenty years, died Saturday night at the home of her niece, Mrs. H. P. Reynolds, 819 First place. Death was due chiefly to advanced age, but it was hurried by a fall which Miss Arnold had about a week ago.

Miss Arnold was born at Tolland, Conn., where she lived up to twenty years ago, the time she removed to Plainfield and made her home with her niece. She was a life-long member of the Methodist church and during her residence here attended the First M. E. church and the Sunday school. Since coming to this city, Miss Arnold was blind and suffered other infirmities, but with them all she was cheerful and was a devout Christian woman, beloved by all who knew her. She was the last member of her family, having outlived them all.

The funeral will be held from the late home, 819 First place, at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will officiate and the burial will be in the North Plainfield cemetery.

MYSTERIOUS BLAZE CAUSES $250 DAMAGE

The borough fire department was summoned to the home of John Wakefield on Manning avenue, near Westervelt avenue, at 11:45 last night, where a mysterious blaze had broken out in the kitchen. The flames originated in the wall back of a gas stove and were eating their way to the second floor when the family was aroused by smoke.

With the arrival of the department in response to an alarm from box 132 the progress of the fire was speedily checked although the men worked an hour before it was entirely extinguished. The house is a two family affair, the other side being occupied by Nathan R. Lee. His premises practically escaped damage.

The building is owned by C. H. Rugg and the damage to it is placed at $200. The loss to Wakefield on furniture is estimated at $50. Both are covered by insurance. Chief McCullough is conducting an investigation today in the hope of ascertaining the cause of the blaze.

Executive Committee Meeting.

A meeting of the Somerset county Democratic executive committee was held at the Ten Eyck House, Somerville, Saturday afternoon, at which all the county candidates were present. The itinerary of the latter for the campaign was made up and the siuation in general was discussed. A resolution was introduced by secretary W. C. Linbarger, of the borough, endorsing the candidacy of Woodrow Wilson for Governor, Professor William C. Libbey for Congress, George Lamont for Assembly and George Mobus for sheriff.

Won First Prize at Fair.

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL DYING.

Mrs. John Mowry, a woman over sixty years of age, was hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital in a dying condition shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, having been terribly burned by gasolene flames at her home on West Front street ovr the grocery store of J. G. Williams & Co. Her clothing was almost entirely consumed before help arrived and in addition to being literally roasted from head to foot she inhaled the flames. She was still alive at 2:30 this afternoon, but her death is only a matter of time. Mrs. Mowry resides on the second floor of the building and was at work on a rear extension cleaning a bed with gasolene when the accident occurred. Fumes from the liquid were carried back through an open door of the kitchen and ignited from a range. In the explosion that followed the women's clothing was set ablaze and the room caught fire in several places.

Mrs. Mowry was alone at the time with the exception of her husband who was helpless in bed having been ill for a long time, but her screams soon brought assistance. Charles Diehl, a clerk in the Williams' store, bounded upstairs, and was soon followed by Miss Augustua Kreitling and her brother, William Kreitling, who did all possible to extinguish the flames. They were at work when the fire department arrived in response to an alarm turned in by George Muir, who had also heard the victim's screams and saw the smoke. The remnants of Mrs. Mowry's clothing were still burning when Captain Feiring and Drivers Keiderling and Clark tore them from her. Drs. Gesswein and Lufburrow were soon on the scene and gave temporary treatment before the police patrol conveyed her to the hospital.

The fire in the room was put out before making much headway and only slight damage was occasioned.

Mrs. Mowry has been a resident of this city for many years and is the mother of Mrs. William B. Sharp, of the Jackson building. She also has several step-sons.

13 MONTHS OLD BOY CHOKED TO DEATH

Henry Craft Diem, the thirteen-months-old son of Frank M. Diem, of 87 Manning avenue, North Plainfield, was found hanging between the mattress and the footboard of his mother's bed yesterday morning, and when Dr. J. F. Lawson was called in to see the baby he pronounced him dead.

The child had been sleeping with its mother during the night, and when Mr. Diem went out of the room to attend to her household duties the boy was asleep. An hour later Mr. Diem went into the room and discovered the body of his boy hanging as described above. Dr. Lawson was immediately summoned, but could do nothing for the child. It was beyond human help.

The only theory that has been advanced for the peculiar position of the child is that he awoke and finding himself alone started to get out of bed by crawling to the aperture between the footboard and mattress and suddenly slipping down feet first was unable to extricate himself and being choked could not make himself heard.

The funeral services will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of the parents.

Will Hold a Musical Service.

There will be a special musical service at the Salvation Army barracks tomorrow night conducted by Martin A. Korff, assisted by Mrs. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, and others. Mrs. Howard will render several vocal solos and Mr. Korff will give violin solos. A similar service was held at the army tent last summer and was considered one of the best in the history of the army. The public is invited.

Mrs. Herring at the Organ.

Owing to the illness of Clifford A. Braider, organist of the First Presbyterian church, Mrs. Charles E. Herring, wife of the pastor, has filled the position with satisfaction to the congregation. It is believed that Mr. Braider is on the safe road to recovery.

"The White Store" Saves You Money. We Give You S.H. Green Trading Stamps.

THE FALL SEASON WHICH IS USHERED IN BY THE MONTH OF OCTOBER FINDS THIS LARGE EMPORIUM FILLED TO OVERFLOWING WITH THE LARGEST AND MOST COMPLETE LINE OF MERCHANDISE THAT IT HAS EVER BEEN OUR GOOD FORTUNE TO PRESENT TO THE PEOPLE OF PLAINFIELD AND SURROUNDING TOWNS. EVERY EFFORT HAS BEEN PUT FORTH IN THE SELECTION OF MERCHANDISE THAT WILL BRING LASTING RESULTS TO THE CONSUMER; THIS COUPLED WITH AN EARNEST, CONSCIENTIOUS DESIRE TO SERVE YOU QUICKLY, ATTENTIVELY AND CORTEOUSLY, SHOULD BE PARTLY INSTRUMENTAL IN ASKING IF WE MAY HAVE THE PLEASURE OF SHOWING YOU THROUGH THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS, WITHOUT ANY OBLIGATION ON YOUR PART TO BUY.

Our Millinery Dept.

We often hear expressions of this kind when a visitor comes to our millinery department for the first time: "Why, I never thought your millinery department was so extensive, or your stock so large." Our reply is, that public appreciation of our efforts compelled us not only to give it more room, but our stock greatly increased. If you are among those who have never visited the millinery displays we have been making, we ask that you make a special effort to do so; when we think we can convince you of a great saving in your millinery bills. Our milliners and saleslades are courteous and obliging, never arrogant, and will at all times show you the greatest courtesy and consideration in helping you select what is best suited to your personal wants.

The Cloak and Suit Dept.

The rapid growth of this department has again compeled us to give it more room than we gave it last season. Each season from its inception has seen more room added, so that today we have the best stocked, best lighted and best equipped cloak and suit department in this section of the State. We were the first in the city to make alterations free of cost to the purchaser, and the public responded with an eagerness that soon obliged us to keep a corps of tailors for this purpose alone. You don't have to go out of your own city to purchase cloaks or suits. All we ask is that we be given a fair opportunity to prove our assertion.

Handsome Tailored Suits

IMPORTANT.
Beginning Monday this store will resume opening at 8 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. We thank the public for their co-operation during the season of giving our employes shorter hours

THE DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.
Our stock of Blankets and Comforts for the Fall season has been selected with the greatest care, thereby insuring you nothing but the best quality in these lines. We have a splendid line from the smallest to the largest and from the cheapest to the most expensive.

OUTING FLANNEL AND FLANNELETTS.
In every good kind and every good style in the best colors; also the new popular duckling fleece, and a line of bath robe material in a new line of dainty patterns.

LADIES' HOSIERY DEPARTMENT.
Your appreciation of our hosiery department has been so flatteringly generous that it has grown to such an extent that we were obliged to give it more room and yet it is not large enough. We have a splendid stock for Fall and Winter in every kind of good Hosiery.

Heating Problems Solved

HERE is the furnace that heats the house from first floor to the attic—makes no dust—little ash, and less bother. A BOYNTON "square pot" furnace will give summer temperature in zero weather, on a surprisingly small amount of coal. It's the square fire pot that does it. The never smothers out because the fire pot is full of ash and cinders. A turn of the BOYNTON ash cutting grate clears the fire completely. The BOYNTON has a capacious square cornered ash pit, that you can shovel out clean. BOYNTON boilers—for house, school, or church heating—have this same economical fire pot. See your dealer about BOYNTON "square pot" furnaces and boilers.

SOMERVILLE.

The Athletic Club of Somerville occupied its new home Saturday. This clubhouse has long been known as the Phillips property and is of colonial architecture, of imposing appearance and stands directly in front of the new courthouse and Somerset Hotel. It is well adapted to clubhouse purposes, the rooms being large and commodious and the surrounding grounds of good size. Bowling alleys will be installed at once and a tennis court early next spring. The club has 130 members at present and the membership is rapidly growing. The committee on the new clubhouse consists of Dr. A. A. Lawton, Chester A. Cawley, James A. Metz, Jr., W. D. Nolan and A. L. Thomas. The need of a men's club, such as the athletic association has come to be, has long been felt in Somerville, and the present step of securing a good home is a great move in the direction of club progress in the town.

The social rally Friday evening which was held in the chapel of the Second Reformed church, was the close of a week spent in rallying exercises. The chapel was filled by members of the church. When the social was held a musical program was well rendered by Geofrey O'Hara and Professor Youngman, after which the pastor, Rev. A. A. Pfansteihl, gave a short lecture on Switberland with colored views. At the close of this program the young people of the church served refreshments.

The members of Somerset Council, Knights of Columbus, are rapidly getting their club rooms in the Lord building in order. When the improvements are all made, the suite of rooms will be very fine.

E. Reed Burns and family, who have been spending the summer at Burns Brae Farm, just north of Somerville, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

James A. Vanderveer has returned to his home in Somerville, after spending two months with relatives in New York, Newark and Long Branch.

E. L. McConaughy and family, of New York, have been spending this week with Dr. and Mrs. Francis McConaughy, on East High street.

Miss Katherine Newall, of Brooklyn, has been spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. William Newell, at Green Knoll.

The women of the public library will hold a rummage sale in the Stevens building all this week.

Newton O. Dunster has sold his fine trotter, Don C., 2.29¼, to J. B. Glasby, of Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. White, of Green Knoll, are spending a week in New York city.

Mrs. Anne E. Reed and daughter left Saturday morning for Wernersville.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

Mrs. Aaron Reed and children, of Stanton, are guests at the home of Mrs. Reed's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Runyon R. Sutton, on East Second street, Bound Brook.

Mrs. A. R. Hoffman, of Clinton street, South Bound, is visiting at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Compton, at Pluckemin.

Mrs. William Powers, of Brooklyn, spent the past week at the home of her mother, Mrs. Rose Foley, in Franklin street, South Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Ball are entertaining Mrs. Edwin C. Ball and son, of Dunkirk, N. Y., at their home on East Main street, Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson M. Giles are entertaining Mrs. G. Wilson, of Stamford, Conn., at their home at Harris lane, near Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Banghart, of Franklin street, Bound Brook, spent the past week visiting friends in Warren county.

Mrs. John B. Field, of Bound Brook, has gone to Franklin Park, where she will spend several days with friends.

WESTFIELD.

Some mischievious boys cut the halyards of the flag pole at the McKinley School and the truant officers are on a hunt for them. It will cost about $15 to replace the rope, which the parents of the boys will be required to pay.

The Council will open bids for bonds amounting to $8,000 at the meeting to be held tonight. Several local people have sent in bids for the amount.

The annual meeting and sea of the Woman's Association of the Congregational church will be held at the church Monday afternoon.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

George Rabig, who was appointed night officer by the Township Committee at its meeting on Friday night, began duty Saturday night. Mr. Rabig comes well recommended and will no doubt prove to be the man that the committee has been looking for for several weeks.

Benjamin Elliott, the local chicken fancier, made nine entries in the Trenton Fair poultry exhibit held at Trenton last week. Mr. Elliott won a prize in every entry, taking several first and several prizes with his Buff Orpingtons and White Leghorn stock.

Rev. Mr. Hollingshead returned Saturday from his vacation of several weeks, which was spent at his home in Ohio, and occupied his pulpit at the Methodist church yesterday at both services.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews has returned from his outing at Ocean Grove and occupied his pulpit again yesterday. The monthly communion was obeserved at the morning service.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

An interesting meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the church.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mrs. George E. Firstbrook has returned to her home in Philadelphia after a visit with her parents, Captain and Mrs. Benjamin Cole, of Washington avenue.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council will be held this evening. A number of important matters are to come up for consideration.

The rally day exercises in the local church yesterday were well attended. The program comprised addresses and special song services.

Cherry Hill stock farm has been increased in area by the addition of thirty acres purchased from an adjoining owner.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Haussman, of Somerville, were the guests of friends in the borough yesterday.

HERE AND THERE.

Another case of that queer malady sleeplessness extending over several years without direct injury to health is exciting the interest of the medical profession of Budapest. Frau Bertha Hejemes, who is married and has a little girl of 10, has not slept for seven years.

She began her long vigil one night when a gypsy woman attempted to kidnap the child. Since then she has not been able to go to sleep; neither has she had any inclination to do so. She is in excellent health and has never had a day's illness, but as soon as she tries to lie down she is seized with a violent nervous agitation which compels her to sit up again.

The woman declares that she is quite content in her sleepless state, as with the whole twenty-four hours to herself she is able to perform all her household duties as well as to do a good deal of reading. A curious fact is that since the beginning of her insomnia she has developed a great taste and ability for study and has learned three languages.

Frau Hejemes is 38, and it was because of late she had been subject to irrepressible fits of yawning that she consulted a doctor about her sleepless state.

MAY CONTEST SCHOOL VOTE.

It is said legal proceedings may be begun at Westfield as a sequel to the special election in Westfield Thursday. The proposition submitted to the voters for their decision was to rescind the action of the last special election and in its place to purchase a lot on Broad street in the Second Ward and erect an entirely new building, the land and building not to cost over $47,000.

There were 680 votes cast, of which six were rejected. The proposition to purchase a site on Broad street and build a new building was carried by a majority of 104. The legal proceedings may be taken by those who do not favor a new building apart from the Washington School, but consider the vote illegal.

Trinity Commandery No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave tonight.

Plainfield Council, No. 294 Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet in regular session tonight.

FORMAL OPENING THIS WEEK

LADIES' EXQUISITE AUTUMN ATTIRE

Open Saturdays till 10 p. m.; closed other days at 5:30 p. m.

On a scale befitting the gorgeousness of the prevailing fashion of the period in frocks, cloaks and waists for Fall and Winter. In reality nothing as noteworthy from a style standpoint has ever been known in Newark, for the exhibit will contain the broadest possible range of garments, fro the simple street suit on up to the most elaborate costumes for dinner and party wear, the masterpieces of famous Paris dressmakers. The opening will be of unusual scope, in that suitable apparel for every purpose and occasion will not be fully represented, but may be selected with the certain assurance that the lines, the colorings and the fitting meet in every way the fashion edict for the coming season. The expense of providing yourself with one of these garments will be found to be materially lessened in this comprehensive ensemble of the Autumn styles.

TUESDAY ONLY, $22.50 SUIT, SPECIAL—Remember for the one day only being opening week. Our $22.50 suits compare favorably with suits sold about town at $27.50 to $30.00, but tomorrow only you may select at $17.50 a cold saving of $5.00 mixtures, cheviots, broadcloth. All that's new in models, some trimmed, some plain, navy, black and other colors, best Skinner's or yarn dyed linings.....$17.50

TUESDAY ONLY, $17.50 COATS, SPECIAL—We could take out a single style coat and make a one-day special of it, but the particular coat may not be to your liking, therefore you may select any coat marked $17.50, whether it be cheviot, broadcloth, mixture or serge, if it is marked $17.50 you may pay us tomorrow only $14.50. A clean saving of $3.00; ladies' and misses' sizes.....$14.50

TUESDAY ONLY, REGULAR $6.00 NEW FALL CHIFFON WAISTS, $4.75—No doubt you have seen pretty waists; well, we know you have not seen handsome chiffon models at the price we are going to offer them to you for one day. Yes, if we said $6.00 special, you would say reasonable when you see the style and quality. Model has small round yoke and collar mesh val., with neat floral pattern to revers of velvet and folds of messaline to match material; small tie, new kimono sleeves, 3-4 length with fold of silk. All silk Persian lined to match shades. In navy, brown, gray, wisteria, copenhagen and black, at.....$4.75

PERSONAL.

Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Lawson, of East Third street, have returned from a three weeks' vacation.

Miss Eleanor Smith, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting friends here for several days, has returned home.

Mrs. Christopher Mathewson, of New York, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. P. B. Cregar, of Grant avenue, has returned.

Emery N. Downs, formerly employed at Proctor's theatre this city, and more recently of Atlantic City, has taken a position as manager for a large vaudeville house at Albany, N. Y. His wife will accompany him to the latter place.

Mr. and Mrs. Barker, who have been visiting Mrs. Barker's sister, Mrs. J. B. Cottrell, of West Sixth street, left Saturday for Texas, where Mr. Barker will be put in charge of the U. S. recruiting station. Mr. Barker has been on the U. S. Battleship New Hampshire.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The mid-week prayer meeting will be held at the West End Tabernacle Thursday evening and the Junior C. E. Society will meet in the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The title has been passed in the exchange of the Temple Baptist church parsonage property for the A. A. Farland residential property on East Front street.

The women's societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold a rally service tomorrow afternoon, and Mrs. Maguire, wife of the pastor, will make an address. Tea will be served during a social hour.

$1,000,000 Gift to Synod.

Announcement was made Friday at Topeka, Kan., that President E. P. Ripley, in behalf of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company, had made a gift to the Presbyterian synod of New Mexico of the Montezuma Hotel and 1,500 acres of land at Las Vegas, N. M., for a Presbyterian college. It is stipulated that within five years the college must have 300 students. The synod has accepted the gift, which it is said, has a value of $1,000,000. The Montezuma Hotel has been used by the Santa Fe Railroad as a health resort.

PROMOTION EXERCISES HELD AT HOPE CHAPEL

Promotion exercises were held at the session of Hope chapel Sunday school yesterday afternoon, when diplomas were awarded to thirty-nine children between the ages of nine and ten years of age by G. Herbert Condict, the superintendent. The children were promoted from the primary department to the intermediate department.

REV. DR. HERRING ON "APPROPRIATING CHRIST."

In his sermon last night, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church defined the difference between the admiration of Jesus Christ and appropriating Him. He took for his text Mark 10:17 and illustrated with anecdote the great difference which is shown in the standing aloof and admiring the Saviour and the actuality of taking Him into the every day occupations of life and permitting His influence to sway the actions and speech in every walk of life.

There is no surer way, he said, of appropriating Christ and making Him a part of our lives than by giving up all that would interfere with such a surrender and thenceforward enjoy to the full the communion which brings peace and happiness. Eternal life, he said, is to know God, and this may be accomplished through His son, Jesus Christ. If you strive upward Christ will reach down and help you to attain the goal.

TRINITY C. E. SOCIETY HOLD A RALLY SERVICE.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, a rally service was held at the church at 6:45 o'clock, last night. Miss Marie Hahn was the leader and a quartet comprising William Bellerjeau, Edward D. Young, Miss Harriet Randall and Miss May Randall sang a selection, and Miss Etta Raybert also sang a solo.

Fred Soper, as president of the society, made a few remarks, and Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the church, spoke of the value of Christian Endeavor work. He also referred to the topic of the meeting, "Self-Centered or Christ-Centered." Three new members were received into the society.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

The first vesper service of the season at the Young Women's Christian Association was held yesterday afternoon with a good attendance. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, spoke on the Twenty-third Psalm. Miss Elizabeth Goddard sang.

On Thursday afternoon and evening the opening reception of the association will be held in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A. when the members and their friends will be cordially welcomed. The teachers of the different departments will be present to explain terms, etc., for the coming winter season.

Y. W. C. A. Outing.

One of the most delightful outings ever held by the Young Women's Christian Association was held Saturday afternoon when about a dozen of the young women members took a walk out to the deserted village near Scotch Plains. Altogether the young women walked about six miles through the country and having carried a lunch they enjoyed every minute of the time. Wild flowers were found in quantities and armfuls of goldenrod added to their trophies. Miss Mosher was in charge of the outing.

Two Afternoon Receptions.

Mrs. Charles L. Sykes and Mrs. Thomas Francis Sykes have issued invitations for afternoon receptions at their home, "The Red Cottage," Scotch Plains, on the first two Wednesdays in October.

P. H. S. NOTES.

At a special class meeting of the seniors of the P. H. S. on Friday afternoon for the purpose of selecting a class pin, it was decided to have an all gold pin after a heated debate.

The new course in Domestic Art at the P. H. S. has proved so popular that only the girls of the upper classes will be able to take it. This department will begin as soon as the sewing machines arrive.

Jewish New Year Begins.

The Jewish new year 5671 begins today at sunset. The year just closed had thirteen months, with 55 Sabbaths, while the new year will have only 384 days, with 50 Sabbaths. This year begins later than it has for a generation, and the weather conditions have again shown that the wise ancestors of the Hebrews were right when they said the later the new year the longer the summer.

Carriage First Best.

While driving south on West Fifth street yesterday afternoon, Harry Campbell with his wife and young son were in collision with an automobile in which were John H. Willett with his wife, daughter and a friend. The automobile was damaged to the extent of a broken fender and a lamp, while the carriage suffered no damage. No one was hurt.

Mr. Hyde's Will Probated.

The will of Francis deL. Hyde was admitted to probate at the Somerset County Surrogate's office at Somerville today. The estate is left one-third to his wife, Mrs. Carolyn Hyde, and two-thirds to be divided share and share alike among their children, Carolyn, Edward and Frank, Jr. Mrs. Hyde qualified as executrix. The value of the personalty is not known, for no inventory has been filed.

Plainfield Defeats Thomas A. C.

The Plainfield Association Football Club defeated the Thomas A. C., of Kearney, at the latter place, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 1 to 0, in one of the fastest games of the season. The contest was witnessed by a large crowd of football enthusiasts. The Plainfielders played an exceptionally brilliant game, and were highly complimented for shutting out the home team.

Race Meet at Westfield.

Under the auspices of the Westfield Driving and Riding Club, a special race meet for prizes will be held at the Westfield track on Saturday afternoon, October 15, at 1 o'clock. There will be three races, a 2:25 trot and pace for a set of horse clothing; a 2:20 trot and pace for ten bags of oats and a free-for-all trot and pace for set of harness.

Chicken Thieves on Liberty.

Chicken thieves invaded the yard of B. C. Firstbrook, on Liberty streeet and decamped with twelve fat hens. This is the third time within a month that Mr. Firstbrook's hennery has been robbed and he has decided there is very little profit in raising chickens.

—Albert Solosky, of Brooklyn, who was injured a few days ago by falling off a train at Grant avenue, is improving at the hospital.

—William Cargus, who was employed by Mrs. Mary Hague, of West Front street as a driver for a stone wagon, who was injured a few days ago by falling off the wagon, was discharged from the hospital today.

appreciate his efforts to minister to the needs of the sick and distressed. This was especially true of his visits to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he called every week and performed many little acts of kindness for every one irrespective of denomination.

Two years ago Mr. Howard broke down from overwork and since then he has not been in the best of health. His condition was further aggravated the past summer when making a trip from the Adirondacks to fill a hurried call to Mr. Newell's church he was overcome by the heat. This necessitated his going to Maine after his regular vacation but the expected recovery was not attained and his decision to relinquish all work came after a consultation with physicians.

Total gifts to both income and principal of the Yale university finances amounting to $2,398,291 shown in the first annual report of the new treasurer of Yale university, George Parmley Day, made public yesterday, as compared with $1,250,932 for the previous year.

Additions to the university fund show a net increase of $1,906,448, as against $1,204,050 for the previous year.

The most important additions of the year to the fund have been the Yale Alumni fund of $94,750 on the boathouse subscription of $66,164; the Hewitt bequest of $350,000; the Laffan professorship fund of $100,000; the Sage gift of $650,000, the Salisbury trust fund, $331,677, and additions to the university endowment and extension fund of $344,418.

The most important additions to income were $49,000 from the alumni fund, and $34,351 from the Carnegie foundation. Financially, it has been the best year for Yale in her history. The total increases in the departmental funds have amounted to $335,062; as compared with $508,600 the previous year.

The revenue of the whole university and departments was $1,197,569, and the total expenditures $1,177,165, showing a credit balance for the year of $20,404.

A table for all departments of the average cost of instruction per student shows a cost of $273.27, while the average receipts per student were but $134.21.

The investment account shows holdings of real estate in New Haven of $440,113; in New York of $125,249, and in Chicago of $86,862. The treasurer announces as a policy restriction of mortgage loans to New Haven and New York.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"The Arcadians," Charles Frohman's company of over one hundred people, are traveling in their own specal train of ten cars known as "The Arcadian Special." The company comes direct from the New York Theatre, where it completed its run on Saturday. The newest and best of all musical comedies that has been produced in years will be seen at The Plainfield theatre tonight. Perhaps not any musical play has enjoyed such popular favor as has been credited to "The Arcadians." The chief reason for this approval is that it does not depend on any vulgar comedy to bring out the humor of its lines, and it has twenty-four musical numbers that are said to be very tuneful.

OPPOSES ELECTION OF COSTLY SCHOOL BUILDING.

Notice was served on the Westfield Board of Education Friday night that its plans for a new school building in the Second ward, voted on Wednesday night, will be certiorarled. Benj. Bowden, a resident of the Second Ward, in that town, attended the meeting and gave verbal notice. He said that the school is not wanted by the residents.

The school trustees, however, went ahead and made preliminary plans for the building to be erected in Broad street at a cost of $65,000. Trustees Davis, Dennis and Dempsey were named as a committee on the new school.

It was said that at the school election members of the board had gotten ballots favoring the new school and had sent them out. Each member was asked if this were so by President Stein. They all flatly denied the report. Later it appeared that some person interested in the proposed new school had gotten 1,500 of the ballots and sent them out by mail.

FEWER PRINCETON FRESHMEN

The total enrollment of the freshman class at Princeton is 339, which shows a decrease of 12 from last year. This number includes 123 candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, 154 for the degree of Bachelor of Literature and Bachelor of Sciences, and 62 for the degree of Civil Engineer.

The new members of the faculty include many well known names. Among them are Frank J. Mather, professor of art and archaeology; Alfred J. Mayer, director of the department of marine biology at the Carnegie Institution, Washington, who becomes a lecturer in biology, and Rudolph Ernest Brunow, formerly professor of Semitic philology in the University of Heidelberg, who comes to a similar chair here.

Originator of Canteen Dead.

Major George M. Downey, U. S. A., retired, originator of the army post canteen, died in Washington, D. C., Thursday night after a week's illness, aged sixty-nine years. Major Downey had participated in three Indian campaigns during his earlier military career. He was transferred to the retired list in 1888 and since that time had engaged in the banking business.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Gloucester City Council Friday passed an ordinance providing for a $25,000 street improvement bond issue.

Ground has been broken at the Millville Bottle Works for a continuous glass tank that will be one of the largest ever erected.

Upsetting a big bowl of hot soup, Samuel Messenger, thirty-seven years old, of Newton avenue, Camden was badly scalded on the arms and legs.

While Reuben Stithens, a Millville athlete, was wrestling with a friend, a box of matches ignited in his coat pocket and he was painfully burned.

Falling downstairs at her home at Blue Anchor Friday night, Mrs. Mary Crow, seventy-five years old, broke an ankle and a wrist and was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital in Camden.

Two thousand acres of forest land, part of the immense game preserve of the Atlantic County Hunting and Fishing Club, will be inclosed by an eight-foot wire fence and maintained as a deer park.

William M. Bernshouse has plowed about 140 acres of land on an old seed farm, near Waterford, and sowed it in alfalfa for the New Jersey Alfalfa Land Company, making probably the largest piece of alfalfa planted in the State.

The Yacht Rainbow designed and built by Harry C. Ford for George W. Latta, of Burlington, was launched at Ford's shipyards at Bordentown Friday. It is forty feet in length and is fitted with modern improveemnts and a forty-horsepower motor.

Frank Blair, a Jersey City photographer, who attempted suicide by shooting himself in the breast, was arraigned before Judge Farmer in the First Criminal Court Friday. He expressed sorrow and was discharged upon his promise not to again attempt his life.

Archie Pollard, 1836 South Eighth street, Camden, received fatal injuries by a pile of lumber falling on him at the yard of David Baird, Front and Pearl streets. He was piling lumber when the pile toppled over. Death ensued an hour after his admission to the Cooper Hospital.

As an appreciation of his forty-three years' continuous service as its recording secretary, members of Beverly Lodge I. O. O. F., Friday night at their reunion, which marked the close of summer sessions and the opening of winter, presented J. Ritner Praul with a handsome silver loving cup.

County Physician Souder Friday issued a certificate of death from natural causes in the case of Israel Williamson, an Atlantic City Boardwalk auctioneer, who expired two hours after he returned home Thursday night from a meeting of the lodge of Elks, which he said would be his last.

The work of remodeling the Thompson mansion at Gloucester City for the new immigrant station will not be commenced before the first of the year. At that time work will also be started on the new building and wharf. The contract for remodeling was awarded to Gilpin, Guernsey & Co., of Philadelphia.

Magistrate Daniel E. Izzard, Freeholder John S. Risley, Joseph Shaner and the driver, John Pratt, narrowly escaped death Friday afternoon at May's Landing, when the automobile in which they were riding came within a hair's breadth of running into an electric train. The incident occurred at the unprotected grade crossing, where the county boulevard intersects the electric road.

Adjudged guilty of cruelty to animals, Robert Caum, of Clementon, was fined $25 and costs by Justice of the Peace Huyett in Camden Friday. Robert Schellinger, another farmer, said he left a horse and a mule with the defendant to board and that the skeleton of the mule was found standing in a small stream where it was supposed to have become mired, and that the body of the horse also was found mired.

Godfrey Mann, of Philadelphia, and M. P. Strickler, his chauffeur, were fined in police court, Atlantic City, Friday, as a result of a clash with the police at 2:30 a. m., following the return of Mann's party from a long day's run to the Interstate Fair in Trenton. Trouble first occurred when a traffic policeman remonstrated with Strickler for driving the wrong side of the street, and was denounced, it was charged, by Mann.

To Contest Chinaman's Will.

A caveat was filed in the Surrogate's office in Newark Friday in behalf of Susan P. Kingston against the probate of one of two wills of Wong Hoey Hong, the Chinese protege of the late Miss Alethia Mason Carter. Hong died on September 23 in Newark. Miss Carter, who died on June 10, in her will bequeathed to Hong $6,000 and a fine house. The document against which the caveat is directed was executed on August 26. Neither of the two wills has been put on record yet, so the objection appeared in the Surrogate's office first.

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

Somehow, between valet and page the wild litter of shirts, trousers, boots and other horrors reminiscent of Foxham was rebuilt into a tower more leaning than before. Then, while the valet scuttled away with his trailing, sliding load, the page remained behind and courageously announced the visitors.

Perhaps if Foxham had spared him a few of his favorite tie pins or if the blow of his loss had not caught him on an empty stomach Loveland might have seen the humor of the situation as Tony Kidd saw it. But everything was against him in a black world, and his late shipmate's intrusion with a stranger was the one last drop in a bitter cup which he refused to swallow.

Never had Cadwallader Hunter's handsome bear looked less handsome or more dangerous than he looked as he stood blocking the way to his den, at bay against fate and against his leader.

"My dear fellow, what has happened to upset you?" exclaimed Cadwallader Hunter, warned by Loveland's expression that the only hope lay in getting the first word.

"Upset me?" echoed Val, glaring blue fire so vindictively that Kidd expected his introducer to be the next one "upset." "My d— valet has stolen all my clothes and made me a present of his own; that's all."

"How shocking!" sympathized Cadwallader Hunter.

"Well, yes, it is rather a shock," returned Loveland dryly, "and if you don't mind I think I'd better ask you to let me get over it alone."

"Oh, certainly, I quite understand," purred the banished courtier. But Kidd was making mental notes, and Cadwallader Hunter strove to retain his reputation as a valued cousin. "Just a minute or two, dear boy, and we'll take ourselves off. This is Mr Kidd, from one of our most important papers"—

"Happy to see him another time," snapped Loveland. "Just now I'm in no temper to entertain strangers."

"But at least," Cadwallader Hunter protested, "you mustn't look on me as a stranger, my dear fellow, and if there's anything I can do"—

"My dear fellow," Loveland flung back at him in angry mimicry, "if you keep on I'm more likely to look on you as a bore. The one thing you can do for me is to go and take your newspaper friend with you. Good morning."

And the bear shot back into his den, banging the door.

"The British lion before his midday meal," remarked the representative of the New York Light. "Another minute and he'd have snatched a free lunch—

"GO AND TAKE YOUR NEWSPAPER FRIEND WITH YOU."

Kidd with Hunter sauce! But serve me up on toast if he hasn't got sauce enough of his own."

"He comes of a hot tempered family," Cadwallader Hunter explained his English relative.

"I should say they'd been hot ever since William the Conqueror," commented Mr. Kidd. "Good family to keep away from when you haven't got your gun. I forgot mine this morning."

But he had not forgotten his stylographic pen.

The moment that the door had slammed Loveland's ears tingled with the consciousness that not only had he been guilty of a very rude act, but a particularly stupid one.

He reminded himself that a great liberty had been taken with him at an inopportune moment, that he was not used to having liberties taken with him at the best of times, and that

Our Magnificent Displays of French Goods and Garments Reveal the Supremacy of France in Art and Fashions

The people of France have filled many pages of history with stories of their brilliant victories on fields of battle, of triumphs in the world of literature, of achievements in the world of art. But of nothing have they so much reason to be proud as of their art, skill and originality in the creation of beautiful things for wear and ornamentation so many of which find their way into this country and into this store.

French manufacturers glorify her more than any of her more picturesque attainments in the showing of goods of French origin which we make today and tomorrow. Her supremacy will be emphasized in a way that will make every Frenchman proud of his country and every American proud of France.

We cordially invite all Frenchmen and all others to this event.

Sale of Parlor Suites

We begin a series of notable October sales in the Furniture Store with a sale of reliable parlorsuites at extremely low prices, beginning tomorrow and continuing thruout the week.

There are about fifty suites in all—three and five pieces to the suite, embracing a variety of choice designs and coverings. They are perfect in every respect and were built by the most reliable makers, making you safe in the purchase of any one of them, no matter how low the price. We will not duplicate any of these suites at this special price, but any of them may be duplicated at the regular price by giving us ten days' time to fill the order.

Your savings are indicated by the difference between the regular and special price, because the regular prices are low, as you know.

Suites selected from the fifty we offer must be delivered at once. None will be held for future delivery.

Purchases may be made on the Club Plan if desired.

inder Hunter deserved all he had got for coming up to him uninvited with a stranger, a newspaper man, in tow. Still, Val was not happy, and if he had not been too stubbornly proud to yield to his first impulse he would have flung open the door and run after his visitors with apologies. But, no; he would not do it—a bad precedent to make with a person like Cadwallader Hunter, he said, excusing himself.

CHAPTER VII.

THE COLD WORLD

VAL had meant when his unpacking was done to dress and lunch in the restaurant whose fame had reached even the dining room of the Guards' club. Now he did not want to look at his fellow beings or be looked at, and he pressed his electric bell viciously to order luncheon up.

It came presently and would have been delicious to a man without a grievance, but Loveland's grievance was so gigantic that it crowded out his appetite. Useless to waste money in cabling instructions for Foxham's arrest, he reflected. The wretch who had planned everything so well would long ago have taken himself out of harm's way.

No, Loveland decided, he need not hope to punish Foxham. His time might be better employed in planning the reconstruction of his own wardrobe.

A man, even a marquis, can live without tie pins or a change of shirt studs, but he cannot live without such clothes as society expects of him. Loveland thought with almost passionate regret of his tailor's achievements lost to him forever, and with anxiety of the difficult matter it would be to replace them.

The hundred and fifty pounds represented by his letter of credit could not be spared for American tailors and bootmakers. That went without saying. These persons would have to trust him. But were American tailors and bootmakers of a trusting nature? Loveland had somehow got the impression that they were not, and that even if you were a duke—much less a marquis—and flaunted a copy of Burke under their noses they would still want some native millionaire to guarantee them against loss.

Cadwallader Hunter was not a millionaire (this was the one damaging statement he had voluntarily made against himself), but he knew millionaires and was known by them, and with a pang of selfish regret, even sharper than his first remorse, Loveland repented his wastefulness in throwing away such a friend. If he had not slammed the door almost upon Cadwallader Hunter's high, thin nose he might now have summoned him by telephone and have got him to trot about introducing the Marquis of Loveland to the best tailors in New York. The only thing for Val to do was to wait until he had collected other friends more solid, more valuable than Cadwallader Hunter and as soon as possible tell the tale of his misfortunes. Of course everybody would be delighted to help Lord Loveland, and, by the way, there was Mr. Coolidge, who could be approached if worst came to worst.

When he had been cheered by luncheon and soothed by cigarettes he sent for a motor taxicab. The afternoon was still young and so full of sparkle and gayety that life seemed worth living after all; therefore Lord Loveland had begun to value himself almost as highly as ever by the time his smart little automobile pulled up in front of the bank.

It was a stately bank, well worthy of its London connection, and he handed in his visiting card and letter of credit with the air of one entitled to receive unlimited sums. The cashier, however, having looked at him, the card and the letter, did not appear to be impressed. Instead of replying in words to Loveland's demand for £20, he walked away with the letter of credit in his hand and vanished behind a swing door. After a short delay the cashier returned and, having strolled back to his place behind the grating, there stood silent for a moment.

"I'm rather in a hurry," said Loveland. "I suppose there'll be no red tape about my getting £20? I want it this afternoon."

The cashier smiled a dry smile, and his voice sounded dry as he answered: "I don't know about the red tape, but I'm sorry to tell you we have no instructions from London to pay."

"What?" cried Val, reddening with annoyance. "You have no instructions?"

"No instructions to pay," repeated the cashier, putting on the last word an emphasis which sounded offensive to Loveland's ears, though he hastily assured himself that it could not possibly have any such meaning.

"This is very inconvenient," said Val, to whom bridge and tips on shipboard had left exactly seventeen shillings threepence halfpenny.

"I'm sorry for that," remarked the cashier, still more formally, more unsympathetically and—one might almost have said—more disrespectfully than before.

Loveland, though inclined to storm, reflected a moment. He had intended to sail on the Baltic, which was due to leave English shores only yesterday and might not arrive in New York for seven or eight days. He had not given any one notice—not even his mother—that he had changed his intention, and very likely the London papers had paragraphed him as a passenger on the Baltic's next trip. Nevertheless, he could not quite understand how the fact excused his London bankers in instructing their New York correspondents. They had had [illegible] sudden departure on the Mauretania, and by not doing so they were likely to make him a great deal of unnecessary trouble.

"Well, I don't see why I should be made to suffer because the London and Southern bank puts off till tomorrow what it ought to have done a week ago," said Loveland, beginning to be arrogant, though looking boyish, with his flushed face and his white scar glimmering on its background of clear, ruddy brown. "I must have some money, you know."

The cashier did not reply to this challenge, and his eyes expressed no interested consideration of the matter.

"You had better see your manager and explain the circumstances," pursued Val.

"It would be useless. We could not pay without instructions."

"I dare say I might manage with £10 till you could get an answer, if you choose to be so ridiculously overcautious," Loveland insisted loftily. "But in that case you must cable at once."

"You will no doubt be willing to pay for the message in advance?" suggested the cashier.

"Certainly not," said Val, no longer trying to keep his temper under control. "You've seen my card. Isn't that enough for you?"

"Business is business," quoted the bank employee, still unruffled, still blind to Lord Loveland's importance, cold to his necessities.

"And decency's decency," stormed Val, careless now who looked or listened and in a mood to wreck all American institutions.

"Yes, it's as well never to forget that," the cashier hinted significantly. "Sorry we cannot accommodate you at present."

"I'm hanged if you ever get the chance again," retorted Val, snatching his letter of credit from the counter. "I shall myself send a cable to the London and Southern which will make you repent your pigheadedness." And with this ultimatum he strode to the door as if on the way to sign a death warrant.

"Beastly America! Beastly Americans!" he muttered. "I suppose this is their way of resenting the existence of aristocracy."

Trying to forget the first snub man had ever dared to deal him, he flashed here and there in his motor cab, making a house to house distribution of Jim's envelopes and his own visiting cards, according to home custom when armed with letters of introduction.

The sky flamed with sunset banners—Spanish colors—long before he had finished his round and was ready to return to the Waldorf. There his idea of a suitable present to the chauffeur left him with the American equivalent of eight or nine shillings in his pocket. But, as he had expected, the hotel paid for his afternoon's motoring. So cheerfully did it pay that he sent off an unnecessarily long and extremely frank cablegram to his London bankers which they ought to receive on opening their doors next morning. He thought that it would rather wake them up and that in consequence of their response to New York—certain to flash immediately along the wires—he would receive an apology from the rude wretch who had insulted him that afternoon. But nothing would induce him to forget or forgive. He had informed the London bankers that his business must be diverted into another channel, which they were invited to suggest.

When Loveland found himself alone again in his luxurious suit of rooms with the November night coming on and no amusement on hand he half wished once more that he had not been so cautious in the matter of accepting invitations. After all, it would not have compromised his future if he had gone to dine with the Coolidges or Spanish-eyed, flirtatious Mrs. Milton and her gentle little daughter Fanny. The next best thing to dining with friends would be to watch the coming and going of gay New York in the restaurant.

He dressed and went down about 8, therefore, looking forward to the novelty of the unknown.

It was a brilliant scene into the midst of which Loveland had plunged. Society begins to dine earlier in New York than in London; therefore at 8 o'clock dinner was in full swing. There was scarcely an empty table, and many of the women being in hats and semi-evening dress, the red and gold restaurant suggested to the newcomer a living picture of Paris.

He had had the forethought to telephone down and order a table to be kept for him, and on informing an interrogative waiter that he was Lord Loveland he learned that his place would be found at the far end of the room.

It looked a very far end, indeed, gazing across an intervening sea of flower like hats, charming faces and jeweled necks that glimmered white under film of lace and tulle, but Loveland was not shy. He rather enjoyed his progress, winding on and on along narrow paths between rose burdened tables, with lovely eyes lifting to his as he passed by. He wondered if any pair of those eyes was destined to look down his own table at Loveland castle some day. Well, they should be beautiful eyes to deserve the honor. The thought slipped vaguely through his head, and then his own eyes brightened with the light of recognition.

There, at a large table decorated with white and purple violets, sat Elinor Coolidge, her father, Mrs. Milton and Fanny and two men whom Loveland had never seen before. Standing and bending slightly down to talk in a confidential tone with one of these men was Major Cadwallader Hunter.

FOR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

First Round for Club Honors at the Plainfield Country Club.

THE RESULTS IN DETAIL.

Messrs. Morgan, Baker, Murphy, Glenney, Lounsbery, Talmadge and Stockton Winners on Saturday.

The big event at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday was the continuation of play for the golf championship, first round; also the first round for the second and third sixteens. Those engaged in play for the championship started from scratch, while those in the second and third sixteens were given a handicap. The play was spirited and many fine matches were witnessed throughout the competition.

There was the largest entry list in the history of the club for this event, fifty-six players posting their names. The list was so large that the committee was obliged to provide for a third sixteen and a prize for the winner. On Saturday in the first round for the championship, the winners were C. B. Morgan J. Whitney Baker, Arthur Murphy, H. R. Stockton William T. Glenney, S. D. Lounsbery and Frank C. Talmadge. They will continue at play next Saturday. The result of Saturday's play follows:

First sixteen, championship—C. B. Morgan beat H. D. Hibbard, 1 up; (19) holes; J. Whitney Baker beat Dudley H. Barrows 1 up; Arthur Murphy beat R. G. Morse, 2 up; H. R. Stockton beat R. S. Rowland, 3 up and 2 to play; William T. Glenney beat Willard Wadsworth, 5 up and 4 to play; S. D. Lounsbery beat M. J. Dumont, 6 up and 5 to play; Frank C. Talmade beat J. E. Erickson, 5 up and 3 to play.

Second sixteen—W. T. Kaufman (16) beat C. C. Burke (15) 4 up and 3 to play; E. B. Shoemaker (12) beat E. J. Patterson (19) 7 up and 5 to play; E. T. Wilson (10) beat A. M. Collens (12) 1 up; L. G. Carman (12) beat L. R. Hopton (24) 4 up and 3 to play; C. W. King (25) beat Clifton Wharton, Jr., by default; S. P. Wood (19) beat H. F. Fox (18) 1 up; R. H. Cox (20) beat E. P. Godwin (15) 3 up and 1 to play; O. W. Gott (12) beat S. H. Patterson (14) 1 up.

Third sixteen—Howard Huntington (18) beat G. F. Earl (18) 2 up and 1 to play; Harold Serrell (25) beat L. H. VanBuren (22) 2 up and 1 to play; C. M. Church (23) beat George S. Clay (20) 3 up and 1 to play; A. W. Klencke (25) beat B. F. Kraffert (20) 2 up and 1 to play; L. H. Gates (27) beat Henry L. Hall (21) 2 up and 1 to play; W. A. Bours, Jr., (26) beat J. A. Lane (15) 2 up; C. C. Riggs (20) beat G. M. Holstein (21) 5 up and 3 to play.

The committee has arranged for play for the baten eight of the first, second and third sixteen, thus keeping all of the players who started in the tournament in play until the actual winner is declared, and prizes will be given the winners.

FALL CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY AT PARK GOLF CLUB

One of the chief events at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, was the first round for the Fall championship, which aroused considerable interest among the players. There was also the weekly competition for the President's, Golf club and Oakmont cups and the Ladies' Autumn cup, all of which attracted a large field of players.

In the first round for the championship, E. Bird defeated Dr. H. K. Carroll, 2 up; W. E. Lough defeated Charles B. Morse, by default; R. V. Carpenter defeated U. G. Tingley, 4 up and 3 to play; W. R. Faber defeated A. M. Morrell by default. The play will continue next Saturday.

The best scores for the President's, golf club and Oakmont cups were as follows:

E. Bird, 93, 23-70; W. R. Faber, 100, 22-78; W. B. Byard, 101, 21-80; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 97, 16-81; W. R. Lough, 107, 23-84.

In the weekly competition for the Ladies' Autumn cup, nine holes, these scores were posted:

Miss Grace A. TenEyck, 75, 13-42; Miss Bird, 46, 3-43; Mrs. William Powell, 78, 30-48; Miss Harriet Shreve, 71, 15-56; Mrs. Charles J. McNab, 96, 30-66.

BY TAKING THIRD GAME SOMERVILLE WON SERIES

Jack Torpey won for Somerville the deciding game against Plainfield at the former place, Saturday afternoon, by hitting out a two-bagger in the tenth inning after two men were down. It was a heartbreaker for Plainfield for the team had held Somerville on even terms up to the tenth inning and had fair chances of winning, when Torpey came to the rescue of Somerville. This gives Somerville two games out of the series of three, Plainfield taking the first contest at Somerville two weeks ago.

Ward and Nelson comprised the battery for Plainfield, and the former pitched a fine game. Clinton, who was in the points for Somerville, was in a little better form, holding his opponents to three hits, while Ward was touched for six. The final score was 3 to 2. The score by innings:

Plainfield	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	2	3	2

Batteries—Clinton and Torpey; Ward and Nelson.

Chalmers MOTOR CARS

THE Chalmers "30" is the only medium priced car that was ever awarded the Glidden Trophy

Of all the Glidden Tours, that of 1910 was the longest, and by far the hardest. It lasted for sixteen running days and covered 2,851 miles. It started at Cincinnati and went "by way of Dallas, Texas," through thirteen States to Chicago.

Words and pictures cannot make plain the racking cobblestone roads of Kentucky—the stump-studded forest trails of the Tennessee mountains—the swamps of Arkansas—the deep, treacherous sands of Texas—the mud of Kansas—the bridgeless southern streams or the sweltering heat that punished cars and men alike.

It is the opinion of experts who made this tour that no car in the world could have completed it with a perfect score. Yet, from Cincinnati to Louisville—to Nashville—to Sheffield, Ala.—to Memphis—to Little Rock—to Hot Springs—to Texarkana—to Dallas—to Lawton, Oklahoma—to Oklahoma City—to Wichita, Kansas—eleven consecutive days out of the sixteen, through the hardest part of the trip—and for five days after every other car on the tour had been penalized, not a single point could be assessed against the Chalmers "30"—the $1500 car—$1600 with magneto, Prest-O-Lite tank and gas lamps.

In all the history of motoring, there is no performance like this. The Glidden Trophy has never been won before by a car costing less than $4000.

If you are thinking of buying a car, what better proof could you ask of reliable performance under all conditions than you have in the Glidden Tour record of the winning Chalmers "30"?

The Chalmers "30" has never been defeated in any important motoring event by any car of its price and power class. The Chalmers "Forty" won the Detroit Trophy in the 1909 Glidden Tour. Chalmers cars have won more events of all kinds in proportion to the number entered than other cars.

In addition to perfect mechanical performance, you get in the Chalmers all the beauty of line and finish that you can find in any car.

What more could you ask in any car at any price than you get in the medium-priced Chalmers?

We have never had so large a volume of business as we have now. There has never been so satisfying a demand for Chalmers cars as there has been since we announced our 1911 models. Yet this demand will not affect the Chalmers policy of building cars for quality, not quantity.

We suggest, therefore, that you place your order now, so as to be sure of getting the car that is your first choice. Chalmers cars are the first choice of those who look most carefully into the automobile question and know the most about automobile values.

1911 cars are now on exhibition. Deliveries are being made according to schedule.

UNION CO. COURTS OPEN

ON EXCISE VIOLATION, TOO.

Three Grand Jurors Are From This City—Court Constables Announced—Many Lawyers in Attendance Today.

The October term of the Union county court opened today with Justice J. J. Bergen on the bench, and with a large representation of the legal fraternity in the county in attendance. In charging the grand jury, the court called the attention of the members to three important matters to be considered by them during the term.

One case referred to was that of the murder in this city on Sunday night, September 25, when Battista Laghi, an Italian, received numerous stab wounds, it is said, from Francisco Antonnozzi, a fellow-countryman. The former died in the hospital a few hours after being removed there. Antonnozzi is charged with the crime.

Another case is that of the death of Thomas Kelly, of Dunellen, who was struck by an automobile on South avenue, late at night on May 30. The auto was owned and driven by Lee Gazley, of 20 Pine street, New York city. Another car following carrying friends of Mr. Gazley, picked up the injured man, took him to the hospital, where he died from his injuries. It is alleged that Kelly was intoxicated and that he fell in front of the automoble. Mr. Gazley was held in $1,000 bonds for the action of the Grand Jury.

Judge Bergen then called the attention of the Grand Jury to the violations of the excise law in the county, of which there are known to be a number. He urged that the cases be promptly investigated and the violators brought to speedy trial.

Those chosen for Grand Jury duty are as follows:

YOUNG FINNISH WOMAN IMMIGRANT GETS LOST.

A young Finnish girl with an unpronounceable name arrived in Plainfield last night, and evidently had not long been off the ship that brought her to this country. She carried some hand baggage and a slip on which was written an address of a friend in North Plainfield, but the name on the card was undecipherable.

The young woman wandered about the borough for some time and was finally brought to police headquarters in this city. Captain Frederickson could find no one who could talk Finnish, but he finally solved the problem by sending the girl to Mrs. Lundstrom's boarding house at 626 East Seventh street where there are some Finish women boarders, who will care for the immigrant until her friend is found.

An Approaching Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry King Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Winifred Charlotte, to Charles Kendall Mason, of this city. The wedding will take place Tuesday evening, October 25, at 7:30 o'clock at Grace M. E. church. Miss Carroll is at present the contralto soloist at the First Presbyterian church.

Grober's Cab Damaged.

An automobile driven by James Frazer collided with a cab standing at the North avenue station yesterday afternoon and damaged the cab $15 worth. The cab was driven by Howard Grober and had one passenger, a Mr. Hall.

Helen McGinley.

Helen McGinley, the infant child of Patrolman and Mrs. Arthur A. McGinley, of West Sixth street, died last night, aged twelve days. The funeral will be private.

CONNECT KENNSINGTON AVE. WITH PARK AVE.

Steps were taken at the September meeting of the Common Council last night to open up Kensington avenue from Prospect to Park avenues, which improvement was opposed and laid over last year until some future time. Thursday night, October 20, was fixed as the time for a public hearing. Mr. Clay suggested that, inasmuch as Mr. Holt was detained at home by illness, it would be wise to again lay the matter over until he could be present and express his views. He also said that it was a new matter to himself and would like to inquire into it further.

Mr. Gloak, who introduced the matter, said that in his opinion it had been delayed long enough and he believed it should be decided now. Mr. Maygatt agreed with Mr. Clay and seconded his motion to lay the ordinance on the table. He said that there was no need for any rush.

Mr. Montgomery favored the improvement, adding that while he did not care to be discourteous to Mr. Holt he felt sure that the latter fully understood the question and opposed it only on the basis of the cost of the improvement. A vote was then called for and the question to defer action was lost. Messrs. Gloak, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, Taylor, Wilson and Tolles voting in the negative and Messrs. Buxton, Clay and Mygatt voting in the affirmative. On the motion to adopt the ordinance on preliminary reading, all but Mr. Clay voted in the affirmative.

RELIGIOUS TRAINING IN HOMES HIS THEME

Considerable interest has been shown by mothers, pastors and teachers, in the lectures on the moral and religious training of boys in the home, which are to be delivered in Y. M. C. A. hall beginning Friday, afternoon, October 14. The lecturer, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, has a large acquaintance in this city, having occupied various pulpits here. He is also known to many as the editor of the "Daily Bible," the monthly organ of the "World's Morning Watch."

Mr. Mathiews is admirably qualified to handle the subject of the moral and religious training of boys. While a pastor in Ridgewood he developed the boys' club of his church into the Y. M. C. A. of Ridgewood. He was also the organizer and promoter of a mothers' guild consisting of more than one hundred mothers who met under his leadership to discuss the problems of child training. At Chattanooga, Tenn., Mr. Mathiews, while pastor of the Central Baptist church, promoted a similar organization. As editor of the Daily Bible he is now vigorously attacking the problem of religious training in the home.

The purpose of the lectures, which will be free and to which all the mothers of boys in this city, as well as teachers and pastors are invited, will be the prosecution of the work of religious education in the homes of Plainfield. The plan has received the heartiest endorsement of pastors, Sunday school teachers and public school teachers. The problems to be discussed are among the most vital of those dealt with by those who work with boys. Open discussion will follow each lecture and questions answered for all who desire to ask them.

Will Present "Are You a Mason?"

"Are You a Mason?" considered to be Leo Ditrichstein's greatest comedy, will be presented at The Plainfield theatre today, tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, afternoons and evenings, by the permanent stock company and a fine performance is assured. The play is just one big laugh from beginning to end and should prove a strong attraction. On Monday and Tuesday, Clyde Fitch's well known play, "Girls," will be the offering. Yesterday afternoon and last night the stock company played "St. Elmo" to capacity at Perth Amboy.

Inspecting Bridges.

The Somerset county Board of Freeholders inspected the new bridges over the creek on upper Watchung avenue this morning and also the one on Stirling road at the foot of Stiles' hill. Both were constructed by the Ferro Company, of Jersey City, and are fine examples of concrete work.

W. W. Warnock Out.

W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, who broke an ankle nearly three weeks ago, had the foot put in a cast Sunday and was able to leave the house yesterday on crutches. It will probably be another month before he will be able to return to business.

JOS. M'INTYRE CONCERTS

TO RENDER MASTERPIECES.

Program Includes Selections from Beethoven, Haydn, Tschaikowsky, Arensky, Saint Saens and Others.

The many patrons and friends of the McIntyre chamber music concerts will be gratified to know that the series will be given as usual this season and that the same high standard of excellence will be maintained as heretofore. Mr. McIntyre when seen today by a reporter for The Daily Press spoke of his determination to retain for these concerts the proud place they occupy in Plainfield's musical life and to give to his patrons always programs comprising the finest music without losing sight of the proper balancing of interest and pleasure, thus appealing to every music lover.

These concerts have been the means of allowing Plainfielders to hear masterpieces by the greatest composers and artists of the first calibre. Works by Beethoven, Haydn, Mozart, Saint Saens, Rubenstein, Tschaikowsky, Arensky, Schubert, Mendelssohn are among those performed in the past seasons and a host of the names of the famous artists appearing at these concerts comprise Campanari, the great baritone of the Metropolitan opera; the Kneisel Quartet, Madame Shanna-Cumming, soprano; Glenn Hall, tenor now with the Metropolitan Opera Company; Mary Desmond, contralto of the Manhattan forces; Dr. Carl Dufft, basso; Julian Walker baritone; Edith Chapman-Goold, soprano, Christine Miller, contralto, touring this season with Damrosch Orchestra and many others.

Mr. McIntyre modestly refrains from speaking until the last of his own work or that of his splendid trio, which is the basis and foundation of these concerts. Their work and the standing of the artists comprising the trio place it among the finest organizations of this class in New York. The coming season will bring to a hearing new works as well as some choice favorites of past concerts.

The great master Brahms will be represented this year by a performance of his beautiful trio in B major. There is always a reserve of pleasant surprise at these affairs and the assisting artists this season will contain new names and faces, some never heard in Plainfield before.

The first concert will probably take place the last of October. More definite details will be given within a short time.

BOND ISSUE OF $30,000 TO BE MADE BY THE CITY

Resolutions were presented at the September meeting of the Common Council last night, by Mr. Buxton, and adopted, authorizing the issue of $30,000 worth of street improvement bonds, thirty in all, $1,000 denomination each, bearing interest at 5 per cent. The city can retire the bonds after one year or prior to three years. The Council will meet on Thursday night, October 20, to receive bids for the sale of the bonds.

The above action was necessary because the Council at a previous meeting rescinded the resolution awarding the City National Bank the bonds without advertising for bids. Mayor Fisk called the attention of the members to the fact that according to law they must advertise for bids and steps were taken at once to do this.

MRS. JOHN MOWRY DIES; FUNERAL TOMORROW.

Mrs. John Mowry, who was so badly burned by an explosion of gasolene yesterday morning, died at Muhlenberg hospital yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock after suffering untold agony.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at Vincent chapel and wil be stricty private. Rev. Dr. Chas. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, will conduct the services adn the interment will be made in Bound Brook.

In the Borough Court.

Lee Young, who was arraigned last week on a charge of drunkenness and released on suspended sentence, was before Recorder Dolliver for the same offense and fined $5. He paid up. "Hank" Perrine, arrested on Greenbrook road yesterday for helpless intoxication, was released on suspended sentence.

FOR INSPECTION BUREAU

Mayor in Message to the Common Council Suggests Such a Department.

FOR BETTER FIRE PROTECTION

He Says It Would Lower Insurance Rates and He Wants His Scheme Investigated.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk sent a message to the Common Council, last night, suggesting that steps be taken to organize a bureau of inspection to take in manufacturies, public buildings, stores, warehouses, etc., the purpose being to minimize the fire risk; also to enforce condition in regard to the storage of inflammable materials and the keeping of places clear of unnecessary rubbish and packing. The message was referred to the fire and building committee and will be taken up later. This is the message:

"The question of organizing a systematic and effective method for the inspection of all manufacturies, public buildings, stores, warehouses, etc., with the view of taking such precautions as may seem necessary and enforcing conditions in regard to the storage of inflammable materials and the keeping of places clear of all unnecessary rubbish and packing and such unnecessary materials as may cause fire and having the firemen—particularly the captains—familiar with the construction of such buildings and the means of egress and ingress in case of fire, and as a means of taking every precaution possible for the prevention of fire, has been called to my attention by a number of our citizens and most prominent merchants and manufacturers.

"In all the principal cities there is as much or more attention given now by the various fire departments to taking all the precautions possible for the prevention of fire as well as the extinguishing of fires.

"This I feel is a very important matter and one that will meet with the approval of the manufacturers, merchants and taxpayers, and will have a tendency to lower the insurance rates and at the same time may prevent at any time a serious conflagration.

"I therefore recommend that this question be referred to your Committee on Fire and Buildings, with the request that they investigate the matter fully both in regard to the advisability and the proper steps to be taken for the organization of a bureau of inspection, as well as the laws of the State in regard to such powers as may be conferred upon the inspectors in order to bring about the best results, they to report to your Honorable body at the earliest possible moment."

DWELLINGS AND STORES FOR SCOTCH PLAINS.

Scotch Plains is just now enjoying a building boom which will add considerable to its real estate and increase to some extent the population. A. L. Clark Stone Co., of 1178 East Broad street, Elizabeth, who own about twenty acres of land at Plains, are about to erect several moderate priced dwellings on their land. Thomas McGann of North Plainfield, has the contract for excavating the cellars.

John F. McIntyre, of North avenue, this city, is building a two-store and apartment building which will cost about $7,000. Mr. McGann also has the contract for digging the cellars for these apartments and Brokaw Bros., of West Front street, have the contract for the carpenter work.

FUNERAL OF A. H. LEIVERS LAREGLY ATTENDED.

The funeral services of Former Councilman Albert H. Leivers, formerly of this city, but recently of Westfield, were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the home of his son, Frank Leivers, of Belmont avenue, North Plainfield. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, of which Mr. Leivers was a member, officiated.

The members of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, of which Mr. Leivers was a past chief, attended the services in a body. The officers of the lodge took part in the serivces, using the funeral ritual of the order. The burial took place in this city.

Senior Class Pins.

The senior class of the Plainfield High School has selected its pins for the year, and they will be furnished by a local jeweler. The pins will be made with the initials "P. H. S." in a monogram in the form of a shield. They will be ready in about two weeks.

HEAR MRS. SIMKHOVITCH

AN INSTRUCTIVE LECTURE.

"Woman's Invasion of the Industrial Field"—The First of Season of Winter Study Program.

"The Relation of Women to Economics" is the subject chosen by the Monday Afternoon Club for the fall and early winter's study, and the opening lecture was given yesterday in the Hartridge School auditorium on "Woman's Invasion of the Industrial Field" by Mrs. Vladimir Simkhovitch. This gifted lecturer is director of Co-operative Social Settlement Society, New York, and her charming lecture evinced careful study of social conditions and their many puzzling problems.

The increase in the number of occupations open to women in recent years was dwelt upon by the speaker, who confined herself mainly to the consideration of the masses of women who work because they need money and whose wages are low, based on the supposition that they are supplemental and not the absolute dependence. She said women's wages did not compete with men's wages, being only one-half the amount. Only 8.1 per cent. of women wage-earners entered the professions, she said.

In giving many statistics of women bread-winners, Mrs. Simkhovitch said that the proportion of married women in the field of industry was smaller in the United States than in other countries. She dwelt at length on the occupations of these lowly bread-winners, at day's work, in the factory and in tenement sweat-shops, all of them resulting in failure of the home, exhaustion of strength, neglect of children and unsanitary conditions. The State, she believed, should support widows with families until the children could earn a living.

The smaller number of girls and unmarried women engaged in agricultural and domestic work, Mrs. Simkhovitch said, had given more women to the factory, the shop and the office, and the lack of training for life suggested many questions as to the effect on the woman and also on society. She told of the gain received in trade schools where accuracy, rapidity and purpose were the natural results, but deplored the short time given for education. Training for vocations and co-operation of schools and industries she considered desirable, and said that legislation could do much to shorten hours, prohibit night work and enforce sanitary conditions.

The key-note of the lecture was: the fate of every woman is bound up in that of every other woman.

BAPTIST MINISTERS HOLD A CONFERENCE

Among the ministers from this city who attended the conference of the East Jersey Baptist Association at Roselie yesterday, were the Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of Temple Baptist church, who is secretary of the association, and Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire pastor of the Park avenue church.

In the morning an address was delivered by Rev. W. W. Pratt, district secretary, of New York, and a member of the American Baptist Publication Society, who spoke on "Up-to-date Methods in Sunday School Work." After a luncheon, which was furnished by the women of the Roselle Baptist church, where the conference was held, the regular business of the meeting was taken up.

J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Parmly Memorial church, of Jersey City, presided. A general conference on church work ensued which kept the ministers busy until late in the afternoon.

Dr. Titsworth Returns to City.

Dr. Sidney R. Titsworth, a former local resident and graduate of the Plainfield High School, who has been located in Bridgeport, Conn., for several years, has returned to this city and will begin the practice of medicine here about November 1. Dr. Titsworth is a native Plainfielder and his many friends will be pleased to hear of his return.

Buzzards Elect.

BIDS RECEIVED FOR NEW PUMPING STATION

Bids were received at the September meeting of the Common Council for the proposed installation of a pumping station in the West End of the city to sewer a certain section where the conditions will not permit of the gravity system. Seven bids in all were submitted. One bidder arrived twenty minutes late, and Councilman Herbert Buxton stated that the man had been detained, his train being late. President Tolles, however, decided that 8 o'clock was the hour for the reception of bids and he could not permit any to be presented after that hour. This seemed to be the only way of treating the other bidders fairly.

Those presenting bids were Blackhall & Baldwin Co., New York; Merritt & Co., Philadelphia; J. H. Sheehan, New Brunswick; James A. Christie, Newark; Miele & Bruno, Newark; Blaisdell Machine Company, Bradford, Pa., and Joseph B. O'Rourke, Boston.

The bids were all referred to the sewer committee and will be reported upon at a future meeting. James A. Christie, of Newark, was the lowest bidder on the entire contract, while Miele & Bruno, of Newark, was the lowest, not including anestimate on the storage tank. The committee did not report back to the Common Council, last night, it being decided to consider the matter at greater length.

HEART DISEASE PROVES FATAL TO H. C. PIKER

Henry C. Piker, aged 38 years, a native of this city, and one of the best known residents of Westfield, died at his home, 139 Euclid avenue, Westfield, yesterday afternoon from heart disease. He was the son of the late Heinry Piker, of Elmer street, Westfield. He went to the later place fifteen years ago and until two months ago continued a shoe store there. During the past three years he had also been a contractor and builder.

Mr. Piker, who was born here September 14, 1872, was well known among Plainfielders. During the fifteen years he resided at Westfield he was active in public affairs. He was a member of the Board of Tax Assessors and was prominent in athletics. He was a member of the Suburban Club and Westfield Conclave, Improved Order Heptasophs. He is survived by two sisters, the Misses Lizzie and Louise Piker, both of whom are engaged in business at Westfield. The funeral will be held from the late home tomorrow night and Rev. M. W. Cadwell of Atlantic City, will officiate. The burial will be in Fairview cemetery, Westfield, and will be private.

MEDICAL AND DENTAL INSPECTORS APPOINTED.

Practically nothing beyond routine business was transacted at the regular meeting of the Board of Education last night. Bills amounting to $3,800 were ordered paid, and the Finance Committee was authorized to borrow $12,000 for teachers' salaries and current expenses. The custodian's report showed a balance of $22,828.70 and the tax collector reported receiving $545.39 during September.

Drs. T. H. Tomlinson and A. F. Van Horn were appointed medical inspectors, and Drs. W. E. Stelle and C. H. Hillman, dental examiners. Superintendent Maxson was authorized to provide lectures for the teachers at a cost not to exceed $100.

Funeral of Miss Case.

Tht funeral services of Miss Amy C. Case, formerly of this city, were held at the home of her niece, Mrs. Willis Sheppard at Hopewell, last night and again this morning at the Baptist church at Flemington, the native home of Miss Case. The burial was at Flemington.

Arguers in Court.

George Fatomos and Benny Estrom had an argument in the borough yesterday and the latter had the former haled to court. Recorder Dolliver was unable to place the blame because of the absence of material witnesses and put the matter over for a week.

Mrs. Alonzo Dunham.

Mrs. Ida Dunham, wife of Alonzo Dunham, colored, died in New York city on Sunday. The funeral will be held from the Shiloh Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The burial will be in this city.

B. P. O. E. Meetings.

The regular meetings of Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E., begin tomorrow night and will continue on Wednesday evenings throughout the winter.

SEE 'BI-PARTIZAN PLOT

Claimed That Some League Members Really Aim to Defeat Assembly Nominees.

TO HELP THE DEMOCRATS.

Alleged Political Party Treason Charged to Republicans Who Are in the Independent Movement.

Not only to knife the Republican party's mayoralty candidate at the polls, but a more far-reaching scheme is laid at the door of the Bipartisan Municipal League by loyal Republicans who claim to know whereof they speak. The ulterior purpose, which it is alleged is carefully hidden from the voters as yet, is nothing less than an attempt to defeat the party's nominees for the Assembly. This report is given credence by the fact that many who are conspicuous as officers and members worked against the organization candidates at the primaries but met with a sorry defeat.

It is claimed that some of those in the League aim to split the Union county delegation to the next Legislature as a thrust at United States Senator John Kean, who is a candidate for re-election. These men are bent on revenge for the crushing defeat at the primaries and it is alleged will go to the extreme to humiliate John Kean and therefore aim to prevent him having a solid delegation from his own county.

To accomplish this aim, they must elect Democrats and their alliance with the Democrats shows conclusively to the minds of some of the political wiseacres that there is some truth in the report that the Bi-partisanites are working hand in hand with the Democrats to elect Calvin C. Broadhead and Abraham Morris, two of the Democratic Assembly candidates, and to knife Augustus Schwartz and Peter Meisel, two of the Republican nominess. They have chosen Lloyd Thompson, it is further said, as the one Republican Assemblyman that they will vote for.

It has not occurred to such Republicans, so it is claimed, that such methods would be resented by the great mass of the loyal Republican voters who do not believe in treason in or out of politics. The anti-organization Assembly candidates were fairly defeated at the primaries, there being no allegation to the contrary. Consequently, it is claimed, the duty of all true Republicans is to abide by the decision of the voters and to vote for the winning primary ticket. Going over to the enemy and to work in their ranks in an assault on the regular Republican ticket is the accusation made against some who it is alleged are masquerading as reformers to accomplish the defeat of the Republican Assembly ticket.

The effect of Union county sending Democrats to the Legislature would be to hamper the work of the Republican governor. Every Republican vote that can be gotten will be needed in the Legislature to carry out the progressive program to which the Republican party stands committed in its platform, and, therefore, the wiseacres say that the Republicans in Union will not lend themselves to this alleged scheme.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MISS MARY A. ARNOLD.

The funeral service of Miss Mary A. Arnold, aged 94 years, was held this morning at 10:30 o'clock from the home of her niece, Mrs. Howard P. Reynolds, 819 First place, and was largely attended by friends and neighbors, including many who had known Miss Arnold during her residence of twenty years in this city. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes.

Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, officiated at the service, and spoke impressively of the devout Christian life of the departed and of her long years of faithfulness to the service of her Master. Miss Arnold was a life-long member of the Methodist church, and she was faithful in her attendance at services until the infirmities of old age prevented. The burial was in North Plainfield cemetery.

Funeral of Henry C. Diem.

The funeral of Henry Craft Diem, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Diem, who was choked to death, Sunday morning, was held from the home of the parents, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, of Grace M. E. church, officiated and the burial was in the Methodist cemetery.

Miss Elizabeth Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Phillips, of Madison avenue, returned home Sunday from Chicago, Ill., where she was the guest of her brother, Harold Phillips. On the way home she stopped at Niagara Falls.

Our Millinery Dept.

We often hear expressions of this kind when a visitor comes to our millinery department for the first time: "Why, I never thought your millinery department was so extensive, or your stock so large." Our reply is, that public appreciation of our efforts compelled us not only to give it more room, but our stock greatly increased. If you are among those who have never visited the millinery displays we have been making, we ask that you make a special effort to do so; when we think we can convince you of a great saving in your millinery bills. Our milliners and saleslades are courteous and obliging, never arrogaint, and will at all times show you the greatest courtesy and consideration in helping you select what is best suited to your personal wants.

The Cloak and Suit Dept.

The rapid growth of this department has again compeled us to give it more room than we gave it last season. Each season from its inception has seen more room added, so that today we have the best stocked, best lighted and best equipped cloak and suit department in this section of the State. We were the first in the city to make alterations free of cost to the purchaser, and the public responded with an eagerness that soon obliged us to keep a corps of tailors for this purpose alone. You don't have to go out of your own city to purchase cloaks or suits. All we ask is that we be given a fair opportunity to prove our assertion.

IMPORTANT.

Beginning Monday this store will resume opening at 8 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. We thank the public for their co-operation during the season of giving our employes shorter hours

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council last night, Hering and Fuller, the engineers, reported that they had completed the preliminary survey of the sewer work and submitted plans and specifications. The matter was referred to the sewer committee without action. The charges recently preferred by Michael Gallagher in which he alleged a borough official was interested in borough work; that the Sunday closing law was violated by the liquor dealers and that Marshal Benson was guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer, were all referred to the clerk to be put in shape for presentation to the county prosecuter. The Sunday closing ordinance was brought up and placed on third reading. Alfred Meyers was appointed councilman until the next election to succeed George Huff, resigned, and Lewis T. Churchill and Dr. Thomas J. Hogan were appointed to fill vacancies in the Board of Health caused by the resignations of Nelson Frederick and John R. Campbell.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Ruth Gardner, daughter of Rev. George H. Gardner, and Walter Nelson, both of New Market. The ceremony will take place in the First Baptist church Wednesday evening, October 12, at 6 o'clock, and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Both young people are well known and popular throughout this section and the wedding will undoubtedly be one of the largest of the season.

Maude Adams is to be the attraction at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, October 8, when Charles Frohman is to present her in "What Every Woman Knows," the latest comedy from the pen of James Matthew Barrie. The new play has had much success and, in fact, is hailed as the best of all of the works that have come from the Barrie pen. It is in four acts, deals principally with Scotch scenes and characters and gives Miss Adams the best character to portray that has fallen into her hands in some seasons. Someone has said of the play that it was a laugh with a tear in the middle, which sounds very Scotch. In it Miss Adams is seen in the "realest" of all her characters, for it must be remembered that Lady Babbie was an elf-like creature and "Peter Pan," the boy who could not grow up, a sprite. Maggie Wylie in the new play is just a lovable little woman with a knowledge of, and a compassion for, the weaknesses of men. The character is a complete gospel on the duties of wifehood and womanhood. The plot hinges around the desire of the little Scotch woman after her marriage to make a great man of her husband. The latter has entered politics and it is the wife that puts the ideas into his head which call him to the attention of the government leaders. But he is thick-headed, stubborn, arrogant and bumptious with an amount of egotism that is stupendous. Blind to the aid that his wife has given him he would look with pleasure on another woman, and skillfully she throws them together so that each might discover the traits of the other. In the end all is happiness and in explaining the riddle of what every woman knows the little wife makes the young Scotchman laugh for the first time in his life. The cast to be seen surrounding Miss Adams here is the same as was seen in New York. Heading it as leading man is Arthur Byron in the role of the husband.

FOOTBALL.

The first game of the season safely over, Head Coach Roper, of the Princeton Tigers, and his staff will begin work this afternoon to take off some of the rough edges revealed in the Stevens game Saturday, and incidentally drill the football squad in some of the rudiments of the game. It was not the finished article that the Tigers put up against the Hobokenites.

The game was disappointing as a demonstration of the new football. In fact, Princeton, like the other colleges, is going rather cautiously in springing the newest features of the game when there is a chance of being scored on or beaten. It is very likely that in the early season games at least the big teams will depend upon the old-fashioned, reliable line plunges for their most substantial gains, and begin the use of the forward pass and the onside kick only when the game is safely tucked away.

Princeton's line is weak on the defense at the present stage of its development, and Tubbie Waller, line coach, has a lot of work on his hands before he will be ready to meet a team like Lafayette. The trouble seemed to be on Saturday that the team was vulnerable on the ends. It wasn't so much the fault of the end men, either; the tackles failed time and again to down the runner after the end had disposed of the interference. Bissell and McLean were equally at fault in this respect. On the offense the line worked very well.

The tackling was not better than fair, so far as the Tigers were concerned. The men are going to be put through a thorough drill in this department this week. Roper has decided to abandon the dummy and make the men tackle a real runner. The runner will wear an especially heavily padded suit so that he will not be hurt.

GOLF.

Interest in the fall competitive season at the Dyker Meadow Golf Club soon will be centred in the club championship. The conditions in this event call for the sixteen players who have made the lowest sixteen gross scores in the year's monthly club handicaps to be drawn to play off at match play, scratch, as follows:

First round, eighteen holes, to be played before October 17; second round, eighteen holes, before October 24; semi-final round, thirty-six holes, before October 31; final, thirty-six holes, before November 7. The winner of the club championship will receive a gold championship medal and a prize will be awarded the runner-up.

The seventh monthly club handicap will take place on Saturday. This will be the last opportunity to qualify for the club championship and for the Dyker Meadow cup. A bogie handicap will occupy the attention of the club members on October 15.

The qualifying round, at eighteen holes, medal play handicap, for the Crowell Hadden, Jr., memorial competition, will be run off on October 22. The players returning the eight lowest net scores are to be drawn off at match play. The winner will receive a gold medal and have his name inscribed on the Hadden memorial in the clubhouse. This will be the sixth of these competitions, which are held annually to perpetuate the memory of one who was devoted to the interests of the club for many years.

On October 29 and 30 a medal play handicap in two classes will take place. Players may enter as often as they desire. The eighth monthly handicap for first and second prizes will be held on November 5, while the Election Day contest for the governors' cup, with first and second prizes and at thirty-six holes medal play handicap will be held on November 8.

DR. VANCE RAPS EDISON'S VIEW ON IMMORTALITY

Speaking from the pulpit of the North Reformed church, Newark, Sunday night, Rev. Dr. James I. Vance replied to recent utterances of Thomas A. Edison respecting immortality. Dr. Vance said that Mr. Edison's disbelief would not shake faith in the doctrine, but would have the effect of diminishing the respect that Mr. Edison has won by reason of his achievements in other fields.

The topic of Dr. Vance was "They Thought He Was Dead," text taken from Acts xiv., 19. The clergyman spoke, in part, as follows:

"Some friends with whom I was dining today called my attention to an article in the morning issue of a New York daily, in which Thomas A. Edison, the electrician, discusses the immortality of the soul.

"Having devoted his life to electricity, Mr. Edison now turns to souls. Having spent his entire career amid the physical, he now essays the spiritual. Having lived until the afternoon of his life in a laboratory, he comes out for a brief hour before the sunset to instruct us as to the realm beyond death.

"His conclusion is that there is no such thing as the immortality of the soul; that the race has been mistaken in its noblest faith, and that what we call the soul is a mere aggregation of brain cells.

"In a recent article in the New York Independent, Mr. Edison declared that 'we are living in the dogage of the world; that we don't know we just suspect, a few things.' It hardly becomes the author of such a statement to be too dogmatic about so sublime a theme as the immortality of the soul.

"Mr. Edison is perhaps the last man to give us a helpful discussion of such a subject. His entire career has unfitted him for handling those matters which are apprehended by faith. He has dealt altogether with physical facts, which require no faith, which must be admitted and accepted whether they please us or not.

"Perhaps he has gone hunting for the soul with a microscope. He has gone into his laboratory to search for the soul as he would search for an electric current, and he emerges to inform us that he finds nothing but an aggregation of brain cells. Little wonder!

"The only effect of Mr. Edison's denial of the immortality of the soul will probably be to lower him in the estimation of many people, and to diminish the respect which the world has for a man who, in an altogether different realm, a realm in which no man is better qualified to speak than he, has rendered an immense service to mankind.

"As to changing or destroying the belief of men in the immortality of the soul, his article will scarcely produce a ripple on the pond. We will go on believing that we are immortal; that the men who work in Mr. Edison's great factories are not mere animals, grinding out their tasks in the 'dog-age of the world' and then biting the dust of oblivion.

"Immortality is a racial faith. We believe it, because the soul within us affirms it, as well as because of the teaching of His Gospel that says: 'This mortal shall put on immorality.'"

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., October 4, 1910.

On the recommendation of its fire committee the Common Council last night appointed as a member of the fire department a man who claims a six months' residence here.

Mayor Fisk suggests to the city fathers that another commission be appointed, one to be known as a bureau of inspection, whose object it will be to minimize the fire risk, but will the mayor kindly explain what we have a fire chief, building inspector and health board inspector for?

CHESTNUT TREES DYING

Blight, Has Spread All Over the East is Caused by a Fungus.

WHOLE GROVES DESTROYED.

Trees in Plainfield and Vicinity Attacked—Ravage Can't be Stopped—Only Thing to do is to Cut Them Down.

It is certain that neither worm nor bug is destroying the thousands of chestnut trees which are gradually dying in every State from Maine to the Allegheny mountains, but a fungus which has defied the best efforts of such entmologists as Dr. Frank Lutz, of the American Museum of Natural History; H. W. Merkel, of the Zoological Park, and many others throughout the eastern States. Enough money has been spent investigating the pest, but no remedy has yet been suggested to stop its ravages.

It is a blight, and what gives this topic immediate interest is its unchecked spread. Whole forests of chestnut trees have been wiped out by the fungus which attacks the trees in an insidious way and the end will not come until every last tree of the species is razed to the ground.

Among the notable groves of chestnuts which have been destroyed or are in process of decay through the disease are those of John D. Rockafeller, in the Pocantico Hills, Miss Helen Gould's estate, on the Hudson; Hiram Maxim, whose magnificent grove on the borders of Lake Hopatcong and others too numerous to mention. Nearly all the chestnut trees in Bronx Park are at the mercy of the blight and they are being cut down and turned into lumber and firewood as fast as the fungus marks make their appearance.

An investigation through the woods adjacent to this city and out on the mountains has disclosed the fact that the trees in this vicinity are not escaping the inroads of the fungus. In the Netherwood section, and at South Plainfield and Oak Tree the story is the same—scarcely any crop of the delicious nuts and trees apparently dying. In many instances the foliage has been entirely destroyed and the inroads of the parasite are plainly visible even to the topmost branches. The owners of these trees are preparing to have them felled to be used for lumber where possible and for firewood as a last resort.

Many efforts have been made by the Forestry Commissions of different States to trace the origin of the disease in this country, but up to now nothing of a definite nature has been discovered to lead to the real source. It has been suggested that the blight was imported from Japan about seven years ago, but there is no authentic records of this fact. However, there remains the unalterable fact that the trees are doomed.

The blight makes its appearance in small yellow blotches upon the bark of the tree. It works its way into the very heart and finally stretches upward until every branch and limb is affected. The leaves turn yellow in the middle of summer when the blossoms should be at their heartiest growth and they fall, browned, as though touched with the frost of winter.

Botanists will not admit that the blight did not exist long before it was discovered in the east, but if it did the death-dealing fungus was not noticed. In many cases where the yellow blotch was observed it did not attract attention, the death of the tree was attributed to the boring worm, with which the botanists were more familiar. Dr. William A. Murrill, assistant director of the New York Botanical Garden, says that most of our present chestnut trees are second growth, the offshoots of the original giants of the forests, and because of this second growth they are weaker and unable to withstand the ravages of the blight.

Dr. Murrill has been investigating the fungus. Cultures of the parasite were developed in tubes and glass dishes and applied to experimental saplings which speedily died. Thus the real nature of the pest, its nature, food, habits, progressive inroads were identified and labled, but for an every-day expression it has been called the chestnut-canker without remedy for its inroads.

Now comes the latest devlopment in the wanton destruction of trees. The hickory has become infected in various parts of this State with a disease closely resembling the chestnut canker and many of the best bearing trees in and about this county, Essex and Sussex have become infected.

Experts who have been consulted on this last phase of the trouble practically agree that the hickory is doomed to a fate similar to the chestnuts. In summing up the cost of the chestnut trees already destroyed the figure in the eastern States alone amounts to over $20,000,000. Of course, this includes the amount that would have been considered a fair valuation of the trees for lumber purposes. In Pennsylvania alone last week the experts reported that of 10,000 trees examined nearly 90 per cent. of them were found to be afflicted with the fungus and they were ordered felled in an attempt to save a few of the old giants on some of the farms in that district.

IN AUTUMN BRIDAL DAYS.

When a man marries a second time, it very frequently happens that he chooses as his partner a girl many years younger than himself.

It may be that youth has an irresistible attraction for middle age. Indeed, it is only natural that it should be so, for the bright, happy ways, the lightheartedness of a young girl recall all the early joys to the man who has left his own youth behind him.

The world seldom regards such marriages as complete successes. We have all heard the shocked exclamation—"Old enough to be her father" and perhaps have joined in the chorus of disapproval.

Yet very frequently such marriages are happy ones. Forty and twenty are not so far apart as they seem. Mentally and physically a man is at his prime at forty, and at that age he is generally more attractive to the opposite sex than in his earlier years.

He has fought the world, has known its joys and sorrows, and his character has been strengthened. His wife of twenty can look up to him, respect him, rely upon him, and love him.

And it is often noted that the children of parents of such differing ages are likely to be bright, intelligent, and full of healthy vitality. From each parent they inherit something, and as they grow to years of responsibility they seem to combine the natural fire and impetuosity of youth with strength, self control, and sound mental qualites. Such children are happy and successful.

Marriages between women of 40 and young men in their twenties are less common. But they do occur, and the children of such an union are nearly always intelligent and well equipped for the battle of life.

"Youth flies to youth," according to the poet, but in modern life the statement is not always true. To the idealist it may seem natural and right that boys and girls should mate in early days when life seems all summer, and years ago such marriages were regarded as the very true love matches.

But today life is made difficult with a thousand complications that our forefathers knew nothing of. We are more highly developed than our ancestors in many directions and we take longer to reach our prime than they did under simpler conditions.

The young man who has not yet "felt his feet" in the world is not always so fit a mate as he who has fought and won. So youth and middle-age are not always ill-matched. The children of parents of widely different ages are often fortunate children.

Curtain Stretchers

The curtains can be set in the stretcher in a few minutes, the strain equalized and the curtains dried as prfectly as if they had just come from the shop.

The bars are fitted with a number of brass pins which slide easily in a groove and automatically adjust themselves to scallops of varying sizes.

It is the best curtain stretcher on the market today.

The "No-Piece" Adjustable pin stretcher will save your health, your lace curtains, your money, your time, labor and worry, and produce results not attained by any other stretcher on the market.

The kind with adjustable pins sell at $1.98 and those with Stationary Pins at 98c and $1.25.

WESTFIELD.

The Board of Education has asked to have plans submitted by several architects for a new school site, and has decided to issue bonds to the amount of $60,000, bearing four and one-half per cent. interest. They will meet on November 8 to receive bids for them. Some of the people living near the proposed site of the new building on East Broad street threaten legal proceedings to stop the work, but so far no papers have been served on the board.

Farmers in the vicinity of Westfield complain that the continued dry weather is delaying them in their fall work. The ground is so dry that winter grain cannot be sown or the ground worked. The local corn crop has nearly all been cut.

A meeting will be called this week to take the preliminary steps for the formation of a bowling league to take in the bowlers of the towns along the Central, between Elizabeth and Plainfield.

Councilman R. H. Middleditch has declined appointment to the Board of Education to fill a vacancy.

FALL SHOE STYLES.

The advance styles for autumn shoes are in. Pay attention to them when buying your new shoes, so that you are not fooled into buying an old-fashioned pair.

The most prominent leathers are dull calf and Russian, as well as patent leather in combination with cloth or kid tops.

Black suede toppings are also seen and a few browns and quiet purples. These, too, have patent leather vamps.

Heels are not so high as recently; one and seven-eighths inches is the highest for day wear.

Vamps are nearly all short; if you get a longer vamp, you must get a lower heel also.

Toes are either round or long, the latter are Frenchier and more favored by really fashionable women.

Tops are rather high and slanting, being longer in front than in back.

George C. Worth and family, of Park avenue, have returned to their home after spending the summer at Sea Girt, where they had a cottage.

Dr. Edward Smalley, of this city, has removed his dental parlors from Jersey City to the second floor of the Stillman building on West Front street.

New Color Combinations.

The latest in color combinations is a dark red and a rather bright blue so combined as to give the effect of the modish purple. This is very smart indeed, but be careful not to trim with either of these colors; black is the best, or some neutral shade.

HEBREW NEW YEAR BEGAN AT SUNSET

The Jewish New Year 5671 began yesterday at sunset. The year just closed, having been a leap year, had thirteen months, with 55 Sabbaths, while the new year will have only 384 days with 50 Sabbaths.

The new year began later than agogue on New street last evening weather conditions have again shown that the wise ancestors of the Hebrews were right when they said, "The later the new year, the longer the summer."

There were services in the synagogue on New street this evening and as a rule in the homes of the orthodox Jews everywhere. The Feast of the Tabernacles closes the festival season on October 17.

The autumnal holy days form an unique group, following each other closely and extending over a period of three weeks. It is a holy tide marked by the preparatory penitential services of Sl'ichoth, which were held at midnight last night or early this morning. Then comes the Solemn New Year, followed by the "awesome days," from New York to the Day of Atonement, the most solemn fast day of the entire year.

Five days later this solemn season is followed by the joyous festival of Tabernacles that lasts for eight days. The Day of Atonement will begin Wednesday evening, October 12, and the Feast of Tabernacles on the evening of Monday the 17th.

Rosh Hashanah is the most solemn day next to the Day of Atonement. It is an annual judgment day as it is believed by the orthodox that all mankind pass in judgment before the Creator on this New Year's Day.

Every Jewish month begins with the new moon. It is new moon tomorrow, and this makes that evening begin the first day of the month, which is thus settled on an astronomical basis. It was an ancient custom to greet the appearance of the new moon by the blowing of horns. Psalm 81:3 refers to this usage. "Blow up the trumpet in the new moon." Naturally the new moon that opened the new year was of especial note, so that the new year obtained its Biblical names of the "Memorial of blowing of trumpets," (Lev. xxv. 24) and "A day of blowing of trumpets" (Num. xxix 1). It is sometimes known among Christians as "The feast of trumpets." In every synagogue on Tuesday the Shofar or ram's horn will be blown as a notification of the advent of the New Year, and also as a symbolic call to amendment of life and reconciliation with God as the most fitting observance of the opening year.

New Year is observed on two days by the great mass of the Jewish people, the service being repeated on Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning. By the Reformed Jews only the first day is observed.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Benjamin F. Soby, eighty years old, city treasurer of Beverly for twenty-seven years, is dangerously ill at his home in Cooper street.

Mrs. Henry Fisher, of Fairmount, was severely scalded about the face, arms and body when she fell while carrying two pailfuls of boiling water.

Kicked by a cow on his father's farm at Medford Sunday, Samuel N. Wilkinson, nineteen years old, had his kneecap badly injured and was admitted to Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Run over by a cart he was driving, William Fisher, twenty-seven years old, of 504 Liberty street, Camden, sustained a fracture of the right leg Sunday and was taken to Cooper Hospital.

Mrs. Hannah Tatem, eighty-four years old, the eldest daughter of the late "Aunt Mary Powell," who lived to 101 years, is now lying seriously ill at her home in Ridgway street, Gloucester.

Stumbling on a sidewalk while at play with several companions, Sunday night, John Evans, twelve years old, of 1006 Locust street, Camden, sustained a compound fracture of the right arm and was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

In the presence of nearly 500 persons from Trenton, Lawrenceville and Princeton, Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, bishop of the Trenton Diocese, laid the cornerstone of the new chapel addition to Morris Hall at Lawrenceville Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Atlantic City coal dealers at a conference Saturday night jumped the price of fuel to $7 per ton, assigning as a reason for the totally unexpected action increased cost of operation. Practically every dealer in town is a party to the movement.

Students of natural history in Gloucester are interested in a huge living sea snail in possession of William Zink, at Hudson and Willow streets, and which oystermen say is known as a "clamsucker" from its habit of attaching itself to the tongue of a clam.

As a further boom to Trenton's part in the deeper Delaware River project, the Chamber of Commerce has planned for a dollar dinner for next Thursday evening. Among the speakers will be Former Governor Stokes and Edward J. Cattell, private secretary to Mayor Reyburn, of Philadelphia.

Miss Catherine Reese, daughter of Ethelbert Reese, and William C. Fahrner, both of Riverside, returning Sunday from a trip to Atlantic City, surprised their friends by announcing they eloped to Camden September 21 and were married in St. Wilfred's church, Camden, by Rev. Roland Ringwall.

The 147th anniversary of the first Methodist service held at the old historic meeting-house at Head of the River, Tuckahoe, was observed Sunday with services appropriate to the occasion. Methodists from many sections of Cumberland, Atlantic and Cape May counties assembled to assist in the celebration.

Word was received at Woodbury Saturday night that Captain Geo. W. Hughes, of that city, died that day at Luray, Va., from apoplexy, shortly after arriving there in an automobile, in company with Edward Bateman, of Grenloch. These men left Woodbury Friday for an indefinite stay. Captain Hughes was seventy years of age and a member of Company H, Tenth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers. The captain was shot through the nose at Cold Harbor.

Following a quarrel with her husband, Mrs. Beulah Renfler, forty years old, of Twelfth and Liberty streets, Camden, attempted to end her life by drinking carbolic acid, but was able to leave Cooper Hospital shortly after being admitted Sunday. The woman was found unconscious on the floor, and as she was being taken into the hospital she appeared to recover sufficiently to fight away persons who were anxious to assist her and begged to be permitted to die. She appeared to be in a different frame of mind when her husband arrived at the hospital and they left the institution together.

Because there isn't any way of telling what they will say, children should be seen and not heard.

CITY OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Call for Sealed Proposals for Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000) of Street Improvement Bonds of the City of Plainfield, N. J.

Pursuant to resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., at a regular meeting thereof held October 3d, 1910, and duly approved by the Mayor, notice is hereby given that Thursday, the twentieth day of October, 1910, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., the Common Council of said City will receive and open sealed proposals for the purchase of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000) of Street Improvement Bonds called for by the said resolutions and the other resolutions and ordinance therein referred to.

The Street Improvement Bonds referred to are in the denominations of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, and will bear date as of the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and ten, and be payable as follows: July 1, 1913, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off the said bonds or any one or more of them at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof, on giving personal notice to said holder of said bonds or thirty days' notice by advertisement in two official newspapers of the City of the intention to make such redemption or payment. Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5%) per annum, payable semi-annually. Principal and interest will be payable in gold coin of the U. S. of the present standard of weight and fineness, at the office of the City Treasurer, in said City. The forms of both bonds and coupons are on file in the office of the City Clerk and there open to inspection by bidders. The bonds will be delivered to the purchaser at the office of the City Treasurer of the City of Plainfield, N. J., on Thursday, October 27, 1910, at 11 o'clock a. m.

A certified check for two per cent. (2%) of the face value of the bonds bid for payable to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield, N. J., must accompany each bid. All such checks except the checks of the party or parties whose bids shall be accepted will be promptly returned by the City Treasurer. If all bids are rejected all checks will be returned.

All proposals for bids must be submitted on the forms of proposals especially prepared for that purpose, copies of which may be obtained from the City Clerk.

The bonds will be engraved under the supervision of and certified as to genuineness by the Columbia Trust Company of New York City. Each proposal together with the certified check accompanying the same, shall be enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed "Proposals for Bonds" and addressed "The Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J." and delivered to the Common Council at the time and place specified in this advertisement.

No bid for less than par and accrued interest will be accepted.

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company.

His back was turned toward Loveland, who recognized him instantly, however, by the set of his high military shoulders and the bald spot on his head which Lesley Dearmer had likened to the shape of Italy on the map. He seemed to listen with deep interest to what one of the seated men was saying and then to chime in eagerly with some addition of his own. Suddenly Loveland caught Fanny Milton's eye. She started and blushed scarlet. The slight involuntary movement she made drew Miss Coolidge's attention, and Elinor, seeing the direction in which Fanny's eyes were turned, sent a glance that way.

Loveland, within bowing distance now, met the glance and returned it, smiling. He was annoyed that Cadwallader Hunter should be with the party, even though evidently not of it. Yet, after all, he said to himself, perhaps it was as well. He did not mean to apologize to Cadwallader Hunter, for he thought his own rudeness more or less justified by the liberty the other had taken, but he had already made up his mind that the next time he met the man he would act as if nothing disagreeable had happened. As to Cadwallader Hunter's readiness to snatch at the olive branch, Loveland had not the slightest doubt of it. He thought he had only to hold out a hand for the major to kiss it, grovelling.

Elinor Coolidge did not blush at the sight of Lord Loveland as Fanny Milton did, but her beautiful face changed curiously. Its cameo clear lines hardened, her lips were pressed together, and her large eyes narrowed, gleaming like topazes between their dark lashes, as the lights from the shaded candles on the table lighted sparks in their yellow-brown depths.

The thought flashed into Loveland's head that the quick change in her face meant jealousy of Fanny Milton. He had noticed more than once on shipboard that she had seemed jealous of Fanny, and now that deep blush of the younger girl's at sight of him had probably vexed her.

"How d'you do?" he asked, pausing at the table.

Instead of answering or putting out her hand to him, as he expected, Elinor almost convulsively grasped the sticks of a delicate little fan which lay beside her plate. She shot a topaz glance at one of the two new men, then let her eyes under raised brows seek and hold her father's.

Lord Loveland was at once surprised and puzzled by this extraordinary reception. "Can Cadwallader Hunter have told them all some lie to set them against me?" he asked himself.

CHAPTER VIII.

CADWALLADER HUNTER'S REVENGE.

AT the sound of Loveland's voice Cadwallader Hunter straightened up in haste and turned round, looking suddenly stiff and wicked as a frozen snake.

He stared into Loveland's eyes, his own like gray glass, and an unpromising smile depressed the corners of his thin lips.

"Oh, that's it, is it?" thought Val with the carelessness of a man used to dominating situations. "He's afraid I'm not going to speak to him, and he daren't speak first for fear of being snubbed again. Well"—and Val felt pleasantly magnanimous—"I'll give him a lead. How are you?" he asked with the patronizing tone his voice unconsciously took when he spoke to this man.

Then he could hardly believe his eyes, which told him that Cadwallader Hunter had turned a contemptuous shoulder upon him, darting disgust in a venomous glance.

"This is the person we were speaking of," he said to the dark, clean shaven man toward whom he had been bending (he seemed always to be bending toward someone) when Loveland came up. "Shall we have him turned out?"

Mr. Coolidge half rose in his seat, losing his characteristic solidity. "No, no," he returned in a low, decided voice; "there must be no scene here, for the ladies' sake. Keep quiet, everybody."

"You're right, Coolidge," returned the dark, smooth faced man.

Then the latter fixed his eyes on Loveland with a stare under a frown, and the other new man stared also, but the three women looked away, trying in vain to think of something easy and natural to say to each other.

Val stood for a moment stupidly, like a boy in the schoolroom who has been bidden to stand up and be stared at as a punishment for some misdemeanor. He was almost inclined to laugh at the insolence of Cadwallader Hunter, as a lion might laugh at a fox terrier worrying his foot. It was on his lips to say: "What a tempest in a teapot! Surely you're not going to believe any idiotic tale that tuft hunting ass may have trumped up about me?"

Then he passed on toward his own table.

There were two chairs at Loveland's table—placed in case he might choose to bring a guest—and he deliberately selected the one which put him with his back to the Coolidge party. But he had forgotten that Major Cadwallader Hunter was not one of that party and might wander at will to any part of the dining room. Presently he did begin to wander, stopping to talk with another group of people, then with another, and so on, always on his way somewhere else.

A POLITE WAITER HAD SLIPPED A MENU INTO THE HAND OF LOVELAND

A polite waiter had slipped a menu into the hand of Loveland, who regarded the decorated square of cardboard as if it were a fetish to preserve him from evil. But if he had deigned to let his eye follow Cadwallader Hunter he would have seen that, each group of people glanced with furtive curiosity at him; stared, whispered, stared again and afterward signaled each other from table to table.

Cadwallader Hunter prided himself on knowing all the people who were worth knowing wherever he went. He had dined early because he had been minded to show himself rather late at the first performance of a new comedy by the brilliant young playwright, Sidney Cremer, but now he found himself appearing on the stage and acting almost a leading part in a drama a hundred times more exciting than he could see at any theater. He went straight from the restaurant to the long row of desks in the hotel office for a heart to heart talk with the clerk he had interviewed in the morning. Then, having made the impression and obtained the assurance he desired, he searched for other acquaintances in that vast decorative corridor of marble, facetiously known as "Peacock alley."

Meanwhile Loveland ordered his dinner, though not quite as carefully as he would had it not been for the disagreeable little incident which he tried to forget as if it were but one more in the series of pin pricks. As he had no money at present to pay for it he thought he might as well drown his vexations in champagne and asked for a bottle of the brand he liked best without even inquiring the New York conception of its price.

As the waiter would have gone off with the order Val called him back on a sudden thought. "Do you know the names of the people at the table where I stopped?"

"Yes, sir," replied the man. "They are very well known here. We often have them dining and lunching. Mr. Coolidge is a millionaire. He and his daughter are just back from Europe, and Mrs. and Miss Milton too."

"Yes, yes," said Loveland impatiently. "I know all that. But the others?"

"Oh, the smooth shaved gentleman with the black hair and prominent eyes—he's Mr. Milton, Mrs. Milton's husband—rather a gay sort of gentleman, sir. The story is he and Mrs. Milton don't get along very pleasantly. There'll be plenty here tonight will be interested seeing them together just after her coming home with the young lady. And the other gentleman, sir—the good looking young one with the dark mustache—that's one of our greatest New York swells, Mr. Henry van Cotter. He"—

"Thank you—that will do," broke in Loveland, suddenly annoyed by the servant's knowing loquacity. The name of Henry van Cotter had in such a connection stirred a dim sense of discomfort within him. This Van Cotter was one of Harborough's friends. Val had left Jim's letter and a visiting card this afternoon at a huge palace of an "apartment house" where Mr. van Cotter had a flat.

At last he saw his waiter coming back and was about to ask irritably whether the man thought it was tomorrow's breakfast he'd ordered when a sealed envelope of the hotel paper was laid on the table in place of the expected oysters.

The servant discreetly retired out of sight behind his lordship's chair like a little boy who has lit a squib and awaits the explosion, and Loveland tore open the envelope, which, very oddly, he thought, was not addressed.

"Sir," he read in neat typing, "the management of the hotel present their compliments and inform you that the suit you are occupying will be required from this evening; also that they regret they have no other room to place at your disposal. They therefore inclose your account up to date and request the favor of immediate payment. Should you wish for dinner and wine they would be obliged if you would kindly pay in advance. The bill for same (as ordered by you) is inclosed separately from the other account."

There was the bill staring up at him as he stared down at it:

Private parlor, bedroom and bath..	$75.00
Luncheon served a la carte in parlor	6.50
Wine	5.00
Cablegram sent to London and Southern bank	10.50
Hire of automobile three hours	15.00
Total	$122.00
Dinner as ordered and to be paid in advance	8.50
Champagne	10.00

Lord Loveland, hardly knowing what he said or did in the persistent nightmare from which he could not wake, called the waiter to him from ambush behind his chair. The man came, with eyes cast patiently down, not to meet the angry blaze turned dangerously upon him.

"There must be some mistake here," said Loveland, folding up the paper and replacing the three sheets in the envelope with fingers that were not quite steady. "This can't be for me. You see, there's no name on the thing. You've brought it to the wrong person."

"No, sir," returned the servant; "I was told to bring it to you. If there's a mistake, sir, it isn't me who's made it."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Boys' Battalion of the First Baptist church will meet Friday night for the weeky drill.

The first fall social will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church Thursday night. There will be an attractive program.

"Wayside Ministries" will be the topic of the prayer meeting at the First Baptist church tomorrow night, and Pastor Chambliss will be in charge.

The Young People's Society of the Heavenly Rest will hold its first fall meeting Thursday night at the parish house, when plans for the comyear will be discussed.

After the meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society at the First Baptist church, today, the women will pack a barrel to be sent to one of the home missionaries.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church wil hold a rally service Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Pastor Maguire will speak to the children.

The women of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold a missionary tea this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Sunday school room. Mrs. Gabriel R. Maguire will talk on "My Experiences in Africa."

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church will meet in the church parlors Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All summer work for the foreign fields should be brought in at that time.

The Junior Mission Band of the First Baptist church will meet Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The theme will be "Jesus Christ in the Old Testament," and the leader will be the president, Constance I. Harris. The band will study "Mexico" the coming season.

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will lecture at the church Thursday evening, October 13, on the subject, "With an Irishman Through the Jungles of Africa." The proceeds will be for the purpose of clearing the church of indebtedness.

The two banners which are awarded for the high average attendance of the classes and teachers at Hope chapel Sunday school, were presented Sunday afternoon. The first banner was awarded to the class taught by Miss Ruth VanVliet and the other to the one taught by Walter Firstbrook.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold its October meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins will lead the devotional exercises and Miss Rafferty will tell of the "Beginning of Woman's Mission Work." After the meeting a barrel will be packed for a home missionary.

Boston Brown Bread.

Scald one cup corn meal with one quart boiling milk and let it cook fifteen minutes, add two tablespoons molasses, one teaspoon salt and let it cool; meanwhile dissolve one ounce of yeast in two tablespoons water and heat thoroughly into the corn meal batter; mix in three cups of rye meal, not flour; if very coarse sift out some of the bran, but keep three cups to mix with, put into an iron or steel pan, bake in a sponge cake oven, but let it stay in two hours at least, covering closely if there is danger of browning. The old way was to put it in for the last baking of the brick oven and let it stand all night. If the upper crust was too hard it was evenly sliced from the loaf, well browned and used for crust coffee or crewls, either of which neds only to be known to be appreciated.

IRELAND IS FAMED FOR ITS LINENS AND LASSIES

Tomorrow and next day we are going to devote specially to things essentially Irish in origin as a compliment to the thousands of Irishmen who make their homes in Newark and vicinity.

That Ireland is not so great in a manufacturing way as some other countries is likely largely due to the fact that Ireland has had to bear a burden that successive generations of her sturdy people have been unable to throw off. At this very moment four noted Irish patriots are in this country advocating "Home Rule," and the other day, in Philadelphia, $1,000 was subscribed to promote the movement. John E. Redmond declared "What we want is men to come back to Ireland. Irishmen will come back if their country is free."

In the meantime the hospitable America is the home of the flower of the Emerald Isle, as it is of those from bonny Scotland, and we are glad to devote two of the days to celebrating Ireland, its people, its products and things otherwise essentially Irish.

We invite all Irishmen and their descendants and all other people to the store on this occasion.

IRISH LINENS

Next to its lassies, Ireland is perhaps more famed for its linen than any other of its products and it gives us pleasure on this occasion to call your attention to the extensive lines of these famous linens in both piece goods and patterns that we carry.

This Linen Store surpasses all others in Newark in the room devoted to the show and sale of linens and in the variety of good kinds which it carries in stock. Many of these makes and patterns are confined exclusively to Hahne & Co. in this section.

HERE AND THERE.

It all came about through a pork pie. The housewives of Leicester, be it noted, are famous for their pork pies. This particular pie was sent some eighteen months ago to Henry Hill, a business man of Milwaukee and a native of Leicester, by a home staying friend.

The pie reminded Henry Hill so much of those his mother used to make that he got homesick for the first time after forty-three years' sojourn under the Stars and Stripes. Why not, he suggested send out to all the world an invitation to old Leicester boys to meet in a given week in the old town?

And so that pie marked the birth of the homecoming week, which Leicester is celebrating just now with bands, banners and fireworks. Some 250 homecomers are doing themselves well as the guests of the city and all wear on the lapels of their coats a wyvern, which is a fearsome heraldic monster, a cross between a dragon and a griffin, which justifies its existence by figuring on the city arms.

A brother of Sparks, Nevada, (and Leicester), shook hands for the first time after thirty years with a brother of Bangalore, northern India (and Leicester) with a solemn "How do, George?" thus proving conclusively that British stolidity is not a thing of the past, as some would have us believe. There were some dramatic meetings, though, especially in the case of a Leicesterite of New Zealand, who had not seen his native town for fifty years.

The festive 250 came from Africa, north, east, south and central, from Canada, from Australia, from India, south America and from various points in Europe. The Milwaukee contingent was the most numerous, probably because Milwalkee and Leicester are equally prominent in the shoe trade. Mr. Hill brought special greetings from the mayor of the American city and from various notabilities and with him was Lawrence Hurley, the tallest policeman in Milwaukee, also an old Leicesterite.

Many others made the pilgrimage from San Francisco, Philadelphia, Kansas and New York. All wore badges with the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack crossed and got a rousing welcome home. hTe only thing that is cold about Leicester is the British climate, but pork pies keep you warm, and the consumption of pork pies in Leicester just now is surprising.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The manager of the P. H. S. football team expects to arrange a game for tomorrow with Westfield High High School, the contest to be played at Crescent Oval.

The P. H. S. Chess Club is now meeting frequently for the purpose of teaching the young fellows how to play the game.

The Board of Education is planning to have the P. H. S. tennis courts ready for the approaching tournament.

DECIDE WEED HAS NO CLAIM AGAINST CITY

The greater part of the September meeting of the Common Council, last night, was taken up with a consideration of numerous petitions of minor importance. Horace M. Stevens, of 1415 Prospect avenue, asked for a light in front of his property, and on motion of Mr. Montgomery it was granted. On motion of the same member, four lights were ordered installed on Grant avenue, between West Eighth street and Monroe avenue, 300 feet apart.

Regarding the petition from Frank W. Weed, of West Front street, in which he presented a bill for $74.00 for damaged automobile tires as a result of an alleged condition of Lafayette street, Mr. Gloak reported that he had taken the matter up with Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh and that the latter had advised that the city is not liable for damages. Mr. Weed will be informed of Mr. Marsh's opinion.

The resignation of Andrew McConnell as a regular member of the fire department was accepted, and the appointment of William Gaub, of North Plainfield, as a regular member of the department, was confirmed.

The Public Service Corporation reported that it had located one light at East Front street and Bank place, as ordered. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported having granted twenty-one permits during the past month. Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers reported outside expenses for the past month to be $288.11, and those at the almshouse $407.92. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District court, reported receipts of $102.42 for the past month, expenditures of $27.72, leaving a balance of $74.70.

On motion of Mr. Buxton, $1,500 was transferred from the general fund to the street fund, and the city treasurer was authorized to borrow in anticipation of taxes $500 for the poor fund and $3,000 for the fire fund, and $1,000 was also borrowed for sewer extension work.

Resolutions providing for the laying of sidewalks, where property-owners have failed to comply with the ordinance, were introduced by Mr. Gloak and adopted.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Taylor, which was adopted, the fire and building committee was authorized to install a fire box at the new Jefferson school on Myrtle avenue. On motion of Mr. Gloak, when the council adjourned it did so, to meet on Thursday, October 20.

Business Class Resumes.

The business men's gymnasium class opened at the Y. M. C. A. last night, with about twenty members present. All expressed their pleasure at again taking up the work for the coming season. Ten boys from Leal's School also visited the gymnasium yesterday. The business men's class will meet on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The first session of the swimming class was held last night ten members being present. Tonight the senior gymnasium class will meet.

Flower Girl at Elizabeth Wedding.

Miss Marion Keys McCutcheon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McCutcheon, of Myrtle avenue, was the flower girl at the wedding Friday night in Trinity church, Elizabeth, of her aunt, Miss Florence Ritchie Keys, daughter of Mrs. Alfred DeF. Keys, to Alexander Kilgour Christie of Schenectady, N. Y. A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother on North Broad street.

Nesler Wins Awards at Trenton.

At the State fair at Trenton, Joseph Nesler, of Richmond street, exhibited nine birds in the White Orpington class and won with every entry having pitted against him twenty-two White Orpington breeders. The awards were as follows: Second and fourth cockerels, second and fifth pullets, and second on the pen. They made a clean sweep at the recent fair at Richmond Borough on Staten Island.

Comedy Cyclists at Proctor's.

"The Reckless Recklaws," reckless cyclists, are making a hit at Proctor's theatre this week. "What Money Couldn't Buy" is the title of a clever sketch filled with comedy, presented by Robert Keene & Co. Sommers & Horton, comedians and singers, are exceptionally good, and Carita Day is a cute singer and clever dancer.

CHAMPIONS CANDIDATES

DR. WILSON IS SURE WINNER.

A large gathering of Democrats were entertained in the club rooms on North avenue last night by S. P. Northrup, of Newark, who was sent here for the purpose by the Democratic State committee. Mr. Northrup delivered an eulogy of Dr. Woodrow Wilson and excoriated the Republican party, including its bosses, laying special stress upon the attitude of the machine toward special interests and paid his respects in very moderate language to Al. Dalrymple and David Baird, parts of the machine.

Mr. Northrup said that this campaign differed from its predecessors inasmuch as the candidates on the Democratic ticket were men of superior quality to any that had heretofore been nominated. He declared that conditions in this State had reached the point where a change was absolutely necessary and that as this was undoubtedly a Democratic year, the change was bound to come and at last the common people would come into their own.

Mr. Northrup said that Dr. Wilson had been a favorite from the start of the race and he was inclined to believe that Mr. Lewis would find he had been left at the post. The Democratic party has tried all sorts of issues and platforms, but none of them, like the Republican platforms was absolutely perfect. "No chain is stronger than its weakest link," he said, and it has always been fatal to the party (Democratic) that their opponents had dissected their platforms and having discovered the weak point had managed to break the chain.

"In New Jersey," said Mr. Northrup, "no one is too good for the people and we have nominated a man who will do what he says he'll do; a man who will devote his entire ability and talents to the good of the people.

Mr. Northrup had much to say about the millionarie Plenipotentiaries sent abroad to represent this country. They are so lavish in their expenditures that if a poor man were selected by the President to fill a vacancy, as it occurred with David J. Hill, who succeeded Charlemagne Tower at Berlin, the foreign potentates stand aghast and almost snub him because he is unable from his private means to keep up the pace. He declared that if this sort of thing were kept up the best men in the country cannot fill the places they are capable of filling with honor to their government.

Referring to the comparative expenditures of the Sate under Democratic and Republican administrations, Mr. Northrup showed by figures that the Republicans had jumped the yearly outlay from $1,800,000 to $8,400,000 since the last Democratic administration.

Mr. Northrup said that the Democratic party had always been the representative of the common people and in voting the people ought to cast their ballots in their own interests rather than for the interests that had robbed them of their rights as free citizens.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Sidney R. Titsworth, of Bridgeport, Conn., is visiting in town.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Frank Stone, of West Front street, enjoyed an automobile ride to Orange on Sunday.

Among the guests registered at Hot Springs, Va., at the week-end was Mrs. F. H. Andrews, of Central avenue.

Miss Christine Stewart, of West Seventh street, has returned from a visit of several weeks with friends at Wilmington.

Mrs. Florence V. Lederer, formerly of Plainfield, is spending a few days with Mrs. H. B. Clarke of 202 East Ninth street.

Charles Suttman and family have returned to their home on Grove stret, after a two months' vacation spent out of town.

Holy Cross and Westfield Tied.

The Holy Cross church second team met the Westfield High School team at Westfield Saturday, in a hard-fought battle, with the score a tie. Both sides played a fast game. Referee Martin and Umpire Nash were kept busy calling fouls, as the contestants were not yet familiar with the new rules.

Macadamizing Borough Street.

Street Commissioner Barrett, of the borough, has commenced the work of macadamizing Regent street. With its completion there will remain only three thoroughfares in North Plainfield that have no macadam.

RECEPTION OF TEMPLARS

Trinity Commandery only One in Jersey Invited to New York Demonstration.

AT THE KISMET TEMPLE.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, of this city, was honored last night in receiving an invitation from Clinton Commandery, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to be present at a reception to be tendered Sir John Carlisle Louden, grand commander of the Knights Templar of the State of New York. The reception will take place on Friday night, October 14, in Kismet Temple, (Mosyne) Brooklyn.

The special honor is all the more appreciated by the Templars of Plainfield, because Trinity Commandery is the only one in the State of New Jersey, in fact, outside of the metropolitan district, which has been invited to participate in the auspicious event.

Nineteen commanderies of the metropolitan district are co-operating in this proposed demonstration and the parade will no doubt be the largest ever seen in greater New York. There are to be addresses by prominent members of the order, a reception of the grand officers of the grand lodge, grand chapter, council and Scottish Rite, a band concert by Shannon's Band, the best in that part of the State.

The members of Trinity Commandery will hold a special meeting Monday evening in the parlors of Masonic Hall, to make complete arrangements for the affair.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Society of the Lutheran church will meet at the home of Mrs. Taylor, 202 Grandview avenue. A full attendance of members is urged.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel will hold an all-day sewing meeting tomorrow. Dinner will be served at noon. All members are urged to be present.

Returned Missionary to Speak.

Mr. Ruhl, a returned missionary from Tibet, will speak Friday night at the German Reformed church, Craig place and Duer street. He will tell an interesting story of his work and home in Lamisary, Taochow, ten thousand feet above the sea, and will show costumes and curios from that land of mystery that is just now being opened to the world.

GOOD BOOKS AS MEDICINE

PRESENTS A FINE COLLECTION.

Philanthropist Holds That There Should Be a Library in Every Hospital for the Patients' Use.

The library at Muhlenberg Hospital is to be enriched by a magnificent gift from Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains. Volumes from the pens of the greatest authors including Shakespeare, and the novelists, Sir Walter Scott, Charles Dickens, Thackeray, J. Fenimore Cooper and others are included in the list which the doctor has donated, and most of the editions are of the de luxe variety and will form one of the finest collections to be found in any hospital library.

In his letter to the managers of Muhlenberg Dr. Coles says that: "In the treatment of disease, whether of the mind or the body, I have learned to thoroughly appreciate the invaluable aid obtainable from the reading of good books by the patients, especially during their convalescence. I therefore regard the establishment and use of a well selected library in every hospital, if not essential, certainly very beneficial as a means of lessening the weariness of delay and in the hastening of recovery. 'Mens sana in corpore sano.'"

Dr. Coles has ordered sent to Muhlenberg, all delivery charges prepaid, the following de luxe editions of Standard works: The Masterpieces and History of Literature, in ten volumes, edited by Julian Hawthorne; which is a digest of the best writings of ancient and modern times and elegantly illustrated.

Modern Achievement, edited by Edward Everett Hale and others, ten volumes, containing celebrated and unique manuscript and book illustrations—series of fac similes showing the development of manuscript and book illustrating during a thousand years, also photo engravings in colors of paintings by Bierstadt and other famous artists.

Among the other works are de luxe editions of the works of William Shakespeare in ten volumes, and the novels mentioned above with many others. Doctor Coles has not forgotten the children in his splendid gift, for there are many single books especially designed to entertain and delight the young people who may have to linger on a cot. Among the single volumes is a copy of The Abbe Constantin, by Ludovic Halevy, which is acknowledged to be one of the most fascinating of novels. It is remarkable for its literary style, tenderness of spirit and keenness of observation. It was crowned by the French Academy and in 1904 had gone through no less than 150 editions.

This gift of books includes also a de luxe edition of volumes filled with copies of famous paintings by the old masters which adorn the walls of the noted galleries of Europe.

The debt we owe to books, says Lord Macauley, is incalculable. They fill our minds with noble and graceful images. They stand by us in all vicissitudes. They are comforters in sorrow, nurses in sickness and companions in solitude.

COST HIM $5 TO TRY TO SELL LINEN WITHOUT A LICENSE.

Domenico Sellenio, of 76 Oliver street, New York, made a sad mistake yesterday afternoon when he stopped at the home of Detective Sergeant John Flynn, on West Front street, and offered for sale some fine table linen. He didn't know what he was up against. This morning he enriched the city treasury by five dollars for peddling without a license, and was sent out of town. He said he would return to New York, where he wouldn't be treated quite so harshly and where he is more familiar with the appearance of a detective. Of course this move was suggested by Judge William N. Runyon, in the city court.

Passing Worthless Checks.

Merchants of the city are warned not to receive checks purporting to be signed by the manager of the Salvation Army Industrial department. Captain Hewitt, of the Army, says that the employees of this department are never paid in checks. Several merchants have cashed checks signed and endorsed by a man who variously signs his name Brooks, Fisher or Fox, as the whim seizes him, and he has succeeded in getting the change on small checks after making a small purchase. The checks have all been marked "N. G." by the bank upon which they have been drawn.

MANY REMONSTRATE AGAINST 2 LICENSES

From what can be gathered from the opponents to the liquor business in the borough, Judge Clarence L. Case will have a load of remonstrances to wade through before next Saturday which may convince him that the people of North Plainfield do not want any more saloons in that bailiwick.

The two cases which were postponed for further consideration by Judge Case two weeks ago are the new license for the Arlington Hotel on Somerset street and the renewal of the license for the Manhattan Hotel. It is claimed by those who are remonstrating against the opening of these places that there are enough saloons in the borough now and to add two more, both within a block of each other and in the residential district, would be a disgrace to the community.

Since the mass meeting held in Warren chapel on Sunday, September 25, hundreds of letters have been written to Judge Case imploring him to refuse both licenses. On Saturday next a large delegation of men from North Plainfield will accompany Rev. J. O. McKelvey to Somerville to enter verbal protests against the granting of these licenses. Those who have signified their intentions of aiding in the protest are requested to take the 9:43 train from here on that day. It is urgently requested by Mr. McKelvey that all get together for that train so that a solid phalanx may be presented to Judge Case and thus carry all the weight necessary to have the desired result.

The Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union has filed a protest, signed by all its members, and a number of the societies will be represented in the court that day to add their influence to that of the protestants from the borough. The hearing will take place at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning in the Somerville courthouse.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY WORK HER SUBJECT

A paper replete with interest was presented by Miss Susan Rafferty on "The Beginning of Woman's Mission Work" at the meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. Miss Rafferty prefaced her story of mission work among women by telling how the nineteenth century came to be called "the Woman's Century," and touched lightly on the movement that gave it the right to the title. Advance in the legal status of woman and opportunities for higher education were among the changes mentioned. She said it was not until 1893 that in Philadelphia the girl's high school was put on an equal basis with that of boys. In 1798, Northampton, Mass., now the seat of Smith College, voted not to be at any expense for schooling girls.

Miss Rafferty told of the coming, with the new century, of Emma Willard, who dared plead with the Legislature of New York for the higher education of girls, and of Mary Lyon, who founded Mt. Holyoke Seminary, and whose influence directly affected woman's work for missions. Woman's part in the agitation on the subject of slavery, her interest in the Civil War, and the Woman's Rights movement were also touched upon. She paid a high tribute to Julia Ward Howe, who has achieved so much for women, and is still achieving.

Miss Rafferty told of the organization of the "Boston Female Society for Missionary Purposes," when Cary, the pioneer misionary, was at work in India, and of the general awakening when the nation was aroused by Judson's appeal. Her story of the organization of women's societies for missionary work among various denominations was full of interest and instruction.

The inscription now used on the first page of the First Baptist church weekly calendar was obtained by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss from the tablet at the entrance to York Minster, while he was abroad. It reads as follows: "Whosoever thou art that enterest here, wilt thou not offer, before thou leavest, a prayer to God—for thyself, for those who worship and those who minister before Him in this His House."

MRS. HAYES FINE GOLF

She Wins Gross Honors in One Day in P. C. C. Tournament.

SEVERAL OTHER CONTESTS.

Mrs. Bird Makes Lowest Score in 18-hole Medal Play—Mrs. Patterson Wins Approaching Competition.

Mrs. F. H. Hayes, of Midland, won the gross scores honors in the one-day tournament over the course of the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday. She made the 18-hole circuit with a score of 90, one stroke better than Mrs. L. W. Callan, of Englewood, and two strokes less than Mrs. T. H. Polhemus, also of the Englewood club.

In the 18-hole medal play handicap three prizes were offered by the club. They were first and second net and first gross. Mrs. W. S. Bird, of Dunwoodie, won the first net score prize with a 98, 18-80, while Mrs. W. R. Frayne, of the same club, and Miss Margaret Goddard, of the home club, tied for second honors with net totals of 84. There was a difference of only two strokes in their handicaps, Mrs. Frayne having a 12 and Miss Goddard 14. The playoff was on three holes and Mrs. Frayne allowed her opponent one stroke, and won out.

The club ruled that a player could only receive one prize and in consequence Mrs. Hayes was eliminated so far as the second net trophy was concerned. In her round, Mrs. Hayes went out in 48 and home in 42.

In the wake of the handicap came an approaching and putting competition. Contestants approached to the home green with three balls from as many distances, and when all had finished Mrs. H. L. Patterson, of Baltusrol, and Miss M. Van Boskerck, of the home club, were found to be tied at 9. Others who did well were Mrs. Ralph Hoyt, of Forest Hill; Mrs. H. R. Stockton, of Plainfield; Mrs. F. E. Donohoe, of Montclair; and Mrs. N. P. Rogers, of Baltusrol, all at 10. The play-off between Mrs. Patterson and Miss Van Boskerck to decide first and second prizes was won by the first named with a score of 13.

The field of forty-odd women represented something like eleven clubs, and the fact that no member of the home organization won a prize speaks well for the quality of the visiting players. Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, chairman of the tournament committee, was ably assisted by J. E. Erickson and Leighton Calkins, president of the club.

The scores in the handicap were as follows:

Mrs. W. S. Bird, Dunwoodie, 98, 18-80; Mrs. F. H. Hayes, Midland, 90, 9-81, Mrs. W. R. Frayne, Dunwoodie, 98, 12-84; Mrs. M. Goddard, Plainfield, 98, 14-84; Mrs. L. W. Callan, Englewood, 91, 4-87; Miss Helen Rosencrantz, Ridgewood, 94, 7-87; Mrs. R. G. Hanford Wykagyl, 99, 10-89; Miss F. Gwyer, Siwanoy, 108, 18-90; Miss A. M. Elsberg, Plainfield, 108, 18-90; Mrs. H. R. Stockton, Plainfield, 100, 10-90; Mrs. T. H. Polhemus, Englewood, 92, 2-90, Mrs. C. J. Selter, Siwanoy, 117, 25-92; Mrs. R. A. Moriarity, Montclair, 113, 20-93; Miss F. Cooper, Montclair, 108, 15-93; Mrs. H. B. Salmon, Forest Hill, 105, 12-93; Mrs. W. J. Faith Wykagyl, 98, 5-93; Mrs. S. A. Cunningham, Englewood, 109, 15-94; Miss Alice Titus, Plainfield, 114, 20-94; Mrs. N. P. Rogers, Baltusrol, 99, 4-95; Miss Lockett, South Orange, 116, 20-96; Mrs. R. O. Smith, Montclair, 104, 8-96; Miss F. A. Duff, Dunwoodie, 113, 17-96; Miss J. A. Philbrick, Montclair, 116, 20-96; Miss Gertrude Noe, Westfield, 113, 15-98; Miss L. Gould, Siwanoy, 108, 10-98; Mrs. J. S. Stokes, Jr., Ridgewood, 111, 25-99; Mrs. M. J. Dumont, Plainfield, 124, 25-99; Mrs. C. A. Woodruff, Forest Hill, 112, 12-100; Mrs. Thomas Travis, Montclair, 118, 16-102; Miss L. F. Otten, Siwanoy, 126, 20-106; Mrs. Ralph Hoyt, Forest Hill, 141, 25-116.

HOLY NAME 4,000 STRONG

NEXT SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

Line of March Announced—Father Bogan to Preside at Meeting—Venerable Dean Gessner to Officiate.

Father Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, today announced the plans for the annual demonstratiin of the Holy Name societies to be held here next Sunday afternoon. It is expected that there will be at least 4,000 members in the parade which will be started at 2:45. The line of march will be up Watchung avenue from Second street to Manning avenue, to Somerset street, to West Front to Seventh street, thence to Liberty.

In order these will be in line: First division—Elizabeth band, St. Mary's, Holy Rosary, St. Michael's and Sacred Heart societies, of Elizabeth; Elizabeth fife and drum corps; St. Patrick's, Elizabeth; St. Mary's, Rahway; St. Joseph's Roselle; Holy Trinity, Westfield; St. Andrew's, Cranford. Second Division—VanBaar's Imperial band, New York; St. Mary's Plainfield; St. Joseph's, North Plainfield; St. John's, Dunellen; St. Bernard's, Raritan; Immaculate Conception, Somerville, and St. Joseph's, Bound Brook. There will be no flags except the American carried in the parade. Each marcher will have a bannerette inscribed "H. N. S." attached to a cane. Michael D. O'Keefe will be marshal of the first division, and Michael Caffrey of the second division.

A large platform is being erected in front of the St. Mary's commercial school, where the exercises will be held. The solemn benediction will be given by the Very Rev. Dean Gessler, the venerable rector of St. Patrick's Elizabeth, assisted by Rev. Francis O'Neill, pastor of Holy Rosary, Elizabeth. Father Bogan will preside at the meeting to follow. The speakers will be Rev. Dr. Joseph J. McMahon, rector of Our Lady of Lourdes, New York, and James A. Donnelly, formerly assistant attorney general of New York State.

ALFRED E. LA PORTE WEDS MISS VAN PATTEN

Miss Gratia Greenwood Van Patten, daughter of Mrs. Byron Van Patten, of North Main street, Carthage, N. Y., and Alfred Edmond La Porte, of this city, were married at the rectory of St. James' R. C. church, Carthage, on Monday morning, by Rev. Father Whalen, O. S. A.

Guests were present from Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Rochester, Antwerp, Wanakena, N. Y., and Springfield, Mass.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to a few friends and the relatives of the couple. The dining room was decorated in purple and white, these being the class colors of the bride. Misses Ora Lombar and Helen Woolworth served the guests at the tables. These two young women are intimate friends of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of the State Normal School, at Potsdam, N. Y., and taught school for several terms in this city. Mr. La Porte is employed in the local postoffice and is president of the New Jersey State Postoffice Clerks Association. The couple are spending their honeymoon in the Adirondacks, and on their return will live at 21 Jackson avenue, the borough, where they will be at home to their friends after December 1.

WHAT'S THE POPULATION?

All the guessers in this town have not yet taken a fall out of the census figures, but they ought to get on the job. Figures are coming in for cities of about the population of Plainfield and it wont be long before the real population of the City Beautiful is made public.

The Daily Press has offered a prize for the nearest guess as to the population of Plainfield and North Plainfield, $5 in gold for each municipality. Hundreds of guesses have been received, but there is room for more. Have you sent in yours?

Still Hunting for Miss Bremmer.

Search is being continued for the missing Lily Bremmar. Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the borough, had a clue which led over the mountains this morning, but it did not pan out. The person did not answer the description of the missing girl.

ARRANGE MASS MEETINGS

NOON-DAY SHOP MEETINGS.

An Aggressive Campaign Decided Upon at Meeting of the Republican City Committee —Lewis to Speak.

Open-air and hall meetings are to be held under the auspices of the Republican city committee to give the Republican nominees in the State, county and city tickets an opportunity to be heard by the voters. The arguments, as in the primary campaign, will be free of personalities and will be confirmed to a discussion of the issues. Reform hall has been leased for every Monday night from now on to the day of election for this purpose. In addition, there will be open-air meetings at the shops at noon time during the last week of the campaign. All this was decided at a meeting of the city committee last night.

The resignations of G. W. V. Moy and Howard C. Tracy were accepted. Dr. N. W. Curry was selected to succeed. Mr. Moy. The other vacancy was not filled.

The committee for the meetings, as appointed by Chairman Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., consists of John H. Cose, James F. Buckle, Arthur Lovell Amos Andrews and Ralph I. Folles.

There appears to be some question as to the exact date when the gubernatorial candidate, Banking Commissioner Vivian Lewis, will address the Plainfield voters. At first it was announced that he would be here on Thursday, Sept. 13, and then it was stated that the correct date was Friday, Sept. 14. Union County Chairman Frank H. Smith, however, said today, that he understood that Saturday, Oct. 15, was the date. To find out to a certainty, he has sent to the State committee for information.

It is expected that former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, the Republican nominee for mayor, will speak at one of the meetings. He has taken the position that he is not a seeker after the office and has not been from the start, but now that he is in the fight he proposes to win and therefore may address the voters. Mr. Coriell's friends say that he believes in Grover Cleveland's maxim, "the office should seek the man, and not the man the office."

STREET CONTRACTOR'S NEGLIGENCE IS COSTLY.

Last night, at about 9 o'clock, William Phillips, of 510 West Fourth street, while driving through Plainfield avenue, between Stelle avenue and Randolph road, ran into a pile of dirt, breaking a shaft of his wagon and rendering parts of his harness useless through the falling of his horse.

Patrolman Birmingham reported the occurrence, and declared that although the piled up dirt extends for nearly a block, there was only one red lantern to indicate the danger. The contractor, whose name the police did not know will be looked up today and notified of the accident.

ANGLOPHONICS SUBJECT OF BOARD OF TRADE LECTURE.

The October meeting of the Board of Trade will be held tomorrow night in the rooms on Park avenue, when a program of unusual interest will be presented. Invitations have been sent to neighboring Boards of Trade, civic bodies, educational boards, teachers and ministers and women will also be welcome.

From 8 to 9 o'clock the topic for consideration will be "The Fire Department," and after 9 o'clock there will be a lecture by Dr. J. W. Shearer, of Virginia. The subject will be "Anglophonics or the Phonetic English Alphabet."

MISS MARY T. SMITH T. R. RANDOLPH'S BRIDE

In the presence of only immediate relatives of the two families, Miss Mary Tomlinson Smith, youngest daughter of Captain and Mrs. W. C. Smith, was united in marriage last night to Thomas Raymond Randolph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Randolph, of Central avenue. The ceremony took place at 8:30 at the home of the bride's parents on Grandview avenue, and was performed by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel. The young couple were married with the impressive ring ceremony while standing beneath a bower of smilax, ferns and plants, having a background of the national colors.

Miss Smith wore a becoming traveling gown of navy blue with hat to correspond, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Barton Smith, who wore embroidered pink chiffon over pink silk, and carried pink roses. Paul Whitford, of this city, acted as best man. Mrs. Edward I. Smalley, sister of the groom, played the Mendelssohn wedding march as the bridal party entered the parlor. The bride was given away by her father.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, during which supper was served by Caterer Edwin Neighbor. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph took their departure later amid a shower of rice and good wishes, and will spend the next two weeks in New England, going as far as Maine. On returning they will begin housekeeping at Fourth street and Central avenue.

Both bride and groom are well known in the city and borough, and the esteem in which they are held was vouched for by the large assortment of wedding gifts. They included a substantial check from the bride's father. The groom is connected with the local office of the Public Service Corporation.

FINCH LOSES LAST OF A STRING OF HUNTERS

"Harry Baylor" conspicuous in all of the hunt club races throughout the Metropolitan district, and in other parts of the country, died Saturday night at Millbrook, N. Y., where two weeks before the horse took part in the races at that place. The animal was entered by its owner, Rufus C. Finch and in taking one of the water jumps reached too far, spraining a tendon in the leg. The injury was not thought to be a serious one at the time, but the next day the leg began to swell until it reached extreme proportions. The services of an expert veterinary were secured and everything possible was done for the horse, but to ni purpose. Saturday morning the attendant found the animal dead in his stall, and an investigation showed that a blood vessel had burst.

The death of this valuable hunter recalls the misfortune of Mr. Finch since he has become active in various hunt races. About a year and a half ago he lost "Rounder," whose sire won the Baltimore Derby and three weeks later he lost "Lady Potentate," both fine blooded animals. "Rounder" died at Cedarhurst, where the animal broke its neck in a fall and continued running a considerable distance, when it fell dead. "Lady Potentate" died at Elkwood Park from an injury.

"Harry Baylor" was originally a Virginia horse, and was nine years old. Hugh Gormley owned the animal for a couple of years and was successful in all the races in which the horse was entered. Two years ago the horse won the President's cup at Lenox, Mass. and had won other notable events. Prior to selling the horse to Mr. Finch, Mr. Gormley hunted him on several occasions throughout this section, and Mr. Finch also entered his horse in many races. This will probably end Mr. Finch's racing career with blooded stock. He feels his loss keenly.

An A. O. H. Dance.

The Ladies' Auxiliary A. O. H., of St. Joseph's parish, will hold a dance at Saengerbund hall on Friday evening. James T. Touhey, the piper, will play the old fashioned Irish reels and jigs, and Parounbek's orchestra will furnish the other dance music.

To Give Social and Supper.

The women of Grace P. E. church mission will give a social and supper at Peterson's casino on Thursday evening, October 6.

—Neuman Bros. will offer for tomorrow's trade an unusually fine line of vegetables and fruits. There will be a large variety, all choice produce and at reasonable prices.

F. C. LANGHORNE INJURED

UNCONSCIOUS WHEN RESCUED.

Deckhand Saves Him From Drowning—He Will Recover—Jas. Craig's Fortunate Escape.

Rendered unconscious from a glancing blow from the stem of a Pennsylvania tug boat while fishing in the channel off Boynton Beach this morning at 11 o'clock, Frank C. Langborne, the well known photographer, of East Front street, was taken to the City hospital at Perth Amboy, where it is said he was in a dangerous condition. James Craig, who was with Mr. Langhorne, was thrown from the boat into the water, but escaped with nothing worse than a wetting while the row boat was smashed into kindling wood.

It was said this afternoon that the accident happened so quickly that the occupants of the boat could not escape the collision after they had observed the approach of the tug which was towing some empty scows. When the two men saw the oncoming tug they made frantic efforts to get their boat out of the channel, but they were not quick enough. As the prow of the tug struck the boat it also hit Mr. Langhorne a glancing blow on the side of the head and threw him under one of the barges, and as he rose from the depths his head again struck the side of the scow with such force as to render him unconscious. His body immediately floated face upwards and Howard Cappen, a deckhand on the tug jumped over board and hauled Mr. Langhorne aboard the tug.

Making all haste, the captain of the tug cut loose from his tow and made for Perth Amboy, where an ambulance hurried Mr. Langhorne to the City Hospital, still unconscious. The tug which struck the boat was numbered 32 and was in command of Captain R. B. Forbes. Dr. Meringer, of Perth Amboy, attended Mr. Langhorne and from the first examination was constrained to believe that the Plainfield was seriously injured.

A more thorough examination at the City Hospital revealed the fact that no bones were broken and that Mr. Langhorne's skull was not fractured. Shortly after 1 o'clock he regained consciousness and was able to converse freely, telling who he was and how the accident happened. The chances are good for an early recovery, Dr. Meringer saying that Mr. Langhorne was suffering more from shock than anything else.

Mr. Langhorne is the only surviving charter member of the "Jolly Corks," an organization from which the present order of Elks sprung.

MUSICAL SERVICE OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

A musical evening at the Salvation Army Hall was enjoyed by a large congregation last evening. Martin A. Korff and George Speers with violins and Mrs. L. R. Howard at the piano made a splendid trio. Besides solos by Mr. Korff and Mr. Spers Mrs. Howard sang beautifully "Tarry With Me" and "I'll Do What You Want Me to Do."

The solos were interspersed with Gospel hymns heartily sung by the congregation led by Captain Hewitt. After the music Mr. Korff addressed the meeting for about forty minutes taking as a topic the roads of two trains and his text from Matthew, 7:13. Mr. Korff's talk was along the line of taking either one of the two roads, preferably the one which leads to everlasting life and gave the reasons why it was better to switch off at Halleluia avenue and join those whose destination was the Kingdom of God.

The Tuesday night meetings in the hall will be continued throughout the winter and special music will be engaged for each meeting.

Catholic Books in Library.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library last night, the library committee reported the purchase of the first eight volumes of the Catholic Encyclopedia. Subsequent volumes are to be purchased as issued. Steps are being taken to enlarge the law library, and to provide a room for it. A contract has been given out to install a disinfectant plant.

One Year as Rector.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of trustees of the Church of the Heavenly Rest was held last night with a full attendance. Mortimer Givens and James R. Harris, were present for the first time. Rev. Mr. Mallory's first year as pastor will be observed at next Sunday's service.

A.E.FORCE & CO.

"The White Store" Saves You Money. We Give You J.-N. Green Trading Stamps.

THE FALL SEASON WHICH IS USHERED IN BY THE MONTH OF OCTOBER FINDS THIS LARGE EMPORIUM FILLED TO OVERFLOWING WITH THE LARGEST AND MOST COMPLETE LINE OF MERCHANDISE THAT IT HAS EVER BEEN OUR GOOD FORTUNE TO PRESENT TO THE PEOPLE OF PLAINFIELD AND SURROUNDING TOWNS. EVERY EFFORT HAS BEEN PUT FORTH IN THE SELECTION OF MERCHANDISE THAT WILL BRING LASTING RESULTS TO THE CONSUMER; THIS COUPLED WITH AN EARNEST, CONSCIENTIOUS DESIRE TO SERVE YOU QUICKLY, ATTENTIVELY AND CORTEOUSLY, SHOULD BE PARTLY INSTRUMENTAL IN ASKING IF WE MAY HAVE THE PLEASURE OF SHOWING YOU THROUGH THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS, WITHOUT ANY OBLIGATION ON YOUR PART TO BUY.

Our Millinery Dept.

We often hear expressions of this kind when a visitor comes to our millinery department for the first time: "Why, I never thought your millinery department was so extensive, or your stock so large." Our reply is, that public appreciation of our efforts compelled us not only to give it more room, but our stock greatly increased. If you are among those who have never visited the millinery displays we have been making, we ask that you make a special effort to do so; when we think we can convince you of a great saving in your millinery bills. Our milliners and salesladies are courteous and obliging, never arrogant, and will at all times show you the greatest courtesy and consideration in helping you select what is best suited to your personal wants.

The Cloak and Suit Dept.

The rapid growth of this department has again compeled us to give it more room than we gave it last season. Each season from its inception has seen more room added, so that today we have the best stocked, best lighted and best equipped cloak and suit department in this section of the State. We were the first in the city to make alterations free of cost to the purchaser, and the public responded with an eagerness that soon obliged us to keep a corps of tailors for this purpose alone. You don't have to go out of your own city to purchase cloaks or suits. All we ask is that we be given a fair opportunity to prove our assertion.

IMPORTANT.

Beginning Monday this store will resume opening at 8 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. We thank the public for their co-operation during the season of giving our employes shorter hours

THE DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

Our stock of Blankets and Comforts for the Fall season has been selected with the greatest care, thereby insuring you nothing but the best quality in these lines. We have a splendid line from the smallest to the largest and from the cheapest to the most expensive.

OUTING FLANNEL AND FLANNELETTS.

In every good kind and every good style in the best colors; also the new popular duckling fleece, and a line of bath robe material in a new line of dainty patterns.

LADIES' HOSIERY DEPARTMENT.

Your appreciation of our hosiery department has been so flatteringly generous that it has grown to such an extent that we were obliged to give it more room and yet it is not large enough. We have a splendid stock for Fall and Winter in every kind of good Hosiery.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Borough Board of Education held the regular monthly meeting last night, and beside transacting considerable routine business, discussed at some length the proposition to improve the study of music in the schools. The board is negotiating with William Holmes, of Plainfield, a vocal instructor of established merit, and it is probable he will be engaged to take charge of the classes. The matter was laid over for further discussion at the next session. The reports submitted showed the fall work to be well underway and progressing satisfactorily. A large number of bills were ordered paid.

The ravaging insect or parasite that is destroying trees all over the country is slowly killing a handsome chestnut on the Seymour Smith place on Greenbrook road that is said to be the largest tree in the State. It measures ten feet through the trunk and has a circumference of thirty-two feet. From a distance the tree has a gigantic appearance, not at all unlike the monsters of the California forests that have a world wide reputation. The owners have done everything possible to stop the progress of the destroying insect, but without success. The tree is estimated to be at least 200 years old.

The G. E. Club held the first meeting of the season at the home of Miss Irene Day, Monday night. Plans for the fall were discussed and refreshments were served in conclusion.

Collector I. J. Stites is now at work on the tax bills, and will have them ready for delivery within a few days.

Mrs. Alfred Osmun and daughter, of New Market, have returned from a visit with relatives at Pittstown.

John McFadden, of Chestnut street, who has been ill for a long time, remains in a critical condition.

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Backache and many kidney ills follow;

Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

Plainfield people endorse our claim.

Mrs. O. C. Moore 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Though I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills in the past few years, I value them as highly as ever. My kidneys were weak for years and I suffered severely from backache. I was unable to sleep well and when I arose in the morning, my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardily get out of bed. Every cold I caught settled in my kidneys and aggravated my suffering. I doctored but the medicines I used did me no good. At length I hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy, I began taking them. The ywent directly to the seat of my trouble, disposing of the pains and making me feel like a different person."

Big and Little Problems

Come in and Talk it Over

A business man, who was made executor of a large estate, upon the death of a near relative, tells us that he never realized how arduous a task it was, nor how many problems, big and little were constantly arising.

Many of these difficulties, which loom up big for the individual, are more easily disposed of when an institution like has charge of affairs.

Fidelity Trust Co.,
Newark N. J.,

Experience and organization, combined with great resources, make the Trust Company the ideal executor.

Formal Opening Ladies' Exquisite Autumn Attire

On a scale befitting the gorgeousness of the prevailing fashion of the period in frocks, cloaks and maists for Fall and Winter. In reality nothing as noteworthy from a style standpoint has ever been known in Newark, for the exhibit will contain the broadest possible range of garments, from the simple street suit on up to the most elaborate costumes for dinner and party wear, the masterpieces of famous Paris dressmakers. The opening will be of unusual scope, in that suitable apparel for every purpose and occasion will not only be fully represented, but may be selected with the certain assurance that the lines, the colorings and the fittings meet in every way the Fashion edict for the coming season. The expense of providing yourself with one of these garments will be found to be materially lessened in this comprehensive ensemble of the Autumn styles, as shown conclusively by the wholly extraordinary one-day specials we quote below:

Thursday Only; $25 Tailored Suit

Any customer purchasing one of our $25.00 suits may have a reduction of $5.00, and to begin with, we show the best line of $25.00 suits in this or any other city, and they are big value at the regular price, but we promised one or more specials each day during the opening week, and this is fulfilling our promise. Black, navy, gray, brown, green and other shades. Styles all up to the minute. $20

Thursday Only $25

In other words, our entire $25.00 assortment of dresses go tomorrow at $20.00. You may seect from serge, crepe, messaline, henrietta, aeolian, poplin, chiffon, any dress marked $25.00 at $20.00 tomorrow only, dresses for any occasion. $20

GOLF.

Members of the Eastern Trade Golf Association will hold their autumn tournament over the links of the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, Chestnut Hill, Philalelphia, on Thursday, October 13. This competition will be at eighteen holes medal play, handicap. The players may compete in this event in either the morning or afternoon, but the first round of the course will count as the competing score. There also will be a handicap against bogie and a four-ball medal play handicap. The prizes will be as follows: Choice of two cups will be made by the players in the order of their finish. Two consolation cups for the highest net scores in the autumn tournament; a cup for the best score, match play, against bogie; cup for the next best score, match play, against bogie; a low net selected score cup; two gold medals for the best net scores in a four-ball match, two silver medals for the next best score in a four-ball match and two bronze medals for the third best net scores in a four-ball match.

Provision is being made at the Nassau Country Club for a large field of starters in its invitation golf tournament to be held there on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The programme calls for five sixteens and the contestants will classify themselves in a thirty-six hole medal play round all day Thursday. A gold medal will be given the low score man in the stroke event. Among those who have already entered are Walter J. Travis and John M. Ward, of Garden City.

ELIZABETH PRESBYTERY MEETS AT WOODBRIDGE

The Presbytery of Elizabeth was in session all day yesterday at Woodbridge. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring and Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie, of this city, were present. Rev. James H. Northrup, of Perth Amboy, who was the Moderator of the stated session, preached the sermon at the morning session and Rev. Dr. John T. Kerr, of Elizabeth, read the report of the Committee on Synodical Home Missions. Routine matters occupied the attention of the ministers at the morning session, and after luncheon, which was served by the women of the Woodbridge Presbyterian church, the regular matters pertaining to the church work were taken up.

The report of the Synodical Home Mission Committee was heard with much interest. It showed that about $15,000 had been spent during the past year in home missions and $1,000 had been given to the First German Presbyterian church, of Elizabeth, for the reduction of its debt.

An attractive chapel costing about $2,600 has been completed at Keasby, and plans are under way for the building of a chapel at Saybrook, for which purpose there is $1,000 already on hand. Dr. Kerr supplemented his report with remarks pertinent to the church extension work of the Presbytery.

STATE'S DEATH ROLL.

September's Harvest Was 3,462, Including 1,009 Infants.

State Registrar of Vital Statistics David S. South has reported to the State Board of Health that there were 3,462 death in New Jersey in September, and that of this number 1,099 were deaths of infants under one year of age, 326 of children from one to five years and 900 deaths of persons 60 years and older.

"Whooping cough", the registrar says, "has been unusually prevalent during the past summer and as isolation or quarantine is practically impossible with this disease, the high death rate of sixty-five from this malady last month was not unexpected."

Mrs. Rapalje, wife of Rev. Daniel Rapalje, of Putnam avenue, has gone to the Pocono mountains for a few days.

Alexander Smith, of Keyport, is guest of his brother, Captain W. C. Smith, of Grandview avenue. Mr. Smith is eighty-four years old and quite infirm, but insisted on making the trip to Plainfield alone.

Mrs. Robert Baillie, of West Third street, accompanied by her brother, Peter Neil, of Killbarchan, Scotland, arrived home yesterday from an extended visit with relatives in Scotland. Mrs. Baillie has been abroad since April.

Mrs. Edgar R. Vail, of New York city, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Amy Lorton, of Watchung avenue, and Mrs. Arthur Stryker, of Spooner avenue. Mrs. Horace Huff, a niece, living on Codington avenue, is also entertaining Mrs. Vail.

Miss Violet Muir and James Muir, of Odell, Ill., left for home today after spending three weeks at the home of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Muir, of Essex street. They will stop at Niagara Falls and Chicago on the return.

CIGAR STUMP GIVES FIREMEN A RUN TO PARK AVENUE.

The fire department was called at 2:05 this afternoon to extinguish an incipien. blaze in the woodwork between Charles Kesselring's barber shop and Keller's cleaning establishment at 127 Park avenue. Someone had dropped a lighted cigar stump between the cracks of the woodwork and the smoke betrayed the fire.

Box 12 was rung by Vincent Carroll, driver of the hook and ladder truck, who had just drawn his pay at the bank. He noticed the smoke issuing from the crevices of the woodwork and running to the box on the wall in front of the Boice, Runyon building, turned in the alarm and then hot-footed it for fire headquarters where he was in time to take out his team. The damage was slight.

NEW TRACKLESS CAR TO REVOLUTIONIZE TRAFFIC

Another novelty in the way of modern travel has just been perfected by Thomas A. Edison and Cornelius J. Field of Brooklyn, and today will have its initial run from Montclair to Orange, with the motive power furnished by the latest pattern of the Edison storage battery.

The new invention is a trolleyless passenger car which travels over the ground at a good rate of speed without the necessity of rails.

A railless street car, something that has long been sought is now an accomplished fact, made possible by the combined inventions of the two men. The new car closely resembles the trolley car in use in almost every city in the country and its cheapness of maintenance and the fact that the car requires no rails, no wires and no trolley poles either above or under it will, it is expected will revolutionize the present system of travel.

According to Mr. Edison the car can run fifty of sixty miles on a single charge of the batteries, and as this distance is about an ordinary half day's run the batteries will have to be charged but twice a day.

Ralph H. Beach, who perfected Mr. Field's invention is now at work on several steel cars of a similar type as the one to be tried out today. These new steel cars are for newly organized companies in the western states. Several new companies are to be organized in and about New York, and it may be that in a few years the present trolley system will disappear altogether.

GIRL ADMITS PERJURY; TO TRY CONVICT ANEW.

Judge Atwater Monday afternoon set aside the conviction in the case of George Caufine, who was sentenced more than a year ago on perjured testimony, charging an attack on a young woman.

Three weeks ago Mary Daley, who was the principal witness against him and on whose testimony he was sentenced to prison, made a confession, stating she lied to the court and Caufine was innocent as far as she knew. William R. Wilson, his attorney, then presented the facts to the court, and Monday Judge Atwater decided to grant a new trial.

Dunellen Public Library.

It is generally expected in Dunellen that the voters will decide almost to a man that a public library should be built and conducted by that progressive borough. The Council has authorized the question to be submitted to the voters and accordingly it has been placed on the ballots for the November election. Many prominent residents form the committee which is advocating the public library scheme.

FALL FROM POLE MAY BE FATAL TO LINEMAN.

Fatally injured, it is feared, by a fall from a pole in Westfield, Joseph Lynch, a lineman in the employ of the Public Service Corporation, lies unconscious in the Elizabeth General Hospital.

His skull is believed to be fractured. The accident happened late Monday afternoon. Lynch slipped from a cross-arm on which he was standing, and as he did not have his life belt fastened to the pole he fell to the ground, a distance of eighteen feet. He was discovered lying at the base of the pole by some one passing along the street. The police and hospital were notified. The victim is thirty-five years old, single, and resides with his widowed mother and his sister at 574 Walnut street, Elizabeth.

This is the second accident of the kind that has happened to Lynch. He sustained a bad fall about two weeks ago and was laid up for some time in the General Hospital.

SEVENTY-FIVE PAIRS OF SHOES IN THIS LOT.

Seventy-five pairs of shoes, seven trunks of clothing, a canary bird and a collie dog are said to be among the personal belongings of Mrs. W. C. Stewart and her daughter, Miss Fern Parkhurst Stewart which have been removed from the mansion at 308 South Mountain avenue, Montclair, in completion of the eviction proceedings taken against Mrs. Stewart by her stepdaughter, Mrs. W. B. Leeds, widow of the millionaire tin plate king.

The shoes alone filled a trunk, which has been sent, together with the ones containing the clothing, to the Hotel Montclair, where the evicted woman and her daughter are staying. The bird dog and two fur automobile coats were given Monday to a messenger, who had an order for them from the daughter. It is said that she feared that her pets would not be properly cared for at the mansion. The messenger has the animals and coats at his home awaiting orders from Miss Stewart.

Not at P. E. Convention.

Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, Bishop of the diocese of New Jersey, will not attend the Episcopal convention at Cincinnatti, Ohio, which opened today. This will be the first convention that he has missed in forty years, and he is compelled to remain home because of feeble health. He is now the sixth oldest bishop of the church in the United States in point of service.

Population of Two Cities.

The Census Bureau at Washington, D. C., announces the population of the following cities. Harrisburg, Pa., 64,186, an increase of 14,019, or 27.9 per cent. over 50,167 in 1900; Newport, Ky., 30,309, increase of 2,008, or 7.1 per cent. over 28,301 in 1900.

P. H. S. NOTES.

After a second vote for vice-president of the Girls' A. A. of the P. H. S., over which there has been some contention, these officers were finally elected: Presilent, Frances Newell; vice-president, Margaret Hutchinson; secretary-treasurer, Louise Bird.

The first issue of the Oracle, the P. H. S. newspaper, made its appearance today, with an increasel subscription list over last year of more than 80.

The tennis tournament is proving a popular event, and already quite a number have entered their names on the lists. The tournament will be played on the P. H. S. courts for the first time and will consist of boys' and girls' singles, doubles and mixed doubles.

Manager Manley has already about eighteen games scheduled for the coming football season, and a majority of them will be played at home.

After a final tryout the following have been selected as end men for the annual minstrel show: Sewell Ulrich, Edson Woodhull, Frank Clark and M. Carty. The interlocutor will be Roy Titsworth.

Meteor Causes Terror.

Residents of Johannesburg, South Africa, and section were startled Monday night by the appearance of a huge meteor which seemed to be about half the size of the full moon and which illuminated the sky for fully three minutes. The brilliancy of the meteor was fully equal to that of a naval searchlight at a distance of not more than fifty yards. Astronomers at the local observatory estimate that the meteor was not more than 150 miles from Johannesburg. The natives were terrified by the spectacle, believing that the end of the world had come.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN EDUCATION BOARDS

Dr. J. J. Savitz, county superintendent of schools, has sent a letter to all of the boards of education, outside of city boards, regarding the provisions of the law in relation to compulsory education, night schools and teachers' certificates. The letter is as follows:

"To the Union County Boards of Education:

"I wish to call your attention to the compulsory attendance act passed by the Legislature during the 1909 session.

"This law provides that every child between the ages of 7 and 17 years must attend some school unless the grammar school course has been completed and the child is employed, otherwise he must attend a high school.

"There is a provision in the law that a pupil 15 years of age may be excused from attendance it he prove proves to the Board of Education that he must work and that he has secured employment. Remember, the pupil must be excused by the Board of Education and pupils must not be allowed ti remain away from school unless excused. I am required to report to the State superintendent whether or not this law is enforced in each district. I am enclosing blanks which are used by the aGrwood board and, no doubt, similar ones wiuld prove convenient to boards of education elsewhere.

"I wish also to call your attention to the fact that the State makes liberal provisions for evening school work. Eighty dollars is allowed for each teacher in such school and in Union county six and one-quarter cents for each evening a student attends. For a class of twenty-five pupils this is therefore no expense to the district.

"In districts where there are a large number of foreigners who should know the English language, where there are a number of young people who leave school early, or where the young people are engaged in occupations requiring knowledge which could be furnished by the school, as bookkeeping, stenography, chemistry, physics, manual training, mechanical drawing, these schools should be established. They vastly increase efficiency and earning power.

"School buildings are open for use from 9 to 3 o'clock daily. Is there any good reason why they should not be open at all times to such as have need of them? Surely this should be done if it can be at the expense of heat and light only.

"Two districts, Westfield and Garwood, conducted with success such schools last year, the former enrolling 257, the latter 85. I hope your board will give this matter serious consideration.

"The next teachers' examination will be held at the courthouse, Elizabeth, October 7 and 8. All teachers not having valid certificates now must procure them at this examination. No teacher can legally draw her pay unless she holds a valid license. Wishing you a pleasant and profitable school year, I am

"Yours very truly,

"J. J. SAVITZ."

NEW BRUNSWICK FIREMEN HOLD BIENNIAL PARADE

New Brunswick had a holiday yesterday not on the calendar. The business houses, to a large extent, closed at 10 o'clock, and there were no sessions of school. The occasion was the biennial parade of the fire department. Over a thousand firemen were in line. The city made an appropriation of $500 for the event and the citizens contributed more than $1,300.

The parade was headed by a platoon of police, followed by the fire patrol, fire chiefs, former fire chiefs and visiting chiefs. Fire Chief Harry J. Francis was accompanied by Assistant Fire Chiefs Louis Sass and Harry Rappleyea. Among the former chiefs were John F. Norton, Charles Greenewald, John V. Puerschner and John Kidney. The Exempt Firemen's Association was given the lead of the line, with the South River Drum Corps as escort.

Washington Engine Company had as its guests the Highland Park Fire Department, headed by Bohn's band and the New Brunswick Fife and Drum Corps. The Highland Park firemen wore their new blue suits for the first time. The citizens of that borough contributed $350 for the suits. A delegation of Phil Daly Hose Company men of Long Branch were also in line with the Washington company.

Voss' band of Newark headed the guests and members of Neptune Engine Company No. 2. This company also had on their new uniforms yesterday for the first time. The Flemington Fire Company, also the Rahway Hook-and-ladder Company and the Bethlehem, Pa., Hose Company accompanied this local company.

The third section of the parade was devoted to the members of Phoenix Engine Company, n command of Foreman Morris Bauer. The guests included the members of Phoenix Engine Company, in com- Oceanic Engine Company of Long Branch and members of the Newark Fire Department. Wilkes Post Band of Trenton headed the division.

Liberty Hose Company had the Liberty Honorary Association in line with them and the Milltown Fife and Drum Corps. The New Brunswick Truck Company No. 1 was headed by Winckler's band of Trenton. Then came the South River Fire Department, headed by Knoll's band and the South River Drum Corps. Several New York firemen were escorted by the members of Raritan Engine Company.

The Brooklyn firemen marched with Protection Engine Company No. 5 and also Union Engine Company No. 1 of Lambertville. Music was furnished by Sunderhaft's band of Newark. The last division was led by Union band of New Brunswick. In this were Hibernia Engine Company No. 6 and their guests, the Union Hose Company of Summit, who were here last year, and Franklin Hose Company of Rahway.

Mayor John J. Morrison and the members of the Common Council, with other city officials, viewed the parade from a grandstand on Livingston avenue, and later rejoined the line of march riding in automobiles and coaches. Following the parade the visitors were banqueted.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The company to be seen in the support of Maude Adams in the Barrie play of "What Every Woman Knows" at The Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon, is made up of a number of clever character actors. Nearly all of the characters moving through the story are Scotch and are well defined types. Arthur Byron, the leading man, plays the role of John Shand, an egotistical young Scotchman, and is said to give a remarkably good portrayal of the character. The Wylie Brothers, bachelors of middle age, are in the keeping of R. Payton Carter, David Torrence and Fred Tyler. Others in the cast include Lumsden Hare, W. H. Gilmore, Wallace Jackson, J. L. Carhart, Miss Dorothy Dorr, Miss Lillian Waldegrave and Miss Lillian Spencer. The first act is laid in the home of the Wylies, the second in John Shand's committee rooms in Glasgow the third in London and the fourth in a cottage in the country. The role played by Miss Adams is that of Maggie Wylie, a shy retiring, modest little woman and it is said to fit her like the proverbial glove. Barrie feels that the actress knows his characters better than he does himself. In a letter that he wrote while at work on the play he said that Miss Adams danced all over his pages. He wrote the play especially for her and in it he has given the stage a work that has won greater success than did "The Little Minister" or "Peter Pan."

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a special conclave Monday night to arrange details for the trip to Brooklyn on October 14.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will celebrate its twenty-third anniversary tomorrow night. State officers are expected and an attractive program has been prepared. The affair will be for the members of the council and other Juniors of the city.

Miss Clara Smith, of Jersey City, who has been visiting friends here, has returned home.

JERSEY ENDEAVORERS ASSEMBLE IN TRENTON

All is in readiness for the twenty-fourth annual convention of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor societies, which will open in the Third Presbyterian church, Trenton, this afternoon when the twenty-one district secretaries and various county workers will hold a conference from 3 to 5 o'clock. Dev. Dr. S. Park Cadman, of Brooklyn, will address the popular meeting at night.

The local committee has received word from Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, president of the Endeavor movement, that he will come direct to the convention from Toronto and speak on Friday night at the closing session on "The Future of Christian Endeavor and New Jersey's Part in It."

Robert E. Speer, of the Presbyterian Foreign Board, will address the convention on Friday morning, instead of Thursday afternoon, as expected. The local committee has arranged to accommodate all the visiting delegates and the outlook promises a convention of more than usual importance. State President John T. Sproull, of Arlington, expects an enrollment of 2,000 delegates. Banners will be awarded the society having the largest percentage of active members taking part in the regular weekly meetings and also to the local union having the largest number of societies engaging in systematic Bible study.

The usual awards will be made for increase in membership and gifts to missions.

The fresh air work will be a prominent feature discussed and S. D. Riddle, chairman of the Essex Endeavor fresh air Home at Roseland, will presnt that work. Miss Josephine Wyckoff, F. Chester Bradley and Percy R. Nuessle, all of Newark, will present reports on the missionary, junior and introduction departments, of which they are the respective heads.

Delegates will be met at the trains by local Endeavorers and after registering will be taken to their respective homes to be entertained.

In the registration room the local postoffice authorities will deliver all mail addressed "Endeavor convention." The last meeting of the present State executive board will be held Thursday night at 6 o'clock followed by the annual dinner, given by the Trenton union.

AUTO NEARLY KNOCKS ROOSEVELT OFF HORSE.

Colonel Roosevelt was out horseback riding yesterday at Oyster Bay when his mount was struck a glancing blow by an automobile and forced into a ditch. Mr. Roosevelt was thrown sideways, but managed to retain his seat in the saddle, quieted his mount and rode home unhurt.

The incident happened on the Bay road. Mr. Roosevelt was en route home from a lengthy ride. Turning a corner he met an automobile containing Mrs. F. Southbach, a neighbor. He tried to get his horse out of the way but the auto struck the animal. Roosevelt was thrown forward on the neck of his horse, but was back in his saddle in an instant and rode off smiling.

NOW LAUDS ATLANTIC CITY.

Governor Fort, whose threat early in his official career to send troops into Atlantic City to enforce excise laws brought Atlantic City into the limelight, has changed his views of the city, in the closing stage of his term as Governor.

In a letter to Mayor Stoy Monday, expressing pleasure it afforded him to attend the national encampment of the Grand Army there last month, the Governor writes:

"I have just written a letter to the American Bankers' Association, saying to them I thought Atlantic City the greatest convention city in the country. You have the finest of hotels and the greatest variety of entertainment for persons who are combining pleasure with business at a convention or a great gathering like that of the Grand Army."

Matter of Mind, Not Body.

Let those women who are afraid that there is no place in the world for a woman who has grown old remember that Mrs. Ella Flagg Young has been a teacher for forty-seven years and was 65 years old when she was elected superintendent of the most exacting schools in the country. Her mind is not old, however, and she has kept it young by never letting the scope of its activities narrow down to a few worn-out theories. She is always ready for the best of the new things. Her salary in her present position is $10,000 a year.

Chicken Liver-Mushrooms.

For one pound each mushrooms and chicken livers put a piece of butter larger than an egg into the blazer with the chicken livers and cook ten minutes from the time they begin to cook. Add one pint of cream and a pound of mushrooms, discarding most of the stems. Cook ten minutes after the cream begins to boil. Add one tablespoonful flour dssolved in a little cold milk. If the cream is very heavy it needs but half as much flour. Boil up a moment longer, adding salt and pepper to taste. Serve on toast.

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

"Very well, then, somebody else has," insisted Loveland. "I tell you this can't possibly be meant for me. Give the envelope back to whoever gave it to you and ask him to hand it to the manager, saying that in error it was delivered to Lord Loveland."

"Yes, sir." The waiter obediently took charge of the offensive envelope and ambled away with it to confer at a distance with the person from whom it had been received five minutes ago. There were a few gestures, a few shrugs, and then the two approached Lord Loveland's table together.

Deadly white under his brown tan, Val rose without a word, crumpling the envelope in a hand that itched to clutch some one by the throat and flinging down a silver dollar for the waiter. The Coolidges and their party were still at the violet decked table as Loveland passed by, but he did not see them. He had forgotten their existence.

"Papa, the major has done it!" exclaimed Elinor Coolidge, looking across at her father, who sat between Mrs. Milton and Fanny.

"Yes, he has done it," replied Mr. Coolidge, smiling the wooden smile which was of fair, carved ivory when reproduced on the beautiful face of his daughter. "I don't know what's come over the major since this morning. He seemed to love that Englishman like a son on board the Mauretania, but tonight he fairly jumped out of himself with joy when he heard Van Cotter's piece of news."

"I'm sure we were all as nice as we could be to Lord—to him," faltered Fanny Milton, who had drained the lake from her eyes when no one was looking, but only to make way, it seemed, for a new supply of salt water.

"Oh, speak for yourself, Fawny," said Mrs. Milton, with her exaggerated English accent. "As for me, I"—

"Why, mamma, you were just lovely to him every minute!" cried the girl, defending herself briskly. "If you weren't married, with a grownup daughter, people might have thought you were in love with him yourself sometimes."

"Nonsense!" retorted Fanny's mother, darting a furious look at her child. "The way you talk shows you're not grown up."

"I always thought he was the most conceited young man I ever saw," broke in Elinor Coolidge. "I could have boxed his ears often, and it would have served him right. I just enjoy this. It's like a play."

"Well, I think that's real mean of you, Elinor," said Fanny. "And I don't see how you can feel that way. He looks so pale. It makes me sick to think what he's got to go through, poor fellow, and he's so handsome! Did you ever see anything as beautiful as he looked just now when he went stalking by us with his head high and his face pale and his eyes like blue fire?"

"I certainly never saw a British 'lord' as handsome. They don't make 'em like that," said good looking Henry van Cotter. And then they all laughed, all except Fanny Milton. She was wondering what Lesley Dearmer would do if she were there instead of tearing away toward Louisville as fast as an express train could carry her.

As it happened, Lesley was thinking of Lord Loveland at that very moment. Perhaps it was a kind of telepathy which brought her image so clearly before Fanny Milton's eyes, for Lesley's thoughts included Fanny.

The panting of the great engine and the rushing roar of the wheels had come to have a refrain for her. "Never again—never again," she heard them say, as if the words were shouted spitefully into her ears. "Never see him again—never again. He'll forget you—forget you. Soon he'll marry—marry some rich girl."

Of course he didn't deserve happiness with a girl he married for money. Yet Lesley couldn't bear to think of him as miserable or disappointed in life. The brilliant sparks which showered past the train windows seemed to her like the moments she had spent with Loveland, moments left behind forever now; and she could not help wishing that she might live them over again.

"Perhaps I might have helped him to be different if I'd tried," she said to herself as she watched the specks of fire which flashed and died. "But I didn't try. I was too proud to try, I suppose. It was a silly kind of pride, for he could be—he could be such a man if he knew himself and would live up to himself."

CHAPTER IX.

EXIT LORD LOVELAND.

LOVELAND walked out of the dining room of the palatial hotel hardly knowing what he meant to do.

His wish was to punish those who had insulted him, but how was the question ringing in his brain. A gentleman could not knock down a management or punch its head. "A management" seemed intangible, out of reach.

Val's first thought was to march up to the desk and "have a row" with somebody, but an instant's reflection showed him that it would be more in accordance with dignity to go to his own quarters and command a representative of the "management" to come to him.

This resolve he carried out. Having reached his room and called down through the telephone for the manager, he was not kept waiting long before a gentlemanly middle aged person appeared at his sitting room door.

"Are you the manager of this hotel?" Loveland inquired brusquely.

"I represent the manager," the newcomer returned.

"Very well, then," said Loveland. "I want you to tell me the meaning of this." And he indicated the typewritten letter and the two bills, which he had laid conspicuously on the table.

The man scarcely glanced at the papers, about which he was evidently well informed already. "The meaning is that unfortunately we're obliged to request that you vacate this suit immediately," he replied.

"Suppose I refuse to go?"

"Oh, I guess you won't do that!"

"You're right," said Val. "I wouldn't stop here now if you paid me twelve times as much as you want me to pay you. And, by the way, I can't pay tonight. You'll have to wait till tomorrow, when I can get to the—er—bank."

"I'm afraid we can't wait," the other answered quickly. "If you aren't able to pay we shall have to keep your baggage till you do."

Loveland stared. "That's a little too steep, isn't it?" he sneered. "You turn me out of your hotel in the most insulting and unprovoked manner and then expect me to go somewhere else without my luggage. Are these American manners with foreigners?"

"They have to be with some foreigners," returned the other, smiling mysteriously.

"I intend to go now, whether you like or not," said Val, "and take my luggage with me."

"You can't take it unless you pay your bill. That's the law, and our police know how to enforce it. If I were you I wouldn't do anything to make it necessary to call the police. Once in their hands, you might be quite awhile getting out, you know."

Val believed that Cadwallader Hunter had somehow contrived to bring about this hideous state of affairs; though he could not imagine how unless all Americans were ready to band together and avenge one another's fancied wrongs against a stranger.

"My luggage is worth a lot more than what I owe you here," he said.

"We have heard all about that luggage," was the meaning reply.

Val bit his lip. For the moment he had forgotten Foxham's treachery, but he remembered it now with recurring rage. Evidently the valet had poured forth the history of the great unpacking episode.

"In my opinion we shall be lucky if the sale of your effects covers the bill," calmly went on the representative of the "management."

"I wouldn't advise your people to try to sell my things!" exclaimed Loveland.

"They will wait the customary length of time."

The Best Piano AT THE Right Price

"The best pianos are too expensive for the average music lover." That is the general impression.

Years ago this was true, the best pianos were expensive luxuries.

But today the piano is a necessity. Every one would like to own the highest grade piano, and it is this demand for the best that has steadily increased the sales of Hallet & Davis Pianos.

The Output Reduces the Price

Hallet & Davis Pianos are sold at a moderate price. The enormous sales enable the manufacturer to sell at a small margin of profit. The price is right. There is no excuse for purchasing a piano of poor quality. $365 to $500 will buy a Hallet & Davis upright, no finer can be bought at any price. Easy monthly payments allowed.

GIVES HER EXPERIENCES AS AFRICAN MISSIONARY

At the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday afternoon Mrs. G. R. Maguire, wife of the pastor, entertained the women of the missionary circle of the church and others who do not belong to the circle with a very interesting talk on Africa and its missions. Mrs. Maguire exhibited some of the implements used by the natives of the Dark Continent as well as a wooden idol worshipped by the women of that country as their special god.

The speaker devoted the early part of her talk to the prevalence of witchcraft as practiced by the natives, showing the necessity for the introduction of Christian methods in bringing the natives out of their fearful bondage to idol worshipping. The horrible practices of the black men and women would make one shudder, and the photographs showing the natives in their habitula condition of undress, and others showing what the influence of the Christian missionary has accomplished among them.

Mrs. Maguire told of some of the sacrifices made by the natives after they have become converted. One young boy, whose missionary friend was taken suddenly ill and whose case demanded a remedy which was not in the settlement, volunteered to run to the coast town, eight days' run distant, to bring the drug. He accomplished the journey in five days and at its completion, after seeing that his friend would get well, the boy died of exhaustion. Such cases of devotion are common once the native gets the love of the Master in his heart.

In some of the mission stations where Mr. and Mrs. Maguire pursued their purposes of converting the natives, there were those who after some teaching would sing and do it beautifully, especially the Gospel hymns. Mrs. Maguire urged upon her hearers the necessity for practical work along missionary lines and suggested a change in the manner of contributions toward domestic and foreign missions. It was adopted, and as a result offerings ofr the field will come in the shape of pledges, a number of the cards for which were signed yesterday.

After the meeting, tea was served in the parlors of the church.

Flower and sick committee—Miss Mary Norgard, chairman; Miss Alma Herrman, Miss Elizabeth Peterson. Prayer meeting committee—Miss Frances Weaver, chairman; Miss Mary Roth, Miss Grace Taylor, Miss Nellie Perrine. Messenger committee—Miss Edna Peters, chairman; Miss Dorothy Lancaster, Miss Maud Lancaster.

MISS LUCRETIA CLARK TO WED JOHN RUSSELL HARDEN.

Miss Lucretia Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Mott Clark, of Grandview avenue, and John Russell Harden, formerly of North Branch, but now of this city, will be married Saturday evening, October 15, at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, of which both Miss Clark and Mr. Harden are members and active workers.

Miss Clark holds a responsible position with a large life insurance company in New York, while Mr. Harden is employed as a clerk in the First National Bank. His former home was in North Branch, where his parents now reside. The couple will live in the borough.

LISTENED TO INTERESTING TALK ON "PASSION PLAY."

The women's missionary societies of the First M. E. church met in Vincent chapel, yesterday, the foreign society convening in the morning and the home in the afternoon. Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull, vice-president, presided in the morning in the absence of the president, Mrs. M. Winter. Nothing but routine business was considered.

In the afternoon Mrs. N. W. Pike, president of the home society, was in the chair, and the feature was a most interesting talk on the "Passion Play," by Mrs. S. D. Edgar, of Fairview avenue, who witnessed the play last summer.

Former Resident Visiting Here.

Moses N. Tucker, of Ironia, Morris county, who resided here fifty-four years ago, is visiting old acquaintances in this city. Mr. Tucker is well known among the older residents of the city. For many years he was engaged in business as a distiller of cider brandy, but has now retired.

AGED WOMAN FRACTURES A HIP IN SLIGHT FALL

Mrs. Maria Willett, the aged widow of Alex. Willett, met with an accident at her home on Craig place, last night, that may possibly incapacitate her for the rest of her life. In starting to close a window about 8 o'clock, she arose from a chair hurriedly and in so doing lost her balance. She fell heavily to the floor from which she was unable to arise. Members of the family carried her to bed and an examination by Dr. Hughes showed she had fractured her hip. The injured hip was set by Drs. Hughes and Endicott this morning and the patient is resting comfortably at present.

Mrs. Willet is in her seventy-sixth year and because of being so old the ultimate result of the injury can only be guessed. She has always enjoyed fairly good health otherwise and has really been very active for one of her age. She is the mother of A. K. and Herbert Willett, of the well known shoe firm, and also Frank Willett.

YOU CAN'T ALWAYS TELL BY THE CLOTHING.

A man who spoke German with the same facility as the American vernacular and who wore a summer suit that was a bit faded and a hat that was in style several years ago, boarded the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II., a few minutes before she sailed from her Hoboken pier Monday morning and asked Purser Schnell for passage. The purser looked the man over and asked him if he wanted a second cabin room. He said that he preferred the first cabin.

"An inside room," the purser remarked, believing that he would startle the man, "will cost you $122.50."

"Well, I'll be—donnerwetter!" said the purser, adding, "I fear the imperial suites are all taken, but I can give you a fine outside room with bath for $425."

"That for me," said the man of the simple attire, pulling out a fat wallet and displaying what Ewan Justice ,press agent of the line, declares was a large roll of $1,000 and $10,000 notes. The assistant purser held up the purser as he staggered back, and Mr. Justice, who needs no props—weighing somewhat more than two hundred in his stockinged fet—supported the assistant purser. The man took a $1,000 bill from the roll, paid for the ticket and escorted by fifteen stewards sought his room. All the purser knows about the stranger is that his name is Wilhelm Cassell.

MAYOR FISK TO HELP FINANCE THE CAMPAIGN.

After a long conference with the Gubernatorial candidate, Vivian M. Lewis, at Trenton, yesterday afternoon, Senator Frank O. Briggs, chairman of the Republican State committee, announced the following as members of the finance committee.

AGRICULTURE WHOPPERS; NO AFFIDAVITS NEEDED.

James Guttridge, of Belvidere avenue, is exhibiting a corn stalk which is seventeen feet high and has two big ears on it.

Chauncey Colthar, of Duer street, is showing his friends a beet raised in his garden which measures seventeen inches in circumference.

A giant chestnut tree on the farm of Seymour Smith, Greenbrook road, is dying, fungus having attacked it. The tree measures ten feet in diameter, and thirty-two feet in circumference.

Owners of the largest pumpkin and apple have not been heard from.

Aged Resident Dead.

Word was received this morning of the death of Mrs. Farozina Wilcox, of 447 West Sixth street, in New York city. She was one of Plainfield's oldest residents, having been born Feb. 8, 1813, making her age ninety-seven years, seven months and twenty-seven days. Mrs. Wilcox was the mother of Joseph M. Wilcox, of Larchmont, N. Y., and the late Sophena Wilcox Van Holsen, of this city. Announcement of the services will be made later. Interment will be made at Preble, N. Y.

The Order of Rebekah, the women's branch of Oddfellowship, held its twenty-second annual meeting in Trenton, representatives being present from th subordinate lodges in all parts of the State. Reports showed that the order has 3,850 members in the State, an increase of 445 over the membership reported last year.

OCTOBER TERM LONG ONE

Big Batch of Civil and Criminal Cases to Occupy the Court's Time.

GRAND JURY TO BE BUSY.

36 Supreme Court Cases, 20 Circuit Court and 3 Justice's Appeals on Civil Lists—Some Interesting Cases.

The work of trying cases for the October term of the Union county court at Elizabeth will not be taken up by the petit jury until next Monday, as Judge Benjamin Vail is busy in another part of his circuit, and the Prosecutor's office deemed it best to wait until the jurors would be present for the trial of civil causes before moving old criminal cases, pending since the last term of court.

The October term will undoubtedly be a long one, particularly in the criminal courts, where there will probably be one murder case and several other cases of a less serious nature, but yet important. There are also many trivial cases of assault and battery and larceny. The Prosecutor's office is planning to move next week the cases adjourned from the May term of court. Among these are several excise cases, involving as defendants Elizabeth saloonkeepers and liquor dealers.

The Grand Jury will probably take up immediately the examination of State's witnesses in the Plainfield murder case, for Justice Bergen, in his charge Tuesday, declared that it was a Grand Jury's duty to consider cases of a serious nature as soon as possible, so that the defendants, if indicted, can prepare for a speedy trial, or if not indicted can take the necessary action to gain his liberty.

In the list of causes for the Union county civil courts there are thirty-six Supreme Court cases, about twenty Circuit Court cases and three justice appeal causes. All of the justice appeal causes were marked ready, but action on them was postponed by Judge Atwater until November 7.

The case of Thomas A. Aitan against Corporation Counsel Warren Dixon, of Jersey City, and private detectives, who participated in a raid on the home of Mrs. Dixon, in Chilton street, Elizabeth, nearly two years ago, for the purpose of securing evidence in the divorce case brought by Mr. Dixon against his wife, will probably go over again for another term. The case has now been hanging fire for several terms. Sidney W. Eldridge and Alfred A. Stein represent Aiton, and Mr. Dixon represents himself and the other defendants. When the case was called Tuesday Attorney Eldridge told Justice Bergen that he had written Mr. Dixon asking that the case go over for the term, but had as yet received no reply. Aiton was named as a co-respondent in th Dixon divorce case.

Another of the Supreme Court causes is that of Mary Fellows Tevlin against the Public Service Railway Company, to recover $5,000 damages alleged to have been suffered by the plaintiff, who claims that as she was going across Broad street, Elizabeth, behind a car of the trolley company, she was tripped up by the rope from the trolley pole. She alleges that the rope was dragging on the ground behind the car and that she did not see it but stepped in the loop. The trolley car started and she was thrown heavily to the ground, suffering severe injuries.

The calendar also contains a case which is novel and the outcome of which will be watched with interest. It is that of Helen W. Jacobson, a minor, who brings suit through her next friend against Wortman's Crescent Launch Lime Company, of Asbury Park, to recover $5,000. Miss Jacobson and a party of young people were in a rowboat on Deal Lake, Asbury Park, July 4, when the boat was struck by a launch belonging to the defendant company. The young people were thrown into the lake from the capsized boat, and although some of them could not swim all were saved. Miss Jacobson was severely injured in the right thigh and has not yet recovered. It is said that her injuries are permanent.

The Elizabeth avenue "dock case," which has been before the courts for nearly a quarter of a century and on which decision was given in the Supreme Court recently sending it back to the lower court for retrial, is on the trial list for the October term, though from a statement made by City Attorney Connolly yesterday it is probable that the case will not be tried until the latter part of the term. The case is that of the city of Elizabeh against the Central Railroad of New Jersey and involves the ownership of the dock at the foot of Elizabeth avenue.

B. P. HALL, OF FANWOOD, APPOINTED FREEHOLDER

The Fanwood township and borough committees in joint meeting held last night selected Burton P. Hall to succeed the late John Robison as a member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Robison. Mr. Hall is the nominee of both the Democrats and Republicans for the place and will undoubtedly be elected for the full term of three years at the coming election.

The emeting was held in the Borough Council rooms. The two municipalities are entitled to but one representative on the board, and for many years the office has fallen to the township, not only because the township could outvote the borough, but because Mr. Robison filled the office with credit to both borough and township, and for that reason there was no desire to make any change.

The governing bodies decided that Mr. Hall was the man for the place, and appointed him forthwith unanimously.

PLAINFIELD COUNCIL O. U. A. M. GETS CHARTER

Plainfield Council, O. U. A. M., received its charter last night at the hands of State Vice-Councilor Jas. E. Church, in the presence of nearly a hundred members of the rejuvenated order. There are 97 names on the charter, and an application for membership was receivd last night. Speeches were made by P. H. Latourette and Mr. Church and others of the order in which its benefits and influence were the main topics. After the ceremonies and speeches the entire company enjoyed a smoker.

The members of the lodge were much in favor of a contest for increasing the membership, and the vigor with which they promised to prosecute this work augurs well for the future. It is hoped to increase the membership to 125 within a couple of months.

The officers of the lodge are: Senior past councilor, J. T. Bosterle; junior past councilor, J. O. Randall; councilor Lewis Bimble; vice-councilor, W. J. Firstbrook; recording secretary, J. L. Bennett; financial secretary, R. V. Kinney; treasurer, W. E. Day.

It was expected that some others of the State officers would be present last night to help the local membrs enjoy the evening, but some unfortunate circumstance prevented their coming.

SOCIETY AT RECEPTION GIVEN AT 'RED COTTAGE'

The first of two afternoon receptions was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Charles Sykes, of Fanwood, for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Francis Sykes, who was married early in August. It was a charming affair and was attended by a large number of society people from this city and Fanwood. The home was attractively decorated with autumn leaves, while pink roses were used in the dining room.

Mrs. Charles Sykes and Mrs. Thomas Francis Sykes received the guests, while Miss Ellen Merrill, of this city, and Mrs. Ross Mersereau, of Ridgewood, poured tea in the dining room. They were assisted by Miss Dorothy Fleming, Miss Isabelle Ashwell and Miss Helen Brown, of this city, and Miss Jane Walker, of New York. The second reception will be held Wednesday afternoon, October 12.

Speakers for Mass Meeting Oct. 13.

The speakers engaged for the Democratic mass meeting to be held on Thursday evening, October 13, are as follows: Hon. Robert S. Hudspeth, a former Senator and now a judge in Jersey City; General Charles McC. Reeve, late Brigadier General U. S. A., of Far Hills, and Hon. A. S. Alexander, of Hoboken. Several of the Democratic candidates on the Democratic ticket will also speak.

Will Attend Last Service.

All Christian Endeavorers in the city who wish to attend the last service of the State convention at Trenton tomorrow night, are advised to take the 6:44 train that evening. There will probably be a large delegation from this city at the convention.

ANTERIOR POLIOMYELITIS

Local Physicians Ordered to Report Infantile Paralysis Cases.

BOARD OF HEALTH REPORT.

During August There Were 40 Births, 18 Marriages and 21 Deaths—18 Communicable Cases.

The Board of Health, at its October meeting, yesterday, adopted resolutions providing that physicians shall, in the future, report all cases of "Anterior Poliomyelitis," or infantile paralysis, a disease that has been spreading rapidly throughout the State, as well as the country. The resolution provided that the secretary of the board be instructed to notify all physicians practicing in Plainfield, that infantile paralysis has been added to the list of diseases which must be reported, and that in the future all cases of this disease coming under the care of physicians must be reported as provided by the sanitary code.

Reports showing the sanitary condition of the city to be excellent were presented. The communicable diseases reported were as follows: Scarlet fever, 4, one death; diphtheria, 1; typhoid fever, 6, three deaths; tuberculosis, 7, making a total of eighteen cases and four deaths.

In addition to the above, one case of scarlet fever and one of typhoid fever were removed to Muhlenberg Hospital during the month from out of the city. Two of the deaths from typhoid were cases which were reported the previous month. At present there are seven cases of typhoid in the city, including the one from out of the city; two of scarlet fever, also including the imported case, and three of diphtheria, two of which were reported since the first of the month.

The following inspections were reported as having been made since September 1: Plumbing and sewer work, 77; milk supply, 136; general work, 1,282; a total of 1,495. The latter included inspections on complaint, rear yards, vaults, cesspools, bakeries ice cream places, dumps, restaurants, etc. The regular sample of city water was taken for analysis and the result showed it to be of usual excellent quality. Thirty samples of milk and thirty-nine samples of ice cream were analyzed during the month. The milk was of good quality, but the bacteria was somewhat higher than during the previous month. The ice cream was satisfactory.

Claude Hand and Leo Fay submitted bonds to do plumbing work, and the same were accepted and ordered filed. The application for a permit to collect garbage, made by George R. Carter, was referred to the assistant health officer with power. These disinfections were made during September.

Scarlet fever, three houses; two wagons; four rooms; diphtheria, one house, two rooms; tuberculosis, three houses; twenty-five rooms; by request, three houses; thirty-four rooms. These returns were made during the month; marriages, 18; births, 40; deaths, 21.

DOUBLE TRACKING TROLLEY ROAD THROUGH DUNELLEN.

The Public Service Corporation commenced work yesterday, double-tracking the trolley line through Dunellen. For the present it will be done only from the Plainfield limit at Jefferson avenue and West Front stret, to the borough hall, and a gang of about 100 men is now busy along North avenue for that distance. In the spring the double tracks will be pushed westward to the borough line at Gallagher's corner.

The Public Service is making a thorough job of the work and is practically rebuilding the street. The old rails and ties are to be taken up and everything is to be put in new. The roadbed has been plowed up and it will practically be re-macadamized. The borough is profiting by securing an unlimited quantity of dirt for use on new streets below grade. The P. S. C. will keep a large gang on the job and hopes to have it completed fully in about two weeks.

St. Joseph's Church Benefit.

About fifty people enjoyed the euchre and dance held at the home of Mrs. James Whalen, Brook avenue, last night. The euchre was for the benefit of the building fund of St. Joseph's church in the borough. Mrs. John Walsh, James Hurley and Cormic McDonough were the prize winners. During the evening refreshments were served and the dancing lasted until a late hour.

EDUCATION AS AN ASSET

PERSISTENCY WILL WIN OUT.

Declares That Women Will Soon Equal Men in the Business World—Luck Doesn't Count.

Rev. Madison C. Peters, of New York, lectured before a large gathering of members of the Young Men's Hebrew Association in Y. M. H. A. hall last night. It was the second in the series of lectures provided for the young men by he governing board and was decidedly interestng. Mr. Peters took for his topic, "How to Make Things Go."

Speaking along the line of special endeavor the minister referred to the lives of such men as Robert Fulton, Thomas A. Edison, Daniel Webster and others, who specialized their life work and made successes of their undertakings. He urged his hearers to do likewise.

Mr. Peters interspersed his talk with humorous anecdotes which added much to the interest of his speech for they invariably pointed a moral and brought out more forcibly the points he wished to make.

Referring to woman's sphere, Mr. Peters declared that before long woman would hold equal place with man in the business world and that she deserved that place because of her determination to succeed in everything she undertook. He declared that those who pooh-poohed the idea of technical and college education are the very ones who will never succeed in any specialty. Today, he said, if you put an ad. in the papers for men at $1.50 per day they will break down your doors in an effort to land the job, but if you want a $25,000 technical man you have got to go over the country with a fine tooth cmob to get him. He is a rare bird and hard to find.

"Some men say that the world owes them a living," said the speaker, "but I tell you that they owe something to the world. This big sphere was here first and man owes to the creator his very best endeavors. There is no such thing as luck. Nothing but work accomplishes anything in this world. Be ambitious. Pick out something you know you are fitted for and keep everlastingly at it. Some girls have an idea that unless a man has a college education they don't amount to anything, but that is all wrong. I have known of good blacksmiths, drygoods men, butchers and other tradesmen who have made eminent successes in their lines, but many of them never had anything more than a common school education to start on and mighty little money.

If you find that your occupation is not what you are fitted for find something better or more suited to your particular needs and hammer away at it until you know you are succeeding. P. T. Barnum tried fourteen other things before he discovered that his mission in the world was to humbug the people. He was a gigantic success at that game. Edison worked eighteen months to so perfect the phonograph that it would enunciate properly the word 'specie.' Be just as persistent yourselves in what you undertake and you'll succeed."

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE DOCTOR OF HUMANITIRE

If the fate of every woman is bound up in that of every other woman, all women were honored when yesterday Julia Ward Howe, now in her ninety-second year, was brought in a wheel chair to the platform at Smith College to receive the degree of Doctor of Humanitire and the entire audience rose to its feet. After the degree had been conferred there was a tremendous burst of applause and the large audience, numbering about 3,000, sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," Mrs. Howe's best known composition.

The occasion was the inauguration of the new president, Rev. Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, of Brooklyn, who succeds President Emeritus Seelye.

In adition to honoring Julia Ward Howe, "poet and patriot," the degree of Doctor of Humanitire was conferred on Mary Emma Wooley, president of Mt. Holyoke Seminary, and Jane Adams, head of Hull house, Chicago.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gavett Receive Handsome After-Dinner Silver Service.

WARREN CHAPEL'S GIFT.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Gavett, who celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, yesterday, were given a pleasant surprise at Warren chapel last evening, following the mid-week prayer meeting. It was because Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman was to give a talk on the "Passion Play" which she witnessed last summer, that both Mr. and Mrs. Gavett attended the service, and afterward Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the chapel, invited the couple to the parlors on the second floor.

As he did so, Mrs. McKelvey began playing a wedding march, giving Mr. and Mrs. Gavett the first intimation as to what was to follow. They were followed by the large number of people present, and when all reached the parlors the scene was a pleasant one. The parlors were attractively decorated for the occasion with American flags, and there was also displayed in silver figures "1885-1910." Extending from the mantelpiece to the ceiling there were purple and white streamers. The decorations were complete through an arrangement of palms and a large floral bell of white carnations, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Parvin.

After everyone entered the parlors, Mr. McKelvey, in a few well chosen words, congratulated the couple, adding that he had sent to the land of love to learn what would be suitable for such an occasion, and that Cupid had said that he was present at the wedding ceremony twenty-five years ago and that he would attend to the celebration.

Just then the doors at one end of the parlors opened and in walked Arthur Jordan, four years old, dressed all in white, representing Cupid. He was harnesed with white ribbons to a small cart, also decorated in white. Walking across the room, he approached Mr. and Mrs. Gavett, and, addressing Mrs. Gavett, said: "This is for you dear lady," at the same time handing her a card suitably inscribed.

Mr. McKelvey then, on behalf of all present, gave Mr. and Mrs. Gavett a solid silver after-dinner service. The gift was such a surprise that it was several minutes before either one could reply. Mr. McKelvey said that it represented the highest esteem and regard of the couple's loving friends in the chapel. Afterward Mr. and Mrs. Gavett gave appropriate expression to their feelings, thanking everyone for the beautiful gift. Then followed a social hour and exchange of good wishes.

Mr. Gavett is the superintendent of the chapel Sunday-school and has been for many years. Both he and his wife are very active in all departments of the work at the chapel.

Every branch of the chapel was represented in last night's affair, including the Missionary and Aid Society, the Men's Association, the Christian Endeavor Society, the Sunday-school and church proper. Mrs. J. O. McKelvey planned the whole affair. The decorating committee comprised Alfred Everitt, chairman; Mrs. John Schenck and Miss Dolly Bolsterli.

MISS ROCKEFELLER WEDS FRANK J. ZIMMERMAN

Miss Cecil H. Rockefeller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rockefeller, of 1426 Wilever street, and Frank J. Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Zimmerman, of Bound Brook, were marriel at 7 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church. The house was thronged with relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride, gowned in white, and carrying a bouquet of bride roses, was attended by her cousin, Miss Lulu Trewin, of this city, who also wore a gown of white material. The best man was Henry Zimmerman, brother of the groom.

Immediately after the ceremony congratulations were offered, and supper was served. Later in the evening the young people enjoyed a fine program of music, also dancing. The bride received a large collection of handsome gifts from relatives and friends. After a wedding trip the couple will reside at South Bound Brook, where the groom is engaged in business as a contracting painter.

COLORED DEMOCRATS TO HOLD MASS MEETING

Tomorrow night in Reform hall under the auspices of the Plainfield Democratic Club the colored Democrats will hold a mass meeting at which there will be a contingent 200 strong from Newark, headed by a brass band led by Mayor "Crackerjack," a member of the Dockstadter Minstrels. The colored men will bring with them three spellbinders of their own race who have great reputations as eloquent speakers in their home city.

The Newark delegation will arrive at the North avenue station at 8:15 and will be met by a contingent of local voters who will escort the visitors to the hall on Second street. It is said that the band which will accompany the Newarkers is one of the best colored bands in this part of the country. There will be a parade through several of the city's streets before the visitors go to the hall.

The speakers will be Counsellor Louis Cosey, a well known colored lawyer; Louis Johnson, State organizer of colored clubs; and Cornelius M. Brown, the party organizer, of Essex county. All these men will advocate the election of Dr. Woodrow Wilson in particular and the entire Democratic in general.

JUDGE W. N. RUNYON TO MAKE WHIRLWIND TOUR

Judge William N. Runyon, the Republican congressional candidate, starts tomorrow on a whirlwind automobile tour of the district. Union, Morris and Warren counties. He will spend his first day at Phillipsburg, the home of John I. Blair Reilly.

Next Tuesday night, the judge will address the Downtown Republican Club, of Elizabeth. The assembly candidates will also speak. During the campaign, he will address the Plainfield voters two or three times.

William E. Tuttle, the Democratic candidate for Congress, has not announced his plans, but it is expected that his campaign will be as aggressive as that of his opponent.

TROLLEY CAR HITS CAB AT PARK AVENUE AND 4TH ST.

While driving his cab across Fourth street on Park avenue last evening at 6:10 o'clock, Peter Seader, Jr., was knocked from his seat by the overturning of his cab which going west on Fourth street. The horse was knocked down and injured and the cab damaged. Seader suffered no injuries, but the horse was hurt.

The trolley car was in charge of Conductor Murphy, with motorman Brady at the controller. The blame for the accident has not yet been fixed, but it was said that the motorman had given due warning of the approach of the car and that Seader paid no atention to the clanging bell. George Luhr, division supervisor, will endeavor to find out from eye witnesses of the accident, just who was to blame.

Approaching Wedding.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND

Lilly Bremmer Applied for Marrage License in Newark This Morning.

SHE MAKES STATEMENT.

Lost Some Money and Was Afraid to Return Home, She Says—Father Goes to Bring Her Back.

Lilly Bremmer, the twenty-two-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bremmer, of Greenbrook road, has been located in Newark and Mr. Bremmer started for that city this morning to investigate her strange absence. Local police headquarters received word from the license bureau in Newark this morning that the girl with William Witmann, of Mt. Bethel, had applied for a marriage license and were then in the office waiting for the document.

Captain Frederickson immediately notified Newark police headquarters to step around and detain the couple while he notified the girl's parents. This was done and while Mr. Bremmer was on his way to Newark. What the result of the meeting between father and daughter was can only be conjectured at this time, but it is quite likely that Mr. Bremmer has exacted a full explanation of his daughters movements from last Monday until this morning.

Miss Bremmer made a statement this morning to Detective Walzer, of the Newark detective bureau, in which she explained the reason why she failed to return home on Monday, September 26. She declared that she had lost the $80, which was given to her by Mrs. Rowland, and that becoming afraid of punishment from her parents she determined to go to work and earn some more money before returning home. She obtained a place in a department store and worked up until last night, when becoming homesick she started to Newark to confide in an aunt, Mrs. Robert Bader, of 287 Seventeenth avenue, that city.

Arrived at her aunt's home Miss Bremmer told a complete story of her actions since leaving the grand central depot and she was in the midst of her tale when Witmann put in an appearance. Witmann is a brother of Mrs. Bader.

According to Miss Bremmer the pair spent the night at her aunt's house, but this morning Witmann proposed marriage to her and was accepted. They went to the bureau of licenses where Clerk Frank Crissey recognized the name of the girl as that of one that was missing and he detained them on the pretext that they would ned witnesses to the license. Witmann departed for the residence of Rev. Charles Girtanner, pastor of the First German Reformed church. Detective Walzer had a talk with the girl.

REPUBLICAN SMOKER IN BOROUGH TONIGHT.

The Republicans of North Plainfield are anticipating a great time tonight when, under the auspices of the North Plainfield Republican club, there will be a big rally and smoker. Among the attractions offered the voters of the borough are speeches by Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Judge William N. Runyon, Jas. E. Church and others.

Besides the speeches, there will be a colored quartet to sing campaign and other songs, and then pipes and cigars will be passed around to make everybody feel comfortable. The rally will be held at 82 Somerset street, and all those who expect to attend are requested to be on hand early so as not to miss the first speech.

Jonas Lie Home Monday.

The friends of Jonas Lie, the Norwegian printer, will be glad to know of his return on Monday from Norway. He has been abroad a year and a half, giving successful exhibitions in Christiania, Berlin and other art centres, but has spent most of the time painting up in his beloved mountains and living among the peasants. The paintings resulting from his inspirations there will probably be placed on view here, and the artist's widespread acquaintances are eagerly awaiting the event.

Select Class Pin.

The class of 1912, of the North Plainfield High School have decided upon the style of their class pin. It will be diamond shaped with the initials P. H. S. in the center and the figures 1-2 on the side points. They will be ready for the members in about two weeks.

Our Millinery Dept.

We often hear expressions of this kind when a visitor comes to our millinery department for the first time: "Why, I never thought your millinery department was so extensive, or your stock so large." Our reply is, that public appreciation of our efforts compelled us not only to give it more room, but our stock greatly increased. If you are among those who have never visited the millinery displays we have been making, we ask that you make a special effort to do so; when we think we can convince you of a great saving in your millinery bills. Our milliners and salesladies are courteous and obliging, never arrogant, and will at all times show you the greatest courtesy and consideration in helping you select what is best suited to your personal wants.

The Cloak and Suit Dept.

The rapid growth of this department has again compeled us to give it more room than we gave it last season. Each season from its inception has seen more room added, so that today we have the best stocked, best lighted and best equipped cloak and suit department in this section of the State. We were the first in the city to make alterations free of cost to the purchaser, and the public responded with an eagerness that soon obliged us to keep a corps of tailors for this purpose alone. You don't have to go out of your own city to purchase cloaks or suits. All we ask is that we be given a fair opportunity to prove our assertion.

DR. JAMES J. VANCE ASKS HIS DEMISSION

In a letter presented at a meeting of the consistory of the North Reformed church, Newark, Tuesday night, Rev. Dr. James I. Vance, pastor of the church, who has accepted a call of Nashville, Tenn., asked that the elders and deacons unite with him in a request to the classis of Newark for a dissolution of the bonds that have bound him to his congregation for ten years.

A meeting of the classis will be held in the church Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which Dr. Vance will formally tender his resignation. A committee was appointed Tuesday night to appear before the classis in behalf of the consistory and comply with the request of the resigning pastor.

It was after the routine business of the consistory had been completed that Dr. Vance who, as pastor, presided, called upon Peter Campbell, as senior elder, to take the chair.

Dr. Vance then presented the letter, making known the request it contained, and asked for dismission to withdraw. Before the clergyman left the meeting, however, Mr. Campbell delivered a brief address, expressing the regret that was caused by Dr. Vance's resigning.

Mr. Campbell said that not only the members of North church, but the city of Newark in general, was grieved by the departure of the man who has done so much for the uplift of the community, and who has always striven for clean government.

The committee that will appear before the classis is composed of Mr. Campbell, James S. Polhemus, D. Henry Merritt and James Flockhart.

LEWIS TO HAVE RECORD'S HELP

Whatever the Progressive wing of the Republican party may ultimately decide shall be its attitude in the Republican campaign for Governor, Vivian M. Lewis will have the active support of at least one Progressive —George L. Record. The latter's position was made clear yesterday following a conference with Mr. Lewis at Trenton Tuesday afternoon.

The Hudson county Progressive leader announced that he had made up his mind to give the Republican nominee unqualified support during the campaign. His promise is in direct contrast to the chilly attitude of the Progressive camp toward Mr. Lewis for the past few days, and the sudden spirit of friendliness is believed to augur some strong progressive utterances by Mr. Lewis when he sounds the keynote of his campaign in his opening speeches this week.

Mr. Record's positive declaration, however, does not conform to an interview which purported to have been given out by him at Trenton after the conference. In that statement Mr. Record was quoted as declaring he would tell the people he wished to see Mr. Lewis elected, but how much more he could say would depend upon Mr. Lewis himself. But it was somewhat surprising in some quarters today, when Mr. Record repudiated the interview.

Mr. Record went to Trenton expressly for the purpose of telling Mr. Lewis that he must take a bold stand on progressive issues if he wished to get the Progressive vote. He told Mr. Lewis that he wanted to see him elected, but felt doubtful about the result if the nominee did not register his preferences for strong reform measures. Mr. Record, in his announcement Tuesday morning, said that he did not feel at liberty to say just how Mr. Lewis received his suggestions.

"I urged him to take a public stand for the reforms which the Progressives have stood for," added the Hudson county man. "I think he understands that he cannot win without the independent vote.

"But I have made up my mind to stand by him and do what I can to try to secure his election. My support will not be of a perfunctory sort, but will be as whole hearted as I can make it. I will speak for him and will try to win the Progressive vote to him."

Progressive leaders were not inclined to regard Mr. Record's declaration as significant. As a candidate for Congress he occupied a different position from the other leaders and his pledge of support does not carry the same weight under the circumstances as would that of William P. Martin or Edmund R. Osborne. Neither of the latter will talk for publication, but their attitude toward the Lewis candidacy has not changed since the State convention.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Dunellen Board of Trade has completed the preliminary work for the issuance of the descriptive souvenir book of Dunellen which it is soon to issue. The copy and photos will be placed in the hands of the printer this week and the book will be ready for distribution in a few weeks. It is to contain no advertisements of any kind and is to be sold by subscription only. It will be composed of thirty-six pages, each six inches by eight and a half. Most of the illustrating photos are to be half page while others are to be full page. It will also contain an article on Dunellen's growth, past and present, written by William P. Deering. The work of preparation has been carefully and thoroughly handled by the publicity and advertising committee of the Board of Trade, composed of former Mayor Swackhamer, Dr. Hogan, John R. Campbell and William P. Deering.

Mayor Stoy has accepted an invitation from Senator George W. F. Gaunt, of Mullica Hill, master of the New Jersey Grange, to deliver the address of welcome at the opening session November 16.

A team of horses belonging to the Glassboro Paving Company, attached to a heavy wagon, took fright at an automobile and ran away. The wagon struck a fire plug, snapping it off, which caused the streets in that part of the town to be flooded, while the whole town went "dry" again for several hours while repairs were made.

MAY BE SPLIT IN SALVATION ARMY.

Elizabeth, Oct. 6.—No definite statement was given out last night after a meeting of the Salvation Army in regard to the action of Sergeant-Major Hall, in collecting money to clear the debts of the local corps. A desire to keep the matter quiet was manifested by those who attended the meeting, for they would say nothing when approached on the subject.

Some members of the organization objected to Mr. Hall collecting the money, and as a result there is a split in the army. It was planned that the matter would be definitely settled at last night's meeting, and it was rumored afterward that Mr. Hall was cleared of all blame.

Mr. Hall stated that there would be no compromise, and that if not cleared he and all his followers will hold services of their own at 1181 East Broad street.

It is a fact that J. M. Barrie has never seen Maude Adams in any one of his plays. The only time that he ever saw her on the stage at all was when he came to this country fourteen years ago, and that was an accident, and as Charles Frohman puts it, a lucky one. Barrie had come to return to Mr. Frohman the check the manager had sent him as an advance payment for the dramatization of "The Little Minister." The Scotch author did not think that he could do the work. Mr. Frohman being busy, Barrie was asked to step into the Empire Theatre and see a bit of "Rosemary," which John Drew was then giving. The leading woman of the company was Maude Adams. Barrie sat the performance out, saw in Miss Adams an actress who could play Lady Babbie and decided that he would take a "try" at the dramatization if she would appear in it. Barrie was then a poor man. His plays have since made him rich. Miss Adams will appear at The Plainfield theatre Saturday night.

ESSENTIALS OF LIFE.

Sleep, like food and drink, is one of the essentials of life. Seven, eight, or possibly nine hours, in the opinion of Good Health, are required for the rest and the refreshment of our physical energies. He who cuts down sleep is burning the candle at both ends. The man or woman who successfully courts sound sleep on reaching the pillow, and who takes as much as nature requires, is capable of doing an enormous amount of hard work daily.

Sleeplessness is a grave symptom. Its warning should be promptly heeded before it is too late, for insomnia is often a precursor of most grave nerve and brain disturbances.

And one feels to add a word of caution to those who are slighting sleep in various ways. Not a few are planning to earn money while working at one thing to fit themselves for another sphere. If it can be done, well and good, but it is suicidal not to take necessary time for sleep, good regular meals and some outdoor exercise.

LUCIEN O. APPLEBY, THE NOTED HORSEMAN, DEAD.

Lucien O. Appleby, one of the best known horsemen in the country, died Tuesday at the Red Cross Hospital, New York, of heart disease. He was seventy years old. He had been actively engaged in racing since 1865. He was a former part owner in the Monmouth Park (N. J.) race track, and was one of the builders of the track at Linden, N. J., which was abandoned about ten years ago. His Silber Brook farm at Red Bank, had been the home of many famous horses.

Appleby was the breeder of Henry of Navarre, Knight of the Thistle and other well known thoroughbreds.

The funeral was held this morning from All Angels' church, Eighty-first street and West End avenue.

Suit Follows Peculiar Accident.

Walter T. Reuben, formerly employed as a brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and a resident of Belmar, has brought suit against the Jersey Central Railroad Company as the result of an accident August 17 last at Asbury Park. Reuben was at the brake of a Pennsylvania freight when a Central flier rushed by. The door of one of the Central cars brook loose and struck Reuben in the neck. His collarbone was broken. His suit for $6,000 damages was filed yesterday.

No More Rats.

One of the many milliners of the city, who has been in New York during the last fortnight looking over the hats, says that it is wonderful the change in hairdressing. "Why, the models don't wear a sign of a rat," she said. "When the hats are not on their heads the hair looks like a rat's nest. So used have we become to the pompadour. But when the hat is on the head they push the hair about in a way that makes it look very stylish."

Loved to Tease Papa.

"When Harold proposed to me," said Maude, "I told him to go and ask papa."

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

HERE THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20.

Three Sessions are to be Held at First M. E. Church—Rev. John Y. Broek Among List of Speakers.

Sunday-school workers here have received copies of the provisional program for the annual convention of the Union County Sunday-school Association, to be held in the First M. E. church, Thursday, October 20, at which all of the Sunday-schools of the city and county will be represented. There will be three sessions, 10 o'clock in the morning, 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 7:30 o'clock in the evening. This will be the first time in several years that the convention has been held in Plainfield.

The theme for the morning session will be "The Preparation of the Teacher," and will be opened with devotions by Rev. John Y. Broker, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, followed with greetings by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson. Rev. S G. Snowden, of Elizabeth, recording secretary, will present the report of the executive committee, and Rev. C. C. Woodruff, of Rahway, will give the report of the Teacher Training department, to be followed with an address on "How Every Sunday-school May Have Trained Teachers," by L. H. Koehler, State secretary. He will then conduct an open conference.

The theme for the afternoon session will be "The Intermediate Department," and this program will be followed:

2:00, devotional service; 2:10, report of the county secretary-treasurer and the distribution of certificates, G. M. Gabler; 2:25, report of the elementary department, Miss S. A. Valentine, Elizabeth; 2:40, address, "The Next Step in Graduation," Miss A. B. Hamlin, Newark; 2:55, address, "The Challenge of Adolescence," Rev. M. S. Littlefield, Brooklyn; 3:45, address, "The Superintendent of the Intermediates," Mrs. W. L. Smith, East Orange; 4:00, "The Intermediate Boy," J. L. Alexander, New York; 4:35, report of the home department, Mrs. A. W. Karnell, Union; 4:45 convention business; 5:00, song, prayer and benediction; 5:15-6, conferences: Intermediate, M. S. Littlefield; organized adult, J. E. Church; "Work with Boys," L. H. Koehler; "The Boy Scouts," J. L. Alexander.

The theme of the evening session will be "The Sunday-school and World Evangelism," and the program will be as follows:

7:30, devotional service; 7:45, reports of the auditing committee and committee on resolutions; 7:55 offering; 8:00, report of the missionary department, Miss Harriett Halloway; 8:15, address, R. E. Diffendorfer, New York; closing service with report of enrollment committee; 9:15, adjournment.

Both luncheon and supper will be served in Vincent chapel by a large committee of women from the various Sunday-schools of the city.

Hedley—Van Nest.

Miss Hattie Van Nest, daughter of William Van Nest, of Alton, and William Henry Hedley, of this city, were married Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at South Plainfield, Rev. J. J. Alley performing the ceremony. Miss Grace Van Nest was the bridesmaid, and Frank Kelly was the best man. After a short trip the couple will reside at 26 Somerset place. The groom is in the employ of A. M. Runyon & Son, undertakers.

Protest Against Licenses.

Residents of North Plainfield who desire to protest against the renewing of one saloon license and the granting of one new license, are urged to attend the meeting at the Somerville court house on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The train on which a majority of the protestants will go to attend the hearing leaves the North avenue station at 9:43 o'clock.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will take the Congregational juniors on their fall outing on Saturday. The boys and girls will meet at the trolley station in time for the 9 o'clock car. Then, some on wheels and some in the trolley, they will go to Washington Rock by way of Rock avenue, and will there enjoy a corn roast.

EXAMINE ALLEGED SLAYER.

New Brunswick Man Still Labors Under Delusion.

New Brunswick, Oct. 6.—At the direction of Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen, Prosecutor T. B. Booraem has had another examination made of Archibald Herron, who is held in State prison for the murder of the Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickitt at Metuchen on July 15, 1908.

Dr. William E. Ramsay, of Perth Amboy, and Dr. McKenzie, of the prison staff, reported to the prosecutor yesterday that Herron is still laboring under the delusion that he is the victim of a plot hatched by prominent Metuchen men. He claims that it was a minister of Metuchen who shot Herron and that the charge was made against him to shield the minister.

THE CHARM OF SACHETS.

The indefinable scent which most women prefer is giving to wearing apparel by sachets that are of various shapes and sizes, and are successful and lasting when chosen and prepared in a certain way.

Orris root is a favorite choice. It gives the faint smell of a wood of violets, and is by no means so clogging as even fresh verbena or rose essence. To make it lasting there is but one secret. A sachet powder remains fresh but a very short time if it is merely enclosed in a bag of muslin and laid among the undermuslin or handkerchiefs. If it is baked in the oven, however, between layers of wadding, there will be a different story to tell. This is an ingenious discovery which answers the problem of preserving the strength for weeks together.

Every one nowadays uses coat as well as skirt hangers in the wardrobe. It is difficult to imagine how we could keep shoulders flat and hip yokes in place without a bodice or skirt "tree." The chief point of interest just now is, however, to scent them, and this is done by tying small bags of perfumed wool to the end of each.

Instead of placing bags and sachets to scent the lingerie and blouse drawers, there is a better plan today. Drawer linings are made of a double fold of white muslin, open like a pillowcase at one end, and into which a pad of wadding is slipped, slightly perfumed. Thes can be washed frequently and for this reason are more economical in the end than white paper, which requires constant renewal. Luxurious tastes incline to white washink silk instead of muslin, the same drawer linings performing a double purpose of blouse sachets when traveling, into which the clean lingerie shirts are slipped and kept from crushing at the top of the trunk.

OWEN FARRELLY DEAD; LOBSTER DINNER VICTIM

Owen Farrelly, police commissioner of Elizabeth, and one of the most popular residents in this section of the State, died in the hospital, that city, this morning, making the fourth victim of the lobster dinner which was given by the Entre Nous Club, of Elizabeth, on September 7. The dinner was given by the club to honor one of its members who had been appointed to a position in the police department.

Several guests who eat lobster salad were taken very ill soon afterward, and among them Lee Platz John Sullivan and Richard F. McMahon have since died. Mr. Farrelly's death being the fourth. Dennis Sullivan and his brother, Daniel Sullivan, together with George Marriott, all of Elizabeth, are still in the hospital ill from the same cause, and it was said today that they can not live.

Owen Farrelly, in addition to being a police commissioner of Elizabeth, was chairman of the City Democratic Committee. Everybody who knew him was his friend and it is doubtful whether there was a more popular resident of Elizabeth.

The annual police inspection, for which elaborate arrangements had been made, including an appropriation of $150 from the City Council, has been postponed and the Council instead will adopt a set of resolutions of condolence.

Euchre for St. Mary's Convent.

MRS. MILLER WINS CASE AGAINST LOCAL DOCTOR

The case of Mrs. Ellen Miller, of Rock avenue, against Dr. Ambrose Brennan of Grant avenue, to recover the value of thirty-four chickens, which were bought by the physician, resulted in a verdict for Mrs. Miller this morning in the District court before Judge William Newcorn. Mrs. Miller was represented by Robert Newton Crane and Dr. Brennan by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

The case is famous for the length of time it has taken to settle it. On August 6 Mrs. Miller recovered a judgment by default, but upon request of Mr. Hetfield the case was reopened by Judge Newcorn. There were five witnesses examined, three for the plaintiff and two for the defendant, Dr. Brennan being on the stand for nearly an hour.

According to the testimony Mrs. Miller had had the services of Dr. Brennan on four different occasions for which she was indebted to him in the sum of $8, but this amount, it was claimed, had been more than repaid by the digging of the doctor's garden and the furnishing of certain quantities of fresh garden truck by the Millers. Mrs. Miller declared that the purchase of the chickens was a separate transaction and that the doctor had refused to pay her for them.

Doctor Brennan was put through a gruelling cross examination by Counseller Crane, who kept him there for an hour, with the result that Judge Newcorn rendered a verdict in favor of Mrs. Miller for the munificent sum of $2.72 and costs.

PROMINENT JERSEYMEN TO SPEAK AT BANQUET

A galaxy of political speakers, surpassing any in former years, will be the feature of the Republican Dollar Dinner to be held at Turn hall, Elizabeth, next Wednesday night. The affair will be held under the auspices of the Elizabeth Central committee and the Union County committee and it is expected that there will be at least 500 diners.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, will preside. Those who will respond to the toasts are United States Senator John Kean, State Banking Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis, the gubernatorial nominee; Governor J. Franklin Fort, State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, Judge William N. Runyon, the congressional nominee, former Mayor Berry and Mayor Mravalag, of Elizabeth; John D. Capstick, Assemblyman A. W. Schwartz and Lloyd Thompson; Assembly Nominee Peter Meisel, Representative Charles Newell Fowler, William Keiper, John I. Blair Reilly, Alfred Dalrymple, John Flavell, former Governor John W. Griggs and Rev. H. H. Gifford.

The dinner will begin promptly at 6.0. There will be a large delegation from Plainfield including the city committee. Tickets may be had of J. Henry Crane.

MAY CONDEMN OLD ORANGE PUBLIC SCHOOL

After three unsuccessful attempts by the West Orange Board of Education to get rid of St. Mark's School in Valley road, between White street and the main entrance to Llewellyn Park, and replace it with a modern building in a more suitable location, the chances are that it will be finally accomplished by condemnation by County Superintendent Albert B. Meredith. The superintendent was present at a meeting of the Board of Education Tuesday night and there threatened to take such proceedings if the board did not effect the improvement itself. He was told of the three attempts to get rid of the school.

Mr. Meredith said he was not ready to say positively that he would condemn the building, but a superficial examination led him to the belief that such a course might be necessary. In that event it will become the duty of the inhabitants of West Orange to provide the funds to build another structure. Heretofore they have balked at every effort of the local board to abandon the school.

The county superintendent said Tuesday night that he had found the conditions throughout the building unsatisfactory. The old building, of stone, has dark rooms and is damp, he said, and the crowded condition in the newer part is scarcely any better. He said that he was inclined to believe that the conditions were such as to warrant condemnation, but would not make the positive statement until he had looked more closely into the matter. He will make an appointment with President George K. Robinson, of the board, at an early date and determine what course to pursue.

The St. Mark's building consists of a stone structure, which looks like a church and which has done duty for fifty years, and a brick addition in the rear, which was built twenty years ago. Neither the old nor the newer part is adequately lighted or ventilated and outbreaks of diphtheria and scarlet fever have been numerous there in recent years. The school has frequently been closed for short periods while being fumigated.

It is at a narrow part of Valley road, close to the trolley tracks, and nearby is a hatshop which sends bad odors and vapors directly into the classrooms when the windows are open. The Board of Educaton has held three public meetings within as many years, at which the proposition to abandon the school and build elsewhere has been presented to the voters, but each time the proposition has been voted down. Taxpayers who have no children in the public schools have taken an active part in opposition.

SAID HE KNEW FIREBUG AND WANTED REWARD.

An attempt to railroad "Bud" Mason, colored, to prison, to gain a reward of $100, is the accusation charged against William Smith, also colored, of Metuchen. The case was investigated by the grand jury in New Brunswick yesterday.

Several weeks ago the Ten Eyck barns at Oak Tree were destroyed by fire. Mr. Ten Eyck offered a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of the firebug. Smith declared Mason had confessed that he had fired the buildings. Mason had been employed by Ten Eyck.

Smith was jailed for assaulting his daughter, and while there sent a letter to his wife telling her to go before the grand jury yesterday and swear she heard Mason tell Smith he had fired the barns.

Donates Cornerstone.

Charles B. Burtis, Democratic candidate for Council in Westfield, has donated a handsome granite stone to be used as the cornerstone for the new $30,000 fire house now in course of construction in that town. Councilman R. F. Hohenstein, chairman of the fire committee, intends to plan a big celebration when the stone is laid the last of this month.

To Celebrate State's Birth.

The Society of Colonial Wars in the State of New Jersey have issued invitations for the 250th anniversary of the First Permanent Settlement, the First Municipal Government, the First School and the First Church within the territory now constituting the State of New Jersey for Tuesday, October 18, in Jersey City.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 9, 1910.

Topic.—Forward steps in our society.—Ex. xiv, 9-15. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The Israelites were in a great crisis. They had celebrated the Passover for the first time, according to the command of God in Egypt, and were now on their way to the land of Cannan. They had marched down in a rather zigzag fashion to the south and southeast and stood face to face with the Red sea, with no apparent way of crossing over. They had no ships like the Greeks and Persians to carry them across. In front of them was the sea, on another side hostile tribes and mountains to the south and southeast. Looking behind them, they saw Pharaoh and his army pursuing them.

The situation certainly seemed critical. Nor was it any wonder that they complained. We would have done the same and probably worse. But their extremity was God's opportunity, and in a short time they were commanded, while Moses held the rod over the waters of the sea, to "go forward." They instantly obeyed. God banked the water, and they crossed, and when Pharaoh and his army attempted to do the same thing the waters came down upon them, and they were drowned, and Israel rejoiced.

The busy season of the companies of the great Christian endeavor army has arrived. What should therefore be the watchword of the army, which includes all companies, each society? What could be better than the command of God through Moses to the Israelites—"Go forward," or as the topic puts it, "forward steps in our society."

Step forward under the command of God through His Son, Christ Jesus. Do what God commands. Get your orders from Christ and follow them closely.

Step forward in spite of difficulties. Look at the Israelites again. What immense difficulties they faced, but how soon they faded away when God desired it. Every society will have its difficulties. But what army ever went forth without meeting difficulties? General McClellan met some with the Army of the Potomac. General Lee found a few when he returned into Pennsylvania. Grant met more than both together, but did his men cry for graves or anything like that? Not at all. They faced the difficulties and won in spite of their society committees. Attention! You will meet difficulties. The P. M. committee will not always get the leader it wants. Will it stop there? No; it will go as many steps as needful in order to get some one who will lead. Executive committee, attention! You will have difficulties. Are you going to run away from them or pass them by or resign? If so, then you are not a "step forward" member of the committee.

Endeavorers all, attention! Each one of you will have difficulties. It may be difficult to be present or to take part or to seek a new member. Will you therefore break your pledge to God in Christ? May it not be said of you, what are all or any of the committee unless each member is ready to obey the command? Did the Israelites hesitate when they saw the water go up? There is no historic record to that effect. Instead, each one stepped forward, and I imagine with a quick step and even double quick.

Step forward in spite of complainers. These people cried out against Moses. They wanted to know if there was not enough burying ground in Egypt that they must die under such circumstances—slain by Pharoah's army.

Did you ever hear of a society without a "kicker," to use an expressive word, if not so elegant? Every society on earth ought to have a "complaint committee" to meet monthly to hear all complaints and to adjust them. Seriously, this might give us a new committee and be a step forward. In some societies it would be a live wire, but after the adjustment be made it should stand, and the subject should be dropped. Then, associated with the "complaint committee," there might be a "burial committee." The complainers wanted a decent burial. Many Endeavorers at least need it. They are dead and need to be buried so far as the Christian Endeavor society is concerned. Better to have ten Endeavorers unenrolled than a hundred enrolled and still only have the ten real ones.

Step forward to a revival. Do not, however, seek to add a great list of new members to your roll, but take off one-third to one-half. An evangelist in Ohio was once asked by a newspaper reporter about the success of a work just closed. The answer was that it was the greatest revival he ever had. "How many did you receive?" "Not one," said the minister, "but we put out forty and are now ready for a true evangelistic work." If this example were followed in more churches and in Christian Endeavor societies there would indeed be many true revivals.

For Buffalo Bill's Men.

Following a newspaper suggestion made by George J. Michelbach, the Christian Endeavorers and the Epworth Leaguers of Binghamton, N. Y., distributed a large amount of good literature and great quantities of flowers among the men and women traveling with Buffalo Bill's Wild West show. The workers were received with the greatest courtesy, and the men were particularly pleased at the unusual attention shown them.

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

"They'd better be jolly careful what they do," Loveland broke in. "Anyhow, I'm much mistaken if I haven't a case in law against the hotel already. If I have—and in justice I ought to have—I shall proceed."

"I WILL GIVE UP THE ROOMS WHEN I'M READY."

The other sailed for the first time. "I don't expect that any of us will lie awake nights worrying," said he.

Loveland tried to crush the man with a look, but he was not so easily abashed. "I've said all I want to say now," Val informed him icily. "You can go, and I will give up the rooms when I'm ready."

"That's all right as long as it's inside half an hour," returned the other, still with unruffled politeness. "But I have to stay till you do give them up."

"Confound you! Do you think I'll set the place on fire the minute your back is turned?"

"Not so much that as—there are other things you might do."

"What other things? Really I should like to know, for the sake of curiosity."

"Well, if you're bound to get it out of me, I've got to stay and see you don't remove any articles of value."

"By Jove! So that's it—my own or yours?"

"What's yours is ours at present, and what's ours is our own, as the bride said to the bridegroom."

Val could almost have laughed, though not at the joke. He, the Marquis of Loveland, an officer in the Grenadier guards, was to be watched lest he should steal the hotel soap or sneak off with his own toothbrush!

He went white and red and white again. If by a word he could have tumbled the whole hotel down in an earthquake he would have been willing to be caught under the ruins. He had a wild, boyish conviction that by subjecting himself now to the extremest inconvenience he could by and by cause the hotel management poignant remorse. Yes, he could take them at their word. He would walk out of the house just as he was, leaving everything he had behind him. He would not even take his overcoat, and if he were struck down with pneumonia so much the worse for these insolent people.

His cap, his only head covering, as he had forgotten a bowler on board ship, lay on a table, and he held it out for the enemy's inspection. "You say all that is mine is yours," he sneered. "This may have cost 6 or 7 shillings when it was new. Now it would fetch 2 at most. I will pay you for it. Half a crown is the least I have. Pray keep the change."

He laid a coin, his last large coin, down on the table where the cap had been and without another word walked nonchalantly out of the room. Below in the great hall through which he had to pass on his way out of the hotel lights glared and dazzled, and the talk and laughter of many persons sounded in his ears. Loveland pushed on blindly, conscious of himself as the one real entity in a crowd of will-o'-the-wisps and wicked lure lights. His sole concern with the people in the hateful, glaring picture was that they should suspect nothing of his feelings. He walked with his head up and something that he meant for a smile on his lips, nor was it an affectation that he appeared to recognize no one, though Cadwallader Hunter, who had been waiting to see this exit, believed it to be.

The night was warm for November in New York. Still, there was a decided crispness in the air which Loveland felt as he went out.

The streets were brilliant with light, and half New York appeared to be abroad, although the theaters had been in full swing for nearly an hour. But all the women wore cloaks and the men overcoats. Loveland, in his dinner jacket and wide expanse of shirt front, his pumps and silk stockings, his cloth traveling cap pulled over his eyes, would have been noticeable even if his height and good looks had not made him a marked figure. Everybody who passed stared, and more than a few glanced back at him. Here and there some pretty woman laughed at a joking comment whispered by her escort, and when his first hot rage began to cool it was uncomfortably borne in upon Loveland that he was the observed of many observers.

Here he was, on a winter's night, a foreigner in a strange city, walking the streets without an overcoat and with only a coin or two in his pocket. He remembered that in the afternoon when dealing out visiting cards and letters of introduction he had slipped his cardcase into a pocket of his overcoat, where it still remained. That overcoat remained in one of the rooms lately his at the hotel. What a fool he had been, after all, to leave it behind. Meeting a policeman, he inquired for a respectable, inexpensive hotel in a quiet street not too far away and did his best to look unconscious of the big man's concentrated gaze fixed on the large white oval of his shirt front.

"Yez might try the New House, on Toyty-thoyd street," was the advice that followed upon reflection, and Loveland was obliged to ask three times before he was able to translate "Toyty-thoyd" into Thirty-third street. Then he had to turn and retrace his steps, for he had been wandering uptown and must have covered some distance, as he guessed by the length of time it took him to reach the Waldorf Astoria again. As the light caught and photographed him in passing a man who had been standing in front of the hotel under the iron canopy with the air of waiting for some one started after Loveland, walking just fast enough to keep him well in sight.

Val turned into Thirty-third street and stopped before the New House, which advertised itself in a blaze of starry electric letters. The man on his trail smiled as he saw the tall figure in evening dress hesitate for an instant and then hurl himself at a revolving door. He himself strolled on, but he did not go far. When he had taken a dozen steps he wheeled, passed the hotel again, took a dozen more steps and again came back.

It was when he had just taken his sixth turn that Loveland shot out through the revolving door even more suddenly than he had shot in. The watcher was near enough to see the look on his face—the tenseness of the lips and drawing together of the eyebrows—and his own expression said "I thought so," as plainly as words if there had been any one there to read it. But Loveland was entirely absorbed in himself and in bitter thoughts of the hateful experience he had just gone through.

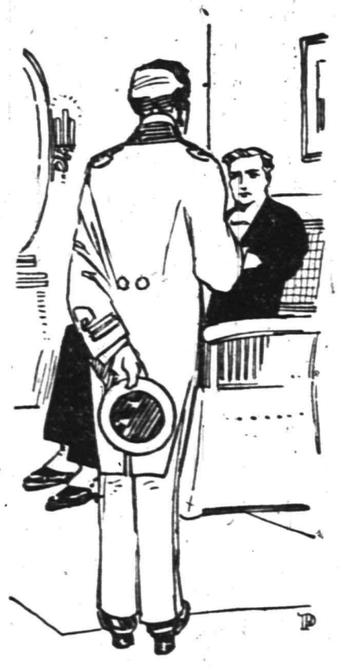
It was hardly to be hoped that there would be a room disengaged in a hotel for a nervous young gentleman with an exposed white shirt front, no luggage and a missing cardcase. When Val had explained that he was Lord Loveland, just landed from England, the hotel clerk turned away to hide either a yawn or a grin and seemed no more inclined to remember the existence of an unoccupied bedroom than if his client had been plain Mr. Smith or Mr. Jones.

"We had a gentleman from England here last week," he said pleasantly. "His name was Walker, London. Sorry we can't accommodate your lordship."

Then Loveland had squared his shoulders and marched out into the night, not inclined to try any more hotels. He felt very young in his loneliness and humiliation, and his heart yearned wistfully for the shabby Scotch shooting box where his mother lived and thought long thoughts of him.

He remembered hearing Betty or Jim Harborough say that in American towns a man might call upon a family he knew well up to the hour of 10 in the evening. It was not nearly 10 yet, and, though there was no family in New York whom Val knew well, it was a case of any port in a storm.

The Coolidges were now out of the running, and the Miltons, but a Mr. and Mrs. Beverly with a daughter had



"THEY ARE TOO MUCH ENGAGED TO SEE ANYBODY TONIGHT."

(half apologetically) invited him to visit at their house in Park avenue. They were rich or richish, though with a trail of trade behind them, and the girl was pretty or prettyish.

He had cannily refused the invitation, pleading many engagements difficult to keep if visiting, but he could easily explain the late call by lightly recounting the story of his misfortune, making a jest of it and throwing himself on the family's mercy. He hoped and believed that they would insist upon his staying all night in their house; also that a loan sufficient to pay his hotel bill and redeem his luggage might be suggested.

The prospect of release from all his woes was so soothing and apparently so easy to compass that the more he thought was a warming cordial. He walked briskly back into Fifth avenue and asked the way of the first man he met. He found Park avenue a dignified street and with the pleasantest anticipations ran up the steps of the Beverlys' house, the number of which had fortunately stuck in his memory. There were lights in all the windows of the two lower floors, and as he pressed the electric bell he saw a shadow flit across the half transparent silk curtains, a shadow which was like a faint silhouette of plump little Madge Beverly.

"It's all right. They're at home, thank goodness!" he said to himself as he waited for the door to open, and a sense of calm well being fell upon him with the assurance that his troubles were over at last.

A neat servant was soon framed against a yellow background of cheerful light, and at some distance, screened in shadow, the man who had followed Loveland waited once more with a certain anxiety in his eyes.

Val inquired for Mr. and Mrs. Beverly. They were at home, said the servant, in the "living room" with a party of relatives who had come to welcome them back after their visit to Europe. If the gentleman would step into the reception room and send up his card Mr. and Mrs. Beverly would no doubt be down in a minute.

"But when people are at home one doesn't send in one's card," said Loveland, arguing according to English ways. "Tell your master and mistress that Lord Loveland has called, but will not keep them long from their friends," said Val, growing impatient under the man's narrow look.

The servant resented the suggestion that as a free man in a free country he could have a master and mistress. And a Lord Anybody sounded like a practical joke to him, for, though he had begun by being a Swede, he had been an American since he was short coated. However, he was well trained, according to his lights and the family traditions of the Beverlys. He ushered the practical joker into a handsome drawing room and vanished upstairs to explain the odd young gentleman who never announced himself with cards.

The servant returned with a grave face. Indeed, it could not have been more solemn if he had come to break the news that all Lord Loveland's surviving relatives had perished together in a holocaust.

"Mr. and Mrs. Beverly are very sorry, sir," said the man, "but they are too much engaged to see anybody tonight."

Val rose haughtily. "I'll trouble you to open the door," he said as the servant stood petrified. And so once more Lord Loveland was thrown upon the hospitality of the streets. The flitting shadows were gone from the windows, which still gleamed cheerily. But they were dark to the outcast's heart.

CHAPTER X.

A PROPOSITION.

NATURALLY it occurred to Val that the trail of Cadwallader Hunter must have reached as far as the Beverly household, and almost he found it in his heart to respect a man with executive ability to accomplish so swift, so sweeping, so secret a revenge.

"The old fellow must have had a busy day," Loveland thought, half amused on top of hunger and discouragement. He pictured the major running lithely about since the snub at lunch time up to the last moment before dressing for dinner prejudicing all the friends made on board the Mauretania against the Englishman to whom he had proudly introduced them.

And, besides, one must grant a certain cleverness to a brain able to weave grounds of prejudice against a person—nay, a personage—important and unimpeachable, as Loveland considered himself to be. How Cadwallader Hunter had done it Val could not imagine. But that the mysterious thing which had been done was the major's work he did not doubt.

Loveland had conscientiously distributed all the letters in the afternoon and had put the Waldorf-Astoria hotel as a New York address on his visiting cards. Now, owing to unforeseen circumstances (another name for the major's vindictiveness), that address was his no longer. When people called, as no doubt they would do tomorrow, they were likely to find that he had vanished into space. Yes, without doubt the best thing he could do was to call tonight at one of the houses where he had alighted in the afternoon. He would walk to the nearest one; but, now he came to think of it, which was the nearest and of which was he certain that he could remember the street and number? He went over the eight or nine names in his head and thought that he had kept them all straight, but to save his life he could not say which number, which street, appertained to which person.

This was a dilemma, almost a calamity. But one address seemed to stand out before his eyes, a number in Fifth avenue, and he thought it was a Mrs. Anson who lived there. The house was a handsome one at a corner. He had admired it, and as it was not far uptown he would not have more than a mile to travel. He could still make his visit and tell his pitiful tale before 10 o'clock.

He walked fast, and it was by an effort that the man of the shadows kept him in sight, for Val's legs were long, and his were not. But he did not contrive to cling close enough to see a tall figure slowly descend a flight of stone steps climbed with alert hopefulness a few moments earlier.

This time there was a discouraged droop of the head and shoulders, a dragging hesitation in the gait, which seemed to show that the wanderer did not know what his next move ought to be.

At last the watcher decided that he had waited long enough. The Englishman had come to the end of his tether. He was tired out and sick at heart—in fact, precisely in the mood which the other had been patiently expecting.

Loveland walked away from the house where Mrs. Anson was "giving a dinner party and regretted that she was unable to receive visitors." Jim Harborough's friend! Could it be that Cadwallader Hunter's tentacles had wormed themselves round this lady's sympathies also, or was the dismissal another coincidence, like that of the bank?

"Good evening," said the man who had caught up with him, speaking somewhat breathlessly, but in a friendly voice.

"Oh!" Loveland said. "You were with the Coolidges, I remember." The tips of his ears began to tingle.

"My name's Milton," the short, dark man introduced himself. "I've been trying to catch you up for some time. I know you met my wife and daughter on the Mauretania. That's why I was anxious to make your acquaintance."

Loveland laughed. "You're the first person since I left the ship who has wanted to make it," he retorted. "And it struck me this evening that neither Mrs. nor Miss Milton was keen on keeping it."

"Miss Milton is a child," answered Miss Milton's father. "She daren't say her soul's her own if her mother says it isn't, and Mrs. Milton has reasons over and above what any one else may have for not wanting to know you in front of me."

"Over and above what any one else may have?" Val repeated, lost in surprise at this turning. "Why should she or any one have reasons for not wanting to know me? That's the thing I should like to find out. Perhaps you'll be good enough to explain the mystery—if you can. What has Major Cadwallader Hunter been doing to put all New York against me??"

"So far as I can see, it wasn't the major who set the ball rolling, though, of course, he'd like people to think he was on to it from the first. And it seems he heard you give yourself away a bit to a girl one day on shipboard, or says he did. But let's not discuss that now. What you are or what you did before you stepped on board the Mauretania is nothing to me. The game you and I are in together, as it's up to me to show you, is this: You're in a pretty bad scrape, and you want to get out of it. Is that true or isn't it?"

"I CAN HELP YOU OUT OF YOUR FIX."

"Yes, it's true enough," admitted Val. "But that's not the question. I"—

"Excuse me, it is the question where I'm concerned. I don't go back on that. I don't want to know anything or be in anything else. I can help you out of your fix. That's what I'm here to do."

"Thank you," said Val dryly. "But why?" He half expected that Mr. Milton's quid pro quo would be a promise in advance to make Fanny the Marchioness of Loveland.

"Well, I'm coming to that in one minute and a half. First and foremost, let's chat about what I can do for you. Then we'll get to what you can do for me. I guess a thousand dollars would come handy to you, wouldn't it, especially if you could see half in hard cash tonight?"

"If I saw any 'hard cash,' as you call it, lying in the street and nobody claimed it I confess I might find a temporary use for the money," said Loveland. "The trouble is my letter of credit"—

"I know all about that letter of credit just as well as if you'd told me," broke in Mr. Milton.

"Tomorrow it will be all right," Val went on.

"I wouldn't bet on its being all right tomorrow," said Milton. "But we can wait to talk business till the day after if you like. That'll suit me just as well, for I stand to make better terms. It's for you to say where. I can give you my card, and you can drop round at my club"—

"What do you want me to do?" sharply asked Loveland.

"You'd like to know whether the candle's worth the game, eh? Well, I'm no Shylock. But see here—shall we come to terms over a drink? We're not far off the best bar in New York, and"—

"No, thank you," Val cut in decidedly, though he was cold enough and hollow enough within to be tempted by the thought of warmth and refreshment of any sort. "Tell me now what possible motive you, a stranger, can have in offering to lend me £200."

"I said nothing about lending," insinuated Mr. Milton. "But if you like to call it a loan you can. You've got your 'family traditions' to keep up, I suppose." And he laughed in high good humor.

"I have," said Val coldly.

"That's all right," returned the other. "Well, to get to business then. You were on pretty friendly terms with Mrs. M[illegible]?"

One Way to Escape Bills.

"Well, why don't you use mosquito netting?"

Italian Paintings

We are showing a truly remarkable collection of Italian Water Color Paintings, representing real types of Italian life in figure studies, all of them original; done in the well known and much admired exquisite Italian colorings; purchased in the art centres of Europe by our buyer manager, during his recent annual trip abroad, from the artists in their own studios. These pictures, so different and dainty, should find a place in the very best homes.

Exclusive art stores would have to charge very much more for them than we do. Our regular prices run from $6 to $150, yet despite their value we are going to offer them Friday and Saturday, Italian Days, in this store at just half regular prices—

$3 to $75

Madonnas by the old Italian Masters, reproduced in carbon tones; both oval and square frames; a very complete line; regularly $2 to $9.98; will be offered Friday and Saturday, at a discount of 20 per cent.

Guido Reni's "Aurora" and "Dance of the Muses," in various styles and sizes; regularly priced from 39c to $15, will be offered on both Italian Days at a discount of 10 per cent.

An old engraving of Christopher Columbus, in plain oak frame; value $10, will be offered at $5.50.

"A Day in June with a Knight of Columbus"—a catchy picture that members of the order will like; regularly $9c; will be special priced at 49c.

Books About Italy

Our Book Store—the best, beyond question, in the State—presents a variety of works on subjects pertaining to things essentially Italian. These books were written, however, for Americans, not for the people of Italy, and you will find them highly instructive and enlightening.

THOMAS M. PAFF DEAD

ONCE RESTAURAUTEUR HERE.

Ten Years Ago He Removed to the 'Plains, Where He Was Engaged in the Real Estate Business.

Thomas Morse Paff, one of the best known residents in this section of the county, died shortly after midnight this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Grant, of West Front street. The infirmities of age aggravated by intense grieving over the loss of his wife a year ago last June, is given as the indirect cause of death. He had been in failing health for a year, but had been confined to his bed only for a short time.

Mr. Paff was born at Hempstead, L. I., in 1836, his father being a retired New York business man. He came to Plainfied about forty years ago and purchased the property on West Front street now occupied by P. J. Kreitling. It cost him $100 a front foot, a price considered almost fabulous in those days. Mr. Paff opened a restaurant in the building and soon built up a substantial business, but was compelled to close it out because of failing eyesight. He removed to Scotch Plains about ten years later and opened a real estate office and conducted it until a short time ago. Since the death of his wife he had lived with his daughter.

Mr. Paff enjoyed a wide acquaintance throughout the county and by his genial disposition made friends wherever he went. He never took an active part in politics or affiliated with any organizations, but was always thoroughly conversant with public affairs.

Beside Mrs. Grant, Mr. Paff is survived by one son, Thomas M. Paff, Jr., of Scotch Plains, and a sister, Mrs. Madeline Duryea, of Brooklyn, now in her eighty-sixth year.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Grant's home Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

George H. Winn.

George H. Winn, aged sixty-two years, died this morning at his home, 175 Somerset street, following a short but severe attack of asthma. Mr. Winn was a farmer and had lived throughout this section all his life, with one or two exceptions. He resided here a number of years ago and after living at Millington, East Millstone and in Pennsylvania, he returned to the borough. He was a member of the Methodist church, and a regular attendant at services. He is survived by a wife and a large family of children. Two sons, Charles and Fred Winn, reside here. Announcement of funeral will be made later.

In District Court.

A suit involving $12.50 on one side and $20 on the other was tried before Judge William Newcorn this morning and resulted in the three lawyers in the case submitting briefs on the legal points involved. John Cartwright sued Alexander S. Campbell for a claim of interest on a loan amounting to $12.50. Campbell entered a set-off for a loan of $20. Codington and Swackhamer represented Cartwright and Robert Newton Crane argued Mr. Campbell's case.

Mr. Langhorne Improving.

It was said by Mrs. F. C. Langhorne, at Truell Court, this morning, that her husband, who was brought home from the Perth Amboy hospital last evening, was resting quietly and that he was doing nicely. Dr. Ramsey, the house physician at the hospital, said that Mr. Langhorne was suffering greatly from shock and the exposure in the water, but that he was sure that within a few days the well known photographer ought to be around as good as ever in health.

Fine Production by Stock Co.

The great comedy play, "Are You a Mason?" pleased large audiences at The Plainfield theatre, yesterday afternoon and evening, the permanent stock company giving finished performances. The numerous amusing situations keep the audience in continual laughter. This play will be continued today and tomorrow, and on Monday and Tuesday Clyde Fitch's play, "Girls," will be presented

TENNIS TOURNAMENT AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

The great interest that is being taken in lawn tennis at the Plainfield Country Club has led to the scheduling of a mixed doubles tournament. Play will begin at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, October 8, and will be continued either on Columbus Day, October 12, or the following Saturday, October 15.

The competition is open to all members of the club, and sufficient entries have been received to ensure a successful tournament. Entries close at 8:15 p. m., Friday, October 7, with S. W. Merrihew, 1016 South avenue.

This is the first tournament for players of both sexes that has been held at the Club for a number of years, and for this reason the meeting has aroused a great deal of interest among the players.

RANDOLPH TO PITCH HERE ON SATURDAY

The fourth game in the series of five arranged between Plainfield and Somerville, will be played at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, and should attract a large crowd, even though Somerville has taken two of the three games played. There is a possibility that "Cliff" Randolph, of this city, who is now on the staff of the Providence Eastern League club, may pitch for his old team. If Randolph returns in time he will be used, otherwise, Ward, of Newark, will officiate.

Plainfield is determined to take Saturday's contest and the players will put forth every effort to win. That Somerville will do all that is possible to make it three straight goes without saying. The county seat boys never give up until the last man is cut. Clinton and Torpey will be in the points for Somerville. Otherwise they will present their regular lineup. If Plainfield wins on Saturday the fifth game will be played at Somerville.

BOYS GOLF TOURNEY ON THE P. C. C. COURSE

The Golf committee of the Plainfield Country Club has arranged for a boys' golf tournament, for boys under fifteen years of age, to be played Saturday mornings, October 8, 15, 22 and 29, 18 holes, medal play, handicap. Players returning the three lowest net scores each Saturday to receive three, two and one points respectively, and the player having the greatest number of points at the end to be declared the winner. The prize will be presented by Geo. P. Mellick.

Boys wishing to enter this competition who have not turned in scores may report to the superintendent, John Hilton, at the office giving information in regard to scores they have made. All players must enter their names on the score sheet before starting from the first tee and upon completion of round must post score properly attested.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS TO PLAY FOOTBALL THIS FALL.

At the urgent request of the members of the boys' department at the Y. M. C. A., Boys' Secretary Bingaman has consented to devote some of his time to the organization and training of a football team and plans are now under way for a creditable representation on the gridiron. A preliminary meeting was held yesterday afternoon at which Schuyler Line was elected manager and William Peacock temporary captain. Fifteen applicants were present and the only stipulations are that the boys be members of the Y. M. C. A. and have their parents' consent to play.

The eleven will meet such as the Stillman School, the Holy Cross seconds and Union street organizations.

A practice was held yesterday, and the boys will meet again tomorrow afternoon to go over signals.

Great Sketch at Proctor's.

John E. Brennan & Co., formerly of "Way Down East," will present a New England rural sketch, "Back Home Again," at Proctor's theatre, today. Aleko & Aktheris, thaumaturgists from the far East will give an interesting performance. Conley & Mack, comedy entertainers, and Rowland, comedy jugglers, complete the bill with motion pictures.

Funeral of Mrs. Wilcox.

The funeral of Mrs. Farozina Wilcox, aged 97 years, who died yesterday, will be held from the Hospital for Incurables, 3d avenue and 183d street, New York city, tomorrow morning, at 8:30 o'clock, and the burial will be at Preble N. Y., the same day.

A INVITATION TO THE PUBLIC

A cordial invitation is extended by The State Trust Company to the Public generally to inspect its round door Manganese steel vault and modern banking house equipment on Saturday afternoon and evening, Oct. 8th, from 3 to 5 p. m. and from 7 to 10 p. m. A souvenir will be distributed to visitors to commemorate the occasion.

THE STATE TRUST COMPANY

CALLS WILSON THEORIST

LEWIS' STIRRING SPEECH.

Kean Points Out That G. O. P. Nominee is Experienced in Conduct of State's Affairs.

Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican candidate for Governor, opened his campaign at Hackensack last night, when he told about a thousand members of the Union League Club, of that city, at a reception just how he stood on the most important questions of the campaign. The club members and their friends, among them many commuters, also heard United States Senator Kean and former Governor Griggs pitch into Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic candidate, and his supporters.

"The time has passed," said Mr. Lewis, "when any candidate for office can refuse to take the people into his confidence. He owes it to the public to tell where he stands on all important issues of the day if he expects to get their votes at the polls. I favor a rate making clause in the public utilities law, so that there will be the reasonablest of rates and so that the commuters will not be unfairly treated.

"I favor Civil Service reform. I also favor purity in primaries and elections, and I hope to see the day when not a dollar can be spent at either primaries or elections. I see no harm in the distribution of ballots at the public expense, and I also see no harm in ballots being kept in the polling places. I also favor ballot reform."

Mr. Lewis said he appreciated the confidence placed in him and felt assured that he would carry the Republican standard to victory in November.

Mr. Griggs paid his respects to "Jim" Nugent and "Jim" Smith, who controlled the convention which nominated Dr. Wilson, and said some hard things about Colonel George Harvey, who engineered Dr. Wilson's nomination.

Calls Wilson "Theorist."

"The schoolmaster running for Governor," said Mr. Griggs, "and going about the State speaking without any opposition is very much elated because he has brought himself to believe that there are no Republicans in the State. He will find there is a Republican party after election day. He speaks of the insurgents and 'standpatters.' He is a theorist and an academician.

"There are no insurgents in the Republican party. All differences were settled at the Trenton convention when a candidate for Governor was chosen and a platform was adopted. All loyal Republicans were simply Republicans. They stand pat on the candidate for Governor and the platform adopted, which began with indorsing the admirable administration of President Taft, who has proceeded with efficient and progressive legislation in the interests of the people than was ever enacted in so short a time.

"Let Dr. Wilson consult with Colonel Harvey, of New York, if he wants to know who nominated him, who was a protege and business associate of William C. Whitney and Mr. Ryan at the time when they were balooning the securities of the Metropolitan Street Railway, of New York, and at a time when they were dealing out contributions to members of the New York Legislature regardless of parties, and will Mr. Wilson tell us what part, or cut, Mr. Harvey is to have in his council and legislature after he is elected Governor?"

Hits at the "Two Jims."

"Mr. Lewis," said Senator Kean, "has had thorough experience in the conduct of the offices of the State. On the other hand, his opponent is a gentleman who for some years has been president of and conducted with dignity the affairs of Princeton University. Of course, he was told that he is responsible to no one for his nomination, because, no doubt, he would probably not care to have these two gentlemen who are commonly known throughout the State as the 'two Jims,' because he is too high minded to have for his sponsors anything which might belong to what Griggs used to call 'the old gang of the Democratic party.'"

Mr. Lewis said he would discuss the issues in more detail later on.

MOY'S CAMPAIGN OPENS

Bi-Partisan League Candidate Alleges There Was Corruption at Primaries.

ATTACK ON ADMINISTRATION.

Some 200 Voters Hear His First Speech at Reform Hall—R. Henry Depew Presides at the Meeting.

Charging that there was corruption at the recent Republican primaries and because of it he was absolved from any allegience to his party, George W. V. Moy, the Bi-partisan and Democratic candidate for the mayoralty, last night presented this and other reasons as a justification for his running for the office though defeated for the Republican nomination. After making his position clear on this matter, he delivered a severe arraignment of the local administration of affairs and promised to furnish a bill of particulars for his bitter denunciation of the heads of departments.

There were some 200 voters gathered at Reform hall to hear the candidate, a goodly proportion of whom were Democrats. City Clerk James T. MacMurray, until the defeat of Charles N. Fowler for the Congressional nomination one of the strongest so-called "machine" leaders, was conspicuous in the audience. Others included Howard C. Tracy, who has persistently fought the Republican organization and worked for Fowler and Moy at the Republican primaries; R. Henry Depew, who was defeated by Charles J. Fisk for the Republican primary nomination four years ago, and P. J. Reville, a Democrat, who once worked in the postoffice. As president of the league Mr. Depew acted as chairman, and he told his audience that "we have been fought at every turn by the machine and the bosses."

Mr. Moy said:

"I am a candidate for Mayor as announced by me on a platform sometime ago. I am informed that Mr. MacCardell states that I am to receive a good licking, and as he is popularly supposed to carry the vote of the entire city in his vest pocket, perhaps I had beter write 'finis' now, and yet it may be found that there are a sufficiency of independent voters in the city of Plainfield to elect an independent citizen. I feel encouraged to believe that it is so, and therefore I shall not give up yet.

"I learn from the opposition, the standpatter, the regular, 'that I am narrow; a radical, and that I will raise hell if I get in there.' I won't take it in with me, but I certainly will do something if I find it there. From the view point of the standpatter and the regular, the job holder, anyone who sets up opposition to their personal wishes and desires is not to be tolerated. Party harmony must be maintained. Stand by the organization is always the cry, and anyone who fails to stand by the machine is a traitor.

"I have been informed that I am making a fatal mistake and that I now need look for nothing from the machine, that politically I am dead and buried; all of which strange to say does not depress me. Let me confess to you that it would be impossible for me or for a man of my views to be a machine candidate. If I had wanted that questionable honor I should have gone to the machine, and have made known my request; I should have gotton down on my knees and held up my hands for the shakles; I should have surrendered my conscience and my liberty, my right of free speech and of free action, and every other right that an American citizen holds most dear. Defeat is not pleasant but defeat with honor, is to me immeasurably sweeter and more to be cherished than could be any victory growing out of a surrender of my independence. It has been charged that I am inconsistent; that I should abide by the primary, and if I had gone into that primary as a regular it might perhaps be said with some show of reason that I was bound by it, providing, of course, that the primary was an honest primary, free from bribery, free from corruption, a conscientious expression of the people's will.

"Although when I look back into the history of this city, and find that my opponent some years ago, not being satisfied with the regular Republican primary, joined hands with our friends, the Democrats, entered the lists on what was known as the People's Union ticket, with a Democrat at the head of the ticket, which ticket was elected over the regular Republican ticket. I do not offer this as a criticism of Mr. Coriell's conduct at that time, he was perfectly free to act as he did, but in view of this fact criticism from the opposition of me in not abiding by the result of the primary would be in poor grace if I were a regular pre-

WOMAN'S GOLF TOURNEY WAS A FINE EXHIBITION

Those who witnessed the women's golf tournament at the Plainfield Country Club, Tuesday, saw some fine exhibitions of the ancient game. The best selected score in the 18-hole handicap in the Women's Metropolitan tournament, was 71, and a glance at the score in detail is intersting. It was as follows:

Out ..3 4 4 3 6 5 3 4 4—36
In ...5 3 3 4 4 3 4 6 3—35—71

The 3 at the first hole was made by Mrs. Faith, of the Wykagyl Club. The 4 at the second hole was made by five players. Mrs. Callan, Englewood, and Miss Rosencrantz, Englewood, were the only ones to get 4 at the third hole, and at the fourth hole Mrs. Callan was the only one to get a 3. At the fifth hole there was nothing better than 6 made by Miss Margaret Goddard, Plainfield; Mrs. Frayne, Dunwoodie, and Mrs. Callan, Englewood. At the sixth 5 was the best made by Miss Rosencrantz, Ridgewood; Mrs. Faith, Wykagyl and Mrs. Cunningham, Englewood.

At the seventh hole, Mrs. Hayes, Midland, winner of the gross prize, was the only one to get 3, and at the eighth hole Mrs. H. R. Stockton, Plainfield, was the only one to get 4. At the ninth hole six players got 4. At the tenth 5 was the best, made by Mrs. Hayes, Midland; Mrs. Polhemus, Richmond county, and Miss Cooper, Montclair. There were two who made 3 at the eleventh, Mrs. Hayes, Midland, and Mrs. Stockton, Plainfield. At the twelfth, Mrs. N. P. Rogers, Baltusrol, was the only one to get 3. At the thirteenth Mrs. Faith, Wykagyl, was the only one to get 4. Six players made 4's at the fourteenth.

At the fifteenth, Miss Titus, Plainfield, and Mrs. Rogers, Baltusrol, were the only ones to get 3. At the sixteenth, 4 was the best, made by several, and at the seventeenth 6 was made by several. At the eighteenth, the home hole, Miss Rosencrantz, Ridgewood, was the only one to get 3.

The event at the club tomorrow will be the continuation of play for the championship, second round match play for the three sixteens in championship and first round for th three defeated eights.

Mrs. Sewell, of 836 Sherman avenue, reported to the police at 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon that her ten-year-old son Putnam, while riding a wheel near the corner of Grant avenue and West Front street was run down and knocked from his wheel and the wheel wrecked. Young Sewell was severely bruised.

The police have found that the automobile is the property of William H. Stalee, of Highland Park. It was being driven by one of three women who were in the car and in order to get ahead of a main line trolley car and avoid a stone wagon which was on the right side of the road, the car was steered to the left side of the road and in doing so ran into the boy who was clearly on the right side going west.

Mr. Stalee told the police this morning that he thought the boy was as much to blame as himself and that he thought he had done his duty when he picked him up and took him home. When he left Mrs. Sewell's house after placing her son in her care, he refused to give his name, but fortunately the number of the car was taken and it was easily traced.

According to the police the automobile driver was clearly to blame for the accident as she had no right to drive on the left side of the road. They have notified Mr. Stalee that the boy's wheel was wrecked and also that he is injured. The number of the car was 13,104.

Urged Garbage Collection.

Among the important questions considered at the Board of Trade, last night, was that of garbage collection. William Jeffrey introduced the subject, and said that it was about time the city undertook the collection of garbage in a systematic way.

Will Start Cart-Tail Campaign.

The cart-tail campaign which was promised by George W. V. Moy, for this campaign, will begin tomorrow night. He will speak from an automobile at 8 o'clock at the corner of Park avenue and Second street.

RUNAWAY DAUGHTER WED

DESPITE PARENTS' PROTEST.

Joseph Witmann, of Mt. Bethel, Took Her as His Wife—The Couple Were Located Yesterday.

In spite of her parents' wishes, Miss Lilly Bremmer was married yesterday to Joseph Witmann, a carpenter, of Mt. Bethel, by Rev. Carl Girtanner, pastor of the First German Reformed church, of Newark, after the couple had been held up by the police of that city awaiting the appearance of the father of the girl, who had been searching for her since Monday, September 26.

Thus ended the disappearance and re-appearance of the young woman who has caused her father and mother so much anxiety. She declared yesterday, when her father tried to induce her to return to her home that she was of age and could marry whomsoever she wanted and that she had chosen the widower who had been wooing her for the past year.

Witmann has two children and is about 45 years old. He is quite well off and says he can take good care of his new wife.

When questioned as to her absence Mrs. Witmann said that when she found that she had lost the money she had earned at Norfolk, N. Y., she became frightened and did not want to go home to her parents. So she obtained employment in a department store in Manhattan and was getting along nicely until she became homesick. She went as far as Newark, met Witmann and through the application for a license to marry her parents obtained knowledge of her whereabouts. The couple have gone to Mt. Bethel to live.

Mrs. Witmann did not say where she lost the money.

OPENING RECEPTION AT THE LOCAL Y. W. C. A.

The opening of the fall and winter season at the Y. W. C. A. was formally marked at the association building yesterday by a reception and tea held from 3 to 10 in the afternoon. A large number of visitors dropped in and received a cordial welcome. During the evening the attendance numbered fully 150. The reception room was prettily decorated with red and yellow coxcombs and yellow daisies, while the dining room trimmed with autumn leaves and asters.

Mrs. Elliott T. Barrows poured tea during the afternoon and was assisted by Mrs. Lewis Williams and Miss Marion Brown. Mrs. Barrows also presided during the evening and was assisted by Mrs. Percy Stewart and Miss May Tennant. Miss Brown was in charge of the punch bowl.

A large number of registrations for classes were made and within a short time some of them will have to be closed. This is especially true of the cooking and dressmaking departments. Several of the teachers were present last evening and discussed the work with prospective members.

Providing the weather is agreeable a delegation from the association will enjoy an outing to Washington Rock tomorrow.

TRIENNIAL CONVENTION OF Y. M. C. A. OCT. 28-31.

The local Y. M. C. A. has appointed Secretary H. E. Parker and Henry W. Herrman, of the board of Directors, as delegates to the triennial convention of the North American Y. M. C. A. at Toronto, Can., October 28 to 31. It promises to be the most important gathering of the kind ever held in the United States or Canada, and will draw many of the most noted literary and religious workers in the country.

The list of speakers already announced ncludes Dr. John R. Mott, of New York. Dr. James L. Gordon, of Winnepeg; Hon. J. McDonald, Toronto; Alfred Marling, New York; Christian Phildins, Geneva, Switzerland; Ernest Thompson Seton, New York; and F. S. Brockman, national secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in China.

Will Celebrate "Columbus Day."

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, has decided to hold a dinner at the Hotel Waldorf on East Front street, Wednesday evening, October 12, at 8.30, in celebration of Columbus Day. The affair will be for members only and there will be two or three good speakers.

MISS VIOLA GERNON WEDS K. G. GRAHAM

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Gerwin, at 143 Crescent avenue, was the scene of a charming home wedding yesterday, when Miss Viola May Gernon was given in marriage to Kenneth Thorley Graham, of Liverpool, England. The cermony took place at 4 o'clock, Rev. Charles E. Jefferson, D. D., pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, officiating. The home was beautifully decorated with cosmos; the bridal pair standing beneath an arch of green, through which streamed the light from screened electric bulbs.

Miss Gernon was given away by her father, Miss Audrew Gernon, her youngest sister, acting as her maid-of-honor. The bride was gownd in white satin trimmed with velvet and fine lace. She wore the groom's gift, a diamond pendant.

Miss Gernon is an ardent music lover and a pupil of the late Edward MacDowell. She had prepared a special musical program which was finely rendered by the De Nike Trio, of New York.

The invitations to the wedding included none but relatives and intimate friends. The American and English friends of the young couple remembered them with many handsome gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham will make their home in Liverpool.

MRS WM. H. LOIZEAUX OBTAINS A SEPARATION

Mrs. William H. Loizeaux, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. E. P. Williams, of West Eighth street, has obtained a legal separation from her husband, whose whereabouts are unknown to her but who is believed to be in New York. Shortly before coming East a week ago, she received a decree in the courts at Los Angeles, Cal., where she has resided since 1908. At that time Mrs. Loizeaux went West with her father, both in search of health, and he died shortly after they arrived at Los Angeles. According to a member of the wife's family, intemperance and non-support were the grounds set forth in the petition.

Mrs. Loizeaux, who was Miss Florence Williams, was considered one of the handsomest young women in society here at the time of her marriage to Mr. Loizeaux. It is reported that shortly after their marriage the husband cleaned up $200,000 in a speculation on a western railroad stock, but he soon lost his fortune, it is claimed. When asked whether a divorce would follow, one of the family stated that in all probability it would.

PLAINFIELD ELKS TO OWN NEW CLUB HOUSE.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., has purchased the property at 116 Watchung avenue, and will shortly begin the razing of the wooden structure now standing there and start the excavation for their new club house. The dimensions are fifty-two feet front on Watchung avenue by 165 feet in depth. The selection of this property was made after a committee having the matter in charge had visited several sites which were offered for sale.

It is proposed to erect on this big lot an up-to-date club house with everything necessary to make it one of the best in the State. It is a notable fact that lodges of this order are building their own club houses gradually bringing the order to the front ranks of fraternal organizations. The plans for the building have not yet been drawn.

Caught Horse and Scraped Leg.

In attempting to stop J. M. Hardy's runaway horse yesterday afternoon William L. Smalley, Jr., had a narrow escape from serious injury. His own horse, which he had used to run down the other horse, attempted to run away. Mr. Smalley climbed in the rear of his wagon and soon stopped his animal, but in doing it scraped the skin off his left shin. Grover Schuck caught Mr. Hardy's horse and stopped it at the corner of Second place and Ninth street.

JR. O. U. A. M. CELEBRATION

Rev. J. M. Reid and Others Speak at Twenty-Third Anniversary Observance.

FRANKLIN COUNCIL STRONG.

Its Assets Amount to $6,000—W. B. LaRue and W. H. Miers Among Those Who Congratulate the Organization.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., celebrated its twenty-third anniversary in Junior Hall, last night, the affair being enjoyed by a large number of members, as well as those of the other councils of the city. Among those present who spoke were Rev. J. Morgan Reid, of Pennington Seminary, State treasurer of the order; State Vice-Councilor W. B. LaRue, of Bound Brook, and State Council Secretary W. H. Meiers, of Trenton.

The program was in charge of Councilor Derr Silvious, and during the evening a short sketch of the council's growth was presented by the secretary. The council was instituted twenty-three years ago in Sons of Temperance Hall, which was then over the City National Bank, and it was the first one of the order to be organized in this city. The council has continued to grow until today it has a membership of 393 and new members are constantly being received.

Financially, the council is in excellent condition. It has a $2,000 building loan share expiring in the spring and altogether the council is worth in the neighborhood of $6,000. Its funds have been invested in building loan shares, bring good returns.

After the congratulatory speeches and presentation of reports, there was a social hour during which refreshments were served under the direction of the good and welfare committee, of which George D. Wilson is the chairman.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS HOLD INITIAL RALLY

The North Plainfield Republican Club held the first rally and smoker of the present campaign at its rooms in the Eggerding building last night. The place was filled to its capacity and much enthusiasm was shown.

Alex. Milne called the meeting to order and Mayor N. B. Smalley was made chairman. The latter made a splendid address dealing with State and local candidates and others were made by James E. Church and Charles Place. All predicted success for the Republican candidates despite the contention of the opposing party that the prospects were never brighter.

The club will hold meetings once or twice a week from now on until election.

MISS LILLIAN ARNOLD RADCLIFFE BACON'S BRIDE.

Miss Lillian Arnold, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Arnold, of New York, and a cousin of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, was married yesterday afternoon to Radcliffe Bacon, also of New York. The ceremony took place at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Herring in "The Bristol," on West Front street.

Rev. Dr. Herring performed the ceremony, and those who attended the couple were Mrs. Herring and Mrs. Walter Van Camp. After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in New York, where the groom is engaged in business.

Tom Muir Will Entertain.

In connection with the Hope chapl Industrial Fair, to be held at the chapel, October 26-28, there will be a special entertainment in the gymnasium every evening, presenting Tom Muir, the original Plainfield comedian, under the auspices of the Judge William N. Runyon Association and Young Men's Bible class. The Ladies' Aid Society will serve a regular supper every evening from 7 to 10 o'clock.

Rev. Royal A. Stout Speaks.

Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, made an address at the West End Tabernacle, last night, taking for his subject, "The Way of Salvation Appointed by God for Man to Be Saved."

DOMESTIC STRIFE AIRED IN THE POLICE COURT

Several tilts between counsel marked the trial of Warren Walp this morning, who was arrested on September 22 by Patrolman Andrew Saffron for alleged disorderly conduct. In the absence of Judge William N. Runyon, Mayor Charles J. Fisk presided in the city court and at the conclusion of the arguments of counsel reserved decision until Monday morning. William G. DeMeza appeared for Patrolman Saffron and Robert Newton Crane for Walp.

In his testimony Saffron declared that on the day in question Walp passed him on the corner of Front and Park avenue and greetd him with a sardonic, or contemptuous laugh and passed the "merry ha! ha!" at him in a most insulting manner. Then in about ten minutes, it is alleged Walp returned to the corner and repeated the performance. Saffron, it is alleged, asked Walp who he thought he was insulting, and Walp replied with an epithet. Then Saffron said he slapped Walp in the face and placed him under arrest. Walp was taken to headquarters, searched and confined in a cell until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he was relased upon an order from Judge Runyon.

Walp in his own behalf denied having insulted or used profane language to Saffron. He said that he had boarded at Saffron's home for abour four years and that finally the patrolman ordered him out of the house. He declared that Saffron struck and choked him and pushed him up against the wall of the City National Bank. F. A. Duttenhofer, William Morton, Albert Allen, Gustav Romond, all saw the striking by Saffron, but acknowledged that they heard none of the preceding conversation. Detective Sergeant Flynn said that Walp was under the influence of liquor.

The trouble between the two men dates back to Christmas, 1909, and it is alleged that Saffron had cause to feel some enmity toward Walp for the latter's alleged conduct with Mrs. Saffron, and it is believed that the whole trouble may be laid to this fact. Saffron said that many times while riding his wheel and had passed Walp on the street the latter had taken pains to insult him. This was denied by Walp.

MARTINE DECLARES HE IS HIS PARTY'S CHOICE

Declaring that he is as much the nominee of the Democratic party for United States Senator as is Dr. Woodrow Wilson for governor, James E. Martine, said today that in the event of a Democratic Legislature, his party on joint ballot can not and dare not ignore his claim to succeed John Kean at Washington. As for the story that former United States Sentor James Smith, Jr., accomplished the nomination of Dr. Wilson solely to make himself solid for the senatorship forecasting a Democratic landslide that would put the party in power in the Legislature, the "farmer orator" declared that he didn't care a fig for Mr. Smith's alleged aim. He takes to himelf a share of the credit in the gubernatorial selection.

"I feel that I am as much a candidate before the people of the State of New Jersey for the position of United States Senator as is Dr. Wilson for our governor," said Mr. Martine. "At the primaries I received nearly 50,000 votes, expressive of the people's will, an overwhelming majority over my opponent, Mr. McDermit. This was quite as strong a declaration of preference as the governor obtained at the State convention. I don't care a fig about this story of 'Jim' Smith's plans. He is a Democrat and as such sat in the State convention where he voted for the platform which declared in favor of the election of United States Senator by the people. I am unwilling to believe that after such action he would plot to defeat the people's will. My contest is a serious matter. Without arrogating to myself superior wisdom, I feel that I am intellectually and morally as well fitted as either John Kean or Frank O. Briggs."

FIRE DEPARTMENT NEEDS

ECHOES OF CHARTER DAY.

National Press of New York Roasted —Better Lights for Business Section Agitated—Lecture on "Anglophone."

Echoes of Plainfield's Charter Day celebration were heard at the October meeting of the Board of Trade last night, when the bill for $420.70 for badges used on that memorable (?) occarion, was presented and was followed by a lively discussion in which William Jeffery, Eugene M. Laing and Mayor C. J. Fisk took part. Mr. Jeffery said that the bill was a legacy left to the board, and the members were in honor bound to meet the obligation.

It was explained by the president that $100 had been paid on account of this bill, leaving a balance of about $320. He suggested that an entertainment of some sort be arranged to liquidate the indebtedness. He named George M. Christian as chairman of a committee for that purpose and said he would select the other members later.

Later in the evening when E. M. Laing appeared, there was further discussion concerning the bill, in which Mr. Laing had some unpleasant things to say of the National Press, of New York, publishers of the official program, stating that if they had kept their agreement, the badge bill would have been paid long ago. Mr. Laing said that the committee had not received a dollar from the National Press, their latest proposition being to settle with the board for $51.62.

Mr. Jeffery admitted that the National Press "has it on" the board and there is nothing left to do but pay the bill. He said that there were so many loop-holes in the contract with the New York concern it could easily crawl out of its agreement.

A motion offered by Mayor Fisk that the bill be referred to the executive committee with power to settle, finally prevailed.

Mr. Jeffery then took the floor and opened a discussion of matters pertaining to the fire department. He had prepared a long list of desired improvements, including new mattresses for several fire-houses, a full complement of horses for the department, new flooring for headquarters' house, a steamer for the East End house, better water pressure, more regular firemen with increased pay and more fire hydrants. He then suggested the adoption of a resolution to be sent to the Common Council favoring these improvements. It was seconded, but not adopted.

Resporting to Mr. Jeffery, Mayor Fisk took up each suggested improvement, calling attention to the fact that new mattresses had been ordered, new furnishings were about to be installed in the West Second street house, but owing to the fact that this house will not warrant it, the fire committee refrained from spending any more money there than is absolutely necessary. Some day, it is hoped, a modern house will be erected.

Regarding a steamer for the East End house, Mr. Fisk said that the committee would like to equip headquarters with an auto-steamer and send the present steamer to the East End. As for the hose, he said that the committee plans to buy one thousand feet each year. He recognized that greater water pressure is needed, but advised waiting until James Fuertes, the water expert, presents his report, before taking the matter up at greater length. As for more regular firemen with increased pay, he advised leaving that matter for the consideration of the fire committee.

The fire department matters being disposed of, the question of beter lighting facilities for the business section was received. In the opinion of Mr. Jeffery an attractive and inexpensive system should be established. He suggested Tungsten lamps, about three on each pole, distributed about one hundred feet apart, alternately on both sides of the business streets. It was stated that on that basis, 108 lamps, the number specified at $15.50 would cost about $1,640, and it was believed that the plans could be modified. B. Frank Coriell advised the exercise of care in making this improvement, and it was also suggested that it might be wise to improve one street at a time. Mr. Fisk explained that lights are a special tax and the Common Council cannot exceed the levy. He suggested that the matter be taken up with the light committee before the appropriation for next year is fixed. Personally, he favored an entirely new light contract, one that would bring about better results and more uniformity

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, will meet Sunday night at 6:45 o'clock, the subject being "Forward Steps in Our Society." F. L. Soper, Jr., will be the leader.

Reno Divorce Invalid.

In an important State Supreme Court decision just announced in New York City, it is ruled that a woman who goes to Nevada for the purpose of obtaining a divorce and then returns to New York State, is still the wife of that husband. It is declared that the New York courts may arrive at this conclusion from any evidence which shows that divorce proceedings were instituted as soon as she had remained in Nevada long enough to satisfy the authorities there that she had obtained a residence. The Reno divorce, the court rules, is void for want of jurisdiction.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Who was that silly vain male creature who first said that woman had no sense of humor? Out upon him, and all his silly, vain descendants who have kept up the libel! It was fitting that the base falsehood should be refuted by one of the same "unfair sex," J. M. Barrie, in his quaint, delightful play, "What Every Woman Knows," which Charles Frohman is to present at the Plainfield theatre, tomorrow night, with Maude Adams in the stellar role, gives woman full credit for a well developed, mellow sense of humor; and he adds a sly hint of lordly man's deficiency in the "saving sense" by saying through Maggie Wylie that "Eve was not made from the rib of Adam—she was made from his funny bone." Barrie was never so delightfully humorous or never so thoroughly human as he is in his new play. In it he tells a story that has a heart throb in it, and it makes an appeal that no one can resist. It is the best play and contains the best part from the acting standpoint that Miss Adams has had in some time and her success in it could not be more pronounced.

W. H. Crane, who is to appear at the Plainfield theatre, Wednesday night, October 21, in "Father and the Boy," first fixed himself firmly in the public estimate as the racy, homely square-dealing type of American in "The Senator." Previous to that he had been "Billy" Crane. Thereafter he was "William" when, with the late Stuart Robson, he made a superb production of Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors." As the two Dromies, the two comedians made one of their finest successes, and Mr. Crane copied Robeson's imperimentary lisp, squeakingly upward inflection and rolling eyes so exactly that audiences found it as hard as persons in the play did to discern whether the Dromie at any time was Crane or Robson. The production of "The Mrry Wives of Windsor" made by Crane, has never been equalled in England or America.

LEWIS ITINERARY CHANGED; IN PLAINFIELD OCTOBER 15.

Several changes were anounced yesterday in the fentative itinerary which had been arranged for the campaign of Vivian M. Lewis, which will formally open in Hudson county on Saturday. Mr. Lewis, as originally planned, will devote next Monday to Monmouth county and Tuesday to Ocean county.

In Monmouth Monday he will meet the Republican leaders at a monster clambake at J. H. Wardell's Port-au-Peck Hotel, arrangements for which were completed yesterday. Covers will be spread for 500. Mr. Lewis will make the principal address. Others who will be present and speak will include Governor Fort, former Governors Griggs, Stokes and Voorhees, United States Senators Briggs and Kean, Congressman C. N. Fowe and G. L. Record. Mr. Lewis will visit Long Branch later and address the voters.

The first change is in the schedule for Wednesday, when he will speak in Elizabeth, instead of going to Burlington county. The Burlington tour will be made on Thursday, and the speech in Plainfield, which had been arranged for that day, will be put off until the following Saturday. Mr. Lewis will speak in Trenton on Friday of next week, as previously announced. The trips through Warren and Sussex counties which had been planned for Friday and Saturday will be arranged for later.

SUES FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.

New Jersey Girl Says Young Man Left Town on Eve of Wedding.

Miss Lizzie Oshra, twenty-two years old, of Paterson, has brought suit for breach of promise against Adolph Schall, twenty-three years old, who lives in the Riverside section of that city. She alleges that she and Schall had known each other for a long time and that he was very attentive to her, taking her to theatres and various kinds of entertainments. Finally they became engaged to be married, she says, and the wedding day was set for December 25, 1908.

Schall, she alleges, did not keep his promise to marry her and left the city. After she had found him in Connecticut she instituted a suit for breach of promise.

Schall says he never promised to marry the young woman. He says he was friendly with her family and he admits having taken her out frequently. He says she tried to force herself upon him, and that to get rid of her he was compelled to leave the city. He has retained counsel to defend the action.

Blood Poisoning from Fox Bite.

Oliver Struble, a Hampton township butcher, is suffering from blood poisoning of the right hand that became affected in an odd manner. Struble has a pet fox. Sunday, September 25, the animal got into the Struble hennery and was making a raid, when its master heard the row and went to investigate. He found the farm dog wrestling with the pet. Struble grabbed it to save it from the dog and the animal sank its fangs in his hand. Blood poisoning developed.

GOLF.

In accordance with the constitution of the United States Golf Association the new nominating committee elected at the annual meeting in January must submit the 1911 ticket to the executive committee by November 1, so that notification may be sent to all clubs not later than November 15. Up to date there has never been any opposition ticket, but it is now possible for five active club members to oppose the regular nomination with one of their own choosing.

Thus far nothing definite is known as to the nominating committee's progress, but there is a rumor that the presidency will be offered to a Western man. W. A. Alexander, of Chicago, is the first vice-president now. The next annual meeting will be held in Chicago in January. Since the nominating committee was named John E. Borne, of Garden City, the chairman, has died, and under the constitution the vacancy made by the death of this member may be filled by the remaining associates on the committee. Herbert J. Jaques, president of the United States Golf Association, has written to the nominators reminding them of this duty.

A VICIOUS AUTO DRIVER.

The police had their hands full Wednesday night when Herman Sauer, formerly proprietor of the Wheatsheaf Hotel, was arrested for reckless driving in an automobile at Roselle.

Sauer's machine came near running down School Commissioner Porter H. Guard. Patrolman Fenton Keenan stopped the car and attempted to take Sauer before Judge Van S. Roosa. The autoist attacked the officer and tore his shield from his coat.

In Judge Roosa's office, it is alleged, Sauer became so aggressive that the judge was obliged to choke the man into quietness. Sauer was fined $15, which he paid.

RUNAWAY BOSSY STRAYS INTO FAIR, WINS PRIZE.

Judge Edmund Waddill, of the United States District Court, of Richmond, Va., has recovered his valuable Jersey cow, which strayed from his country home, near the Virginia State fair grounds, and she is now more valuable than ever for, during her absence, unassisted by any grooming, she won a red ribbon at the fair.

The cow was discovered in the fair grounds by an attendant, who thought she was an exhibit and placed her in the proper place for cows of her class. When the judging came off yesterday she was given the ribbon.

Wednesday the attendant who discovered her in the grounds saw an advertisement in a local paper accurately describing his find, and on investigation returned to the judge his prize milker and benefited to the extent of the cash prize she had captured.

DOCTORS AND MORPHINE.

A so-called "morphine fiend" has appealed to the medical profession to "stop converting sick persons into hopeless mental and physical wrecks by dosing them with opium."

Such an appeal as this is worthy of more than passing notice. It is worthy of atention from every member of the medical profession every where and from every person interested in human welfare.

There has long been no room for doubt that some doctors resort recklessly to morphine to repress symptoms of disease which are are unable to diagnose or too indifferent to treat properly.

Every great city has its crops of regularly licensed physicians who in their entire practice use little other medicine than morphine in its various forms. It's true, these are not in good standing with the honorable members of their profession. But the fact that they can exist is a ceaseless reproach to all.

And unfortunately, the free administration of the seductive drug is not confined to physicians of low standing and loose morals. Leading physicians are prone to resort promptly to this ready method of relieving pain.

The habit of using the drug is easily fixed and hard to break, and it may be traced probably in a great number of instances to physicians' prescriptions for the temporary alleviation of pain.

Whether ignorance, laziness or carelessness causes such results, it is morally inexcusable f not actually criminal.

It is less cruel to permit a man to suffer from temporary ills than to permanently deprive him of health, mind and moral responsibility.

Every case of morphine habit traceabl to a doctor is a reproach to the medical profession and for their own credit physicians are bound to fine a remedy for the evil.

It is a matter that societies exercising control over the medical profession can not consider too seriously.—Illinois State Journal.

"PIRATICAL" TALK AS COMING FROM BROKER.

"We are pirates and when a man comes to us with $1,000 or $5,000 it is up to us not to let the money get away." That is what William W. Tracey in substance said to his partner, Robert D. Covington, according to Covington's testimony Wednesday before Justice O'Gorman in the Criminal court, New York, where Tracey is on trial for the larceny of $5,200 worth of securities that belonged to Herman Kahle, Jr., of The Bronx.

Later when Tracy took the stand in his own behalf he denied using the expression or giving any such advice to Covington.

According to Covington, Tracy talked about being pirates just a few days before the firm of Tracy & Co., of 40 Wall street, went to the wall with liabilities of something like $1,250,000 and assets of $150,000. Covington had remarked that he had given to a customer advice by which he believed the customer would make some money. Tracy took him to task for letting the chance get away from the firm.

Judging by Appearances.

"Dat tree has been struck three times by lightnin', boss," said Sam.

MR. MOY'S CANDIDACY.

Contrary to political ethics, George W. V. Moy has become the candidate of the Bi-partisan League and the Democratic party for the mayoralty, after having been defeated at the Republican primaries. Thus he has read himself out of his party to which in the past he has rendered valuable services and in whose organization he was until a few days ago vice-chairman of the city committee. Last night he attempted to justify his position to his audience at Reform hall. He alleged that there had been corrupton at the primaries and that other Republicans had run on tickets not of their own party.

As to what others have done, furnishes no justification for Mr. Moy. It is a question of what is right and what is wrong, and precedents are not material. As for the alleged bribery, if such a grave charge can be proven by the candidate, it was and is his duty to cause the arrest of the guilty persons without delay and to see that they are punished. Such is his duty as a citizen. If it is shown that by such corruption he was robbed of the nomination, he has done a good work as a citizen, a far greater service than probably he or any other man could render as a mayor. His failure to do so and his present position as a candidate on another ticket to many will appear as simply a revengeful attitude.

The latter part of the evening was devoted to an illustrated talk, through the use of charts, on "The English Phonetic Alphabet," or "Anglophone," by Dr. J. W. Shearer, of Virginia. He spoke for nearly an hour, explaining the many intricate points in the English language as written and spoken, and it proved to be very interesting.

MADE-OVER GARMENT.

"When I have a dress to make over," said a practical woman, "I always rip it completely, clean and press it, and put it away for two seasons. Then when I take it out again and fashion it in the latest mode, I have a dress that not my closest friends will recognize. People's memories last over one season, but never over two.

"If the material is a very striking color, I often dye it a slightly darker shade. Then if somebody remarks that my new garment is very like my old cerise, I answer composedly, 'Yes, very like,' and no one is the wiser."

tending to abide by machine rule, but as I am an independent the criticism comes with still less force.

"I am also criticised for having accepted the Democratic nomination, which was given to me as an endorsement of my candidacy. It was unsolicited by me, and I have accepted it, after I had concluded to make an independent run. If you will go back to 1906 you will find that Mayor Fisk was endorsed by the Democratic party and that he accepted the Democratic endorsement. I may say, however, hat Mr. Fisk's acceptance of the endorsement given him had no bearing whatever on my action.

"I am informed that Mr. Mason W. Tyler was endorsed by the Democratic party, and that he also accepted their endorsement. I cite these instances for the benefit of those who require a precedent for their every act. As for myself I accepted because I believed it was right. One man, Mr. Montgomery, has stated in an open letter to the Courier News that I was trying to work my way into the Democratic party.

"I have heard of Democrats working their way into the Republican party in Plainfield (Mr. Montgomery for instance) who first ran on the Democratic ticket for Council and was defeated. He then promptly became a Republican, and as such is now serving the city as a member of the Common Council. Truly we may say what is in a name.

"I have said that if I had been a regular candidate I might perhaps be bound, if the primary had been free of corruption. I am in possession of information which satisfies me beyond a doubt that money was freely used on primary day. Two witnesses have indicated to me that they saw at one of the polling places a man stationed on the opposite side of the street to whom the voters would go after leaving the polling place, hand the man a ballot, they would then retire to the rear of a building about seventy-five feet from the point at which the witnesses were stationed, and there some transaction would take place, and finally by close observation one witness observed the passing over of a one dollar bill to the voter, who upon receiving the bill spread it out in plain sight and looked it over. This incident standing alone satisfies me that the primary was not conducted honestly and therefore binds no one.

"That bribery has been common in Plainfield is further evidenced to me by the statement of a man at one time prominent in political affairs here made a few days ago, and in the presence of a witness, to the effect that he had bought lots of votes. To this I replied, your brother told me sometime ago that he also bought votes. It would seem as though it ran in your family. There is also another question in connection with the conduct of the primary that appears to be very suspicious and which is now under investigation, and concerning which I will speak at a future time.

"The fact is that this meeting is the result of discontent and dissatisfaction. A broad wave of discontent is sweeping this country from Maine to California, arising from the conditions that have been brought about and are the direct result of machine rule. You may begin at the top with Cannon and his machine in the House of Representatives, from which you may come down to the various States with their State machines and State bosses, and then to the county machine and the county bosses, until you reach the city, with its machine and its self-constituted bosses. The people, the poor people at any rate, and God must love us because he has so many of us around, have become very weary, very weary ndeed, of the results of the all together selfish dominion of the party machine as now constituted and the bosses who make up the machine.

"I do not think there has been a nomination of any importance in Union county for the past ten or more years, unless suggested by or acceptable to the Kean interests. Who owns the water plant? the Kean interests, with Bergen. Who owns our streets? the Public Service Corporation, with Bergen. How are these interests to be protected; by electing men subsurvient to these interests Where do the people come in; the people don't come in, they don't even get a look in. I have said that we were discontented, and do you know that discontent with regard to wrongs suffered means progress; it means doing away with those wrongs.

"Discontent was responsible for the signing of Magna Charta by King John at Runny Mede which gave to the English people their rights; it was responsible for the Boston Tea Party; for the Declaration of Independence which gave this American people their rights, and for the development of Abraham Lincoln, who gave to the salves of this country their rights. Discontent is therefore not always a bad thing. Plainfield people are discontented with a number of things. We are discontented with extravagance, evidenced in various ways, as remarked by me in a speech I made a few weeks ago. They are discontented because the taxes are not legally assessed and fairly apportioned. They are discontented because of favoritism in the public departments of the city; they are discontented because various city officials are receiving double salaries and fees in addition to salaries, because some officials are holding two jobs and drawing double pay, because we are burdened with some useless officials, because some of the officials do not give their time and attention to the performance of their duties to the city, because some of the officials of this city seem to be possessed of the idea that Plainfield is their private property. You say this is a strong array of facts, can you prove your case, and I say, I can, and I say, I will; and I want it distinctly understood that I am not criticising the officials who draw salaries, but only the law that permits this condition of affairs to exist.

"First. Why should the chief of the fire department and of the police department be permitted to take pleasure trips paid for with the people's money; whence comes the authority?

"Second. Why should't all officers of the police force receive the same treatment from the department's head? Every officer on the force should be treated the same as his fellow; he should be given to understand that his is a respectable responsible position, and that he need fear no man, nor be subservient to any man, so long as he properly performs his duty. This would mean pride in their work and efficient service.

"There are a number of officials who are receiving two salaries, several who receive salaries and fees in addition thereto; some who hold positions that should be abolished, and some who take the city's pay and hold positions elsewhere; all of whom are on a list I have."

Referring to the above offices in the city where salaries are paid for nothing Mr. Moy said that the overseer-of-the poor was drawing $800 a year while there was a man and his wife at the poorhouse doing all the work. He also declared that City Clerk James T. MacMurray had told him that he thought that all the fees of the city clerk's office should be turned over to the city. He also wanted to know why there was a city physician drawing $400 a year as such and the same man was getting $200 more as a police surgeon, while the clerk to the assessors fills that job and also is assistant tax collector for which he gets the munificent sum of $750. Other instances of a similar character were mentioned in a long list which Mr. Moy did not read Continuing, he said:

"I believe that every official should be properly compensated and compelled to do his work, that the fee system should be abolished absolutely, as a needless hardship upon poor people. That the useless offices should be abolished, that no official should hold two jobs at one time, and that when an official has charges brought against him for misconduct in office, or for inefficiency he should be dismissed; I have no use for whitewash. I object to this city being run by a Get-Together Club, or any kind of a club.

"I cannot express too strongly my conviction with regard to the water supply system. Two committees have examined into it and have recommended city ownership and control. New Brunswick is something of an object lesson in this regard. In conversation with a former mayor of that city, a few days ago, he stated, I think, that the city had cleared $40,000 last year on the sale of water but they are now brought to a realzation of the fact that they have not taken sufficient precautions to insure the continuance of the supply, and that the present supply is polluted. I think we are in no great danger of pollution of an underground supply, but that the supply is being rapidly depleted, is beyond all doubt. Millions of gallons are being diverted daily.

"There is one matter that I omitted to mention and that is an increase in the membership of the Board of Education. The law provides a method whereby a board of nine members may be elected or appointed. I am firmly convinced that we should have a more representative board, and that it should be bipartisan in character.

"I believe in the utmost publicity of all matters in which the people have an interest. It seems strange to attend a session of a public body for the purpose of hearing an open discussion of public affairs and then have the entire membership slip off into a side room for secret discussion of the public business. I have presented to you these matters as being of sufficient importance to interest you, and to open up a frank discussion. There are other matters to be touched upon, and to which I shall refer from time to time before the end of the campaign. This is not a party fight; it is the joining of hands in an effort to adjust local conditions which are rapidly becoming intolerable.

"In order to win we must have help. Silent help is good as far as it goes, but is not nearly as valuable as the aggressive variety. We have no apologies to make for the stand we have taken. We are doing that which is right, and if success comes from our united efforts we shall be gratified because of the triumph of right, and I believe we will win because eventually right always prevails.

"If elected I shall act without fear or favor. I will have no favoritism and I will enforce the law. If you want that kind of a mayor you may safely vote for me. If you don't want that kind of a mayor I will be glad to stay home."

In introducing Mr. Moy, Mr. Depew said in part: We have been fought at every turn by the machine and the bosses. No matter how good our measures have been they have been met with opposition, yet some of them have been adopted by the powers that be. The machine reminds us of calves which when prodded jump to one side or the other, but never go ahead if they can help it.

"Two years ago we (the Republicans) were invited to attend a mass meeting at the theatre where John W. Griggs and Foster M. Voorhees were to speak. We were thrown down—Griggs used a knife and Voorhees used a club and that is what we got. Then what did they do at Trenton? William P. Martin was to have been nominated for Governor He worked hard for it and what did he get? What happened to Everett Colby? He received the nomination at the primaries, but he was told out for a sheriff.

"Cannon was elected Speaker of the house by a coalition of Republicans and Democrats. The Pennsylvania Railroad is a bi-partison organization. They are employing none but Democrats, I hear, and why? So that they can get both parties to vote for measures that they want passed."

DISHWASHING MADE AESY.

One of the unnecessary things in housekeeping is the continuous washing and wiping of dishes. It is queer how some women will wear themselves out rather than step aside from the beaten path. To many women the bugbear of the housework is dishwashing. Why wash dishes three times a day? Do it in the morning when fresh; scrape the dinner dishes, stack in a large pan filled with cold water, and cover. Treat the supper dishes in the same way, and do not allow your conscience to keep you awake one single hour. It will not make the task too large the next morning if you will try this way. After washing each piece in hot suds and rinsing in hot (not warm) water put them, piece by piece, in the wire drainer as nearly on edge or slant as possible, and let them stand until dry. Glasses, of course, and silver must be wiped; but the former can be left filled after using and the latter put into a pitcher or deep jug until some odd minute when one is not so weary with well-doing that another turn of the screw seems next to impossible.

COLORS IMPORTANT WHEN FURNISHING.

All girls long for pleasant and satisfying rooms, which are their own; and nearly all girls have to consider the cost. But fortunately pretty things are not necessarily always the expensive ones. Real success in furnishing a room depends much more upon the thought that is spent upon it than the money. People talk somewhat vaguely sometimes about the "atmosphere" of a room or a house, but though one may not understand exactly what is meant by the word, it is the result that every one seeks in furnishing—namely, the creation of an interior effect that satisfies and pleases, that, in short, produces a pleasant "atmosphere."

This atmosphere is the resultant effect of all the things in the room, also of its shape, size, location, lighting and furnishing. Usually one is not able to control all of these things and must take them just as they are and make the best of them. So it is apt to be only in some part of the furnishing or decorating of the room that a girl can put her impress upon it and stamp it with her own individuality.

Colors are first of all "warm" or "cold", blue, the color of the sky, or of deep water, and blue-greens are good examples of what are meant by "cold" colors. While yellow, in all its shades and tints, including many browns and greens, are "warm" colors. In a general way it is safer to use the warm colors in furnishing. However, it is quite permissible in a bedroom, and especially in a girl's room, to choose blue, or pink or lavender, if one of these is the favorite color of the occupant, because such a room is sure to have so many small objects of contrasting effect about, such as books, pictures, ornaments and the like that there is little danger of a severe monotone of color.

If the room lies on the north or east side of the house, or is badly lighted, try then the effect of buff, tan and yellow. It is marvelous, the effect of sunlight that can be produced by a thin yellow net curtain over a north window.

A Useful Holiday.

"I don't believe one ought to spend one's holiday in just going down to a seaside town or a country village and lolling about there, not caring a jot about the place or anything connected with it," writes a reader. "I call that wasting a holiday, not spending it.

"When I go to a place I read up all the books I can find about it before I start—guide-books, histories, novels which have the place for their scene, and so on.

"Then I get really interested in the locality and go to all the points of interest knowing something about them.

"When I come back I feel I have learned something, added to my little stock of knowledge. I can talk to people about my holiay. If the place is mentioned in the course of conversation I have something interesting to say about it."

VIVIAN M. LEWIS' RECORD

HE IS ALWAYS ON THE JOB.

Judging the Future by the Past, the Voters are Assured of Strict Attention to Duties when Elected.

Now that the Republican convention has named State Banking and Insurance Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis as the standard bearer of the party in the present gubernatorial campaign, there has been much searching of his record as a legislator, the idea being to get at what he has done in the past to show what he can be reasonably expected to do in the future. The old proverb that there is no way of judging of the future by the record of the past has led the investigators to go through the years 1899, 1900 and 1901 which were the years Mr. Lewis served his county of Passaic as an assemblyman, and they found that for the three entire sessions the present gubernatorial candidate is recorded in his seat every time the speaker's gavel fell in opening the house.

This record was not approached by any other legislator for the three years. In consequence the friends of Mr. Lewis point to his attention to public business during years when there was no thought of his being governor of New Jersey as a certainty of his attention to the business of the people when he is elected governor of the State.

Last year, the press made many allusions to the record of Assemblyman Benjamin H. Crosby, of Ocean county, now parole agent of the New Jersey State Reformatory, when it was discovered that Mr. Crosby had not missed one session of the three years he was in the Legislature. Besides the record of Mr. Lewis and that of Mr. Crosby, there is not one other man, so far known, who went through three years of legislative work without missing an attendance roll call.

A further search of the records of the legislative years when Mr. Lewis was in the harness as representative of the people in the house of assembly shows that he was seldom out of his seat. During the year 1899 the house acted on 196 house bills, 140 senate bills and 3 senate joint resolutions, and Mr. Lewis is recorded on all of these measures except 12.

During the 1900 session Mr. Lewis is not recorded on but 13 bills although the house in that session acted on 246 house bills, 121 senate measures and two house and two senate joint resolutions.

For the session of 1901, the year Mr. Lewis was the leader of the house majority, he failed to be recorded only on three measures, although the house that year acted on 246 house bills, 134 senate measures, two house joint resolutions and one senate joint resolution.

A search of the bills on which Mr. Lewis is not recorded shows that the measures were unimportant ones, and that likely he had been called out of his seat by the chief executive or some one else when they went through.

The friends of Mr. Lewis are delighted with the showing of diligence on his part in executing the business of the people and are claiming that this record is unsurpassed by any one.

They argue that such a record shows the man determined to give of his best thought to the people who elected him a representative, and, judging by this past, the future of Mr. Lewis as chief executive will be marked by as strict attention to the duties of the highest office in the gift of the people of New Jersey.

PATENT LEATHER BELTS.

Many of the new lingerie dress models show patent leather belts instead of the embroidered ones that might be expected. Perhaps this is the forerunner of a return to the tailored, ante-frilling styles; at any rate, it is welcome news for the maid whose patent leather belts have lain in idleness or been dedicated to tennis these many seasons.

Mostly they are black, but often they are edged with white or color, and really all shades are seen.

The buckles are nearly always square and of metal; the leather covered buckles are no more. They are large, relatively speaking, and no tagent leather belt, seems again to be them; they really fasten the belt.

With fabric cross tags over tucked vests, and rows of buttons with no apparent reasons except prettiness for being, the day of the tailor-made, heralded, as I have said, by the patent leather bit, seems again to be drawing.

Standing Room Only.

Church—I saw Footelight, the actor, on a crwoded trolley car today.

Gotham—And did he look as important as ever?

Church—Oh, yes; he looked as though he thought the standing-room-only sign ought to be out, if it wasn't!—Exchange.

About Counterfeit Values

Two new counterfeit bills have made their appearance—one is a ten, the other a five. These bills are by no means good—they are crudely executed and not of the right color—but they are good enough to fool SOME PEOPLE and good enough to warrant Chief Wilkie, of the United States Secret Service, in sending warnings broadcast throughout the country.

Take out YOUR Bank roll and look it over. Maybe you're entertaining one of these BOGUS BILLS unbeknown to yourself.

How we shun counterfeit money and how we guard ourselves against taking it in change. It takes a pretty good counterfeit to pass muster these days.

As we said before, we guard ourselves against counterfeit money as we would the PLAGUE, but there are other counterfeits—just as poorly executed as the poorest bill—which we accept every day and think little of it.

We mean COUNTERFEIT VALUES.

Many stores that WOULDN'T THINK of passing counterfeit money advertise SPURIOUS VALUES and many people who would quickly detect the false color of a bill or the false ring of a coin, accept these selfsame values without a wink.

At this store we guard you against counterfeit values in the same way that we guard you against bogus money.

This is a SAFE store to trade at because you are always sure of WHAT YOU ARE TOLD.

RUFFLES ON THE SKIRT.

Some of the pretty foulard petticoats are finished with lace-trimmed ruffles. A muslin ruffle under the outer ruffle helps to lengthen the life of the skirt.

The short coats range in length from hip to within two inches of the knees. So far the really short coat and the Eton jacket have not gained any secure position.

The new corset is a good deal lower in the bust than was the case last year. Its waist is still long, and its hips are narrow, straight and long.

Gilt buttons are used for trimmings as well as for fastenings on the trim linen suits for young girls.

APPLE GINGER.

Six pounds of a hard kind of apple, prepared; 6 pounds of loaf sugar, 4½ pints water, 3 ounces tincture ginger.

Pare, core and cut apples into even size pieces, put them into a bowl of cold water until required.

Boil sugar and water until they form a rich syrup, adding ginger when it boils.

Drain apples, boil in syrup until transparent. Be careful not to let them break.

Put pieces of apple into jars, pour over syrup. Carefully exclude air, seal, keep in a dry place.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Because of several cases of smallpox, the Millville Board of Health has ordered that all school children be vaccinated.

Because of so many thefts of gas meters in unoccupied houses in Pitman the gas company is removing all of them.

The Atlantic City police are hunting for a man who attacked Miss Alice Fortesque while she was strolling on the beach with a male escort, and beat her with a blackjack.

Mrs. Leona Hess, the eloping wife of Samuel Hess, of Millville, who was indicted by the Cumberland County Grand Jury in April, 1909, for bigamy, was arrested this week by Deputy Sheriff Frank Bullock, at Long Branch. She pleaded non vult in court and will be sentenced today.

Past three-score years, and veteran of four years' campaigning in the Civil War, Mayor Farner, of Burlington, demonstrated that he is yet an athlete, Tuesday, when he won a hundred-yard dash with a fleeing youth, who had smashed a trolley car window, imperiling several passengers with flying glass. A washtub full of clothes was overturned in the strenuous chase, which wound up in the kitchen of the boy's home.

The license of Newkirk W. Wentz at Greenwich Piers, again is in the courts, Supreme Court Justice Trenchard having allowed a writ of certiorari carrying the recent granting of the license by Judge Tuller up for review. The prosecutors of the writ, Christian Johnson and Lemuel P. Sloan, aided by Charles E. Sheppard, counsel for the State Law and Order League, allege that Judge Tuller lost jurisdiction in the case by adjourning the hearing without date.

A WHITE THROAT.

At this season the girl who has gone collarless the summer through is beginning to be anxious about the state of her throat. The day of drastic treatment is at hand if her neck is to look well in winter. The skin is browned from exposure to the sun.

To whiten it rub it each night with lemon, letting it stay on all night. If there are rough places in the skin it can be gone over with a fine pumicestone dipped in lemon juice.

In the morning rinse off with warm water, in which a little almond meal has been dissolved. This whitens and smoothes the skin.

A more decided bleach is made from eight ounces of alcohol, four ounces of rosewater and a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin. Saturate a thin piece of linen in the liquid and pin around the throat and let it stay on for an hour. Then massage with a good cucumber cream.

One such treatment will show beneficial effects, though a number will be necessary if the skin be badly tanned.

When the neck is freckled hard work is in store for it, as freckles wear off the face more quickly than from arms and neck.

A simple remedy for these is to dissolve half a teaspoon of powdered camphor in an ounce of olive oil. Touch the spots with a brush dipped in this lotion morning and evening.

Another lotion, composed of two tablespoonfuls of pure glycerin and a few drops of tincture of iodine, is also said to be good. This must be used carefully so as to not get in the eyes. Iodine also poisons some skins.

A home remedy for a dark line around the throat is to slice and pound a ripe cucumber into a paste and put it on a thick linen cloth and tie around the throat over night. This may have to be repeated every night for a week.

LATEST FLAT SILVER.

The latest passion with girls who follow the artistic trend in table furnishings is the new flat silver in Tudor design.

This lovely model is severely plain, the distinction being in its most unusual shape, and all ordinary models pale before it with those who like the something a little different, so that once seen nothing else quite satisfies.

This pattern is obtained only at the large shops by order well in advance of the date for which it is wanted.

Another artistic pattern which expresses the vogue of art and simplicity is the Colonial, which, if less exclusive than the Tudor, is charming nevertheless, considerably cheaper and more readily obtained.

Engraved glass, which has completely superseded cut glass of all patterns with the same discriminating class of buyers, is constantly appearing in new and delightful designs which add greatly to the chic of table or buffet.

If I were asked (although, of course, nobody would ever think of asking me) what I considered to be the most typically American institution, I should very unhesitatingly say, genius for industrial organization, the American girl and summer amusement. And I should bracket the American girl and summer amusement—they are so very inextricably interwoven—Frederic Thompson in the August Metropolitan Magazine.

Aletheia at Proctors.

Aletheia and Aleko, the Greek mind readers and exponents of telepathy and prophetic vision, who are at Proctor's theatre, offer a distinct departure from other acts, professing to be psychics in that they use no assistants, confederates, mechanical appliances, or, as Aletheia states in her introductory remarks, any aids whatsoever except the brain.

Aletheia called the names of many prominent Plainfield residents, on request, and answered every question whispered to Aleko as he passed through the audience, without an error, as was attested by the frank admission and applause of the questioners.

During their recent engagement in Troy, where they played two consecutive weeks, seven special policemen were called out to handle the crowds seeking admittance to the theatre, and hundreds were turned away disappointed. After Aletheia and Aleko had played two weeks of the seven of their original booking through the United offices they were re-engaged for nine more weeks at a large increase in salary. They have been the sensation of European Expositions, and this is their first American tour.

Aletheia claims that all forms of genius are manifestations of the creative will expressed through inspiration and mediumship. She does not accept the modern spiritualism and explains so called psychic phenomena as the direct result of mind reading and telephathy voluntarily and involuntarily directed.

While a child Aletheia astonished her parents with exhibitions of involuntary telepathy and pre-vision. For sixteen years she has entered into the study of the various forms of ocultism. Three years ago she was induced to make a public appearance at one of the International Expositions where she created a sensation under the name Aletheia which being interpreted means "Spirit of Truth" a name given her by a noted Greek teacher and philosopher.

The Greek mind readers have been featured in several international expositions, and come to Plainfield highly endorsed by European managers.

PROBLEM IN INEBRIETY MAY SOON BE SOLVED

Drunkenness as a cause of poverty is a matter of every day knowledge. Inebriety is the source of many important problems of government. Yet we have been content almost everywhere to adopt a laissez faire attitude. The improvidence of the drunkard is proverbial. The improvidence of State and local government agencies is equally a fact.

The drunkard's family has been the insoluble problem in home relief. Authorities on insanity credit alcoholism as one of the most potent causes of that malady. General hospitals often bar their doors against the inebriate. The alcoholic ward is a source of ever recurring trouble. The tuberculosis campaign is largely also one against intemperance. The lower courts are clogged with habitual drunkards. The higher tribunals are distracted by questions as to the responsibilities of the criminal who is part way on the road to an alcoholic insanity.

One reason the public has failed to pay intelligent attention to the problem has been that many cannot enter heartily into the ordinary "temperance campaign." Until recently, also, there was little scientific proof of the alleged evil effects of alcohol.

The State Charities Aid Association of New York has made a study of the results of the present treatment of the problem by the courts. About half of those arrested for intoxication are dismissed. Most of the rest are either fined or sentenced for a short term. So far as fines are paid, they are usually met by friends or relatives. It is useless so far as it affects the person fined. The short sentence is even more ineffective, for the man, when dismissed, is often without friends or money. He secures shelter in a saloon and gets a drink by performing some small services for the bartender. The alcoholic repeater is the result. In Utica, N. Y., one person has been before the police court 100 times for intoxication.

The Survey in the October issue summarize quite fully some of the recent measures by which progressive States are combating the problem. Seven States, it points out, provide for the commitment of habitual drunkards on the petition of relatives accompanied by proper medical certification so that it is not necessary for a person who has lost his self-control to become so obnoxious as to be a public nuisance before he can be sent to an institution.

In Massachusetts a person arrested for the first time can be released without court appearance. The permissive law enacted for the city of New York in 1910 provides for a comprehensive plan for dealing with persons arrested for intoxication according to their past records and degress of inebriety. Effective means of identifying previous offenders is provided for by the finger print system.

The success of the farm colony treatment which isolates the person addicted from alcohol for a continuous period of time and supplies the prime necessities of light, fresh air, therapeutic baths and outdoor work is fully described in the October Survey. Such colonies will remove drounders from the streets, courts and prisons, relieve overburdened families and by supplying a wholesome life give a real opportunity for the drunkard to be cured.

ASSESSMENT TOO HIGH; JERSEY RAILROADS SAY.

Counsel for the Jersey Central, Erie and Lackawanna railroads have asked the State Board of Assessors at Trenton, for a reduction of twenty per cent. on the valuations placed upon their terminal properties in Jersey City.

The application was based upon a decision of the Supreme Court, later affirmed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, holding that the State board in placing its valuations upon the terminal properties had improperly included the value of the franchises.

The taxes involved in the litigation were those assessed for 1907 and 1908. The court referred the assessments back to the State board that a reassessment might be made in accordance with the decision. The court did not attempt to pass upon the true value of the property, nor did the decision throw any light upon the extent to which they had been overhauled.

MANY USES FOR RAFFIA.

Raffia, which comes in all colors, may be put to many uses fitting up rooms inexpensively. Sofa pillows and couch covers worked on coarse canvas with the fiber are especially effective for summer and are easily and quickly done, because of the coarseness of the fiber. Any coarse stamped pattern lends itself to the raffia and any color scheme. But the strong Indian effects or pronounced craftsman designs are best suited to it.

One very practical employment for raffia is in the covering of bowls and vases with a network of fiber. This is simply a series of knots easily learned, which make a wide, open mesh over the porcelain. Green basket work covering for a vase that is suited to the color will give a note of freshness to a corner or to the porch. Bowls for flowers or plants may be covered with it and have strong cords of the same fiber by which to hang them.

All sorts of pretty baskets are made of raffia, but they go slower than willow. Books on the subject are plentiful. Lovely favors in the shape of baskets filled with sweets are made of raffia or willow at small expense of money and, if willow is used, at little outlay of time. One of the most practical uses of raffia is in workings lined with silk. The raffia—a soft green is pretty for summer—is knotted in wide mesh net style, over a stick as a guide to keep the meshes even, into as large a square or oblong as is wanted. Then a fringe of the fiber is added at the bottom with the same kind of knots, and a Persian silk lining completes the very effective receptacle for summer needlework. If one does not understand knotting the fiber, books explaining the work are easily procured. Public libraries have works upon basketry which also tell how to make useful knots.

FACTORY CHIMNEY IN WALES TWO MILES LONG.

"I felt like a cat in a strange garret this summer when I went across the pond with a crowd of Irishmen, all bound for the famous 'home-coming,'" confessed Evan T. Price, of Pittsburg, at the Raleigh, states the Pittsburg Dispatch. "The fact is that I had no business in that bunch for I'm pure Welsh.

"My home was in Gamorganshire, where the manufacture of copper is one of the chief industries. One of the most peculiar sights of my trip was one of these copper factories.

"What would you say to a statement that this factory has a chimney two miles long? You think I'm joking, don't you? Let me explain. The works are at the foot of a long and high hill. The chimney runs from the roof of the factory up the side of the hill to the very top, where it shoots straight upward for about 100 feet, like an ordinary chimney. A little brook trickles through this flue from a small spring near the top of the hill. This condenses the smoke and makes the draft more effective.

"Formerly the chimney of the factory was an ordinary one. But the copper smoke did so much damage that the present system had to be adopted. It killed thousands of acres of grass, and affected the hoofs of the horses and cattle so that the animals became useless. The new chimney takes the smoke out of the valley and it is dissipated in the air. The chimney on the top of the hill can be seen forty miles away on a clear day."

"Ever been locked up?" demanded counsel.

"I have been," admitted the witness.

"Aha! And what had you been doing to get yourself locked up?"

"I had been doing jury duty."—Pittsburg Post.

SAID SHE WAS ASSAULTED; BUT SHE ONLY FELL DOWN.

Mrs. Lapore, who gave her address as 525 South Second street, applied to Dr. C. A. Gesswein, on Central avenue, last night, at 9:45 o'clock, saying that she had been attacked by a man by the name of O'Neill and a woman companion of the man. Dr. Gesswein examined Mrs. Lapore, but could not find that she was injured in any way.

The case was reported to the police and they discovered that in a crush on West Front street she was accidently pushed off the sidewalk and fell.

JOB FOR THE FOOL-KILLER

Had He Been on the Lookout Inquisitive Passenger Certainly Could Not Have Escaped.

It all took place on a car the other day. Most of the passengers had made a mental note that the man with his jaw tied up was suffering from the toothache. The ever-present individual with the never-absent interest in the other fellow's ailment leaned over and spoke to the apparent sufferer.

"Does it keep you up nights?" he spoke. The toothache man never replied.

"I'll bet it's a double tooth," continued the inquisitor, "and that the dentist couldn't pull it out without an awful lot of trouble and that—"

"You fool," muttered the man around the corner of the bandage.

"Oh, all right," replied the stranger, "if that's the way you feel about it I won't say another word, but you are old enough to know that you shouldn't be riding on a car, for the cool air striking an exposed nerve causes an ache and that there are thirty-five hundred nerves radiating from your gums and that the exposure of any one of those is liable to cause more trouble, and furthermore every time you bite down on a piece of food you use enough force to close a door—why I knew a man who actually went crazy with the toothache—he looked a bit like you, too, and I often told him that the best way to stop a raging toothache was to go and take a—"

By this time the man with the aching molar had signaled the conductor, left the car and was rapidly beating it to the sidewalk.

"Strange," muttered the inquisitor to another passenger sitting alongside, "how unfriendly a man with the toothache is!"

BAD BOY FOOLED OLD LADY

When a kind old lady, in walking along a residence street, beheld a small boy struggling vainly to reach something between the gratings of a tall iron fence surrounding a palatial residence, she paused to watch his operations. The object of his quest she discovered to be a handsome mechanical toy, an automobile that would run when wound up. The boy had a stick with which he was trying to pull the machine toward him, but as he could barely reach it, the struggle was well-nigh hopeless.

"Let me try it," said the old lady. "My arm is longer than yours."

"All right," replied the youngster, relinquishing the stick.

Getting down on her knees the old lady, by dint of much stretching and careful manipulation, gradually worked the machine toward the fence and at last had the satisfaction of seeing the little boy grasp it with eager fingers.

"Now," she said, "you must be more careful and not let it get away with you again."

"Gee," said the boy, "it never got away from me, an' it ain't goin' to neither."

"Wh-wh-why," faltered the old lady with the dawning of a horrible suspicion. "Isn't it yours?"

"You bet it's mine now," said the kid and away he scampered, leaving the good old lady alone with her conscience.

Invisible Animals Alive in the Sea.

The shore of the sea permits the study of more than the poet's horizon or tinted shell. There are tiny animals that live and move among the plants of the sea, and these may be observed clinging to any favorable ocean object. "A small fragment of bark, streaming with fine plant-like growths," says Howard J. Shannon, in the June Harper's, "is cut from the water-worn timbers which the receding tide has exposed; and this apparently insignificant fragment, populous with curious life, is placed in a glass of water beneath the microscope. . . . Veritable miniature forests appear, endless vistas open, teeming with curious interest and populated by creatures more strange and more wonderful than any the imagination can conceive."

Wistaria Trained Into Trees.

The wistaria tree is the latest Japanesque effect sought by expensive gardeners. To train one into any kind of shape takes three years of patient pruning, but the result is well worth waiting for, so foreign and artistic and unusual. The vine is first allowed to grow to a height of four feet, and then all tendrils are nipped at the top and those at the sides made to train out over stakes. These are kept pruned as they grow into branches. When strong enough they are permitted to bloom, and clusters of pale violet flowers soon hang in profusion from the spreading, miniature trees.

Tricks Any Husband Can Learn.

To tell yellow from green in matching silk. To wash the dishes without breaking more than two. To keep quiet when he's spoken to. To face the cook when she's angry. To find out what ails the gas range. To stand in line an hour for two trading stamps. To set up his wife's brother in business. To get up winter nights to investigate "robbers." To smile when his old sweethearts' pictures are burned up. To prefer halma at home to billiards at the club. To drop his old friends because they are "vulgar." To give up coffee because it disagrees with his wife.—Puck.

THE FREAKY HOBBLE; ITEMS OF INSTRUCTION

"Please be seated and don't interrupt me. Don't speak; don't disturb me in any way; and—don't look!"

These commands burst upon the ears of a friend who called upon an actress and was shown into her drawing-room.

"Sit down; try not to look surprised, and—well, as a special favor, I'll let you watch me," said the actress, as the friend stood regarding her with amazed eyes. "What am I learning to do? I'm learning to hobble, of course.

"Why? Because in my new play there is a society woman who always wears the latest oddities.

"Do I like it? I do not, and if I were the audience I would boo it off the stage, but as it is I am helpless. The lady is in financial troubles because of her extravagance in dress and there is a bill from her modiste. In one scene I stand and read aloud the items, and one item is a hobble gown, price at present unmentionable; and there I am—I must hobble or die.

"I loathe it. I have a friend, an actress, who is pigeon-toed. On the stage she subdues the tendency to pigeon-toe a little, but in the street she strikes out and toes in to her heart's content. The first time she put on a hobble skirt she donned it in fear and trembling, for her modiste told her how difficult it was to walk in it without tripping; but to her astonishment nothing was easier. She walked at once and so proudly that she was a model to walkers. The modiste told her it was because she was pigeon-toed.

"If you are going to hobble prettily you must master these items:

"You must be quite loose around the waist line, as you can't be tied in around the belt and around the ankles too.

"If you want to hobble you must learn to take short but quite decided steps. They are not exactly mincing, but they are not long. They are the brisk little steps of the military man who must keep in step with a man shorter than himself. It is almost a repressed step.

"To hobble picturesquely you must walk slowly. The woman who hurries in a hobble skirt is lost.

"The woman who positively cannot wear a hobble is the tall woman who strikes her knees out as she walks. The hobbler must learn to keep her knees to herself, so to speak.

"All hobble shoes should have a brilliant polish; polished shoes look small.

"Hobble shoes should be very long and have small toes, for the length of the foot does not show as conspecuously as the breadth. Long, narrow shoes, stuffed at the toes with cotton, are the ideal thing for those who have been tempted to hobble."

EMBROIDERED LETTERS.

"Do you try to introduce some novelty into the embroidered initials on household linen?" a harassed housewife of artistic tendencies said to me recently.

Well, here are a few suggestions. Besides the regulation old English and script letters, there are long French or Venetian letters; squat, rounded Chinese ones, with the letters run into each other, giving the entire name of the owner in as little space as the initials or monogram usually takes up; thin square, willow letters; long, pointed old Irish ones. The assortment is almost endless; and any book on illuminating and lettering will give plenty of further patterns for the embroiderer.

Besides, the letters may be worked in various ways—solid, outline, seeded, or with any combination of these. The really original needleworker will take long to exhaust the lettering possibilities that lie all about, and adapt what she sees to the capabilities of her needle and her art.

CORRESPONDING.

For some girls there seems to be a special fascination about an aimless and silly correspondence with every man they have ever met, even those in the same city as themselves. This correspondence is always useless, and is likely to degenerate into a false and pernicious sentimentalism.

There is no reason why a man and a girl who are on approvedly friendly terms should not occasionally write to each other of their doings and those of their common friends, when the two live in different towns, when each has interesting experiences and opinons to give, and when the girl's mother knows and likes the man. But this mere writing for the sake of writing, indulged in by so many very young girls simply, it would seem, for the joy of being able to write to and receive letters from men is a harmful and ridiculous practice that should be brought to a spedy end by those in authority over the girl.

A Mere Looker-on.

Crushed Lady—I had an awful disappointment today.

"Freddy failed to propose?"

"No, worse than that. I saw a great bargain in shoes and had a hole in one of my stockings."

WHAT IRRIGATION HAS DONE FOR COLORADO.

Irrigation is the Aladdin's lamp that has transformed Colorado from a mining to a farming State. Naturally, the immigation board's attention is concentrated on advertising the achievements and possibilities in the scientific application of water to Colorado sol. Then, fresh attention has been called to Colorado's importance agriculturally through the reclamation work now being carried on by the Federal Government and by private enterprise.

Up to January, in 1910, states a writer in The Review of Reviews, the government had expended in reclamation by irrigatio nin the State $3,956,014 of the total appropriation of $9,865,000. The remainder is to be used as soon as it is available. The expenditure by private enterprises has amounted to several times this sum.

"Today," remarks Governor Shafroth, "Colorado has 2,317,255 acres under irrigation, practically all of them producing the most remarkable crops in the history of the country."

Back in the other years, when Colorado was largely a burnt and desert land, many small and irresponsible irrigation projects were launched which were doomed to failure. Such projects have embraced perhaps 50,000 acres up to date. They, however, were largely born in the days before irrigation took its place as a science. No government enterprise has ever failed, nor have any organized under what is termed an irrigation district. This is formed under the laws of the State, and under it the farmers and land owners of the district come together and vote upon the proposal of assessing themselves for the expenses necessary to irrigate.

While there are no specific records available, it is estimated that practically all of the 475,200,000 acres, for the reclamation of which the various irrigation districts have been formed, have become tillable. John F. Field, a Denver civil engineer, who has given special attention to the subject, calculates that the storage of flood waters in immense reservoirs for use in the drier periods would allow a further development of from 400,000 to 500,000 acres.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Given a certain situation calling for quick thought and action, what would you do?

This was the question put to five women yesterday, members of a club which was lunching together in a cozy little tearoom.

"If you looked up and saw flames coming from the window of an occupied room of that office building opposite and knew that you yourself and all the people around you were in the greatest danger, what would you do?"

"I should excuse myself quietly and 'phone to the fire department," answered the first.

"I shouldn't do that," said the second. "It might cause a panic when the people in the office building saw the engines. I should 'phone instead to the superintendent of the building and have him get the tenants out quickly."

"I'm afraid I shouldn't be so cool as all that,' exclaimed the third. "I should just jump and scream "Fire."

"Well," remarked the fourth, "I know I'd simply faint with fright on the spot."

"And I," said the fifth, "should tell you all quietly about it and ask you what to do."

I wonder! I know what I shoud do myself. I should sit there without worrying and wait for the firemen to get both me and the people opposite. I know that buildings of that sore nowadays are always fireproof.

TESTS FOR LINEN.

Great-grandmother, were she here today, would attend the linen sales armed with a good magnifying glass and through this she would scan the threads to see that they lay flat and close, as linen threads should do.

Then she would wet a corner of the material with the tips of her fingers and expect to see moisture appear very quickly on the other side. Finally she would crumple a corner of it to make sure there was no dressing of chalk, scan the threads again to mak sure that warp and woof were of equal quality, and then, no doubt, she would nsist on buying it by wight, as many people in the cotton districts still do.

"Six pounds of linen sheeting" does sound a queer order, but if this fashion of purchasing linen by weight were revived, granted that the material was free from the heavy dressings of chalk and lime which now delude buyers, there would be some chance of once again having family linen to hand down to granddaughters.

TEETH CLEANING.

Do it.
Do it often.
Do it thoroughly.
Do it with regularity.
Tooth powder costs but little.
Very good powders are made at home.
The tooth brush should be firm, but not too stiff.
With floss the particles are removed from between the teeth.
Any discoloration will disappear before powdered pumice applied on a bit of wood.

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

"She was very kind to me," replied Val, more sure than ever now that the proposal to come would be matrimonial.

"Good! You've heard, I expect, from Cadwallader Hunter or some other general purveyor of gossip that she and I aren't on the best of terms—that we don't get along like a pair of turtledoves?"

"I believe I did hear some hint of that sort, which went in at one ear and out at the other."

"You needn't consider my feelings. My wife and I hate each other like poison. She'd have thrown me over long ago if she didn't want my money—all my money; not what she might get in allmony if we said 'Goodby; the parting words are spoken.' Eh? Well, that's just what I do want to say to her. We've never had any open break, but the time's come. I'm going to bring a case against her, and I want to use you for a trump card in it. You understand?"

A hot wave of rage swept over Loveland. He did understand, and never in his life had he been so angry. A new or at least unknown self stirred faintly in the depths where all his life it had lain asleep, because, perhaps, it had never been called upon to wake. He was not angry because such a proposal had been made to him—Lord Loveland; he had not thought of that part yet. Disgust with the man who could make such a proposition was the one emotion which shook him.

"Oh, I suppose I haven't offered 'your lordship' enough," he sneered, with a sarcastic emphasis on the title. "Well, I'll raise you"—

But something unexpected happened before the offer could be completed. Furious, Loveland slapped him across the mouth, and in dodging the insult Milton slipped on a morsel of thin ice which glazed the pavement. He staggered, tried to regain his balance, lost it finally and fell flat upon his back. The man's fall, the stillness of the limp form which lay grotesquely, like a dummy made of rags, was a sight to chill even righteous anger.

After a dazed instant he bent down over the motionless form and felt a great throb of relief when he saw no stain of oozing blood on the pavement. The fur lined collar of Milton's coat had been pulled up behind his ears and had broken the force of the fall for the back of his head, on which otherwise he must have struck with terrible force. Already his thick eyelids were twitching. In another moment or two he would open them!

Val thought carefully, but quickly. If an alarm were given—if he should find himself in the hands of the police—that would be the worst thing that had happened yet.

If this beast who lay there complained to the police of his assault Val couldn't defend himself by telling the truth, because Mrs. Milton's name must not be brought in. He did not admire her particularly, and he owed her no gratitude, but she was a woman, and suddenly he knew of himself that he would bear the worst that might befall him rather than drag Mrs. Milton into a scandal.

For as long as he might have taken to count twelve perhaps Lord Loveland stood making up his mind and staring at the man on the ground; then he walked away as quickly as he dared.

The end of the street and no pursuing steps or shouts of accusing voices!

Once round the corner Loveland breathed more freely, but with the white glint of his uncovered evening shirt he was a marked man among men whose overcoats acknowledged winter, and his one anxiety for the moment was to get on as far as possible in as short a time as possible.

He had two or three small pieces of American money in his pocket rather more than equal to the value of an English shilling, and he thought of hurling himself into a roaring electric car or rushing up the steps of an "L" station to board the first train that should come in. But he did not know what destination to name and feared that if he professed indifference as to the end of the journey he might arouse suspicion. It was wiser, he decided, to go on foot, dodging from the brilliantly lighted avenues into the darker cross streets, and so on, indefinitely, until it seemed safe to call a halt.

When he found himself in the plaza and saw the black forest of the park billowing away into distance like the gulf of night he looked toward it as a refuge. If only it were still open at this hour! If only he could get in!

His doubt died at birth, for a big motorcar whizzed by him and into the velvet gloom. Evidently Central park was not shut to the public at night.

Loveland was hatless and now—cold all the way through to his heart—but he flung himself down on a bench under a low branching tree and wondered desolately if he had found his quarters for the night.

For a moment he had sat there, trying to marshal the routed army of his thoughts, before he realized that he was not alone on the seat. Something stirred at the far end where the shadow was deepest. There was a faint tinkle as of a fairy bell—a cracked fairy bell—and a tiny shape leaped from the bench. Loveland watched it flitting here and there, darting across the glimmering gray road and then about to prick daintily back again when a motor swung round the curving corner.

The fragile sound of the bell was drowned, and the little shape would have gone under the fat tired wheels, to be swept into nothingness like chaff by the wind, had not Val sprung forward and dashed across the road in front of the car, catching up the morsel in his rush.

He risked his life, but the lights of the car had shown him in one blinding flash that the frisking thing was a miniature black dog no bigger than his hand, and Val loved dogs, big and little, with all that was best and warmest in him. Nothing could have tempted him to hurt a dog or, indeed, any animal save those it was the legitimate sport of Englishmen to kill, and he could imagine himself murdering a man guilty of cruelty to any helpless creature.

The motor horn gave a shriek, and there was a grinding of brakes jammed on with savage suddenness, but the car could not have stopped in time. It was only Loveland's quickness which saved him, and scarcely beyond touch of the tires he stumbled, drawing up his knees to keep from being run over, but he had the tiny, beating body in his hand, held up out of harm's way.

HE HAD THE TINY BODY IN HIS HAND.

"You fool! You would have had yourself to thank if you'd been smashed!" growled the chauffeur, who was alone in the car. "And it's God's wonder you didn't make me skid smack into that bench."

Loveland, picking himself up, did not think it worth while to answer, and the chauffeur, who heard the arrival of a policeman unsympathetic to motormen, decided not to stop for further argument. With a parting grumble he slipped away into the night, and Loveland, by this time on his feet, walked quietly across the road again with the cause of the disturbance quivering in his hand.

"That was a close shave for you, you little beggar," he said, half aloud. "Who are you, I wonder, and where did you spring from?"

"Answers to name o' Shakespeare and dropped out o' my pocket while I snoozed, I guess," said a voice from the shadow. "You bet I'm obliged to you for what you done. 'Twas fine."

Under the big tree that roofed the seat moon rays dripped between branches like water that trickles slowly through holes in old netting. A man who had been huddled asleep on one corner of the bench was on his feet holding out eager hands to take the dog from Loveland, a shabby figure even in the dim light, with a hatchet face thin as a new moon, that glimmered pale between the black blot of a frowsy hat and the inky blur of a turned up coat collar.

CHAPTER XI.

SHAKESPEARE'S MASTER.

LORD LOVELAND'S habit was to give a wide berth to common people if chance, the democrat, threw him near them, with the exception of "Tommies," who for him as a soldier were a class by themselves, a class in which he recognized humanity that touched his own. He did not love ugliness or shabbiness, which as like as not meant microbes. But he had come down so near to the depths of reality tonight that he had no sense of his own superiority or inclination to shrink away when the man's hands touched his as they took the rescued animal.

"I came along in the nick of time," said Loveland, "and I like dogs. I thought I could just do it, and I did."

Loveland, always polite to inferiors unless overmastered by rage, looked at the bench as if it were the first comer's property.

"If you don't mind I'll sit down," he said.

The shabby one laughed. "I ain't paid for my lodgin's," said he, "and if I had you'd be welcome after what you done. You can have me for a doormat if you like."

"Thanks," said Loveland, laughing too. "I don't need a doormat. If it was an overcoat now"—

"You could have mine if you weren't twice the size for it and if Anthony Comstock wouldn't run me in if he saw what I've got on underneath. But I guess you wouldn't have to wish twice for a coat if 'twas in your part."

"My part?" repeated Val.

"If the piece you're in called for it. But, say, do you want anything out o' me? 'Cause if you do you can have it. If you're a journalist out on a night stunt and what you're fishin' for is the history o' my life I'm on for Shakespeare's sake—any form you like, sad or gay, moral lesson or otherwise."

"Hang journalists!"

MEETS DEATH ON TRACKS

Edward Johnson, of Dunellen, Struck by Train and Dies in the Hospital.

FATALITY AT LONG BRANCH.

Victim a Freight Brakeman on the Jersey Central—One of His Brothers, Fireman, Killed at Brills a Year ago.

Edward Johnson, aged 23 years, of Dunellen, who was employed as freight brakeman on the Long Branch division of the New Jersey Central, was struck by a train at Long Branch late last night, and died soon afterward in the hospital at that place. Johnson had just left his train to cross the tracks near the Long Branch station, when a fast train came along in an opposite direction and hit him before he had a chance to get off the tracks. The body was terribly mangled.

The injured man was taken at once to the hospital, but the physicians saw at a glance that he was beyond hope of recovery. The victim never regained consciousness after being struck by the train.

Mr. Johnson was well-known here, having been employed on the drill engine in this city up to six months ago, when he was transferred to the Long Branch division. He was the son of Mrs. Hannah Johnson. The young man's family was notified last night of the accident and this morning one of his brothers went to Long Branch to make arrangements for having the body sent to Dunellen.

Another brother of Mr. Johnson, who was a fireman on the New Jersey Central, running with Engineer Everett Gordon, was killed a year ago at Brills, the switch being misplaced, causing the engine to overturn. The engineer escaped with a few bruises and scratches. Mr. Johnson's father was Andrew Johnson. The family resides on Front street, Dunellen. The dead man was unmarried.

May Open Restaurant Here.

Horton McVey, brother of the late John H. McVey, and a former local resident, returned to Plainfield yesterday after farming for the past two years near South Coventry, Conn. He made the trip by boat from New Haven to New York, thence by ferry to Staten Island and Elizabethport and drove from the latter place to this city. Mr. McVey will make his home here and may probably re-engage in the restaurant business.

Addressed the Endeavorers.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire addressed the union meeting of the intermediate and Junior Christian Endeavor Societies of the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday afternoon in the church parlors. Despite the stormy weather there were forty members present. This was the first meeting of the year and from all indications the coming fall and winter should be the most prosperous in the history of the society.

Elected Chancellor Commander.

At a special election last night of Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., Louis Fisher was made chancellor commander to succeed Lester Matthews. The latter was compelled to resign the office because of ill health, and has gone to Pennsylvania for a change of climate. Mr. Fisher has been chancellor commander for some the conduct of the work.
conduct of the work.

Governor to Visit Paterson Elks.

Governor Fort has accepted the invitation of the Paterson lodge of Elks to attend the dedication of the Elks' Home at Paterson next Wednesday. An effort will be made to have the Governor remain over for the playing of the assembled bands, of which there will be about a score, in concert during the evening. The ball will be given at the armory.

No Hearing on Borough Licenses.

The application of Alfred Binz, of Mt. Bethel, for a liquor license has occupied the time of Judge Clarence L. Case the entire session and was still being argued in the Somerville courthouse at press time. It is unlikely that the North Plainfield applications will be heard today.

"Lost in the Woods."

Following the regular sermon at the Congregational church, tomorrow morning, the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, will give a short talk to the boys and girls on the subject "Lost in the Woods."

BOROUGH ORDINANCE PUT BACK FOR PASSAGE

Owing to an irregularity the ordinance for the sale of sewer bonds is to be re-passed by the Borough Council. It was previously put through first reading when the reading was slightly changed and the matter then held in abeyance. Sherrard Depue, counsel for the sewage commission, noted this action on illegality and advised that it be repassed. It was brought up on first and second reading at the regular monthly meeting, last night and will be regularly passed later.

The remainder of the business transacted at the session was purely routine. Recorder Dolliver's report for September showed twenty arrests and $60 in fines received. The fire department expenses for the month were reported to be $261.72, and money for the regular marshal's winter uniforms was ordered appropriated.

The following building permits were granted: George Winans, Somerst street, alterations to residence; F. W. Whitely, Steiner place, changing barn to residence; George Kirch, Manning avenue, barn in rear of lot.

Bills amounting to $2,614.62 were ordered paid. One of them amounting $10 for the bond of Fred Martine as assistant tax collector, caused some discussion. Heretofore it has been paid by Collector Brown. The bill was passed with only Councilman Stahl voting against it.

HEBREWS TO OBSERVE THE YOM KIPPUR FEAST

Preparations are being made in the synagoge of the Children of Israel, on New street, for the observance of the festival of Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement.

Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement, the holiest day on the Jewish calendar, falls this year on Thursday of next week.

In Hebrew terminology it is known as the tenth Tishri and the authority for the celebration of the festival is found in Leviticus 16: 29, 34 and 22:26, 32, where it is termed a "Sabbath of Solemn Rest."

The purpose of the day is to complete and crown the penitential season begun on the first day of the new year. The aim of the devout Jew is to reach atonement with the Almighty. To accomplish this he believes it necessary to "afflict his soul" with fasting, thereby inducing a state of consciousness wherein his thoughts are fixed upon the needs of the soul.

As a preliminary to this the day is spent in meditation and prayer as well as fasting.

It is not to be supposed that these austerities take the place of inward contrition, but are merely necessary aids to attain that end.

Services will be held in all the synagogues, beginning Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. These will be very impressive and the special music will be of a solemn order.

On Thursday services will be held at 9 in the morning and 3 in the afternoon. The afternoon service is particularly impressive, taking the form of a memorial to the ancient service conducted in the temple at Jerusalem, when the high priest went into the Holy of Holies and pronounced the ineffable name of Jehovah, which is called only once a year under the name Adonai. This ceremony closes with the confession of sins and devout prayers.

WEST END TABERNACLE DIME SOCIAL HELD.

A dime social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Miller, of Everett place last night, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the West End Tabernacle and for the benefit of the work there. Miss Try Mattox gave several recitations to the enjoyment of all present and received a number of encores. Selections of old-time melodies were played on the piano by Mrs. William Horner.

Phonographic selections were rendered by Milton Miller, who possesses a fine machine. Games of various kinds were introduced and enjoyed and refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid Society, after which all joined hands and sang "God be With You Till We Meet Again."

Will Present "Girls."

The Plainfield permanent stock company will present Clyde Fitch's play, "Girls," at The Plainfield theatre on Monday and Tuesday, October 10 and 11, and on Thursday, Friday and Saturday the comapny will produce that strong play, "The Lion and the Mouse." Wednesday night, when W. H. Crane appears here, the company will appear at Perth Amboy.

MR. BAXTER EXPLAINS CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles J. Baxter, in answer to a number of inquiries as to the proper interpretation of "corporal punishment" in public schools, which practice is prohibited by the State laws, gives his views against such infliction and warns the teachers not to indulge in the same.

Mr. Baxter says that any means of punishment inflicting physical pain, whether with the hand or rod, or causing undue physical weariness, is corporal punishment. Standing on one foot ,holding down a nail, holding any form of weight with the extended arms, or any similar test of endurance, is corporal punishment, according to Mr. Baxter's interpretation of the words as applied to school discipline, regulation or management.

This question is frequently asked of the superintendent, and in some instances the teachers do not agree with the opinion. It is their idea that they have the right to moderately correct the child or pupil, but when they lay hands on the child they are liable to dismissal and prosecution, says Mr. Baxter, and it is this that he seeks to avoid by freely giving his opinion.

PARK AVE. BAPTISTS ENJOY ANNUAL SOCIAL

Instrumental and vocal music, recitations and short addresses together, with sociability, combined to make the social at the Park Avenue Baptist church last night a delightful affair. It marked the resumption of activities for the fall and winter and every department of church work was represented in the large gathering of people. Everyone was enthusiastic in again taking up the work under the leadership of their pastor, Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire.

During the evening there was an informal program which included banjo selections by Fred VanEpps, vocal selections by Master Chester Chamberlain; recitations by Miss Arline Brown and soprano solos by Miss Bechtle. In addition there were short addresses by Rev. Mr. Maguire, the pastor, and Rev. F. St. John Fitch, of this city, in which they spoke of the promising future for the church, hoping that all would work together for one common end —that of the salvation of souls and the betterment of humanity in general.

Following the program there was a social hour and refreshments were served under the direction of the Ladies' Aid Society, of which Mrs. John H. Doane is the president. The various members assisted in the social features of the evening.

ELIZABETH OFFICIAL SELKS PERSON WHO INFECTED FOOD

Working on the theory that the food at the Entr-Nous Club banquet in Elizabeth, which caused four deaths and made fifteen others sick, was infected by a person who came in contact with it, Health Officer Richards said yesterday that he hopes to find out who the infected person was. At first it was believed that the lobster salad was poisoned, but Mr. Richards scouts the idea.

It is the belief of Mr. Richards that some one carried the germs and infected the food unconsciously and without knowledge that he himself was spreading the disease. He further explained that typhoid had developed among men at both tables at the banquet and not only at one table, as reported. The patients now at the Alexian Hospital who are ill from the effects of the dinner cannot recover, according to the physicians.

Mrs. Alice O'Brien.

Following an illness of several months, Mrs. Alice O'Brien died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Morris Culhane, of Liberty street. She had been a resident of the city for a long time. Besides Mrs. Culhane, she leaves another daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Bray, of Plainfield. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Monday morning at 9 o'clock, and burial will be in St. Mary's cemtery.

Swedish Ministers to Meet Here.

There will be a meeting of Swedish ministers of the New Jersey district at the Swedish Lutheran church on Tuesday evening, October 11, at 8 o'clock. It will be in the nature of a conference.

YOUNG PROFESSOR DIES

James M. Brown, of Leal's School, Succumbs to Heart Failure.

FOUND PROSTRATE IN STREET.

Leaves Widowed Mother for Whom He Had Sacrificed Himself—Was Graduate of Trinity College, Hartford, Ct.

Just graduated from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and only employed at Leal's school for a week, James M. Brown succumbed to an attack of illness on the street in front of the Park Avenue Baptist church last Saturday night and died two days later. The medical men who were called in to attend the young professor were unable to diagnose the case until after his death. Heart failure was the immediate cause.

The young professor's mother, who lives in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was notified and she immediately came to Plainfield to take care of the body, which was taken to Poughkeepsie for burial.

According to the story obtained by a reporter for this paper, the young man had been in financial straits and it was told of him that he had sacrificed everything for his mother, a widow, even going so far as to deny himself proper nourishment in order that she might be well taken care of. It was this fact that probably caused the young man to succumb. His vitality had been sapped through work and lack of nourishment.

The mother of the young man was heartbroken and it was only by the exercise of great fortitude that she was able at all to withstand her bereavement. It was said this morning that Professor Brown was endowed with unusual attainments and had already made a good impression among the students of the school as well as with the headmaster, Mr. Leal, and his death was deeply deplored.

Drs. E. S. Krans, J. S. Wooley and Wm. H. Anthony used their best efforts to save the young man.

COLORED VOTERS PARADE AND MAKE SPEECHES

State and national issues were the themes of three colored speakers at the colored men's mass meeting in Reform hall last night. More than six hundred men answered the call for the meeting, 300 of whom accompanied the speakers from Newark. Counsellor Alfred Cosey, Judge Louis Johnson and Cornelius M. Brown, party organizer of Essex county, all took a rap at the Republican party and urged the men present to give their unanimous support to the Democratic ticket. Mr. Brown spoke first, and used up a full hour in his argument against monopolies, trusts and the special interests. Mr. Johnson followed with a divergence on the same subjects, while Mr. Cosey announced that as there were no newspaper men present it was all right, as what he intended to say was hardly worth recording.

Mr. Brown declared that the Republican party had not kept any promises made to the colored people and had been as hard on the poor whites. "Didn't you all eat chicken once?" he asked "and can you get chicken now? No, you can't. The chickens are all in cold storage, and when they let 'em out the price is so high that you can't buy 'em." Vociferous applause followed this statement. "I am not asking for social equality for the colored man, but I am demanding civic rights which were promised to us by Abraham Lincoln, and were given by him, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Lovejoy and Mr. McKinley."

The H. M. Randolph Association, of Essex county, marched through the town, headed by their own band of colored musicians, for a half hour before the meeting was called to order by Robert Diggs, who presided and introduced the speakers.

Speak at Teachers' Institute.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire will lecture before the Teachers' Institute at Waynesburg, Greene county, Pa., on October 18. His topic will be Africa. On the succeeding days Dr. Edward Amherst and Dr. Frank W. Gonsaulus, both of Chicago, will speak.

Announce Approaching Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Berton Dennis, of 728 East Seventh street, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter Miss Ada Irene Dennis and Elmer Hummer, of this city. The affair will be celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Tuesday evening, November 8, at 7 o'clock.

LOTS OF ENTRIES FOR THE RACES ON OCT. 12

The entries for the trot and pace events at the Driving Park on Columbus Day under the auspices of the Plainfield Driving Club are these:

2:15 trot and pace—Tokio, Dr. C. S. Harris, Flemington; Edward T., A. S. Case, Flemington; Lillian W., John Gregory, Newark; Orina, Eugene McLaughlin, New Brunswick; Aron B., Adam C. Blair, Plainfield; Foxy Todd, W. S. Hutchins, Westfield; Strongheart, C. C. Brower, Westfield; Lady Vincent, Theodore Pope, Freehold.

There will be two running events as well, and prizes will be awarded in each of the four races.

CHRISTAIN ENDEAVOR PARADE IN TRENTON

With a pardae by several hundred "juniors," for whom all street traffic halted, and an inspirational address by the Rev. Dr. Francis Clark, or "Father Endeavor," as he is better known in religious circles, a three days' convention of the Christian Endevorers of New Jersey was closed at Trenton last evening.

The parade of the children was an unusual spectacle and attracted much attention, particularly when the little folks unfurled small American flags and waved them frantically at the admiring throngs along the sidewalk.

Dr. Clark in his address told of the forming of the first Christian Endeavor Society about thirty years ago, when he was prompted to do something to arouse his young people to religious activity. Since then the organization has spread to all parts of the world.

Another speaker was the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Speer, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, of New York, whose subject was "Weaknesses of the Christian Church of Today." Lack of coherent reason in religious conviction, lack of actual experience of Christ, the insufficiency and unnotableness of Christian superiority and the expulsion of God from the life were the four points dicussed by him.

The Rev. Dr. A. Pohlman, of the Temple Lutheran church, of Philadelphia, spoke on "The Man in the Making."

C. N. FOWLER WON'T SAY HE'LL STUMP FOR LEWIS

Representative Charles N. Fowler, the only Republican insurgent Congressman in the New Jersey delegation, and the only insurgent in the whole country who failed to secure a renomination this fall, spent several hours yesterday in Trenton and about the State House on political errands. Among those on whom he called were Governor Fort and former Governor E. C. Stokes.

"Are you going to take the stump for Mr. Lewis?" Mr. Fowler was asked by a reporter.

"I do not care to be interviewed on the subject," said the Congressman with such decision that it was useless to press him further as to what his attitude will be in the gubernatorial campaign.

Got Suspended Sentence.

Lawrence Monahan was overcome by his indulgence in strong drink yesterday, and when lodged in a cell at police headquarters started in to break up the iron furniture, but he found that an impossibility. This morning he was arraigned before Mayor Fisk and given a suspended sentence because of his previous good behavior.

Where is Mary Weangotz?

What has become of Mary Weangotz? According to her brother, Frank, of 805 North avenue, his sister left Ellis Island yesterday afternoon carrying a tag with his address written on it. Up to this morning the sister had not put in an appearance and Mr. Weangotz is much worried.

BOY IS ENTRAPPED BY DENSE SMOKE AT FIRE

Damage estimated at $150 was occasioned by a fire at the home of Spencer Conway, colored, 549 West Fourth street, last night. It was caused by an overheated stove being too near a wooden partition and had made its way to the ground floor when intercepted. The loss is covered by insurance.

There was no one at home when the fire broke out except a small boy asleep on the attic floor. When he awoke the smoke was so dense and stifling he was unable to get down stairs and smashed a window to get air. His cries gave the alarm and he was still hanging out of the opening when the fire men arrived in response to a call from box 34. He was bewildered by the conflicting cries of the crowd below until Dan Keiderling, driver for Chief Doane, climbed to the porch roof and directed him to jump. The boy did so and landed in Keiderling's arms without injury to himself but his rescuer received a sprained ankle through the suddenness of the impact.

The house was tightly shut up on every floor and the smoke was so dense the firemen had difficulty in getting to the flames. They were driven back several times before three chemical streams were finally gotten in to play. The blaze was entirely extinguished in about half an hour.

A. O. U. W. LODGE HEARS STIRRING ADDRESSES

Columbia Lodge, No. 58, Ancient Order United Workmen, received a visit last night from Grand Master Workman Clopper, of Camden, and there were delegations present from Upchurch Lodge, of Westfield; Central Lodge, No. 48, of this city, and from Millington and Basking Ridge. It was one of the largest gatherings of Workmen held in this city in a long time and much interest was aroused in the work of the order.

Grand Master Workman Clopper made a stirring address, telling the progress of the order and congratulating the Plainfield members, and there were also interesting remarks by Past Grand Master Workman V W. Nash, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, Grand Inner Guard J. W. A. Bauersachs, of this city, and John Haas, of Millington.

Following the speech-making, refreshments were served, cigars were passed and the members enjoyed an informal musical program furnished by the members.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE FOR MR. AND MRS. CRANE.

A brthday surprise party was given to Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Crane, of Westervelt avenue, last night, in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. There were about twenty-five guests. During the evening the couple was presented with a large cut glass water pitcher, silver syrup cup and tray, and Mrs. Crane was also given a large bunch of roses.

Progressive euchre was a feature of the evening and vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed by the company. The affair was arranged by the Afternoon Euchre Club, of which Mrs. Crane is a member. Mr. and Mrs. Crane have been residents of this city for several years and they have a large number of friends.

Funeral of Thomas M. Paff.

The funeral of Thomas Morse Paff, whose death occurred early Thursday morning, was held this afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Grant, of West Front street. It was conducted by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, of Scotch Plains, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. There were several large floral offerings. Burial was made in the family plot in Hillside cemetery, relatives of the family acting as pall bearers.

A Trophy of the Hunt.

Captain Frederickson and the patrolmen on duty at police headquarters were somewhat surprised this morning when the United States Express Company's wagon left a doe there addressed to headquarters, but not tagged for anyone in particular. It was one of the trophies of the chief's hunt in the Adirondacks. The animal was sent to cold storage pending the Chief's return tomorrow.

Chas. Suhr Returns to Theatre.

Charles Suhr, who furnished the music at The Plainfield theatre last season, has returned to his position, succeeding Prof. Denny, who opened this season. Music will be made a feature during the season.

M'KINLEY TO TALK HERE

California Representative, Expert on Tarriff to Speak on Aldrich-Payne Bill.

AT G. O. P. MASS MEETING.

McCarthy, Pierce and Schwartz Also to Make Addresses at Reform Hall on Monday Night.

Representative Duncan W. McKinley, of California, will be the chief speaker on Monday night at the first of a series of mass meetings to be held at Reform hall. These rallies will be conducted by the Plainfield Republican city committee for a presentation of the issues of the State, congressional district, county and city campaigns. All of them will be held at Reform hall, which has been leased for Monday nights.

The topic of Representative McKinley, who is a warm supporter of President William H. Taft's policies, will be "The Tariff." He is an expert on the subject and is expected to explain the provisions of the Aldrich-Payne bill. The other speakers will be James W. McCarthy, of Jersey City, assistant prosecutor of Hudson county, who is a capital speaker; Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, joint author with Senator Wakelee of the Utilities law and Assemblyman Augustus W. Schwartz

Judge William R. Codington will be the chairman and will make a few introductory remarks. The list of vice-presidents will be announced on Monday by City Chairman Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. At Monday night's meeting there will be music. The women are given a special invitation to attend.

It was learned today that former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, the Republican mayoralty nominee, has decided to address the voters on the local issues. The date for his meeting will be announced in a few days.

OPENING RECEPTION OF STATE TRUST CO.

A reception is being held this afternoon at the new State Trust Company's banking offices at Second street and Park avenue. There will be another reception from 7 to 10 o'clock tonight. At this time an opportunity is given the public to inspect the new steel vault and other appurtenances of the bank. An expert is present to explain the working of the intricate mechanism of the big vault.

The room for women is open for their inspection, as is also the directors' room. Souvenirs are given to all who attend the reception, as well as a hearty welcome. The bank is handsomely decorated with potted plants and southern smilax, and presents an inviting appearance.

Employes Give a Dance.

The Nat Levy & Co. employes gave a dance in the new addition of the concern on Watchung avenue, last night, there being over three hundred guests. A feature of the affair was the music furnished by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra, a popular program of selections being rendered throughout the evening. At midnight refreshments were served. The committee in charge comprised Clarence Angleman, chairman; P. B. McDonough, S. Shapiro and Geo. Huff. Dancing was continued until an early hour this morning.

Young Friends Discuss Plans.

The Young Friends Association met at the meetinghouse on Watchung avenue, last night, to discuss plans for the coming season; especially entertainment of the delegates to the half-yearly meeting of the Plainfield-Shrewsbury Meetings to be held at the local meeting house, November 17. It is expected that there will be a large attendance of Friends, because the following day the general conference of the Young Friends Association will be held in Brooklyn and many will stop here on their way to the general conference.

Celebrated His Birthday.

Master Gordon Bond, of 52 Norwood avenue, was two years old yesterday and in order to properly celebrate the event a small company of little folks were entertained in his honor. The children had great sport on a slide which Russell Bond, the boy's father built especially for the occasion. Refreshments were served on a long table also arranged for the festivities. The little folks had a jolly time.

Rector and Bride Return.

Rev. and Mrs. E. Vicars Stevenson have returned from their honeymoon, spent abroad, and are now living on College place. On Tuesday night the parishoners of Grace church, of which Mr. Stevenson is rector, will give a reception to him and his bride.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The funeral of John McFadden, who died Tuesday at his home on Chestnut street, was held in St. John's church yesterday morning. A solemn mass of requiem was conducted by Rev. Father Dunphy and burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield. The pall bearers were Owen Mohan Bartley Kelly, Thomas Sheenan and William Fallon. Mr. McFadden was fifty-three years old, and leaves a widow. He had been ill with a pulmonary trouble for a long time.

The home of Postmaster H. S. Garretson was entered by a burglar, Tuesday night, who was evidently frightened away before making a thorough search of the premises. So far as known, the intruder secured only a small bank containing about a dollar in change. Entrance was made through a window left open because of the heat, and the bank was taken from the room occupied by the Misses Ethel and Lillian Garretson.

Cashier A. H. Hamley and John P. Fenner represented the First National Bank, of the borough, at the annual dinner of the County Banking Association in the Mansion House, New Brunswick, Thursday night.

The Dunellen baseball club will hold a dance in Junior hall, Friday night, October 14. Manager Chas. Adams is in charge of the arrangements.

Arthur Dow, of the borough, who was recently stricken with typhoid fever, has been taken to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment.

Postmaster Garretson is detained at home by an illness which at first threatened pneumonia. He is somewhat improved today.

Miss Edna Bowers, of Basking Ridge, is the guest of Miss Elizabeth Herlick, of the borough.

Mrs. John R. Campbell, of Prospect avenue, has been detained at home by illness.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The B. & E. Co. dance held at Garwood last night, was a success in every way. The large dancing floor of Becker's auditorium was covered with several hundred dancers, enjoying the music of the waltz and two step as rendered by Dow's full orchestra. Dancing was kept up until a late hour and every one voted the affair a most successful one in every way.

Many of the old friends and neighbors of the late Thomas M. Paff, Sr., who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Grant, of Plainfield, at an early hour Thursday morning, will attend the funeral services which will be held from Mrs. Grant's home this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made at Hillside.

Louis Wahl, who has been taking an enforced vacation for a few days on account of having had one of his fingers cut off while working about the chopper at Perley's mill, several days ago, has returned from a visit with relatives in Brooklyn.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Baptist church, will begin a series of lectures on the moral and religious training of boys, at the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. on Friday afternoon, Oct. 14.

Briant Johnston, of Westfield avenue, is spending several days at Ocean Grove, endeavoring to reduce the number of fish in the Atlantic Ocean. From all reports, Briant is catching his share.

Charles Hand and daughter, Miss Hazel, who have been making an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hand, of Park avenue, have returned to their home at Sanford, Florida.

Robert Jahn who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Robert Jahn, of Park avenue, has returned to his home at Perth Amboy.

Rev. Mr. Hollingshead will have charge of the weekly prayer and praise meeting tonight at the Methodist church.

Thomas Riordan has returned to his home at Bristol, Conn., after a visit of several days with friends in town.

Invitations are out for the Bachelors' Club dance, which will be held in the hall Tuesday evening, Oct. 18.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be morning preaching, 10:45; B. Y. P. U., 7 p. m.

WESTFIELD.

The fire department was called out twice Thursday, the first time to put out a fire in a small barn at the rear of the North Avenue Hotel, and the second time to put out a bonfire on First street. The fire at the rear of the hotel did but little damage. There was a high wind blowing at the time, and hard work only saved the block.

A heavy mortar board spanning the brook at the new fire department building gave way Thursday and dropped several tons of concrete into the brook with a crash that aroused the entire neighborhood. Several workmen at the board sprang clear to save themselves.

The manual training shop at the Washington School is open from 1 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, each week.

STATE EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE TO MEET HERE

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield will hold its first meeting of the season, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Stephen Haff, 954 West Seventh street. The program for the year includes four lectures to be given in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. These lectures are free and visitors are welcome at all the league meetings held at the residences of members.

On November 1 and 2, the annual convention of the New Jersey State Equal Suffrage Association will be held in Plainfield. Addresses will be given by prominent lecturers and excepting the business meetings all the sessions of the convention will be open to the public, no admission fee being charged.

New Jersey Baptists to Meet.

The anniversary meetings of the New Jersey Baptist will be held at Atlantic City, October 24, 25, and 26, and it is expected that the gathering will be the largest in the history of the denomination. A social union dinner will be held at the Grand Atlantic Hotel, Wednesday night, October 26, the chief speaker being Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, who is pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York city.

Shot 600-Pound Moose.

J. A. Staats, who in company with Dr. P. J. Zeglio and Fred Sandford is enjoying a hunting and fishing trip in Nova Scotia, had great luck last Saturday, when he shot a 600-pound moose, five miles from the camp, which is located at Bronze Lake. It took the combined efforts of the three men all day to get the moose to camp.

New Members of Board of Trade.

George L. Babcock and V. W. Nash were elected members of the Board of Trade at the October meeting, Thursday night. The promoters of the Pan-American Fair to be held at New Orleans again asked the board to adopt resolutions endorsing the movement, and inform them of the action.

More Victims of Poison.

Two victims have been added to the list of those suffering from poison contracted, it is thought, at the banquet of the Entre Nous Club of Elizabethport. They are John Regan, son of former Fire Chief Cornelius F. Regan, and Alexander Patterson, aged twenty of 109 Division street. The last named is in the Elizabeth General Hospital. Regan is at his home, on Pine street, but will be removed to the Alexian Hospital. The condition of George Marriott, Daniel and Dennis Sullivan, who are at the Alexian Hospital, was reported yesterday morning as critical.

HOME NEWS.

Of Interest to Everyone in Plainfield.

In every newspaper in the country you will read statements made by people living in out-of-the-way places, who are supposed to have been cured or derived great benefit from some wonderful remedy or "cure-all." But here in Plainfield we only publish statements made by Plainfield people—the testimony of your friends, neighbors and fellow-townsmen.

Mrs. C. Rosseter, 127 Watchung avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I had severe backaches and occasional attacks of rheumatism. Being told that Doan's Kidney Pills were very effective in cases of this nature and believing that my trouble arose from disordered kidneys, I procured a box of this remedy from Randolph's Pharmacy. I soon found relief and since that time I have always kept Doan's Kidney Pills in the house. Whenever I feel out of sorts, I take a few doses of this preparation and I am soon feeling good. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

DEAF WILL HEAR SERMON AT PARK AVE. CHURCH

Those who are deaf and want to hear Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire preach can now do so with the utmost ease. Yesterday the finishing touches were put on the installation of the new system of aurophones by the Mears Ear Phone Co., of New York. The pastor believes that this system will enable those who are hard of hearing and who stay away from church on that account to come out and enjoy the services.

The novel hearing apparatuses are quite inconspicuous and are fastened in a corner of the pew where they are easy to reach. They are small round discs of black rubber and are so thin that they can be held in the palm of the hand and thus placed against the ear. Each phone is connected with the pulpit by a hidden wire, and when not in use it is hung on the back of the pew in front. All the wire stops from the pulpit, on which is placed a curious little oblong receiver, hardly noticeable to the members of the congregation sitting in the front row, and from this transmitter a network of wires radiates to all parts of the church, carrying the speaker's words with clearness and distinctness.

RECORD AND WILSON IN OPEN DEBATE

Though Woodrow Wilson's statement that he would "tackle any professional" and insist that the tackling be in public, was made during a speech at Trenton, in which he was outlining the course he would follow if elected Governor, he may stand by the interpretation put upon it by George L. Record that it was a challenge to public debate during the campaign. As a condition to meeting the Hudson County man, however, Mr. Wilson, will, it is expected, insist that Record be designated as the official representative of the Republican State committee and the authorized spokesman of Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican Gubernatorial candidate, and Mr. Wilson's opponent in the campaign.

James R. Nugent, chairman of the Democratic State committee, has written to Frank O. Briggs, chairman of the Republican committee, in connection with Mr. Record's letter, which was given publicity Thursday, but which Mr. Wilson has not yet received. Mr. Nugent would not give out the text of the letter, but made a statement, in which he made clear the position Dr. Wilson would take.

The publication of the letter in the newspapers Thursday gave Mr. Wilson his first information concerning it. Without parleying about the niceties of the matter, Messrs. Wilson and Nugent took immediate action upon the "acceptance." Mr. Nugent's statement was given out after a conference with the Democratic candidate and was as follows:

"George L. Record's letter to Mr. Wilson, offering to meet the Democratic candidate for Governor in a public discussion of campaign issues, has appeared in the daily press, but Mr. Wilson has not received it, and probably will not receive it until his return to Princeton at the end of the week.

"Mr. Wilson does not wish to leave Mr. Record's letter so long unnoticed. Therefore, he has asked me, as State chairman, to do what in any case he should do before replying to Mr. Record, namely, to communicate at once with Senator Briggs, chairman of the Republican State committee, to ascertain officially if Mr. Record has been or will be designated by the Republican State committee and the Republican candidate as their representative and spokesman. If so, I am authorized by Mr. Wilson, to arrange with Chairman Briggs for such joint meeting, or meetings, as may be agreed upon.

Mr. Nugent would not amplify the statement. He said it explained itself. Nor would other members of the State committee who were in Burlington Thursday night and with whom Mr. Wilson and Mr. Nugent consulted, make any comment upon the statement.

Mr. Record was criticized for his haste in making public the letter to the candidate before Mr. Wilson could have received it. In further criticism, Mr. Record's good faith was attacked. His effort to have a debate during the campaign was not looked on as an acceptance of Mr. Wilson's proposition, but as the result of a misinterpretation of it.

Dr. Wilson said Thursday that his challenge was to debate with any professional politician upon issues of public importance should he become Governor. He desired, he said, to speak as the champion of the people's rights, as against efforts of politicians to prevent legislation in favor of the people of the State. He could not understand how Mr. Record could read any other meaning from his speech.

Mr. Wilson, it is stated, does not fear a debate. All he wants is to hold it with some one who has authority to speak in the capacity of a representative of the Republican party, as he himself speaks, as the representative of the Democratic party.

Owen Farrelly's Funeral.

The funeral of Alderman Owen Farrelly, of Elizabeth, will be held from his late home Monday morning, at 9 o'clock and from the Holy Rosary church at 9:30 o'clock, when Father J. J. Smith, the pastor, will conduct a solemn high mass. Mr. Farrelly was the fourth victim of the "lobster dinner" given at Elizabeth on September 7. Dennis and Daniel Sullivan and George Marriott, who are ill at an Elizabeth hospital from the same cause, it was said today, cannot live.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Maude Adams will spread the charm of her art and personality over the stage of the Plainfield theatre, tonight, when the actress will be seen in Barrie's new comedy, "What Every Woman Knows." There will be an audience crowding the theatre in every part to greet her for her popularity is something that can hardly be measured. This was shown as it has been on previous occasions, when the seats for her appearance went on sale. The demand was record breaking. Barrie's new play is said to be the most delightful and satisfying work that has yet come from his pen. It possesses a quaint humor that at times is whimsical, always delightful, and glosses over a story that contains a genuine heart throb. The success of the comedy and of Miss Adams in it has been very great. The story of how a little Scotch wife, timid, shy, retiring and modest, succeeds in making a great man of her husband is distributed over four acts, with scenes in Scotland and in England; and is told by an exceptionally well balanced company.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The girls basketball team is practicing almost daily on their new court under the direction of Miss Day, of the faculty.

The P. H. S. football team will play New Brunswick High team at New Brunswick on Columbus Day, October 12, in the morning. The locals have been showing up well in practice and from advices from the enemy's camp there ought to be a fast game between the two elevens.

Was in Jail 577 Days.

After being a prisoner in the Union county jail 577 days on a false accusation made against him by Mary Dalef, fourteen years old of Elizabeth who Wednesday was committed to the State Industrial Home for Girls, George L. Caufine, a young married man of Elizabeth, was released from the county jail shortly before noon yesterday by order of Judge Atwater. During his time in the prison Caufine was employed in the cookhouse of the institution. He had been sentenced to two years in State prison, but his counsel obtained a stay from the Supreme Court, which kept him in Union county.

Plainfielders on Fishing Trip.

The steam pleasure yacht, "Hydraulic," with about forty-five members of the Elictric Bowling Club, of New York, and a few specially invited guests, left Pier 1 Communipaw, at 8 o'clock this morning for the bass grounds at Sea Bright. The day is being spent in angling for bass. Luncheon was served on board. The "Hydraulic" will return home this evening. Roland H. Leveridge, of this city, and T. D. Watson, of New York, directed the fishing trip.

Plainfield vs. Elizabeth.

The Plainfield Association Football Club will play the Elizabeth United on the Clinton avenue grounds, this afternoon, at 3:15 o'clock. The local team is going very fast just now, having defeated the Thomas A. C. last Saturday by a score of 1 to 0. Today's game will be one in the amateur league series and should attract a record-breaking crowd. The Plainfield club will present its regular line-up.

RAT INVASION FEARED IN UPPER MONTCLAIR.

The piles of old cans on the Garretson farm, in Upper Montclair, which have been a source of complaint by residents for years, will soon be removed, but people in the vicinity now fear an invasion of their homes by rats. The town authorities, by whom the farm is leased as a garbage dump, have made arrangements to ship some of the material in carload lots to a firm in Jersey City. A large proportion of the waste receptacles have been on the ground so many years that they are now valueless to any one. This part of the rubbish will be buried.

In the recent appeal made to the State Board of Health by residents of Upper Montclair and the Brookdale section of Bloomfield that the Montclair garbage farm nuisance be abated, it was stated that the old can piles were the breeding place of millions of rats, which fed on the decaying refuse in the dumps. One of the objects in removing the old cans is to exterminate the rodents. It is believed by many in the immediate neighborhood that this cannot be done unless the animals are poisoned. Mrs. William Kaestner, of Grove street, says that she has been fighting for years to keep rats out of her house, but that new arrivals from the dumping ground and can piles take the place of those killed.

The claim is made that unless some steps are taken to kill the rats before the cans are removed the rodents, deprived of their present home, will invade the whole Upper Montclair and Brookdale neighborhoods.

BROMO-SELTZER ORDERED BY MARTINE FOR MOY

When Mayor Charles J. Fisk and George W. V. Moy, the Bi-partisan League candidate for mayor, were "laying down the law"—Alphonse and Gaston style, on the corner this morning, "Farmer-orator" James E. Martine happened along.

"Don't waste your time, gentlemen, trying to wash your party linen here, it's too black in spots and I find that the only thing for you to do is to turn to us. The line of goods we offer is popular now," said the Democratic stalwart.

"Now, come, now," continued the farmer-orator, "let's all go and have a ball."

"You forget, Mr. Martine, that I never took a drink in my life," put in Mr. Moy.

"Well, that's too bad; that's your misfortune—what a thirst you must have by this time.

A compromise was made and the trio adjourned to a soda water fountain.

"Let's see, I don't know what I want," muttered the Bi-partisan man.

"Give him a bromo-seltzer," whispered Martine. "Heaven knows he needs it."

Spying a sign "Princeton delight," Moy went back at him with: "That's what you want."

"Not by a blamed sight," retorted Jim, "I've got that all through my system and you fellows will get such an injection of it on Election Day that you won't forget it for three years.

"Tom, better give me some spiritus frumenti, hang it all I don't want to spring any surprise party on my stomach with that concoction of soda."

As Moy departed he shouted back at Martine: "Jim, why didn't you order 'Wilson's—that's all'?"

MISSION BAND.

Trinity Society Discusses Plans for Season.

The Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, held its first fall meeting at the church, yesterday afternoon, when plans for the coming season were discussed, and the work of preparing a Christmas box to be sent to a western missionary was begun. There was a large attendance of members and much enthusiasm was shown in the work of the band. Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, president, was in the chair.

It was decided to hold an entertainment about the middle of November, something similar to the "Country School" affair, held last year, and Charles L. Lewis will have charge. Members of the band will take various parts in the entertainment and it is hoped to make it fully as successful as the one of last year.

FORT'S PROCLAMATION ON BERGEN CELEBRATION.

Governor Fort today issued a proclamation calling upon the people of the State to unite with Jersey City in its celebration of the 250th anniversary of the first permanent settlement between the Hudson and Delaware rivers in this State, the festivities in honor of which will be continued from October 17th to 22d. This settlement preceded the colonial government. It was the village of Bergen, now a part of Jersey City.

In his proclamation the Governor requested that on Friday, October 21, the schools of the State, so far as practicable, give at least half an time and has had much success in of the history incident to the founding "of the village of Bergen beyond Communipaw."

Physical Examinations at Y. W. C. A.

Dr. Clara Krans will be at the Young Women's Christian Association on Monday evening, October 10, for the purpose of making physical examination of the young women candidates for membership in the gymnasium classes. The gymnasium will open for the season on Monday, October 17.

Rev. J. J. Allen will occupy the pulpit as usual both morning and evening tomorrow. The Sunday school will meet at the noon hour and the Christian Endeavor at 7 o'clock.

A deadly enemy to the chickens in the shape of a black and white skunk was caught under the floor of the exhibition building at the Sunswick Poultry Farm.

The children of the village who attend school in Plainfield, are obliged to walk, having no trolley or stage to convey them to and from.

Notwithstanding the severe drouth Spring Lake has not varied an inch while the lake at New Market is almost dry.

Mrs. Catherine Smith, mother of the judge, who is ninety-two years old, is in good health and walks out daily.

Charley Randolph has the care of Hillside cemetery at Samptown, and is also sexton of the Baptist church here.

The elm and chestnut trees in this vicinity are all dying from the fungus which has attacked them.

Mrs. Pyatt, who has been quite ill, was able to visit friends in Dunellen.

Mr. Randolph is riding a new Cleveland of which he is quite proud.

Mr. Stanton has given his house a fresh coat of paint.

P. H. S. NOTES.

Lindsey Best, of the High School, resumed his duties after several days' absence.

There was a practice game yesterday afternoon at Crescent Oval, between the P. H. S. first and second teams. The squad has been practicing on the Union street grounds for the past several weeks while the other field was put in shape.

The P. H. S. minstrel troupe had its first chorus rehearsal yesterday afternoon under the supervision of Mr. Howe.

Big Act at Proctor's.

The big feature of the vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre next week will be the first appearance of Frank Mayne & Co., in a strong, virile and interesting sketch called "The Third Degree," which shows to a wonderful extent the methods in use in the police department of any great city. Mr. Mayne takes seven distinct parts, necessitating as many quick changes of costume. The story deals with a laborer arrested for setting fire to a house of his landlord from which he has been dispossessed. This big act will be offered the first three days of the week.

HOUSEKEEPING ON A LITTLE.

The old saying about "a penny saved" being a "penny earned" is too often forgotten nowadays, and we moderns are much too ready to say, "Oh, I am no good at housekeeping! I cannot sew, I have no idea how to cook, I was never taught housekeeping," and so on. And consider that full excuse for not teaching ourselves all these things.

The fact is, that not two married women in a million are so stupid, so dense, that they could not become good economical housekeepers, home dressmakers and cooks, if they chose to do so. It is not nearly as hard a lesson as the history or German or arithmetic one learns at school.

It entails much self-sacrifice, however; and a good many sweet, good wives, who would be perfect treasures on a desert island, would be heroic in a shipwreck, would nurse their husbands through plague or smallpox without a murmur, cannot seem to see that it is just as heroic to energetically force onself to "make ends meet" on a painfully inadequate income; to move into the small house in the dowdy street, to go oneself to the shops and pay cash, instead of sitting cozily by the fire and giving orders on credit; to ask one's friends to tea and home-made cake instead of dinner; to make one's own garments with the aid of a dressmaking course and a paper pattern, instead of buying expensive, soon-worn-out, ready-made finery.

Nor can they believe the simple truth that there is more satisfaction in "owing no man anything" than in the most generous home kept up on credit. And the other little fact, that it is silly to "keep up appearances" you cannot pay for, because everybody always sees through them, and laughs at you for it.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Some idle people are not annoying; but there isn't one in a thousand.

A steady man doesn't have to spend much of his time looking for a steady job.

There are people who only listen to the prosecution, and others who are able to hear only the defense.

It sometimes develops that when a man begins printing notices to the effect that he will no longer be responsible for any debts contracted by his wife that he never really was; that the tendency not to was what sent her away from home.

The expression is often heard that "business is sordid." As a matter of fact, business is the most important thing in the world. Your business means your living. The men who say "business is sordid" are selfish and mischievous. Unless you pay close attention to your business you cannot do anything for yourself or your country. Close attention to business on the part of different worthy men has made this wonderful country what it is.—Atchison Globe.

MATRIMONY AS A BUSINESS.

The idea that modern woman is not fitted for business is erroneous. Women are proving this every day. Not only are many of them trusted employees of large concerns, but quite as many more are in business on their own account. Some are shrewd and sharp enough to take care of themselves and their investments in the most trying circumstances. Even in the speculative line they have proved to be daring plungers, and some have recouped their losses by almost Napoleonic strategy. An instance of this kind is found in a young and pretty woman who lost $2,000 in a bucket-shop. She called at her broker's to learn where her money had gone. Successive visits led to a wedding betwen her and the broker. Two months later she had divorced him, and she is now enjoying an alimony of $2,600 a year.

There is no reason why women should not succeed in business. Many have recuperative powers greater than those of men.—Chicago Tribune.

Compulsory Egotism.

"I hate to talk about myself," said the energetic statesman.

"Indeed!"

"Yes. But I'd rather do it than let my enemies do all the talking about me."—Exchange.

PIANO MOVING A SPECIALTY.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

"The Concert," which David Belasco presents at the Belasco Theatre has for its hero a type that has thus far escaped the avid dramatist's imagination—the piano virtuoso. Just why nobody ever before hit upon such a succulent subject for stage presentation it is difficult to guess, and David Belasco no doubt had this in mind when he engaged Leo Ditrichstein to make the American version of Herman Bahr's "Das Concert," which for more than a year has been playing to crowded houses in Vienna, Berlin and other German capitals. The action of the play revolves around the matchless wisdom and philosophy with which the piano virtuoso's faithful wife treats these sporadic and effervescent affairs on the part of her husband's hysterical women admirers and her eventual triumph in winning him in the end and holding him safe against all such intruders.

The prosperous season at the N. Y. Hippodrome continues in full swing with the three big spectacles "The International Cup," "The Ballet of Niagara" and "The Earthquake." Amongst the special features which draw crowds to the large playhouse, particular credit must be given to the circus, which is partcularly good this year and even exceeds the Hippodrome's standard for novelty. Louise Stickney has a dainty equestrienne act while Mlle. Spellman and her baby bears are another strong attraction. Performing lions and elephants are also part of the circus show. The Metzettis, who perform triple somersaults in the air, the four Lukens in a remarkable bar act and several other excellent features are included in this part of the bill. The Niagara ballet with its picturesque Indian costumes and magnificent scenic background, calls forth much admiration and equal wonder is provoked by the many big mechanical and scenic effects, including the Yacht Race, The Shipwreck, The Earthquake and Tidal Wave, the race between the locomotive and running horses, as well as the glittering finale in which the great water tank of the Hippodrome is utilized, add surprises of stage craft.

Henry W. Savage offers "The Little Damozel" at the Comedy theatre, the most charming play of character, wit and sentiment in many seasons. This verdict of the New York public was not uneexpected in view of the great success won by this drama in London last season—when it was thrice "commanded" by the late King Edward at Sandringham—but it was none the less agreeable to those who have the best interests of the playhouse at heart. "The Little Damozel" is a study of life in London's bohemian circles, by Monckton Hoffe and, in the view of the Washington critics, is singularly and peculiarly delightful not alone for its interesting story, its well conceived character-drawing and its keen humor, but for the good sense its author has shown in not seeking to sugar over the weaknesses of the play's people. Great praise has also been accorded the acting, those especially mentioned including May Buckley, Cyril Keightley, George Graham, Frank Lacy, Henry Vogel, Henry Wenman and Mary Corso.

This is the third week of the whirlwind laughing engagement of Sam Bernard in "He Came from Milwaukee" at the Casino Theatre, under the management of the Messrs. Shubert. Sam Bernard is funnier than ever before in the funniest and most elaborate vehicle with which he has ever been equipped. Sam Bernard plays the role of Herman Van Schellenvein, a brewer, concerning whom it is important to note that "He Came from Milwaukee," and could not lose the atmosphere of the "place that made beer shameless," even when impersonating His Grace, the Duke of Zurach. It is impossible to witness the production without admiring the art of Mr. Bernard and laughing heartily at his indescribable humor, without being captivated by the daintiness of the musical numbers, without being charmed by the lavish costumes and settings, without taking a genuine interest in the plot with its infinitude of surprising comic situations, and without wondering where the Shuberts ever found so many pretty girls for the chorus.

FREEHOLDERS' COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE HOSPITAL.

Director King, at the October meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, Thursday, appointed Freeholders Krausse, Swain and Gruner a committee to investigate the case of the admission of a male patient from Rahway at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Elizabeth. The board gives this hospital $3,000 a year, and while the man was finally admitted to the institution, there was, what the board believes, unnecessary delay. City Attorney W. R. Codington will assist the committee in its investigation.

The patient who applied for admission to the hospital was too poor to pay for an operation and treatment, and, it is alleged, he was refused admission at first unless he consented to pay for treatment. The Freeholders' committee will make a full investigation of the matter and report at the next meeting to be held on Tuesday.

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company; Copyright, 1905, by the McClure Company

"Think so? Well, millionaire, then, seein' how the poor live. You look the swell all right."

"Thank you. Wish I felt as I look then."

"You'd make the Gould and Vanderbilt crowd look like visitors if you hadn't forgot your overcoat."

"Sa-ay, if that ain't like me!" drawled the man, the twinkle of moonlight striking a humorous glint in his eye. 'Kind of absent-minded. I left my Sunday suit just that way at the White House last week, where I'd been spending Saturday to Monday with my friend Willy T."

"You think I'm lying?" said Loveland, with curiosity rather than resentment. "They turned me out of the hotel because I couldn't pay for my dinner."

"Had you eat it?"

"No. I wish now I had."

"I believe you. Whew-ew—just to eat once at the Waldorf. You ain't a New Yorker, are you?"

"No; I'm an Englishman," Loveland answered quickly.

"Gee, but you're a swell lookin' emigrant! I ain't a New Yorker myself—not by birth. I was a hayseed till I turned nineteen, workin' on my stepfather's farm—mean old skinflint—but I couldn't see my way to cuttin' till my mother was gone. Then I footed it to New York—sixty mile—chuck full of hope and nothin' else unless beans."

"A regular Mark Tapley," said Val.

"Never played the part. In private life my name's Bill Williams. Some switches round to Willing Bill, because I generally do my day's work without howlin'. I blew into New York without attractin' much notice, and that's nineteen years ago, and I haven't attracted much since; that's a fact. But you may do better. Don't be discouraged by a setback if your game's square, and I bet it is or you wouldn't be in the dog savin' business. What is your lay, anyhow? Excuse the liberty."

"Retrieving my fortune," said Val after a moment's reflection.

"You can see me one better. Mine's to make yet, and I'm no kid like you. I won't see thirty-eight again. I'm an artist. But New York ain't woke up to my talent. Maybe I've been too versatile. That never did pay. The line I'd mapped out was paintin' pictures, but my chance was slow comin'. Had to take what I could get on the way along, supin', sandwichin', barkin'"—

"Eh, what?" broke in Loveland.

"You don't savvy? Oh, supin' in theaters. There's several, specially one in the Bowery, wouldn't 'a' been complete without me for years till I got the chuck like you did at the Waldorf. I've always kind of hovered around the profession, though I don't say I'm proud of my career as a barker in the dimes—museums, you know. There was money in the business, though, if the freaks hadn't caught on that I had the heart of a soft boiled egg. Besides, my voice ain't an automobile horn, and barkin' for a couple of seasons stove a hole in my top note. One of my old govs switched me on to a job paintin' freak showboards, and I'd 'a' been at it yet if freaks didn't last too long. Once you've put them on the boards there they are. At present my specialty's meenoos."

Val looked blank, thinking of emus.

"French for grub cards. A swell like you ought to be on to that. But I'm just thinkin' what there is for you. This stunt of mine I dropped into by luck. 'Twas Shakespeare introduced me, like he did you tonight."

"Why Shakespeare?" Loveland cut in.

"Oh, there's a—a girl in that story—actress in the theater where I suped—a real actress, mind you, a fascinator from Fascinatorville. Why Lil so much as looked at me I don't know, but she did. I was near twice her age, and 'twould have been playin' the game too low down to try and hook on to her, though I was tempted, she was so pretty, so good to me. I don't know what would 'a' been the upshot if the property man, who had his eye on the gal, hadn't got me the sack and Lil an engagement on the road. She and I drifted apart. I never wrote, though she asked me to. I knew 'twas better not—for her. But you see why I'm nuts on the dog. He was hers, and Shakespeare was her name for him. She loves Shakespeare's plays, and her ambition was to act in 'em. But all that's somethin' I wouldn't 'a' mentioned if you hadn't kind of earned the right to Shake's history. I was tellin' you about my speciality and how Shake introduced me to it. We was on our beam ends, Shake and me, our ribs showin' through the silk. One mornin' after a night out like this, only a square downtown, I was doin' a latin' around till I blew into Twelfth street and dropped my eyes on to a new restaurant with a good fried smell, and an idea hit my brain like a hammer. In I walks and offers to swop it with the boss for a supper. He wasn't takin' any just then, but I talked till I waked him up, showed him what I could do in the art line and began to work on the spot with a grand new thing in meenoos. I've been at it ever since, and, though the pay don't go up by leaps and bounds, the house has, and lots o' the eaters say it's my work's made it what it is—brought in the public like a flock of sheep. I get two meals and three dimes a day out of the job, and I wouldn't be sleepin' in my country house tonight if I hadn't run across a guy who needed my money more than I did. I guess there ain't many swells have got a finer palace than this, though it's kind of drafty. Your castle across the pond ain't got a finer park, I bet."

"My castle's full of drafts, too," Loveland humored him.

"So you came over here to get out of 'ein? Wish I could invite you to my hotel where I hang out when I'm not at my country place, but the trouble is to see the color of your money or you don't see the color of their beds."

"How much is it for a room?" asked Loveland.

"Oh, a room! I don't run to a room. A bed in a vast wilderness is good enough for me. But a quarter 'll get you one. Three nickels for a bed."

Loveland searched his pockets and dubiously exhibited two silver coins mixed democratically with a few nickels and impotent looking little coppers. The prospect appeared hopeless to him, but Willing exclaimed with delight:

"Gee—45 cents! You're a bloated millionaire. You might be asleep in two beds at the Bat hotel instead of cooling in this ice cream freezer."

"If there's the price of two beds you must have one," said Loveland.

"Thank you. You're the real stuff," returned Bill, gratitude in his voice. "But I'm O. K. where I am. You stick to your stamps. I know just how you feel. I'm always chuckin' my last cent away on some poor dicky bird, thinkin' 'twill be all right tomorrow and what's the odds."

"What about food?" asked Loveland. "Can we run to it?" and he glanced at the coins in his hand.

"Keep the change. We'll eat for nothing. Now's our time to join the bread line."

Again Val looked blank, and again it was necessary for Bill Willing—guide, philosopher and friend—to explain. There were, said he, two very important lines drawn every night in New York for the benefit of the poor, the bread line and the bed line. Each was drawn in a public square, the former in Herald, the latter in Madison, and both were traced by the finger of charity.

The bed line Bill did not often patronize, because he could generally pay for his own sleeping accommodation, and if he couldn't there were always the parks. Besides, the parson chap who spoke in Madison square every night for the benefit of the poor could collect only money enough to supply a limited number of men with beds. There was such a long line waiting always, and the unlucky ones went away into the night looking so disappointed. Bill couldn't bear that or the thought that one more must go bedless because he had got in ahead. As for the bread line, that was different. There was usually enough to feed the whole line, with coffee thrown in. It was a good show, too, and sometimes when Bill had separated himself from his last coin and wanted a little cheerful company he linked on to the bread line. Tonight they would both go "unless," added Mr. Willing, "you're afraid some o' your swell friends may spot you."

It seemed to Lord Loveland that he had never known how dazzling light could be till the night lights of New York flung their diamonds into his eyes.

Though it was nearly midnight when he emerged from behind the purple bed curtain of the sleeping park, there was no sign that less secluded quarters of the city thought of sleep.

In the glass sided palace of the Herald tomorrow morning's paper was visibly going to press. There was a chewing rumble of huge printing machines, and from somewhere out of sight of the bronze owl's staring electric eyes sprang covered wagons loaded with "up state" editions, which must catch early trains. Newsboys were yelling extras, trying to howl each other down above the confused storm of sound, and as Willing Bill towed his convoy into the square Minerva lifted her noble bronze arm to give the midnight signal. Her pair of obedient blacksmiths swung their hammers lustily and struck the bell twelve times.

Val and his companion were nearly the last in a long procession of applicants for newspaper hospitality, and for the first time in his life Lord Loveland found himself among the dregs of humanity, learning what it might be to suffer as they suffered, they who seethed in the caldron of the world's misery.

"They think you're some fly reporter takin' notes or a swell doin' the night sights," said Bill. "They don't like you much, but they won't bother you neither, only some chap may say, 'What queer things you see when you haven't got your gun.' If he does don't you take notice; that's all."

Loveland promised forbearance, but his patience was not tried. In his turn, which came when his nose had turned a pale lilac with cold and the silk clad insteps above his pumps were slowly congealing, he received a tin of hot coffee and a roll. Food and drink were so good and, as Bill said, "filled such a long felt want" that Val bolted them greedily, only to yearn for more when both were gone. But etiquette was strictly preserved in Herald square. No one asked for a second helping, and each applicant when he had drained his coffee to the last drop walked away without a word unless it were a "thank you."

"Now, ho for the Bat hotel!" exclaimed Bill cheerfully. "It's a goodish step, but as for me after that grub I feel like I could do a sprint round the world."

Loveland was refreshed, too, and more than ever inclined to look on the experience as an adventure over which he would laugh tomorrow night. But he did not intend to forget Bill Willing when he forgot the troubles through which Bill was his pilot. He must do something for the poor chap, he said to himself, and glowed with hot coffee and a sense of warm generosity.

Shakespeare, who had shared his master's roll and lapped the last spoonful of coffee, was an incredibly small black animal of somewhat moth eaten texture, who in form rather resembled a grasshopper, but his gentle eyes, curiously like his master's, beamed with affection.

"We approach the castle doors, me lord," grandiloquently announced Bill, little guessing that his jesting way of address was that to which Loveland was accustomed from his inferiors.

Val started from the reverie in which he had been walking at his companion's side like a mechanical figure. He waked to find himself in a brilliantly illuminated street like a tenth rate imitation of Broadway, lined with lighted shops, gaudy restaurants and strange houses of entertainment.

They passed a tall building whose red front was pictorial with advertisements of wonders such as the world could not have survived had it seen them in the flesh.

"My old pitch," said Bill. "I painted the fat twins with their heads under their arms and the half zebra half camel. The fair one with golden locks, too, and the human bone are my shay doovers. What do you think of 'em, chum?"

"Chum" was filled with respectful admiration of the artist's imagination, if not his technique, and he replied fervently that the shay doovers in question were marvelous.

"Here's where I used to bark," went on Bill with a sigh for past glories. "They'd ought to give us free passes for a look round, if you'd like, but the boss ain't built that way, and there's nothin' to see anyhow. The freaks ain't what they're painted—couldn't be for a dime."

Willing paused in front of a building which loomed up dingy and ill lighted in comparison with its gaudy neighbors. A lamp over a low browed door drew sufficient attention to the announcement, printed in faded lettering, that this was "The Bat Hotel, For Gentlemen Only."

Bill Willing opened the door as if he were at home. "Come in, do," he said hospitably, and Loveland obeyed, to find himself standing directly at the foot of a long, dimly lit stairway, the steps of which were protected from the wear and tear of time and boots by strips of iron.

At the top was a closed door, and, this open, Loveland was plunged into the life and movement of the Bat hotel, appropriately named for its night activities. Behind a grating which formed a small room stood the proprietor or manager of the establishment, ready to accept payment, allot beds, inscribe the names of new clients in a book and deal out keys of lockers or cubicles. This tiny office was cut out of a long, narrow room in which fifty or sixty men were sitting glancing over the newspapers or writing a last letter before they went to bed. They were grouped at one of several long tables that ran down the length of the room or assembled round a huge iron stove whose fat body was almost red hot.

As Bill easily leaned his elbows on a narrow shelf in front of the office grating, explaining his errand to the manager, Loveland wished himself back in the park again, half drowned in perfumed moony vapor, but it was too late. He was "in for it" now, he said to himself as Bill with a certain pride announced that "his friend" wanted a room. "A bed for mine," he went on pleasantly. "I'd be glad of $1, if it's free. I always sleep mighty well in $1."

Eighty-one was engaged, but Bill got another number to which he was accustomed, and then his friend's name was asked.

"Anything you like up to Edward VII. or down to J. Smith," whispered Mr. Willing as he moved away that Loveland might take his place at the grating.

Loveland hesitated for an instant and then gave the name of P. Gordon, one to which he had a right, among many others.

As Bill was competent to play host they were given their keys and allowed to find their own way to their quarters. Loveland's number was on the next floor, but Bill's cheaper lodging was higher up.

The cubicles were not numerous, for such accommodation de luxe was beyond the means, beyond even the ambition of a hundred out of the 100 nondescript men whom the Bat hotel sheltered each night. The row (called "Fifth avenue" by those who could not afford to sleep there) was partitioned off from a long room the size of the reading room below, but here, instead of tables and benches running along the walls, were beds, many beds, placed at small, irregular distances from each other. A faint light revealed them and the straight dark shapes of the lockers shared, half and half, by the sleepers whom Loveland could dimly see bunched up under their gray blankets.

Bill unlocked the door of Loveland's cubicle for him. "This is pretty complete, ain't it?" he asked in a whisper which respected the slumber of others. "The beds are good enough for mine, but these rooms are fit for a lord."

It was a much humbled lord who shut himself up in the boasted magnificence of No. 15, there finding himself possessed of a narrow hospital bed spread with a gray blanket strongly scented with carbolic and just space enough in the case to undress if he chose. But for reasons which seemed good to him he did not choose.

Having bidden Bill good night without saying a word in disparagement of the Bat hotel (moved by a new unselfishness which would not for the world have hurt his friend's feelings), Loveland took off collar, necktie and shoes to roll himself up in the disinfected blanket. The bed was not more than three or four inches too short for his tall body, and, though the mattress and pillow were as flat as stale jokes and hard as poverty, Val fell asleep.

Sleeping, dreams came to him more real in seeming than any happenings of the strange nightmare day just passed. They were of storms at sea, of fighting in South Africa, and when a light persistent tapping at the thin door wrenched him awake he thought he was being called for a night sortie.

"Yes! All right!" he muttered, sitting up dazedly. "I—what"—

"Sh! You'll rouse everybody," whispered Bill Willing's warning voice. "Unlock the door, will you?"

Still half asleep, Loveland blinked in the dim light, found the key in the lock and turned it. Like a shabby ghost Bill stole into the cubicle. "Mighty sorry to rout you out so early," he said in cautiously lowered tones, "but it's 6 o'clock, and in half an hour I've got to be at the restaurant to begin work. If you'll get ready and come along the boss's daughter, Miss Izzie, may take a shine to you and smuggle you a breakfast when Alexander the Great, her pa, ain't there to say no."

"HER PA AIN'T THERE TO SAY NO."

By the time that Bill had made his plans clear Loveland's drugged memory had begun to work. He recalled everything with the sensation of having opened a gate to set free a troop of grunting wild pigs. He was cold. The carbolic smell, which he hated, made him feel sick. His head throbbed as if tacks were being stuck into his temples and torn out again. His muscles were stiff, and he felt more tired than when he had lain down. It was disgusting to think that he had slept in his clothes in such a place as this and had nothing fresh to put on, and he loathed his own body because of the squalor in which it had consented to wallow.

How he longed for a cold bath in a great white porcelain tub, clean linen, neat tweeds and the luxurious silver toilet things, all of which would have been his morning portion at home or at the hotel he had left. But repinings only added to the hatefulness of his situation.

He made himself as neat as he could, did not grumble at the washing accommodations and moved with caution for fear of disturbing men whom twenty-four hours ago he would have considered no more than sheep. That was because he had been of the brotherhood, and, though he expected soon to give up his membership, he would never be able to forget. Men such as these with whom he had touched shoulders would never be things for him again.

POLITICAL TALK.

James R. Nugent, democratic State Chairman, yesterday announced the following changes in the initinerary of Dr. Woodrow Wilson, nominee for Governor: Salem, October 25, instead of October 26; Freehold, October 15, instead of October 14, and Toms River, October 14, instead of October 15. The Camdem and Salem delegates were transposed because the date originally set for the latter city is a registry day, while the changing of the Freehold and Toms River dates was done to facilitate travelling. Dr. Wilson will speak in Atlantic City on October 13 and it will be much easier for him to jump to Toms River than to make the trip to Freehold and back again to Toms River. Dr. Wilson has several dates open in his initinerary and one of them may be spent in Hudson county in addition to the meeting that he will address in Hoboken on October 28.

You're Paying for a Motor Car

You may think you don't want a motor car. But there isn't any question about your needing one.

There is a difference between wanting a thing and needing it.

If you need a car you are paying for it. Paying in the time you lose that a car would save you. In the opportunities that get away. In the fresh air and recreation a car would give, but which now you do not get.

Whatever we really need we pay for, whether we actually own it or not. You might get along without an overcoat this winter, but you would pay for one just the same. You would pay with discomfort and colds.

If you use telephones, telegraph, wireless, express trains, electric lights, trolley cars, adding machines, dictaphones, newspapers, typewriters and labor saving machinery, then you need an automobile.

For the automobile has been developed to keep pace with the age that utilizes these other things—the age of speed—the age of efficiency. The motor car didn't create its demand after it arrived. The demand was waiting. It had been waiting for forty centuries.

The greatest obstacle to progress is distance. Civilization consists of doing away with the space that lies between man and man, city and city, country and country, between products of all kinds and the people who use them.

When the steamship, the railroad and trolley came to take care of the problem of community or public transportation, the world took a long step ahead.

When the automobile came to take care of the problem of individual transportation, the world took another long step ahead. If you haven't realized it, then the world has stepped past you.

The man with a motor gets down to his business in the morning quickly, cleanly and with gladness.

He arrives at his office with the sparkle of the sunshine and fresh air in his blood and brain.

He is able to take up his business problems with clearer vision and greater energy than the man who has been worried and doped by the rush and jam and the bad air of a crowded train or street car.

The man in a motor car can cover 50 to 100 miles in a day just on business errands in the city, keeping appointments that it would take many days to make under the old system.

At noon time he can use his car to entertain his business associates with a five or ten mile ride to a pleasant luncheon place. He can send it out in the afternoon to entertain guests while he goes ahead with his business. Or, if he wants to take himself or a visitor to a train, he allows just a few minutes' leeway and the motor carries him to the depot swiftly and surely.

After the day's work, he arrives home again; arrives with weariness and worry air-sprayed from his brain; with a keen appetite and good humor for dinner.

In the evening he may use his car for a turn around the parks and boulevard or a spin into the country with family and friends.

The man with a motor car lives a fuller life than if he didn't have one. He has more experiences—more sensations. He does more things. He has a wider circle of interest and influence. He lives twice as long in the same length of time as the man who hasn't a car. Long life is not a question of years so much as it is of experiences and accomplishments. Yet motor cars will be factors in increasing the average span of man's years because they promote health through outdoor life.

Head of the Family:—Going to and from business in fresh air. Making business calls. Entertaining customers and business associates. Tours in the country. More knowledge of the country. Mental and physical exercise of driving. Good appetite—better digestion—better humor—better health. Prestige.

Wife and Daughter:—Social calls. Entertaining. Plenty of fresh air to drive away "nerves." More time with husband and father.

Son:—Educative value of understanding and caring for a wonderful piece of machinery. Training of mental and physical faculties in driving. Clean, fresh air, recreation and decent entertainment in company of other members of family.

This Part is so Good it Doesn't Need to be Put in Large Type.

There are many good cars made nowadays, and any good car is a good investment. Yet we honestly believe that Chalmers Cars offer the best value for the money of any on the market. Compare them with others. Comparison has sold more Chalmers Cars than all our advertising. If you can possibly afford a motor car, don't put it off any longer but go and buy one. We hope it will be a Chalmers; but whether it is or not, don't deprive yourself and your family any longer of the pleasure that by right is yours and theirs. There is nothing that you could invest the money in that will pay you such a big dividend in the saving of your time in business and the saving of your health for years, as the purchase of a motor car. A good thing is a better thing the sooner you get it. Make your family happy tonight by telling them you have made up your mind to get that motor car you have been talking so much about, namely,

"WHITEWASH" PLAINFIELD

CLINTON DOES GREAT WORK.

Somerville Has Won Three of the Four Contests—Plainfield to Meet Bound Brook Saturday.

Inability to connect with the deceptive curves of "Jimmy" Clinton explains the defeat of the Plainfield baseball club at the hands of its old rivals, Somerville, on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon. All that the locals could gather from the twists and benders of Clinton was four singles, and under such circumstances, victory was out of the question. He fanned every member of the Plainfield aggregation and some of them more than once.

Coupled with the failure of the Plainfielders to hit the ball, were eight errors, made at inopportune times for them, and which allowed the visitors to score four runs. That was all they could get, but throughout the nine innings the locals were unable to get a run over the plate.

Skillman, formerly of Princeton, was in the box for Plainfield, and he pitched a fine game, good enough to win, provided the team behind him had been there with the stick. He held Somerville to four singles, but they came at the right time and combined with four errors by the locals, gave them their runs.

The Plainfielders distinguished themselves by a double play, Jack Martin catching a line drive and doubling up a runner at first. To Brit Martin and Carlstrom belong the credit of making the two hits, but the other batters to follow were quickly cut down by Clinton, who was in exceptionally good form.

With Saturday's victory, Somerville has won four games, while Plainfield only succeeded in taking the first contest between the teams, which was played at Somerville. In all five games were arranged, but the fifth one will not be played. Plainfield will meet Bound Brook next Saturday. The score:

Somerville.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES AT MONROE AVENUE CHURCH

Rally day exercises were held at Monroe Avenue church, yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Sunday-school. The attendance was 266. Instead of having an outside speaker, the superintendent, Walter M. McGee, by request, made the address himself. The subject was "Be Useful," and he succeeded in impressing it upon all his hearers by a number of illustrations.

Mr. McGee referred to his accepting the responsibility of superintendent some twenty years ago, when his pastor put it before him, as a young man, as an opening gate of opportunity for usefullness. At the evening service, Norman Brough, of Bayonne, sang "Crossing the Bar," and "The Publican," very acceptably.

"The Third Degree" at Proctor's.

"The Third Degree," a famous sketch, will be presented at Proctor's theatre, today by Frank Mayne & Co. Mr. Mayne impersonates seven distinct characters in this sketch, which gives a wonderful insight into the methods employed by the police of the metropolis. It tells a wonderful story. Lewis, Harr & Co., will present "Down on the Old Plantation;" Duke & Bert, real cowpunchers and Booth & Howard, in a novelty singing sketch, "The Spirit of 1776 and 1865," will complete the bill.

BLAME HOBBLE SKIRT FOR BASEBALL DEFEAT

Baseball teams made up of young and young men engaged in a lively contest on the Watchung Hunt club grounds, Saturday afternoon, the young women winning by a score of 11 to 9. The fact that the young men were handicapped by being obliged to wear "hobble skirts," and bat and throw left-handed, accounts in a large measure for their defeat.

Miss Susanne Wharton and Miss Jean Wharton captained the women's team, while William Flanders directed the destinies of his aggregation. E. S. Hooley acted as umpire, and the young men agree that he favored the fair sex in all of his decisions.

Among the young women who played were Miss Florence Stewart, pitcher; Miss Susanne Wharton, catcher; and the Misses Elizabeth Mc Gee, Jean Wharton, Marion Hall, who filled other positions. William Flanders, Phillip Larned, Jack Van Deventer, William Grandee were among the men who played.

CLERGYMAN PLEADS FOR GARBAGE SYSTEM

Incidental to his sermon in the Park Avenue Baptist church last night, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire touched upon the city's lack of a system of garbage disposal. He declared the present condition to be a disgrace to the community and among other things said.

"I have often noticed the foul, ill-smelling carts moving through the streets and many times have seen open cans in them. The present 'system' is one that should be done away with as speedily as possible for the sake of all."

Mr. Maguire's sermon was on the subject, "The Widow's Son," with the text: "Young man, I say unto thee, arise," Luke 7-14. He referred to Christ's miracle in restoring the widow's son to life after he had been mourned as dead. He mentioned the funeral which he described as a city funeral.

"There is a difference today between a city and county funeral. In the latter, the bell tolls, the mourners move slowly and there is respect shown everywhere, but in the city the funeral procession is jostled by cars and foul, ill-smelling wagons." This led to Mr. Maguire's references to the antiquated system of garbage disposal, after which he proceeded along the original discourse.

MISS GRACE KARR'S PUPILS GIVE A RECITAL.

An informal recital was given Saturday afternoon by the pupils and friends of Miss Grace P. Karr, at the home of the latter, 1108 Putnam avenue. A special feature was the duet from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, by Miss Kubierschky and Miss Karr. Other selections, both classical and popular, were rendered by Miss Erna B. Kubierschky, Miss Lucy B. West, Miss Grace A. West, Miss Eleanor V. Searing, Miss Marjorie P. Searing, Miss Minnie Bantle, Miss Catherine H. Stout. Recitations were given by Miss Lucy B. West, Miss Muriel J. Courser, Miss Eleanor J. Bucklin and Miss Marjorie P. Searing.

REV. C. H. MALLERY OBSERVES FIRST ANNIVERSARY AS RECTOR

Rev. C. H. Mallery, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, observed the first anniversary of his rectorship in this city, yesterday, conducting the usual services at his church. During the past year Mr. Mallery has performed a good work, increasing the membership of his parish, as well as the interest in every department. He and his people are united and the coming year looks especially promising for the work in the West End of the city.

The various societies have resumed their work for the fall and winter, and many affairs are being planned to assist in increasing the membership and interest. The Men's Club and the Young People's Society are among the leading interests in the parish, while the Ladies' Guild, under the rector's direction is doing a good work.

"Essex B" Finished Second.

"Essex B," with Hugh Gormley up, finished second in the big race at Elkin's Park, Philadelphia, Saturday. The race was for a purse of $500 and a cup of equal value. The meet was given by Joseph A. Weidner, the Philadelphia banker.

Property Attached.

The personal property of Aaron Bender, in storage on Park avenue, was attached Saturday on proceedings brought in the District court by L. C. Whitall. It is charged that Bender is an absconding debtor.

DECISION ON LICENSES RESERVED FOR TUESDAY

So much time was taken up in hearing the arguments for and against the issuance of a license to Alfred Binz, of Mt. Bethel, before Judge Clarence L. Case, at Somerville, on Saturday that the hearing in which so many boroughites are interested did not come up until 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Judge Case reserved decision in all three cases until tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Regarding the case of the application of Andrew S. DeNise, of the Manhattan Hotel, the remonstrants gave three reasons why DeNise should not be granted a license: First, that the place was disorderly; second, that DeNise did not have the ten rooms for guests as required by law and third, that DeNise had conducted a disorderly house in violation of the borough ordinances. John Frech represented the applicant in this case.

Regarding the Arlington Hotel, Charles J. Jensen, proprietor, the remonstrants had but one reason to offer for a denial of the license, that an extra saloon was unnecessary. Mayor Newton B. Smalley appeared in favor of granting the license and former Mayor Samuel Townsend said that from his knowledge of borough affairs his opinion was that the saloon was unnecessary. Thirty-four witnesses were examined in both cases and they were represented by Robert Newton Crane. Two witnesses besides the applicant appeared in favor of granting Jensen his license and six besides the applicant appeared for DeNise.

PRESBYTERIANS HONOR THE MEMORY OF JOHN H. CONVERSE.

In accordance with the action of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, setting apart the second Sunday in October, as "John H. Converse Day," Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, at the morning services yesterday, spoke of the life and work of this noted church worker. The Gospel Message and Evangelistic Bulletin, published by the denomination monthly, contained several articles concerning Mr. Converse and many of these facts were presented to the local congregations.

For ten years Mr. Converse was the honored and beloved chairman of the Evangelistic committee, of the Presbyterian church, and his fidelity, devotion and generosity were well known by the members of the denomination, as well as others. For several years Mr. Converse gave his entire time to evangelistic work most successfully. He died during the past year.

DAVID J. SCOTT WEDS MISS MARY ANDERSON.

Miss Mary Anderson, daughter of Mrs. George Anderson, of Clearview, Somerville, and David J. Scott, son of the late Walter Scott, of this city, were married Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother by Rev. Clarence Clark Sylvester, rector of St. John's P. E. church, Somerville. Owing to a recent death in the family of the bride the wedding was attended only by the immediate relatives of the couple. There were no attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott are motoring through the State on their wedding trip and will be at home to their friends after November 1. The groom is genera' manager of the Walter Scott Company. He is a graduate of Yale University.

"Girls" at Plainfield Theatre.

The Plainfield permanent stock company will appear at The Plainfield Theatre, today and tomorrow, in Clyde Fitch's well known play, "Girls," and the rehearsals show that it will be one of the best efforts of this ambitious and clever organization. The play will require a large cast and fine performances are promised. Wednesday night W. H. Crane will be here in "Father and the Boys," George Ade's great comedy, and on Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings, the stock company will produce that famous play, "The Lion and the Mouse."

Finals in Tennis Tournament.

C. L. Hand and Miss Irene Dunham defeated R. B. Titsworth and Miss Louise Fuller, 6-4, 6-3, in the finals of the tennis tournament at the Park Golf Club on Saturday, thereby winning the trophy offered by the club. The match was well played, the couples being evenly paired.

R. C. FINCH'S HARD LUCK

"Nasturtium" Last of Valuable Stable of Hunters is Dead.

HAD TO SHOOT THE ANIMAL.

"Harry Baylor," "Lady Potentate" and "Bounder" Are Also Gone —A Series of Mishaps Costly to Mr. Finch.

Closely following the death of "Harry Baylor," the fine hunter owned by Rufus C. Finch, of Park avenue, which occurred a week ago at Millbrook, N. Y., as the result of an injury, Mr. Finch sustained another severe loss on Saturday when his thoroughbred hunter, "Nasturtium," fell at the driving club track, broke his leg and had to be shot. The animal was being trained for the hunts this fall, Hollis, Mr. Finch's stable boy, being up. In some unaccountable way the horse stumbled and broke its leg. The owner was notified and he gave orders to have the animal shot.

This makes the fifth valuable hunter lost by Mr. Finch during the past two years, representing a value of about $3,000. About a year and a half ago, Mr. Finch lost "Bounder," whose sire won the Baltimore Derby, and three weeks later "Lady Potentate" died. The death of "Bounder" was quite remarkable. The animal broke its neck in a race at Cedarhurst and ran a quarter of a mile, when it fell dead. "Lady Potentate" had to be shot, having broken its leg at Elkwood Park. He also lost "Demi-Tasse" through an injury.

"Harry Baylor" sprained a tendon in the leg while training at Millbrook, the leg swelling to such an extent that the combined efforts of several expert veterinaries proved futile. This fine animal was formerly owned by Hugh Gormley and had a great record as a hunter and jumper.

"Nasturtium," was a recent purchase by Mr. Finch and the animal gave promise of doing fine work in the coming hunts. Mr. Finch, who keenly feels his losses, has the sympathy of his many friends.

ELEVENTH N. J. VOLS. RE-UNION WEDNESDAY

The survivors of the 11th N. J. Vols. of the Civil War, will hold a reunion in this city Wednesday. The veterans with their wives and friends will come about seventy-five strong and are to gather in Reform Hall for the exercises.

The program is to commence at 11 o'clock when the survivors hold their annual business session. At noon adjournment will be taken to the basement where dinner will be served by the Women's Relief Corps. After the meal the members and friends will re-assemble in the upper hall where welcoming addresses are to be made by Mayors C. J. Fisk and N. B Smalley. Other addresses are to be given by General Sickler and Colonel Schoonover, also Judge Runyon, James E. Martine, Chaplain Cline and members of the regiment. The addresses will be interspersed by vocal and instrumental music and the public is invited to attend the afternoon session.

NEW BUILDING-LOAN SERIES TO BE OPENED TONIGHT.

The Union Building and Loan Association will open its 69th series tonight at 146 Park avenue, and as the shares are limited it will be wise for those who are interested to be on hand early if they wish to subscribe.

At this meeting the seventh series will be paid off. This series has matured in the remarkably short time of 134 months. The shareholders will receive $100 for each $67 paid in.

C. E. Silver Anniversary.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary at the church, tomorrow night. Rev. A. A. Pfansteihl, of Somerville, will make the address and all of the Young People's Societies of the city have been invited.

Purchases a New York Stable.

Hugh Gormley, of this city, has purchased a large stable located at 52d street and Ninth avenue, New York, and is now conducting the same, in addition to his business in this city.

WALP FOUND GUILTY; SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Mayor Fisk rendered the following decision this morning in the city court in the caseof Patrolman Andrew Saffron against Warren Walp, whom the patrolman declared had been disorderly. "The question for the Court to decide was 'was the arrest warranted and is the defendant guilty?' From the evidence submitted the Court is of the opinion that the arrest was fully justified, and if citizens expect and exact courtesy from an officer he must in return respect the authority of the officer.

"The evidence plainly shows that the defendant in this action deliberately and intentionally, both times he passed Patrolman Saffron, did scoff at him in a sneering and contemptuous manner, holding the officer up to public ridicule. If this sort of thing is allowed to continue our police officers will lose the respect of the public and their influence and power to maintain order would be seriously impaired.

"If a police officer is to maintain order in an effective way he must command respect. I therefore find the defendant guilty and suspend sentence."

Walp attempted to take exception to this verdict, but he was not allowed to proceed with a speech he wanted to make to the Mayor.

DEMENTED WOMAN SENT BACK HOME BY COURT.

Margaret White, a colored woman, accompanied by a six-year-old child, was found acting strangely by Patrolman Nolan on North avenue at 7:30 last night and was taken to police headquarters. She gave her address as 66 Andrew street, Bayonne, and Captain Frederickson telephoned Bayonne headquarters to notify the woman's husband.

Mr. Wright arrived at about 11 o'clock, accompanied by a friend, and they immediately tried to get the woman to return to her home. When attempting to put her abord a main line trolley car the woman kicked up such a row that she was brought back to headquarters and detained until the 3.37 train came along this morning, when she had apparently recovered from her determination not to go home, and accompanied her husband and his friend to the train without any further remonstrance.

SOME INTERESTING MATCHES IN P. C. C. TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The mixed doubles tennis tournament started at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, will be continued on Wednesday. On Saturday, in the first round, Miss Schuyler and W. H. Merrihew defeated Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frost; Miss Fleming and Owen Fleming defeated Miss Brown and Harold Brown, their score being 6-3, 4-6, 6-3; Miss Bakewell and Henry Brower defeated Mrs. W. R. Tyler and Arthur Lovell; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Collens defeated Miss Elsie Goddard and Lawrence Tweedy, 6-2, 6-2; Miss Titus and Mr. Stevenson defeated Miss Florence Wildey and E. A. Stevenson.

In the second round Mr. and Mrs. Collens lost one set to Miss Fleming and Owen Fleming, and the second set was all even; Percy Brown and Miss Ashwell and Miss Wildey and Edward A. Stevenson were all even on two sets.

Young People to Rally.

The Young People's Society of the First Baptist church will hold its first fall meeting and social in the church, tonight, and attractive program has been planned. All of the members of the church and congregation are invited. Mrs. George H. Campbell, of the borough, will give several recitations and read stories, there will be an informal program of vocal and instrumental music, concluding with a social and games. Miss Demler is the chairman of the committee in charge.

Noted Slum Worker to Speak.

The second of the special series of Tuesday night meetings at the local corps of the Salvation Army will be held tomorrow night when Staff-Captain Jennie Ward, who has charge of the army's great slum settlement in Cherry street, New York, will have charge of the service. She is an able speaker, also a good singer and guitar player. She will give an insight into slum life in the great city and tell of the work of the army. The public is invited.

Mackey, will take place on Monday evening, October 31, at the Clinton Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, will have Mrs. Weston Williams, of this city for her matron-of-honor. Weston Williams will be one of the ushers. A reception will follow the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John M. Linsley.

HOLY NAME SOCIETIES, 5,000 STRONG, ON PARADE

MANY PARISHES REPRESENTED.

More than seven thousand people knelt when at 5:30 yesterday afternoon Rev. Dean Martin Gessner, the venerable pastor of St. Patrick's church, Elizabeth, pronounced the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament at the close of the services of the rally of the Holy Name Societies of the Catholic church. Five thousand members of the society paraded the streets from four until five o'clock, gathering in a solid mass at St. Mary's school park to listen to speeches from eminent members of the society and the clergy. Fourteen bands accompanied the marchers many of them from out of town.

Forming on Watchung avenue at 3:45 the line of march led up Watchung avenue to Manning avenue in the borough, thence to Somerset street to West Front street, to Grant avenue, to West Fifth street to the church grounds. Every marcher was provided with a blue pennant inscribed H. N. S. and they presented with their banners and the American flags an imposing sight.

On arrival at the park, where the surrounding streets were thronged with thousands of people, Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's, delivered a short speech of welcome in which he expressed his gratitude for the presence of so many adherents of the church and society. He then introduced the principal speaker, Rev. Dr. Joseph J. McMahon, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, of New York, who spoke in part as follows:

"Such an outpouring of men must have a profound meaning. It is power and the motive of a great idea that binds you together. Order and discipline are set forth upon your banners which renders this celebration unique. It is a protestation of your faith in the Holy Name of God, your protest against profanity and shows your loyalty to your faith. It also makes sure that if your minds being pure you will tolerate nothing impure, and your actions in your whole lives will show the outward grace.

"It is because of your inward feelings of veneration for the name of God that your public utterances are clean. You are banded together to put down blasphemy wherever you hear it and therefore you are a power to be reckoned with. Unbridled power may become a means of havoc and ruin. You represent a great moral force in the communities in which you live and your obligation extends to every other individual. Your lives should be such that your church can be judged by them. You are the living example of the concrete church and upon each of you rests a great responsibility. If you do not live what you profess to believe you are not right with God.

"Many members are pilloried in the public press because of their slipping back, but Christian, Catholic morality is needed in commercial, social and political life to insure success and those who have gone back have none to blame but themselves. Practical devotoion to Jesus Christ will accomplish everything for all of you. The test of your devotion to God is to be found in your practical love for Him. How shall the Kingdom of God come into the hearts of men? First, by protecting and rendering peaceful the church on earth; second, by never being separated from God. His soul shall sanctify us as we live clean, upright lives and last, the acceptance of the Blessed Sacrament and by fighting evil thoughts and putting on the whole armor of God.

"Live up to and think only of that One who died for you."

Following Dr. McMahon J. A. Donnelly, former assistant attorney general of New York State, delivered a short address and declared that he is an inciffierent Catholic who could look upon the big gathering without being impressed. He said that a man who would fail to be found among the Christian people for fear of ridicule was of absolutely no use in the community in which he lives. He congratulated Father Bogan upon the great showing made in his church and for their loyalty to the church.

In the interim between the speeches Father Bogan read a cablegram sent to Pope Pius X, deploring

HUNT CLUB RIDERS ENJOY WEEKLY CHASE

The weekly chase of the Watchung Hunt Club, on Saturday, was one of the best of the season, about a dozen riding members taking part. The start was made at Mt. Pleasant and included a chase of about ten miles over a stiff country in the vicinity of Metuchen, but there were no falls, every rider getting through in fine shape. The hounds led all a lively chase over the country to the clubhouse, which was the finishing point and where tea was served.

Those who rode were Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Holland, Rufus C. Finch, Hart Farlee, Charles Wildey, Miss Mabel B. Hooley, Brown Rolston, C. E. S. Bellows and Huntsman Henry Watkins. On Wednesday afternoon the members will meet at the clubhouse for a chase, which will end up at the Plainfield Driving Park, where a race meet is scheduled. The club has several entries in the races.

ERASTUS C. MALTBY, AGED 67 YRS. DEAD

Erastus C. Maltby, aged 67 years, a well-known resident of this city for thirty years, died at his home on Plainfield avenue, Saturday night from apoplexy. He had been in failing health for several months, but was only confined to his home for the past five weeks. Mr. Maltby was a native of New York city, and during his residence here he lived in retirement. Although he was a familiar figure on the street, he took no active interest in city affairs.

Mr. Maltby's brother, Charles R. Maltby, died on March 30, last. The latter was a well known wholesale grocer in New York and at Corning, N. Y. The former's wife died about eight years ago. He is survived by a son, Charles S. Maltby and one daughter, Mrs. Harry McIntosh; also one brother who lives at Corning, N. Y.

The funeral services will be held at the late home on Plainfield avenue tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and Rev. Ora J. Shoop, of Grace M. E. church will have charge. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Affair Given for Miss Madeline Blair.

A pleasant birthday or "dove" party was given Saturday evening for Miss Madeline Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Blair, at her home on Duer street. Miss Blair's birthday anniversary occurred a week ago, but the party could not be arranged until Saturday night. The party of young people called while Miss Blair was out, and when she returned she found them all seated in the parlor and the surprise was complete. The evening was spent playing games and enjoying a program of music after which refreshments were served. Miss Blair received a number of handsome gifts.

STATE TRUST CO. OFFICES INSPECTED BY BIG CROWD.

At least 2,500 people inspected the new quarters of the State Trust Company on Saturday night and many complimentary remarks were heard about the new equipment. The greatest interest centered around the big steel vault whose mechanism and burglar-proof qualities were explained by F. H. Bucklin, vice-president of the Manganese Steel Safe Co., and other officials.

Handsome souvenirs of the event were distributed until they gave out, but the interest did not abate on that account. The marvelous construction and operation of the door of the vault kept the curiosity of the visitors up to concert pitch until the doors were closed. The bank was handsomely decorated with green and potted ferns, and the officials used every endeavor to make the reception a pleasing one to their visitors.

Funeral services of the late Mary Ferris Hurst were held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at her late home. Mrs. Hurst has been a resident of Westfield for many years and well known in church circles. She was in her eighty-ninth year.

Westfield Golf Club Saturday celebrated its tenth anniversary at the club grounds in Fanwood Township. Several events were held on the course and in the evening a dance was given at the clubhouse.

The Westfield Board of Health has published a notice that ashes and kitchen garbage must not be mixed and that any one doing so is liable to a penalty under the health code.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The borough authorities are using stone taken from North avenue by the trolley people to macadamize Lincoln avenue below the school. Other streets will be treated in the same way and the work will continue until the supply of material gives out. The work of re-laying is progressing rapidly.

Thieves entered the bungalow being built on Washington avenue some time Friday night and stole a quantity of tools belonging to Richard Staats and H. V. Eckert, employees on the job. There is no clue that might lead to the identity of the purloiners.

St. John's church Holy Name Society sent a large delegation to the Holy Name rally at Plainfield yesterday. The big parade was also witnessed by many borough residents. It is estimated that over 5,000 men were in line.

Albert Giddes' new house on Lincoln avenue is practically completed and will be occupied by himself after his marriage on October 19. He is to wed Miss Catherine Garretson, of Plainfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Garretson.

Tax Collector I. J. Stites has practically completed the making out of tax bills and will issue them this week. They number 1,051 in all, a noticeable increase over previous years.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local fans enjoyed a good game Saturday afternoon at Crescent Oval when Somerville defeated Plainfield in the fourth game of the series between the two teams.

The parade of the Holy Name Societies held yesterday in Plainfield, was witnessed by many from here, several special cars being put in service by the Public Service Co.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harper and family of Front street, have returned from a visit with relatives at Morristown.

Supervising Principal S. Dana Townsend, of the public schools, spent the week end at his home at Orange.

A well attended meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Demarest, of Front street, entertained friends from out of town over Sunday.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the church.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wyckoff, of Cranford, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Mobus, of Watchung.

Mr. and Mrs. William Demarest, of Somerset street, have returned from a visit with Elizabeth relatives.

Mrs. E. Beyers, of Bayonne, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Schmidt, of Watchung, for several days.

Mrs. E. R. Taylor, of Beverly, Ohio, is spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gavett, of Third place.

Howard McWilliams, teacher of the Young Men's Bible class at Hope chapel, who has been ill with pneumonia, is recovering.

The Past.

Still shall the soul around it call
The shadows which it gathered here,
And painted on the eternal wall
The past shall reappear.

Think ye the notes of holy song
On Milton's tuneful ear have died?
Think ye that Raphael's angel throng
Has vanished from his side?

Oh, no! We live our life again;
Or warmly touched or coldly dim,
The pictures of the past remain,
Man's work shall follow him!
—Whittier.

SOMERVILLE.

The officers and teachers of the Second Reformed Sunday school held a supper and conference in the chapel of the church on Thursday evening. After supper was served short addresses were made of different phases of Sunday school methods and their results. Class problems were discussed, also missionary methods, the persiding officer being the Sunday school superintendent, James J. Griggs.

James C. Gulick, of Somerville; John V. D. Brokaw, of Belle Mead; Arthur S. Dixon and John H. Schomp, of Harlingen, and Charles J. Fury, formerly of Somerville, are among those drawn on the panel of jurors to serve during the next session of the United States District Court at Trenton.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Somerset County Hospital has decided to hold a "tag day" for the benefit of the hospital on October 31. Committees are being appointed to take charge of the day.

The General Frelinghuysen Chapter, D. A. R., of Somerville, was delightfully entertained Friday afternoon by Mrs. Spencer Weart, at her country home, near Middlebush.

Mrs. Estelle Van Buren and Mrs. D. C. Sinclair returned to their home on Middaugh street, last week after spending four months at Royalton, Vt.

Mrs. Grant Richardson announces the engagement of her sister, Miss Louise E. Weber, to George Pastor, Jr., of South Bound Brook.

P. C. Van Nuy and family and James V. Smith are at home from Lake Hopatcong, where they have been spending a month.

Mrs. Titus, of New York, has been a guest this week of Mrs. W. H. Early, on East Main street.

Women's Outerwear

"The best line of suits and dresses ever shown in Newark." We heard this on all sides during our opening days this week. Newark women are critical buyers—they know what they want and they know what is proper. We accept the Newark woman's verdict in this case and we know that she is right.

OUR $22.50 SUITS—You have no idea how much beauty and style can be incorporated into a tailored suit for $22.50 unless you see this line. You may travel the country over and you will not find anything to equal the line. All of the season's prettiest styles and a beautiful assortment of newest materials. Satin-lined coats $22.50

OUR $15.00 SUITS—Pray do not do yourself the injustice of imagining that you cannot get a good tailored suit for $15.00, and do not compare our $15.00 tailored suits with those which you may have seen elsewhere. Our $15.00 suits are in a class by themselves. Broadcloths and cheviots. Black, navy and new shades. $15.00

OUR $40.00 SUITS—Have you been accustomed to paying $50.00 and $60.00 for your tailored suits? If so, we would like to have you see our $40.00 line. We believe there is a revelation in store for some people. Will you do yourself the kindness to inspect this line tomorrow? Plain tailored or handsomely embroidered $40.00

OUR $20.00 DRESSES—"How can you sell such pretty dresses for $20.00?" asked a customer the other day. To look at these dainty frocks you wouldn't think of associating them with such a price. They're positive beauties. Chiffon broadcloth, prettily embroidered; also messalines, eoliennes and serges. Lace yokes and cuffs. $20.00

WOMEN'S COATS—Look at these coats without glancing at the price tags. You will declare they are worth a good deal more. We consider this one of the strongest $17.50 lines that we have ever shown—if you need a cloth coat by all means look it over. Black broadcloths, black and blue serges and fancy mixtures. Semi-fitted. $17.50

WOMEN'S STORM COATS—Every woman should have one of these fashionable storm coats. No one's wardrobe is complete without one. They are waterproof through and through and fairly warm, too. We believe you will admire this line. Rubberized moire and fancy stripes—black and colors. Semi-fitted or loose effects. Price. $12.75

A CART-TAIL SPEECH OF CANDIDATE MOY

With a counter attraction of a Socialist Labor speaker on the opposite corner Saturday night George W. V. Moy, candidate for Mayor on a bi-partisan ticket, spoke for twenty minutes on municipal affairs and promised that after he is through with an investigation he is now making he will speak upon the subject and put the people in touch with all that is going on and state what he claims is the actual condition of municipal affairs.

Mr. Moy declared that the bi-partisan agitation was the outgrowth of the reform movement which was started four years ago in the ranks of the Republican party, when it was thought that by putting good men on the ticket on the new idea platform they could be elected. But the new idea men were regarded as interlopers and they were looked down upon by the organization, which has no use for an independent of any character.

"It does not follow, he said, that because a thing is thought to be right, that it is so, and vice-versa, but any wrong thing found ought to be corrected. We have known that things are not right in Plainfield and we should use our best endeavors to right them. In the Casino primaries four years ago I was told to vote for No. 5 when they came to that number on the list, but I didn't know who No. 5 was so I didn't vote for him. Ever since then I have been an independent. That was my first taste of machine methods."

"I am now engaged in an investigation of municipal affairs upon which I will speak to you later in order to put you in touch with actual conditions in these affairs of the city. The newspapers should disseminate the information. I don't want to be understood as criticising too harshly, but I will find the truth and tell it to you."

The speaker then referred to the alleged double salary question, condemnin the law yhich permits the head of the Board of Health to draw a salary for "doing nothing" and repeating his remarks of Thursday regarding the overseer-of-the-poor. Speaking of Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett and his alleged two salaries, Mr. Moy declared that he did not criticize Mr. Gavett, but the law which permits him to draw the salaries. Taxes and fees are alike because they come out of the people's pockets, he said. The next topic to be discussed will be "Taxation," which he will handle at Reform Hall on Wednesday night.

HOLY NAME PARADE

Rev. Father Bogan desires The Daily Press to extend his appreciation to Mayors Charles J. Fisk and Newton B. Smalley for their courtesy in the matter of permits and the police assistance, and to the police department itself for the able manner in which the immense crowd was handled.

Following is a list of the societies taking part in the rally:

First Division—Michael D. O'Keefe, grand marshal; Brogan's Band, Elizabeth; St. Mary's, Elizabeth; Immaculate Conception, Elizabeth; St. Joseph's, Roselle; St. Michael's, Cranford; Nonpariel Fife and Drum Corps, Elizabeth; St. Patrick's, Elizabeth; Holy Rosary, Elizabeth; New Brunswick Band; St. Mary's, Rahway; Holy Trinity, Westfield; Imperial Fife and Drum Corps, Elizabeth; St. Anthony's Italian, Elizabeth; Unity Fife and Drum Corps, Elizabeth; Sacred Heart, Elizabeth.

Second Division—Michael Caffrey, marshal; Van Baar's Military Band, New York, led by Mr. Van Baar; St. Mary's, Plainfield, (600 men); band; St. Joseph's, North Plainfield; Stony Hill Holy Name; St. John's Dunellen; Raritan Band; St. Bernard's, Raritan; St. Joseph's Bound Brook; Immaculate Conception, Somerville; band; Polish Holy Name Society of Sacred Heart church, South Plainfield.

Molding Flasks Destroyed.

A pile of molding flasks in the yard of the Potter Press works caught fire last evening, evidently from a locomotive spark, and started a blaze that threatened surrounding buildings. The fire department responded to an alarm from box 45 and quickly extinguished the flames, which were shooting high in the air because of the inflammability of the material. The damage is trifling, as most of the flasks had been discarded.

To Acknowledge Endorsement.

George W. V. Moy, the Independents' candidate for the mayoralty, will appear before the Democratic club tonight, at 102 North avenue, to make a personal acknowledgement of the club's endorsement of him for mayor. A cordial welcome will be extended to all who care to come to the meeting.

THE FORUM.

A CORRECTION.

Editor Daily Press:

I desire to protest against the article in your Saturday's issue concerning the death of Mr. John Edward Brown in this city of October first.

The only truths in the article are that the decease occurred, that he was an only son and that he was greatly liked and sincerely mourned by all who had come to know him in his short sojourn here.

All the statements concerning his illness, his sacrifice, his self-denials, his lack of sustaining food, his mother's lack of income, etc., are each and all devoid of truth.

The publication of the article is all the more unforgiveable inasmuch as the facts could so easily have been obtained. It is inconceivable that a story of that kind should be accepted without verification. JOHN LEAL.

PIGEONS FLY 2000 MILES IN LESS THAN FIVE HOURS.

Local owners of pigeons held a homing contest yesterday in which seventy-five birds participated. The distances was 200 miles from Manasses, Va., to here, and first honors went to George Smith, of Brook avenue, whose birds made the trip in four hours and fifty-two minutes. They were released at Manasses at 8:40 and were in the cote at 1:32. They averaged a speed of 1,247 yards a minute.

The birds belonging to Robert Parsons, of West Front street, were second, reaching home at 1:33, and averaging 1,239 yards a minute. Third and fourth honors respectively were awarded William Faber, of the borough, and Fred Brunner, of Westfield. Another and longer fly is to be held next week.

Mrs. Harriet Lefler.

Mrs. Harriet Lefler, widow of Charles Lefler, died at her home on East Seventh street, Saturday night, following a long illness. She had been an invalid and had been unable to leave her home for years. The funeral will be held from St. Stephen's church, Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Henhouse Afire.

The fire department was called out at 2:35 this afternoon for a blaze in the henhouse belonging to Edward F. Shriner, at West Fifth street and Lee place. The damage was small.

RECORD SCORES WILSON AS POLITICAL BLUFFER

George L. Record, of Jersey City, has made public a statement concerning the action of Dr. Woodrow Wilson regarding Mr. Record's acceptance of Dr. Wilson's challenge to joint debate. Mr. Record says:

"The great Dr. Wilson, who is to lift the politics of New Jersey to a new and higher plane, at the first test has gone down to the 'Jim' Nugent plane and begins to dodge and pettifog. On Monday night he issued a challenge in these words: 'I challenge any politician in New Jersey to publicly debate on the public platform with me any public question.'

"This was a proper challenge, and from a man of Dr. Wilson's high standing it promised immense advantage to the public. It meant that we would have discussed before the people in a series of great meetings the important public questions of the day. It meant that the evil conditions of our politics would be thoroughly aired; that the proposed remedies would be discussed in such a way as to arouse an overwhelming public opinion for specific reform measures.

"All of this Dr. Wilson ought to welcome. It means purer politics, an enlightened public opinion, and the dragging of politics from dark and secret places out into the open. I accepted this challenge in the spirit in which it was made. I am qualified by my long continued and manifested interest in the specific public questions which are now before the public to discuss them intelligently at least, if not as ably as some others.

"The moment I accept this challenge, however, he comes back at me through 'Jim' Nugent with a new condition, designed obviously to prevent the coming off of any real debate. The new condition is that the Republican State Committee shall put me forward as its accredited and avowed representative.

"Whatever the committee may do, it is perfectly plain that this condition is put forward in the hope and in the belief that the State committee will refuse to accept his condition, under cover of which refusal he obviously plans to run away.

"He issues boldly an unqualified challenge, and when it is accepted immediately hedges and puts up a qualification designed to prevent the debate. This is a plain dodge, and will so be construed by the public.

"Dr. Wilson had a perfect right to put up a challenge to the State committee that it put forward Mr. Lewis or any accredited representative. He chose instead to challenge any politician in New Jersey upon any public question. The challenge was worthy of Dr. Wilson as the public have hitherto looked upon him. The dodge will come as a shock to Dr. Wilson's admirers, and if persisted in will destroy whatever chance of election he previously had."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Father and the Boys," in which W. H. Crane is to appear at the Plainfield theatre, Wednesday night, is without doubt George Ade's very cleverest comedy, and, with Mr. Crane playing the leading part, Mr. Ade seems to have made giant strides since he gave the public "The College Widow" and "The County Chairman." This does not mean that the two latter plays were not up to the mark, but "Father and the Boys" is so far beyond what the author considered the mark at that time. It has certainly widened very amterially the popularity of both Mr. Crane and Mr. Ade, which goes to prove that the combination is an excellent one. The play is the biggest success that Mr. Crane has had in years and is very justly regarded as one of the distinct hits of his long career on the stage. Charles Frohman has given "Father and the Boys" a splendid production and has surrounded Mr. Crane with excellent support, in which Mabel Frenyear is chiefly conspicuous.

THE HYFAULTIN' HYPHEN.

Although the general tendency is to do away with unnecessary marks of punctuation the hyphen is still uselessly retained in "to-day," "to-night" and "to-morrow." That the retaining of the hyphen in these words is not only useless but absolutely criminal is easily demonstrated by a bit of simple mathematics.

There are 178,236,592 English-speaking people. The words "to-day," "to-night" and "to-morrow" are together used forty-eight times daily by every person—five of these being written out in long-hand. Thus the daily output of hyphens in these words totals 891,182,460. Taking the average of a written hyphen to be one-quarter of an inch you have a straight line 3,864 miles long. At the usual rate of writing it would take one man seventy-six years to insert the hyphens in these words, and his salary would amount to $78,436.

But, avoiding all theory, "to-day," "to-night" and "to-morrow" are daily hyphenated four times each on 234,192 typewriters, and three times daily on 184,221 linotpye machines. Remembering that a pressure of one ounce is required to strike a typewriter key and two and one-half ounces to depress a linotype, we see that in writing these hyphens a total of 352,974 foot-pounds of energy is expended, or enough to draw a passenger train across the United States.

To avoid appearing picayunish no mention has been amde of the use of ink and paper, but this would approximate in value the daily bread supply of the State of New York.

The hyphen in "to-day," "to-night" and "to-morrow" should be discontinued today.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Mint Cucumber Sandwiches.

Delicious sandwiches may be made by dipping thin slices of fresh young cucumbers in well-seasoned French dressing and placing, with a sprinkling of finely shopped fresh mint, between slices of white bread spread with unsalted butter. These sandwiches should be put together as short a time as possible before serving, and, except the butter, everything used should be very cold.

Lord Loveland Discovers America

CHAPTER XII.

IZZIE OF THE ALMOND EYES.

IT was not often that Loveland came into personal relations with sunrise, and to see the rose and golden banners float high and higher above the roofs and sleeping windows of New York was like being first gazer at some great painting in a private view. There were hope and promise of joy in such beauty, but he felt wretchedly out of the picture in his rumpled evening clothes.

The virginal purity of dawn, translucent above the turgid darkness of the town, made Lesley Dearmer seem suddenly to be very near to him, so that the air shone with her invisible presence. How sweet she was, how delicately quaint in all her thoughts, how kind to others despite her clear wit and how sure of ultimate goodness as she was of life!

Lesley had said that she had "faith in his other side," as she had faith in the other side of the moon, though she did not expect ever to see either. "You will always go on getting what you want," she had prophesied just before they parted. What would she think of that prophecy if she were even to dream of this humiliated figure creeping out of night to a new day?

Bill's hatchet face glimmered sallow and shabby through the pearly twilight, and there was a frayed look under the patient, humorous eyes. "Are you cold?" he asked.

"A little," replied Val. "But I don't mind."

"You ain't used to the climate yet," said Bill, "and I'd make you squeeze into my overcoat only I'm a bit too sketchy underneath. Can't afford to get me winter wardrobe back from my uncle's yet."

They passed out of the Bowery and turned into Twelfth street. Most of the houses still had their eyelids shut in sleep. But in the middle of the first block there was one house which showed some faint signs of life. Above the wide window, in all the glory of red and gold paint not yet faded, was the legend, "This Is Alexander the Great's." Inside, its face turned toward the glass, was a big framed blackboard covered with pictorial advertisements of various dishes, done in chalks of violent hues, while from a gilded strip of cornice depended large squares of cardboard glorifying Alexander the Great and his system in lettering of black and scarlet.

"Yesterday's show," explained Bill—"my work, the whole lot. The cards last out the week, but the meenoo on the blackboard's new every day. I tell you, it takes brain work! Hurry up, chum. I'm late."

They went in, passing directly into a room fitted up as a restaurant. The walls were painted with lurid representations of Alexander the Great's battles, the costumes and scenery having been studied more with a view to sensational effect than accuracy of historical detail.

"My idea," said Bill proudly. "Got it from the name over the door as I passed by that first day. Came to me like a shot. And then I thought of the picture meenoos. When they're goin' to have rabbit, give 'em a rabbit nibblin' a bit of lettuce—make it realistic. When they're goin' to have punkin pie, just make their mouths water only to see its portrait in the window, so they've got to walk in and eat a chunk of the old original, if it takes their bottom nickel. Now, while I work like heat lightnin' you amuse yerself examinin' my shay doovers."

"Alexander the Great Fights Fair," announced one dangling card in the window. "Alexander the Great Wins Every Time," alleged another. "Alexander the Great Gives Great Grub." "Dine at Alexander the Great's and You Dine Like a Prince." "You Get From Alexander the Great For 25c. More Than You Get Anywhere Else For a Dollar." And so on, one glowing eulogy after another, all around the window.

Loveland had warmed himself thoroughly for the first time since leaving the Waldorf and had lost his disgusted sense of the close atmosphere when the big red clock struck 7. At the same moment some one pushed aside the door curtain and came into the restaurant from a passageway at the back. Val turned his head and saw a very handsome, very untidy young Jewess.

The girl came in yawning, but at sight of Loveland her languishing, almond shaped eyes opened wide, and a lovely carnation stained the peachy sallowness of her rounded cheeks.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, catching together her unbuttoned wrapper at the throat and taking a step backward toward the door. Suddenly she looked haughty and a little defiant. "I didn't know anybody was here, except Bill. We don't open till 7:30. People don't come in this early. But if you"—

"Thank you, I'm afraid I'm not a customer," said Loveland, pulling off his cap and flushing a little with embarrassment for himself and for the girl.

"This gent's me friend. His name's Gordon—P. Gordon," explained Bill.

The girl laughed, self consciously, pleased, yet half suspicious of the handsome young man who had paid her the compliment of taking off his cap. She was not used to men who did that, even for pretty girls like her.

"I must trespass on your hospitality for a few minutes," Val said hastily, "until Mr. Willing has time to help me carry out my plans for the day. When he's finished his work"—

"You ain't in any one's way here, I'm sure," returned the young woman, still eying the mysterious stranger aloofly, but with admiration.

"This is Miss Izzie, that I told you about," announced Bill in his best society manner, "the boss' daughter."

The girl bowed as she had seen heroines do on being introduced to heroes in plays at an adjacent melodramatic theater. "How often must I tell you, Bill, not to call me 'Miss Izzie'? Miss Isidora, if you please. I hate Izzie." And she glanced out of the corners of her long, almond shaped eyes at Loveland. "You're an actor, ain't you, Mr. Gordon?" she asked.

"No, I'm not," replied Val, stiffening slightly.

"Excuse me if I've said the wrong thing," cooed the girl in her soft tones. "I didn't see how Bill come to have a swell friend unless 'twas an actor. But I must go. I only came down like this, Bill, to have a look round for pa, because he's sick with a cold. I told him I'd see after things till he's better. He don't like me fooling round in business hours, with a lot of men staring and passing remarks" (she threw another glance at Val to see if he were impressed by this exclusiveness), "but he feels too bad to care today. I'll go pour myself into my glad rags now and be down again as soon as I can."

"Boss sick, is he?" said Bill, who was finishing his work on the room side of the blackboard by indicating a lobster with thick scarlet strokes of fast flying chalk. "Won't be down till by and by?"

The daughter of Alexander the Great showed her dimples. "You think that means you'll get a free meal, I guess. When the cat's away,"—

"And has got a pretty, kind kitten for his understudy," Bill finished.

"We-ell, you know I'm soft, don't you? If you want anything look sharp and get it or pa might change his mind and pop in. Won't you have something, Mr. Gordon?" she went on hospitably.

"If you'll trust me till afternoon for the price of a breakfast," Val answered, trying to speak lightly.

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "I didn't ask you to pay. Pity if I can't invite a friend to have a meal without any one making a fuss."

"Very well; I'll accept your invitation with thanks, provided you'll breakfast with me," said Val as gallantly as if he were addressing a duchess—or a popular chorus girl.

"My! I couldn't do that," answered Isidora. "Pa'd be wild if he got to know I eat a meal in the restaurant. We've a parlor upstairs," she went on, with a pretty air of importance, "and the hired girl brings our meals. But you'll be seeing me soon again," she reassured Loveland. "I shall be at the desk in pa's place."

The Most Industrious Store in Newark---The City of Industry

GERMAN DAYS
In the Congress of Nations

Newark is fortunate in the possession of a large German population. No one will doubt that the great number of Germans and their descendants who have made Newark their home have added materially to the strength of the city.

In philosophy, in science, in literature, in music, Germany takes high rank and now in industry it is setting a pace that even we in aggressive and enterprising America marvel at. The wonderful impetus recently given to Germany's industries has astounded the world. The Germans are educating their boys to be more useful than ornamental and they are dignifying labor by making it part of their education.

GERMAN TOYS—

Humanity owes a debt of gratitude to the Germans and the Swiss for their contributions of playthings to the world at large.

The Toy Store is most truly representative of one of the great German industries—the making of toys. This year we have imported more toys than ever in our history, which is saying a great deal, for you know this is by odds the biggest toy store in the State—one of the biggest in the world.

Mechanical Toys of ever so many kinds, including all the up-to-date inventions, such as automobiles, aeroplanes, biplanes, dirigibles—here at from.....25c to $3

Dynamobiles—the most wonderful friction toys ever invented; will drive a workshop by friction.....50c and $1

German Dolls lead the world as most folks know, and the greatest of their products is the new artist model or "character" doll—real baby boys and girls modeled from life. Naturally we show the largest line of these dolls, as we do of all other dolls to be found in the State, at prices ranging from.....25c to $5

Other dolls from the tiniest cake dolls at 10c a dozen to the most magnificent gowned lady at.....$40

FROM GERMANY—

Canisters—Bronze, for tea, coffee and sugar; 35c kind at 29c.

Knife Cleaners—A machine that will polish and clean steel knives, making them like new; regular $3.25, special $2.59.

Not only does Germany foster technical and industrial schools but it gives generous encouragement to agriculture, and in matters of conservation of natural resources she is years ahead of the United States.

Germany's chief city, Berlin, is generally conceded to be the best managed, cleanest, and one of the most beautiful in the world.

From such a country as Germany we should get splendid stock, and certainly Newark has drawn some of her best citizens from the Fatherland.

Germany Days are days of welcome, especially to Germans, but we gladly welcome people of all other nationalities as well.

GERMAN STOCKINGS

Germany has done more than any other nation to cover the feet of the world with comfortable stockings, and from Germany comes most of the stockings we sell. Not only does Germany excel in weave but in dyeing with colors that are absolutely fast.

Being direct importers and in constant touch with market conditions we get the best at the lowest prices that can be secured. Our importations are immense and embrace stockings for men, women and children in such variety as is found in no other store in Newark.

Tuesday we will sell—

Women's Cotton and Lisle Stockings—full fashioned; blacks tans and colors; various good styles for.....35c

"No, I'm not," replied Val, stiffening slightly.

"Excuse me if I've said the wrong thing," cooed the girl in her soft tones. "I didn't see how Bill come to have a swell friend unless 'twas an actor. But I must go. I only came down like this, Bill, to have a look round for pa, because he's sick with a cold. I told him I'd see after things till he's better. He don't like me fooling round in business hours, with a lot of men staring and passing remarks" (she threw another glance at Val to see if he were impressed by this exclusiveness), "but he feels too bad to care today. I'll go pour myself into my glad rags now and be down again as soon as I can."

"Boss sick, is he?" said Bill, who was finishing his work on the room side of the blackboard by indicating a lobster with thick scarlet strokes of fast flying chalk. "Won't be down till by and by?"

The daughter of Alexander the Great showed her dimples. "You think that means you'll get a free meal, I guess. When the cat's away,"—

"And has got a pretty, kind kitten for his understudy," Bill finished.

"We-ell, you know I'm soft, don't you? If you want anything look sharp and get it or pa might change his mind and pop in. Won't you have something, Mr. Gordon?" she went on hospitably.

"If you'll trust me till afternoon for the price of a breakfast," Val answered, trying to speak lightly.

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "I didn't ask you to pay. Pity if I can't invite a friend to have a meal without any one making a fuss."

"Very well; I'll accept your invitation with thanks, provided you'll breakfast with me," said Val as gallantly as if he were addressing a duchess—or a popular chorus girl.

"My! I couldn't do that," answered Isidora. "Pa'd be wild if he got to know I eat a meal in the restaurant. We've a parlor upstairs," she went on, with a pretty air of importance, "and the hired girl brings our meals. But you'll be seeing me soon again," she reassured Loveland. "I shall be at the desk in pa's place."

PLANTS IN A ROOM.

We cannot esteem too highly the value of plants about a room. They become in time real friends. Hardiest and best is the aspidistra, for neither draught nor gas affects it and if a little neglected in the matter of watering, it shows no malice, and summer and winter its glossy green leaves bear witness to the care bestowed upon it. Palms, though graceful and very ornamental, are delicate and disappointing plants. Ferns need constant attention, but always repay care.

For the centre of a springtime dining table nothing can be prettier than a china bowl planted with small ferns and hyacinths, or ferns and tulips; and as the bulbs die off they can be drawn out, and the gaps can always be filled with cut daffodils. There is no limit to the delight given by flowers. In our sadness they are our constant friends.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To Louis O. Barton:

By the virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the date hereof, in a certain cause wherein Mabelle A. Barton is petitioner, and you, Louis O. Barton, are defendant, you are required to appear and plead, answer or demur to petitioner's petition on or before the first day of December, next, or, in default thereof, such decree will be taken against you as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just.

The object of said suit is to obtain a decree of divorce, dissolving the marriage between you and the said petitioner.

PLAINFIELD A. F. C. DEFEATS ELIZABETH, 4-2

The Plainfield Association Football Club continued its good work Saturday afternoon, on the Clinton avenue grounds, by defeating the Elizabeth Uniteds by a score of 4 to 2. This was one of the amateur soccer league contests and the locals were particularly anxious to come out victorious. Thus far they have not lost a game in the league series.

After playing their opponents an even game in the first half, Saturday, the Elizabeth eleven weakened in the final period, allowing the locals to score two more goals, making the final score 4 to 2. Every member of the Plainfield team played a fine game, and altogether proved their superiority over the visitors.

At the end of the first half the score was 2 to 1 in favor of the visitors, the two elevens being very evenly matched up to that point. The Plainfielders then braced up for the second half and tallied two more goals, and at the same time holding their opponents to their two tallies:

The lineup:

Plainfield.		Elizabeth.
Boyle	goal	Whitehead
Craig	right fullback	Thomas
Renney	right halfback	Mitchell
Hosie	centre halfback	Kershaw
Spalding	right wing	Wassel
Marks	right wing	Elliott
Heaume	centre	Crombie

Score at end of first half—Elizabeth 2, Plainfield 1. Final score—Elizabeth 2, Plainfield 4. Referee—McDonald. Linesmen—Elliot, McNeice. Goals — Jones, Savage, Heaume 3, Crawford. Time of halves—45 minutes.

W. E. LOUGH AND R. V. CARPENTER IN FINAL

The event of greatest interest at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, was, perhaps, the semifinal round for the fall championship. W. E. Lough defeated E. Bird, 2 up and R. V. Carpenter together in the final round which is to be played on Wednesday, and it should result in a close and exciting match as they are two of the club's best players.

In the weekly competition for the President's, golf club and Oakmont cups, these scores were posted:

U. G. Tingley, 90, 24-66; W. V. Byard, 94, 21-73; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 93, 16-77; R. V. Carpenter, 108, 28-80; W. E. Lough, 106, 23-83; Dr. E. A. Rundquist, 93, 8-65.

The club tried to arrange another match game with the Colonia Country Club next Saturday, but was unable to do so. Instead, a game will be played with the golf club from Bound Brook on the local links. Last season these clubs played a match, and the result was very close.

You're Paying for a Motor Car

You may think you don't want a motor car. But there isn't any question about your needing one.

There is a difference between wanting a thing and needing it.

If you need a car you are paying for it. Paying in the time you lose that a car would save you. In the opportunities that get away. In the fresh air and recreation a car would give, but which now you do not get.

Whatever we really need we pay for, whether we actually own it or not. You might get along without an overcoat this winter, but you would pay for one just the same. You would pay with discomfort and colds.

If you use telephones, telegraph, wireless, express trains, electric lights, trolley cars, adding machines, dictaphones, newspapers, typewriters and labor saving machinery, then you need an automobile.

For the automobile has been developed to keep pace with the age that utilizes these other things—the age of speed—the age of efficiency. The motor car didn't create its demand after it arrived. The demand was waiting. It had been waiting for forty centuries.

The greatest obstacle to progress is distance. Civilization consists of doing away with the space that lies between man and man, city and city, country and country, between products of all kinds and the people who use them.

When the steamship, the railroad and trolley came to take care of the problem of community or public transportation, the world took a long step ahead.

When the automobile came to take care of the problem of individual transportation, the world took another long step ahead. If you haven't realized it, then the world has stepped past you.

The man with a motor gets down to his business in the morning quickly, cleanly and with gladness.

He is able to take up his business problems with clearer vision and greater energy than the man who has been worried and doped by the rush and jam and the bad air of a crowded train or street car.

The man in a motor car can cover 50 to 100 miles in a day just on business errands in the city, keeping appointments that it would take many days to make under the old system.

At noon time he can use his car to entertain his business associates with a five or ten mile ride to a pleasant luncheon place. He can send it out in the afternoon to entertain guests while he goes ahead with his business. Or, if he wants to take himself or a visitor to a train, he allows just a few minutes' leeway and the motor carries him to the depot swiftly and surely.

After the day's work, he arrives home again; arrives with weariness and worry air-sprayed from his brain; with a keen appetite and good humor for dinner.

In the evening he may use his car for a turn around the parks and boulevard or a spin into the country with family and friends.

The man with a motor car lives a fuller life than if he didn't have one. He has more experiences—more sensations. He does more things. He has a wider circle of interest and influence. He lives twice as long in the same length of time as the man who hasn't a car. Long life is not a question of years so much as it is of experiences and accomplishments. Yet motor cars will be factors in increasing the average span of man's years because they promote health through outdoor life.

Head of the Family:—Going to and from business in fresh air. Making business calls. Entertaining customers and business associates. Tours in the country. More knowledge of the country. Mental and physical exercise of driving. Good appetite—better digestion—better humor—better health. Prestige.

Wife and Daughter:—Social calls. Entertaining. Plenty of fresh air to drive away "nerves." More time with husband and father.

Sons:—Educative value of understanding and caring for a wonderful piece of machinery. Training of mental and physical faculties in driving. Clean, fresh air, recreation and decent entertainment in company of other members of family.

This Part is so Good it Doesn't Need to be Put in Large Type.

There are many good cars made nowadays, and any good car is a good investment. Yet we honestly believe that Chalmers Cars offer the best value for the money of any on the market. Compare them with others. Comparison has sold more Chalmers Cars than all our advertising. If you can possibly afford a motor car, don't put it off any longer but go and buy one. We hope it will be a Chalmers; but whether it is or not, don't deprive yourself and your family any longer of the pleasure that by right is yours and theirs. There is nothing that you could invest the money in that will pay you such a big dividend in the saving of your time in business and the saving of your health for years, as the purchase of a motor car. A good thing is a better thing the sooner you get it. Make your family happy tonight by telling them you have made up your mind to get that motor car you have been talking so much about, namely,

MOY THANKS DEMOCRATS

NEVER REGULAR REPUBLICAN.

Former Vice-Chairman of G. O. P. City Committee's Candidacy Explained by Club's President, L. J. Ellis.

George W. V. Moy told the members of the Democratic club last night why he accepted their endorsement and how much the confidence the club placed in him had touched him. He also told the members some of the things which to his mind now obtain in municipal affairs and why he proposed to do his utmost to straighten them out. A. P. Morris, of Union township, candidate for the Assembly and H. J. McLoughlin, of Elizabeth, another Assembly candidate, also spoke.

LeRoy J. Ellis, president of the club, presided and explained the reason for the endorsement of Mr. Moy before introducing him. Mr. Moy said in part:

"I regard you all as my friends and neighbors. My first regard for my friend is that he is an American citizen. We are all under the old flag and patriotism should be the aim of our desires. We independent Republicans and Democrats are one people in ourselves. In this independent movement I only recognize the one object we all have in view. We are trying to remedy the conditions which have caused dissatisfaction.

"I have in reality never been a 'regular,' and I went into the primary fight as an 'independent,' and the only people who can have influence with me are the common people. I didn't spend any money for votes or whiskey on primary day. On that day and the preceding one I was trying a case in the Court of Chancery, and the vote I received was a purely voluntary one from those who were in sympathy with my purpose. Every special interest was against me and a change of 250 votes on that day would have given me the nomination anyway.

"The endorsement of my candidacy by this club was a voluntary act, but one which I had to consider deeply. You have more than endorsed me, and I want to tell you that I was touched by the confidence. Mr. Ivins refused to declare himself, so I accepted the compliment which you paid me. Had I not accepted, the Democratic party would have been without a candidate to head their ticket. I have been against the machine for twenty years, and have never subscribed to their doctrines."

Mr. Moy scored Andrew MacCardell, F. L. Montgomery, William L. Gloak and W. W. Wilson. All these, he alleged, were former Democrats, but got the Republican religion and were converted. "It makes no difference to me whether I am elected or not; I will at least have the satisfaction of having exposed things as they exist and shown the people of the city the whole truth about municipal affairs."

Mr. Morris spoke upon the disposition of the school funds after declaring that Mr. Moy should be supported by every Democrat in the city.

In introducing Mr. Moy, President Ellis said:

"The Plainfield Democratic club at a number of meetings canvassed the question of an available candidate for the mayoralty. We could find none that would consent to run, and it was the unanimous opinion that a Democrat could not be elected. Among those who were suggested and whose consent to run was D. C. Ivins. Mr. Martine reported on Thursday preceding the date on which nominations were required to be filed that Mr. Ivins had positively declined to run, and that it was useless to consider his name. At a subsequent meeting of the club the question of making Mr. Moy the party's nominee was discussed, and it was deemed best to let the ticket for the primary be blank as to the mayor, a number of us deciding to write Mr. Moy's name on the ticket (Democratic).

"On the day of the primary election some friends of Mr. Ivins, discovering that the Democratic ballot was blank as to the mayoralty, started a movement to fill in the blank with his name. When the Democratic ballots were counted it was discovered that 61 votes were cast for Mr. Moy and 25 for Mr. Ivins. After the primary Mr. Ivins was called on and asked if he would accept the nomination for mayor. He replied that he felt that it was for Mr. Moy to first state his position, and declined to commit himself until Mr. Moy had declared his intentions. W. A. Coddington, who was mainly instrumental in having Mr. Ivins voted for, was told that the question of the club's position would come up

COLUMBUS DAY EVENTS

SCHOOLS WILL BE CLOSED.

Postoffice Open, but Not Banks—Chief Celebration That of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

As tomorrow will be Columbus Day, the banks and the schools will be closed. Several events of importance will mark the holiday. The postoffice will be open as usual.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will celebrate Columbus Day tomorrow with a banquet in the evening at the Waldorf Hotel on East Front street. Arrangements have been made for an enjoyable affair, which will be only for the members of the order. An orchestra has been engaged and a fine program of music will be rendered during the evening. P. H. Burns has been selected as toastmaster for the occasion, and the list of speakers and their toasts will be as follows:

Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, "Indifference;" John Milton, assistant corporation counsel, Jersey City, "Our Successors;" John F. O'Neil, of Jersey City, assistant State deputy of the Knights of Columbus, "Discovery Day;" Rev. W. H. Miller, pastor of St. Joseph's church, "Columbus;" A. E. Kenney, "Patriotism." The committee in charge of the banquet comprises D. F. Couraine, Francis J. Blatz, John J. Carty, C. F. Fogarty and F. J. Harding.

Special exercises in honor of Columbus Day will be held at Mt. St. Mary's College, tomorrow morning, in charge of Sergeant Barker, of New York. There will be addresses by Rev. W. H. Miller, pastor of St. Joseph's church, and Rev. P. A. Baldwin, chaplain of the college, and an exercise, the pledge and salute to the flag, will be given by the children.

The race meet to be held at the driving park, tomorrow afternoon, under the auspices of the Plainfield Driving Association, promises to be one of the best of the season. There will be four races, two trotting and pacing and two running races. The entry list is the largest in the history of the association, including some of the best horses in the State. Stages will meet all trolley cars, and preparations are being made to handle a large crowd. The judges for the meet will be L. A. Bellis, of Somerville; J. V. N. Willis, of Plainfield, and Robert J. Smith, of New Brunswick. The timers will be Michael Quinn, of this city; Edward Floyd, of Westfield, and David Tures, of Montclair, while William Hudson will be the starter.

TO PERFORM CEREMONY AT RELATIVE'S WEDDING.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss will leave on Thursday for Charleston, West Virginia, to attend the wedding of their granddaughter, Miss Mary Caperton, at which Dr. Chambliss will officiate. Miss Caperton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Caperton, of Charleston, has visited in Plainfield several times, where she has made many friends and been much admired for her beauty and charm.

Dr. Eugene Blake, of New Haven, Conn., whom Miss Caperton will wed, is an instructor in the medical school of Yale University, and is an eye specialist. The wedding will take place in the First Presbyterian church, Charleston, Monday, October 17. Miss Caperton is a member of that church.

FARLEY TRIES TO DROWN DESPONDENCY IN LIQUOR.

Charles Farley, a former expressman, was found helplessly drunk on the platform of the North avenue station last evening at 5:30 and was taken to police headquarters. Patrolman Kelley, who made the arrest said that Farley was in danger of being struck by a train and he thought it best to lock him up. Sentence was suspended on promise of better behavior.

Farley told the judge that he had been looking for work ever since he lost his express business, but had been unsuccessful and had in fact, become despondent immediately after his wife died five years ago. He has sold his horse, wagon and harness and even the furniture in his home, but declared he had been unfortunate in looking for employment.

Philip F. McGuire, of 1230 Park avenue, is a delegate to the street railway convention to be held at Atlantic City. He will be away a week and will be registered at the Hotel Traymore. He goes to Atlantic City with a number of P. S. C. officials from Newark.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE PARADE

MRS. SHAW'S RECOMMENDATION

Organization of Political Districts Her Suggestion—Mr. Saunders to Speak Before the Local League.

At the opening meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Stephen Haff, 954 West Seventh street, the chief matter to come up for consideration was a communication from the National American Woman Suffrage Association. This important communication was prefaced by the statement from the president, Rev. Anna Shaw, that "The whole woman suffrage movement has now grown so significant that it has become imperative for us, as a national association, to decide upon which of the many possible lines of work we should concentrate our efforts."

Mrs. Shaw recommends organizing according to political districts after the manner of the woman suffrage party in New York city, and she gives as the meaning of this new district organization that a large body of enrolled suffragists will be prepared at a given time to exert effective pressure upon legislative candidates.

Further on in the letter Mrs. Shaw says that there is some legal authority for the opinion that the State of New Jersey has unlawfully disfranchised its women citizens who once had the ballot and she asks if it would be good policy to carry through test cases.

After the business meeting Miss Zoe Russell Bateman gave a stirring account of the devotion to their cause, of the English suffragists. Miss Bateman, who has just returned from England, where she spent the summer, was one of those who marched in the great procession of June 18. Miss Bateman said in part:

"The first thing that strikes an outsider is the amount of interest aroused by the movement in England. Neutrality is quite impossible and the feeling for and against runs so high that at certain dinner tables the subject is tabooed entirely. The devotion, earnestness, and enthusiasm of the English suffragists for their cause is most inspiring and the bitterest enemies of women's suffrage cannot deny the good it is doing in helping to level the class distinctions and unite women of all ranks in one great sisterhood of work. Women of all grades of society are found in the ranks, titled women, professional women, artists, actresses, saleswomen, factory hands and dwellers in the East End of London.

"This was especially noticeable in the monster women's demonstration and procession through London from Black Friars Bridge to the Albert Hall, a distance of six miles, on June 18 last. The women assembled at 5:30 on a lovely June afternoon and the fact that the date fixed, the 18th, was the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, was considered a good omen by all.

"Most of the women wore white dresses with scarfs of purple, white and green the colors of the Women's Social and Political Union, of which union Mrs. Pankhurst is the leading spirit.

"The procession formed up under the trees of the embankment, each detachment of women finding its allotted place marked by the banner of its club or society. It was headed by Miss Charlotee Marsh, who suffered in prison three months, forcible feeding rather than abandon the hunger strike. She carried aloft the standard of the Women's Social and Political Union, the organizers of the procession. She was followed by the mounted marshals, three women whose plucky riding was the admiration of the crowd.

"Then came the political prisoners, 613 in number, who had suffered imprisonments of ranging duration for the cause. They carried long wands surmounted by silver broad arrows, the English prison badge, and amongst their number walked Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Peltwick Lawrence, Lady Constance Lytton and many other notable women who had shared in the imprisonments and hunger strike. They were headed by the Women's Drum and Fife band who came in for a goodly share of admiration, not only for their spirited music, but also for their smart attractive appearance in their short skirted purple uniforms, purple gaiters and military caps.

"Then followed contingents of university women in caps and gowns their hoods of varied colors showing the university at which their degrees were obtained; artists carrying pal-

NEWARK MAN TO BUILD THE SEWER EXTENSION

At a special meeting of the Common Council, last night, James A. Christie, of Newark, was awarded the sanitary sewer contract for an extension of the system in the west end of the city. The total bid was about $29,000, which includes everything except the machinery for the pumping station. The bid was in two sections, it being optional with the Council in awarding one or both.

The bid for one section of the work amounted to $19,000, and that for the other section $10,000. While the bid of M. Christie, which was the lowest was accepted, it does not mean that the city will have to undertake the whole work at once. The meeting was called only for this purpose and immediately after adopting the resolution awarding the contract the members adjourned to Reform hall, where a Republican mass meeting was held.

LANGHORNE RECOVERS, TELLS OF HIS MISHAP

F. C. Langhorne, the photographer, whose narrow escape from drowning after being run down by a Pennsylvania tugboat, last Wednesday, has been told in these columns, was about town this morning, apparently none the worse for his experience. Mr. Langhorne said that the captain of the vessel which struck the boat, from which he and Mr. Craig were fishing, did not blow a warning whistle and the tug was upon them before they were aware of its approach.

The little rowboa, which was the only boat out that day, was struck a crashing blow and both men were thrown into the water. Mr. Craig was fortunate enough to escape the blows from the prow of the vessel, but Mr. Langhorne was struck on the head and immediately sank. On coming to the surface he was again struck by the keel of the scow which the tug was towing, and, being nearly drowned, he did not realize how badly off he was.

Mr. Langhorne described the near drowning sensations as most pleasant. He merely thought that he was going to sleep in a comfortable way, and any troubles he might have had disappeared as if by magic. When he was hauled aboard the craft that had run him down he was brought to his senses by the rough treatment received at the hands of the sailors on the tug, who were rolling him over a barrel, trying to pump the water out of his stomach.

A few bruises on his head and arms are all that Mr. Langhorne has to show for his experience, but he declares that these are quite enough. He declared that the Elks took good care of him at Perth Amboy. He was in the hospital only until 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the accident. The blame for the occurrence he places entirely upon the captain of the tugboat.

FIRST BAPTIST Y. P. S. HAS AN ENTERTAINMENT

The fall rally, entertainment and social held at the First Baptist church last night, under the auspices of the Young People's Society, was largely attended and enjoyed. The Sunday-school rooms were tastefully decorated with American flags and the season's flowers, presenting an attractive picture. Chinese lanterns were also used with good effect.

An informal program was presented, consisting of readings and recitations of southern dialect stories by Mrs. George H. Campbell, of the borough, and several soprano solos by Mrs. Charles T. Shreve, of this city, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan.

Games were enjoyed afterward, Harold Serrell being awarded first honors and Louis Bennett the second honors. Others receiving prizes were Mrs. George White, Arthur Briggs and Francis K. Anderson. The rest of the evening was given up to sociability, and ice cream and cake were served. The committee in charge comprised Miss Carrie Demler, chairman; Miss Helen Armstrong, Miss Ruth Day, William Briggs, Harold Robins, Sydney Mackey and Hollis Cubberly.

VILLAGE'S MEANEST MAN

POSTMASTER DAY IS VICTIM.

Twenty Years Ago His Stable Was Sprinkled with Coal Oil—Day's Enemy Unknown to Him.

For downright malignity, venom or pure cussedness, whatever one chooses to call it, New Market comes forward today with a man who should be awarded the blue ribbon. His name is unknown at the present time, but the entire village in general and Postmaster Charles S. Day in particular would give several large, red apples to learn his identity.

Postmaster Day is the proprietor of an up-to-date meat market which he opened just two weeks ago in the A. G. Nelson building, and it was on this that the unknown devoted his efforts last night. He forced entrance through a window, and once inside took all the meats from the ice box, the hams and bacons from the hooks, and whatever food stuff he could locate, piling them all up in the center of the floor. Then with a lavish and indiscriminating hand, he poured kerosene over the collection, until every piece had a decided coal-oil flavor, rendering it unfit for human consumption. He must have had an unlimited supply of the fluid, as he also saturated the counters, chopping blocks and other fixtures with it until the place smelled like an empty Standard Oil tank, such as they have at Constable Hook. He undoubtedly had no intention of setting fire to the place, as everything was accomplished in a deliberate manner and left so his cussedness could not be mistaken.

The sorry state of affairs was discovered early this morning when William Northrop, manager of the shop, came around to open up. The intruder worked quietly, as Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Osmun, who live over the store, heard no suspicious sounds through the night. The meat destroyed represents something over $100, while it will cost an equal amount to replace the fixtures rendered useless.

Mr. Day says he is at a loss to understand why he should have been thus singled out, but has a possible hint that an enemy is on his track through the memory that twenty years ago a similar happening took place in his stable. A horse and one stall were sprinkled with kerosene and it was believed then that someone had intended setting fire to the place but was frightened off before accomplishing his purpose. Now it is thought that it was the same fellow who paid his respects last night. Mr. Day is also proprietor of one of New Market's grocery stores, and will hereafter keep a sharp watch for fear the kerosene cuss may try his hand at saturating sugar and soap.

FRED ROSE'S TRIAL MONDAY, OCTOBER 17.

Fred Rose, the young man who it is alleged was implicated in hold-ups on the Lehigh Valley Railroad freight and coal cars, will be brought to trial on Monday, October 17, at Somerville. His fellow workmen at the Spicer Mfg. Co. have subscribed to a fund which will be used to defend him. Robert Newton Crane has been retained by Rose's friends to undertake the defense.

According to the police records, it is alleged, Rose was formerly a member of the "Dutch Ides" gang and while with that outfit he was sent to jail for two years. On his release he made up his mind to live a good life and obtained a position with the firm he was with when arrested, and it is said he was doing well and keeping strictly "on the level", as the saying goes.

Another Offense Will Cost $25.

Joseph Manhattan appeared as complainant against John Lupko, a Pole, this morning in the city court, alleging the use of vile and indecent language. Lupko acknowledged being drunk on the day the alleged language was used and that he could not remember having said anything out of the way. He said he was celebrating his approaching marriage, and perhaps had over-indulged. Judge Runyon told him that a repetition of the offense would involve the payment of a fine of $25. The man promised to keep away from Manhattan.

Dr. Chambliss Will Lead.

The topic for the mid-week prayer meeting at the First Baptist church, tomorrow night, will be "Losing Heart, the Causes and the Cure." The meeting will be led by the pastor, Dr. Chambliss, and not by G. A. Chapman, as previously announced. Mr. Chapman will lead the meeting on Wednesday of next week.

DISCUSS TWP. TAXATION

TAX BENEFITS ARE VERY FEW.

Agitation Regarding Abolition of Freeholders Board and Substitution of Commission Government.

The present high rate of taxation in the district, the relative merits of boards of freeholders and commissioners, respectively, for county management and divers other matters of importance were discussed at the regular meeting of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society at Texier's mill, Watchung, last night. President Anderson was in the chair, and a large and decidedly interested attendance made the session a lively one.

In the discussion of the tax rate, while the tax committee reported was now $2.40, an increase of seventeen points, the presiding officer declared it is exorbitant in view of the fact that the people get no sewers, no water, no lights and few good roads in return for the money. It was stated that much of the blame for the high taxation rests with the county equalization board, which is unfair in its treatment of this district. The board, it was declared, is a big expense, costing the citizens $3,600 a year, while the members give only a few days' work in return for it. Later in the meeting a motion made by H. Texier to the effect that the county taxation board is a needless expense and should be abolished, was passed unanimously.

The subject as to whether it is better to have freeholders or commissioners in the county resulted in many arguments for and against, the principal speakers being President Anderson, George Hughes, M. A. Cleaves, E. E. Wheeler and H. Texier. A vote was taken on the question and it showed the members to be equally divided. The matter will again be taken up later.

The town hall and fire committee reported that the fire department was now fully organized with forty-five members, and that a combination chemical and hose wagon had been bought and paid for. The entertainment committe reported that a dance at the conclusion of every ceeting has proven too much of tax on the funds and advised that one be held only every fourth meeting with some other form of entertainment in between. The motion was carried.

E. F. Feickert tendered his resignation as secretary because of increasing duties in private business, and William Demler, Jr., was elected to succeed him, Miss Ida Demler was elected to membership. An invitation from the Temple Builders of the Wilson Memorial chapel to attend a series of meetings was accepted. A rising vote of thanks was given H. Texier for his donation of the mill as a meeting place. It was also decided that all tax assessments should be published.

At the close of the session light refreshments were served and the members enjoyed dancing until a late hour.

NETHERWOOD REFORMED CHURCH'S ACTIVITY.

The consistory of the Netherwood Reformed church met last night and decided to change its time of meeting from the second Friday to the second Monday of the month. Various activities of the church were discussed and the heads of several committees chosen. Claude Gonod was made chairman of the music committee, and J. C. Hansen chairman of the building committee. William Carson was elected the head of a committee to arrange for a supper for the men, when a Men's Association will be formed, and Samuel O. Rush was elected chairman of a general entertainment committee.

The Christian Endeavor Society also held a meeting and decided to give a play about the holidays called "The New Minister." Mrs. P. H. Wood, president of the society, together with the Misses Florence and Maud Disbrow, comprise the committee in charge of the affair. The rehearsals will be held every Thursday night.

Both Licenses Refused.

The protests of the people of North Plainfield have been heeded by Judges Case and Parker and licenses for the Manhattan and Arlington Hotels have been refused. Alfred Binz, of Mt. Bethel, was also denied a license.

Jacob F. Duttenhofer, brother of F. A. Duttenhofer, the shoe merchant, who was at the hospital under treatment for paralysis, has gone to his former home at Harrisburg, Pa. His general condition is somewhat improved.

MR. M'KINLEY DEFENDS PRESENT TARIFF LAW

McCARTHY RAPS DR. WILSON.

County Attorney Wm. R. Codington Presides at First of Series of Local Mass Meetings.

Representative Duncan W. McKinley, of California, and James W. McCarthy, assistant prosecutor of Hudson county, were the two chief speakers at the Republican mass meeting in Reform Hall, last night. The former discussed the tariff question in an intelligent manner, explaining many little details heretofore misunderstood by many, while Mr. McCarthy discussed State issues in a vigorous way, in which he attemped to explain how Woodrow Wilson got the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, adding that it is the "same old crowd" that is behind the man from Princeton, and if elected he would be beholden to Jim Smith, Jim Nugent and Bob Davis.

The meeting was called to order by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the Republican City Committee, after which he introduced Judge William R. Codington as the chairman of the meeting. Prior to the arrival of the speakers, an orchestra of three pieces discoursed popular airs while the crowd was gathering. It was shortly after 8 o'clock when Congressman McKinley and Mr. McCarthy arrived, accompanied by County Republican Chairman F. H. Smith. There were a number of Republicans on the platform acting as vice-presidents. They included Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, B. F. Coriell, the Republican nominee for mayor; J. Henry Crane, Amos Andrews, Chas. W. Runyon and others.

Judge Codington, in his opening remarks, congratulated the people of Plainfield upon its fine, well-kept streets, its comfortable homes, excellent system of education, and predicted that on November 8, the Republicans in this city would roll up a big majority for Vivian Lewis, William N. Runyon and the entire Assembly ticket. He said that some of the Assemblyman had been tried and not found wanting, and he felt sure that the whole Republican ticket would receive due consideration on the part of all fair-minded people. He then introduced Congressman McKinley.

The Representative from California confined his remarks entirely to National issues, and more particularly the tariff. He said that the Democrats in attacking the Payne tariff bill, do not give details, in fact, they never do in discussing these questions. The speaker then went on to mention the various large items which combine to make up the big budget due to the wonderful expansion of the country. Among these items, the speaker mentioned the pension bill, the army and navy bills, the appropriations for agriculture, the sundry bill, the appropriations for the Panama Canal.

Referring to the sources of income to meet these appropriations, Mr. McKinley said that the money was received through the internal revenue, the tax on corporations, which includes the Standard Oil Company, the steel and sugar corporations, but the speaker said that this is not sufficient to meet the requirements and the only other source left is through the raising of duties on goods brought into this country, except through bond issues. It is through this levy in accordance with a protective tariff system that the amount is raised.

"We believe in the extra high rate on luxuries," said Mr. McKinley. "The Democrats say that they will lower the duties. This might be so in some respects, but they would raise them on other things. According to the Payne bill, 56 per cent. of the imports are admitted free of duty."

The speaker referred to the trouble attendant upon the changes of the tariff, how it unsettles business before and after such changes are made. As an instance of this he called attention to the period of 1890-1892. The speaker said that it looks as though the prophetic words of James G. Blaine would come true, that the west would turn to free trade and the south to protection.

Mr. McKinley spoke of the unset-

Corporation Notice.

CITY OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Call for Sealed Proposals for Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000) of Street Improvement Bonds of the City of Plainfield, N. J.

Pursuant to resolutions adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., at a regular meeting thereof held October 3d, 1910, and duly approved by the Mayor, notice is hereby given that Thursday, the twentieth day of October, 1910, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., the Common Council of said City will receive and open sealed proposals for the purchase of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000) of Street Improvement Bonds called for by the said resolutions and the other resolutions and ordinance therein referred to.

The Street Improvement Bonds referred to are in the denominations of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, and will bear date as of the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and ten, and be payable as follows: July 1, 1912, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off the said bonds or any one or more of them at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof, on giving personal notice to said holder of said bonds or thirty days' notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City of the intention to make such redemption, or payment. Said bonds will bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5%) per annum, payable semi-annually. Principal and interest will be payable in gold coin of the U. S. of the present standard of weight and fineness, at the office of the City Treasurer in said City. The forms of both bonds and coupons are on file in the office of the City Clerk and there open to inspection by bidders. The bonds will be delivered to the purchaser at the office of the City Treasurer of the City of Plainfield, N. J., on Thursday, October 27, 1910, at 11 o'clock a. m.

A certified check for two per cent. (2%) of the face value of the bonds bid for, payable to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield, N. J., must accompany each bid. All such checks except the checks of the party or parties whose bids shall be accepted will be promptly returned by the City Treasurer. If all bids are rejected, all checks will be returned.

All proposals for bids must be submitted on the forms of proposals especially prepared for that purpose, copies of which may be obtained from the City Clerk.

The bonds will be engraved under the supervision of and certified as to genuineness by the Columbia Trust Company of New York City. Each proposal together with the certified check accompanying the same shall be enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed "Proposals for Bonds" and addressed "The Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J.," and delivered to the Common Council at the time and place specified in this advertisement.

No bid for less than par and accrued interest will be accepted.

The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council, together with that of waiving any informalities or defects.

At the time and place appointed, to wit, Thursday the twentieth day of October, 1910, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the bids or sealed proposals and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Common Council.

By order of the Common Council.
Dated, October 3, 1910.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

BOWLING CLUB ENJOYS CRUISE ON "HYDRAULIC"

Members of the Electric Bowling Club, of New York, together with several friends from this city, enjoyed a trip Saturday on the pleasure yacht, "Hydraulic," to Sea Bright, where the day was spent fishing for bass. Despite a stiff northeast wind, which was kicking up a heavy sea, the party enjoyed itself until the fishing grounds were reached. Twenty-five members of the party became seasick. It was impossible to get any fish owing to weather conditions, so the yacht was turned about and a trip through New York harbor proved more enjoyable

The trip included a sail about the U. S. battleships and then to Poughkeepsie and return. Three colored artists furnished entertainment about the yacht, and a bountiful luncheon and supper were served.

Roland H. Leveridge, of Oak Tree, formerly of this city, planned the day's outing. He was assisted by Thomas D. Watson. Among the Plainfielders aboard were Peter C. Sweeny, Charles H. Leveridge, John Snyder, Edward Craig and Roland H. Leveridge, R. H. Randolph and John Morrison, of Oak Tree.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Clifford A. Braider, organist of the First Presbyterian church, is arranging for a musical service to be held at the church, Sunday evening, October 30.

The Pastors' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church will give a luncheon at the church Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, to be followed by a business meeting.

Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll will give a talk on the recent missionary conference in Edinburg, at the mid-week prayer meeting in the First Presbyterian church tomorrow night.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss will have charge of the prayer meeting at the First Baptist church, tomorrow night, as he plans to be away next week instead of this. G. A. Chapman will conduct the meeting next week.

The regular sewing meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. New work will be begun on missionary boxes.

The first fall meeting of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held at the Hartridge Auditorium, tonight. There will be bowling and social features. All men of the church are invited.

Mrs. Frank P. Gilman, of Hainan, China, will speak at the meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Tea will be served at the close of the meeting.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Friday night at 8 o'clock. There will be a class for boys taught by Dr. Zelie, and a class for young women and one for girls. The teachers and subjects will be announced Friday night.

Mrs. John E. Stewart and daughter, Miss Jessie Stewart, of Springfield, Mass., are registered at Truell Court. They formerly lived on West Seventh street and at one time were well known in the social, charitable and religious circles of the city. Miss Stewart was a visitor at Hope chapel Sunday-school. Sunday, where she was formerly a teacher and worker, and she was given a cordial reception.

HERE AND THERE.

Charles M. Raybert, of East Second street, is exhibiting to his friends a pretty little silver-appearing bell of which he is justly proud, not so much because of its value but for the associations it recalls. It is one of a quantity cast from the old bell of the Reformed church of Brookdale, two miles above Bloomfield, which was partially destroyed by fire last year, and which was Mr. Raybert's boyhood church. The church was over a century old and the congregation conceived the idea of using the old bell that had rang out for so many years to secure some of the money needed for rebuilding the old church. It was melted down and the minature bells made from it were sold. They were quickly bought up and Mr. Raybert considers himself fortunate in securing one. The bell is about four inches in height and has a very pretty tone. It bears the inscription "Brookdale Reformed church 1802-1910."

To Attend Elks' Dedication.

A large delegation of the local order of Elks will attend the dedication of the new home of the Paterson Elks, which will take place on tomorrow afternoon, October 12. The delegates will travel by automobile and it is important that all those desiring to go should notify the members of the committee at once. The committee consists of George O. Stevens, Edward A. Laing and Thomas Hanna. Notices may be given by 'phone to any one of the above members.

WESTFIELD.

Funeral services over William M. Stewart were held Saturday afternoon at his late home, 117 Euclid avenue. Mr. Stewart had been connected with the New York Telephone Company for twenty years and was one of the widest known men in the service. Fellow employes of the company to the number of 400 traveled from New York to Westfield in a special train to attend the service. Mr. Stewart had been a resident of Westfield about three years, moving here from Netherwood. He is survived by a widow and one son, aged seven years.

The Board of Health has under consideration a plan for covering the brook that runs between Broad street and North avenue. The brook is a catch-all for refuse and garbage and is a constant menace to health. To build a concrete retaining wall and cover with reinforced concrete would cost about $1 per lineal foot.

Dr. R. R. Sinclair has been appointed medical inspector of the public schools in place of Dr. Wright, who declined reappointment.

FINE FOURSOME MATCH PLAYED ON CRANFORD LINKS

Edward M. Wild and Max Marston, of the Cranford Golf Club, played an 18-hole foursome against W. B. Bremmer, of the Montclair Golf Club and Joseph I'Anson, the Cranford professional, Sunday afternoon on the links of the Cranford club. Jerome D. Travers, who was to have played with Mr. Bremmer, was unable to keep his engagement. Wild and Marston were defeated in the match by 2 up and 1 to play.

The play was close throughout, the contestants being followed by a large gallery. On the fifth hole, Wild and I'Anson both secured a 4. On the sixth hole, I'Anson ran down a fine put for a three. The scores for the 18 holes were as follows: W. B. Bremmer, 83; Joseph I'Anson, 82; Edward M. Wild, 82; Marx Marston, 84. In a threesome in the morning, Edward M. Wild secured a 35 for the first nine holes and W. B. Bremmer a 38, both very low scores for the Cranford links.

GOLF.

The last regular tournament of the New York Newspaper Golf Club for this season will be held today over the links at Van Cortlandt Park. It is planned to hold a team match against the Boston Press Golf Club, which has challenged the New Yorkers, and a beefsteak dinner will be held in the clubhouse afterwards.

On this occasion the New York Newspaper Golf Club will play for the cup donated by George Cooper. The player making the lowest net score in the qualifying round will win a leg on the trophy. Any player winning two legs on it before the last tournament of 1911 will become the permanent owner. Should the trophy not be won twice before that time the individual winners will meet at match play for the cup. All net scores below 70 will count as 70.

The thirty-two players with the lowest net scores for eighteen holes will qualify for the regular monthly match tournament. There will be four eights, divided according to handicap, and a prize will be given the winner of each division. There also will be a prize for the best net score.

Jesse W. Ehrich, by defeating Frederic C. Gurney 2 up, won the September tournament at the Woodmere Country Club, Woodmere, Long Island. Harold Steiner recently made a record for this course with a score of 90. The former record was 93, held by Harry Hemans.

Golf of the real kind will be furnished at Dyker Meadow on Saturday when four well known professionals will compete in a thirty-six-hole exhibition match. Alex Smith, the national and metropolitan open champion, will team up with Will Anderson against Gil Nichols and J. J. McDermott, the homebred who pushed Smith so closely in both the national and metropolitan tournaments.

DOUBLE SALARIES BOSH.

That deceptive phrase "double salaries" is being used by the defeated candidate of the Republican primary, George W. V. Moy, who hopes to get into office by allying himself with the enemies of his own party. It is hardly necessary, however, to pay any attention to his attempts to mislead the voters for "you cannot fool all of the people all of the time," as Mr. Moy and his friends will find to their sorrow on Election day.

An attack, for instance, is made by him on Andrew J. Gavett, or to be more accurate on the ordinances which permit Mr. Gavett to draw salaries for the splendid work he is doing in two capacities. As is well known, this painstaking and efficient official receives $1,200 a year as commissioner of sewers and $1,800 a year as street commissioner, making a total of $3,000. If the same official did not perform both duties, it would be necessary to have two men, one for each position. Now where would Mr. Moy get as capable a man as Mr. Gavett to serve as commissioner of sewers for $1,200 a year? Where would he find a man, equally competent, to discharge the duties of street commissioner for $1,800 a year? To sum it up, where would he procure a man who would fill both jobs as ably as Mr. Gavett does for $3,000? Let him first investigate the real worth of the man he attempts to make the voters believe is receiving too much for his services before he makes such undeserved and injurious statements. If he does not know whose opinion would be worth while, we take the liberty of referring him to State Road Supervisor Robert A. Meeker, of this city; State Road Commissioner Gilkyson, of Trenton, and to Joseph O. Osgood and Wm. L. Saunders, both of North Plainfield. One of these today declared that the equal of Mr. Gavett could not be obtained by the city for less than $5,000 a year.

Just one more reference to this alleged "double-salary" buncombe. T. O. Doane is singled out because he receives $1,100 a year as fire chief and $500 annually as building inspector. We want to ask Mr. Moy the same questions in his case. Where would the critical candidate duplicate this experienced public servant's services as a fire chief for $1,100 a year? Where would he find a man who for $500 a year would perform his duties as building inspector so well? As in Mr. Gavett's case, neither office requires all his time and the duties are such that they can be more properly performed by one and the same man. Candidate Moy will not deny this assertion. Neither will he deny that Gavett and Doane are both thoroughgoing and competent officials.

Why, then, all this hue and cry on his part? There is but one answer. Mr. Moy is being backed by and listening to the counsel of a handful of disgruntled and disappointed office-seeking kickers. They have ulterior purposes in view and as a means to an end they are shamefully using an excellent citizen, of undoubted integrity and ability. Unwittingly he is a "tool," but he won't believe that now. No, not until after Election day when he finds that he has been the victim of his so-called friends and has gone down in defeat.

THE REPUBLICAN RECORD.

In a speech delivered on Saturday night, Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, reminded his aduience of what the Republican party has done in this State for the people's welfare. The telling points made by him furnish food for thought for those within the party who would restore the notorious Democratic regime by voting for the inexperienced Dr. Woodrow Wilson and the minority party's candidates for the Legislature. For their benefit he called attention to these facts:

Republicans ended corrupt rule.

Fifteen years good service has been given by the party.

Prosperity and Republican rule have come together.

Corporations have yielded great State revenues.

Great public improvements have been made.

No direct State tax has been imposed upon the people.

No scandals have occurred, and the high character of courts has been maintained.

New Jersey has led in the conservation of natural resources.

at the next meeting and invited him to attend. He did not attend. At that meeting the facts just recited were reported, and after some discussion it was unanimously resolved that this club endorses the candidacy of Mr. Moy and urges him to accept the nomination offered him by the Democrats at the primaries, and pledges him its support.'

"The club in doing this felt that it was helping the cause of good government in Plainfield; that in Mr. Moy it had an aggressive, independent and conscientious candidate whose knowledge of the weaknesses of his own party organization in the city and the needs of the city would make him of great service to the city as mayor."

ettes tied with the purple, white and green ribbons; actresses with bunches of red roses tied to the end of long staves; a contingent of hospital nurses in their neat uniforms; musicians headed by Lady Emily Lutgens; women's Suffrage clubs from every city in England, Scotland and Ireland, women from enfranchised Norway, New Zealand and Australia; a contingent of Americans, whose stars and stripes were cheered by the crowds as they passed; factory girls, coster girls and even a small contingent of the Cambridge University League of men sympathizers who came in for no small amount of chaffing in their progress through the streets. The rear of the procession was brought up by friends and sympathizers and carriages containing those unable to walk.

"Seven hundred banners, some of them very beautiful and bearing mottoes pithy and amusing such as 'Where there's a will there's a way,' fluttered gaily overhead and forty bands of music enlivened the marching.

"Promptly at 6:30 we started ten thousand strong bearing in our arms sheaves of purple and white irises and green leaves. The order was perfect, section marshals and division captains giving us our orders as, four deep, the long line of women marched through the traffic cleared streets between dense crowds of curious and sympathetic spectators kept in place by cordons of police.

"It was 9 o'clock when the end of the procession reached the Albert Hall which was packed from floor to ceiling with an enthusiastic crowd of some ten thousand people. Mrs. Pankhurst, Mrs. Peltwick Lawrence, Miss Christabel Pankhurst and Lord Lytton spoke in support of the Conciliation Bill then lying before the House of Commons for a second reading. The whole meeting went wild with enthusiasm when a movement was put calling on the House of Commons to pass into law the bill for the enfranchisement of women.

"Subscriptions to the campaign fund were called for and in less than twenty minutes over twenty-five thousand dollars were added to the fund. High praise as to the excellence and efficiency of the organization of this procession was given by various professional organizers and many people considered it one of the prettiest and most attractive processions ever seen in the London streets.

"This demonstration did much to open the public eyes to the deep earnestness and widespread nature of the movement and to the high intellectual level of the women who want the vote.

"English women are still waiting for the final desiny of the bill to be made known, but in the meantime they are conducting an energetic campaign of meetings and also of propaganda work in selling literature and interviewing members of Parliament.

"It is quite a common sight to see fashionable women standing at the corner of some busy London thoroughfare selling "Votes for Women" the organ of the movement. Surely such energy and devotion deserve to be crowned with success and that right soon."

The next meeting of the Equal Suffrage League will be held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium on Tuesday evening, October 18 at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by former Mayor William L. Saunders who will present a comprehensive argument for woman suffrage. Admission will be free to all lectures given under the auspices of the league.

Miss Sarah F. Smith, of East Sixth street, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital this morning for treatment.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The funeral of Edward S. Johnston, who was killed on the Central tracks at Long Branch while in the performance of his duties as brakeman, was held this afternoon at the home of his mother, Mrs. Hannah Johnston, of Front street. The service was largely attended and was conducted by Rev. Wm. A. Knox, pastor of the Methodist church. The floral tributes were numerous and included a set piece from the Railway Brotherhood, members of which acted as pall bearers. Burial was made in the South Plainfield cemetery. The Johnston family seems to have been marked for fatalities as Edward Johnston's death is the fourth sudden one that has occurred within it.

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wilson S. Frederick. A number of matters of importance were brought up for discussion and action.

Work has commenced on the new house to be erected on Main street for Grove Apgar, a former resident of High Bridge. It will be fitted with all modern improvements and the exterior is to be finished off in a most attractive manner.

Elks Meet Tonight.

Plainfield lodge of Elks will hold its regular meeting tonight because of the scheduled trip to Paterson tomorrow afternoon. The session will be interesting, as a trustee is to be elected to succeed Judge William N. Runyon, and a number of candidates are to be initiated. The trip to Paterson will be made by auto, leaving from in front of the club rooms at noon. The affair at Paterson comprises a parade, dedication of the new club house and grand ball in the evening.

Ralph L. Vail, of West Eighth street, has returned after spending three months in British Columbia.

A WORTHY APPEAL.

Boy Loses $38 Belonging to Poor, Invalid Father.

A citizen who is interested has brought to the noticeof this newspaper the loss sustained by a young boy, a farmer's son, who after disposing of his vegetables in the market last Monday was unfortunate enough to lose the roll of money, about $38, which he had received for the produce. According to this citizen, the boy's father is an invalid and the farm has not done well this year and the loss of this amount of money is a great shock to the family. The farm which is a rented one, has not produced enough this season to pay the expenses of running it. The loss of the money therefore is a great hardship.

The citizen in his letter subscribes $5 toward the amount and would like to see other readers of The Daily Press contribute toward a fund to make up the entire loss. The name of the unfortunate man may be obtained at this office.

W. C. Burns Leaves Town.

W. C. Burns, the colored barber, who has frequently been a familiar figure in the local police court, has left town. Charles P. Sebring says he would like him to settle a $111 rent bill. Mr. Burns occupied Mr. Sebring's property on North avenue, using the first floor for a barber shop and the second floor as living quarters. Mr. Sebring has seized the furniture.

D. G. Garabrant Will Speak.

D. G. Garabrant, of Bloomfield, will speak at the First Baptist church on Sunday, in reference to the work of the State Baptist convention in its efforts to help weak churches, build new ones and spread the gospel in general. The convention also plans to do evangelistic work and labor among the foreigners who settle in this State.

Date for Murder Trial.

Judge James J. Bergen today set October 24 as the date for trial of Francisco Antonnozzi, charged with the murder of Batista Lagbi in this city on September 25. William G. De Meza was assigned as counsel for the defense.

—Prof. J. A. Monaghan, of New York, gave an interesting lecture at Mt. St. Mary's College, Tuesday afternoon last, on his travels abroad and his impressions of the Passion Play.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Woodbury Board of Education is fitting up the manual training room in the High School with modern appliances at considerable expense.

Struck by a trolley car at Broadway and Division street, Camden, John Keeler, fifty-six years old, of Pensauken, sustained a lacerated scalp and was attended at Cooper Hospital Sunday.

In Bayonne a postal card, mailed in August, 1908, in Genoa by Court Clerk Charles Garibotto, of Newark, has just been delivered to Milletello Giuseppe, of 543 Avenue C, having been more than two years on the way.

On his way home Sunday Samuel Fineman, thirty-eight years old, of Tenth and Sycamore streets, Camden, was attacked by a dog and bitten on the right arm. He was cared for at Cooper Hospital and the police were asked to shoot the animal.

Charles Meyer, 1114 North Hope street, and John McLaughlin, 543 Beech street, Philadelphia, were run down by an automobile at Front and Market streets, Camden, Sunday night and badly bruised about the body, but not seriously hurt. The automobile belonged to Hampton Hoge, of New York, who took both men to the Cooper Hospital. The affair was unquestionably an accident, and he was not held in custody.

Captain Arthur Shaw, owner and captain of the yacht Imperia, which grounded on the bar while entering the inlet at Atlantic City, Friday, was arrested Sunday night, charged with having stolen a boat which he traded for the Imperia. The complaint was made by William K. Roff, of New York, and Shaw, who was unable to obtain bail, was held to await a hearing. The charges grew out of claims that Shaw had juggled a yacht trade during which he changed a valuable engine from a former boat to the Imperia. Detective Gifford has arrived to take Shaw back to New York, and the yacht has been attached.

PERSONAL.

John Quick of Raritan, clerk of the Somerset district court, was the guest yesterday of friends in the borough.

Miss Sara A. Sutphen, of Long Branch, is spending two weeks with her sister, Mrs. P. I. Minton, of East Fifth street.

Miss Charlotte Davie, of Manning avenue, has returned home after a visit with her sister, Mrs. J. F. Connacher, of Norwalk, Conn.

Joseph Neal, of East Second street, left last week for New Orleans, where he will superintend the erection of a large press for the Scott Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Moran and family, who have spent the summer at East Hampton, L. I., have returned to their home at Mercer and Rockview avenues.

Miss Hazel Hatfield, contralto soloist at the First Baptist church, was unable to sing at the evening service, Sunday, on account of a slight illness.

Mrs. Amelia Smith, of West Second street, who has been ill with typhoid fever, was removed to Muhlenberg hospital yesterday. Her condition is serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Weidman, of Windsor, N. Y., and Miss Agnes Brown, of Susquehanna, Pa., are visiting their cousins the Misses Sarah and Hannah Boyd, of South avenue.

R. H. McCutchen, of Plainfield avenue, has removed to Boston, where he will reside in the future. The residence property will be occupied temporarily by his daughter, Mrs. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. George K. Dobson have returned from their wedding trip and are domiciled at their home on Cameron avenue. The trip carried the couple through Connecticut and some of the southern States.

Lawrence Tweedy, of this city, will be one of the ushers at the wedding of Miss Mildred Hopkins and Joseph Rutter, of Brooklyn, which will take place at St. George's church, Stuyvesant Square, New York, Saturday, October 23.

Dr. A. B. Crane, of Washington, D. C., and S. Clinton Crane, of New York, were guests yesterday at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. B. Crane, of East Second street. Mrs. Crane has been ill for the past week but was somewhat better today.

Clifford A. Braider, who has been detained at his home by illness for several weeks, is able to be out again and he resumed his position as organist at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday. Mrs. Braider, who has been ill nine weeks, is also improving.

Will Give a Dinner.

The Sunday school teachers and officers, together with the adult classes of the First Presbyterian church, will give a dinner in the chapel of the church, Friday night. Mrs. LeRoy H. Gates is chairman of the general committee.

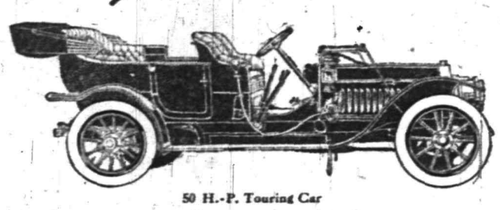
SILENCE—COMFORT



50 H.-P. Touring Car

A Six-Cylinder Peerless car has certain advantages, not only for touring, but also for town and suburban use, because of its combination of power and flexibility. It is frequently desirable, and sometimes necessary, to have the power; and the flexibility which the car possesses is a constant comfort.

We are now prepared to demonstrate this type of car, and to accept a limited number of orders for October delivery.

You are invited to visit our salesroom.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Although there are three loving young couples in "Father and the Boys," the George Ade comedy in which Wm. H. Crane will appear at The Plainfield theatre, tomorrow night, yet the play does not contain one single love speech. Mr. Crane explains this unusual construction by saying: "You see, Mr. Ade hates to write love scenes, and he told me when 'Father and the Boys' was in the course of construction that he propsed to present three loving couples on the stage and still not have a romantic line spoken. He has succeeded, and the three couples are well understood by the audience, though not one declaration of affection is spoken in the whole comedy. Once one of the lovers is about to say the tender thing. His arm is about to encircle a waist, and his words are about to tell of love. Just then the 'old man'—that's me—breaks in on the scene and turns the love feast into comedy."

Wm. H. Crane in "Father and the Boys," at Plainfield Theatre Tomorrow Night.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The senior class of the P. H. S. failed of their purpose of having a picnic at the Notch, Scotch Plains, on last Friday owing to rain, but they made up for the lost pleasure with a dance and games in the school which was continued up till about 8 o'clock that night.

The minstrel troupe consisting of about twenty-five members, is rehearsing regularly several times a week in the afternoon. They expect to give a good performance.

The High School girls will organize class basketball teams this season thus giving more girls a chance to get in the game.

The Young Men's Military Association has extended an invitation to the fellows of the P. H. S. to join them in their drills on Friday nights in the basement of the First Baptist church. Several members of the former High School cadets have joined the military association.

The Domestic Art classes, which are in charge of Miss Parker, will begin work next week and the girls will be required to furnish their own material until the regular supplies arrive.

PATCHING.

C. E. Union Meeting Postponed.

The mass meeting of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, which was to have been held at Elizabeth Thursday night, has been postponed until further notice. This meeting was to have been held under the auspices of the County Christion Citizenship committee and being unable to secure the desired speaker, decided to postpone the meeting.

Mr. Santis' New Shop.

The new barber shop which is to be opened at 232 West Second street will be conducted by Joseph Santis, not Charles Paglucci, as has been stated. Mr. Santis will open up for business as soon as he obtains his permit from the Board of Health, which will be some day this week.

A Similarity.

"Why do you always read the first few chapters of a novel by that author and then skip to the last one?"

"Because," replied Miss Cayenne, "the author's style resembles his physical outlines; superabundant toward the middle."

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

Not fifteen minutes had passed when Miss Alexander, alias Solomon, reappeared, this time in all her glory, panting with haste and the snugness of her stays perhaps she had drawn them in extra tight; yet smiling in conscious beauty.

"My, but you are got up to kill this mornin'!" exclaimed Bill Willing, and the fair Isidora darted a vexed glance at him, for she had wanted the "swell" to believe that this gorgeousness was her daily toilet.

"Now the show's ready to begin," she announced with a smile and a glance—all, all for Loveland. And she was so lusciously handsome in her richly developed young beauty that Val, despite the revolt of his fastidiousness, admired her reluctantly.

Inclined to be reserved at first, it soon occurred to Loveland that, since any port in a storm was better than no port, he had better enlist Miss Alexander's aid. In response to her bids for confidences he said that he had landed in America yesterday and had gone to the Waldorf-Astoria, to find on his arrival that his clothes had been stolen out of his luggage by an English servant. He added that his London bankers had been dilatory about instructing their New York correspondents; that when the hotel people, for some extraordinary reason known only to themselves, demanded immediate payment he had been practically penniless and had walked out in a rage, leaving everything, even his overcoat. He kept his real name and title a secret.

She, with quick feminine instinct, recognized the vast social distance between "Mr. Gordon" and Bill Willing more poignantly than did Bill himself, who had now almost forgotten it in friendly association. But even so, to have sitting at one of her father's marble topped tables, hungrily eating a breakfast on her invitation, a young man who could engage a cabin on the Mauretania and a suit at the Waldorf-Astoria, seemed like a brilliant dream. She had never before seen anything quite so gallant and aristocratic looking as Bill Willing's friend and longed to attach him to herself in some way.

She offered to send a district messenger to the Waldorf-Astoria for the telegram Mr. Gordon was expecting and any letters which might have arrived. "He can bring you the lot," she arranged, "and then you can send him to your bank unless they make you show up to be identified. Anyhow, you can wait here for news. You can go on sitting where you are, or you can come and stay by me at the desk if the tables fill up with folks for breakfast."

Loveland's face slowly reddened and his eyes grew troubled.

"You needn't mind about the money for the messenger," she said quickly. "You can pay me back afterward, if you're so awful proud."

"Why, of course I'd pay you back," Val assured her. "But—er—the fact is"—he hesitated, trying to find a way out of the tangled web "Mr. Gordon" had woven—"the fact is, I"—she wondered if he could bear to go to the hotel and thus escape the difficulty about the name, but pictured himself arriving in evening dress by broad daylight and felt his gorge rise at the degradation—"the fact is anything coming for me at the Waldorf will have on it the name of Loveland. 'The Marquis of Loveland' will be the address on my letters."

"My goodness, you did fly high!" exclaimed Isidora, dimpling. "I guess it's no wonder they gave you a whole suit" (she pronounced it "soot") "of rooms. But that's all right. You put on a card what you want the messenger boy should do, and you needn't be afraid to trust him. These little fellers are safe as banks."

Isidora saw that Bill had the food he liked for breakfast—a steaming pile of buckwheat cakes trimmed round the edges with crisp brown lace and oozing syrup at every pore. Also she sent him a copy of the New York Light without having even glanced at the front page, although a "gentleman friend" who had paid her a great deal of attention in summer was at the beginning of a trial for a really exciting murder.

When the messenger came back Mr. Gordon's face grew ever more blank until it hardened into an expression of hopelessness. She was sure that the boy had brought neither letter nor telegram and that something had gone very wrong indeed with her mysterious guest's calculations.

"Here, take this and pay the messenger," she whispered. "I guess your friend's had a disappointment."

Bill obeyed, but did not at once come back. When the youth had been paid and had shot away up the street as if through a pneumatic tube Bill lingered in consultation with the pale young man at the table.

"Something's up," Isidora said to herself in an agony of curiosity. But what the "something" was she could not find out till breakfast was over and the room cleared a little.

"The cable I expected hasn't arrived," explained Mr. Gordon. "It's all right, of course, when I come to think of it, and I'm not really worried, for I haven't paid enough attention to the difference of time between London and New York. I must send again later in the day, when there will be letters, too, perhaps, and people's visiting cards. Meanwhile"—

"Meanwhile stay where you are and make yourself at home," cut in Isidora hospitably. Nevertheless she was anxious when the thought of her father and the inevitable moment of his coming downstairs, heavy footed with illness and "cross as a bear with a sore head." Pa would want to have the beautiful young man in evening clothes satisfactorily explained, and it was borne in upon the girl that he would be rather difficult to explain. Nonpaying people and things were always difficult to explain to Alexander, especially when he was under the weather. But—there was one way out of the scrape, and Isidora snatched at it suddenly with a leap of the heart. All might be well should she prevail upon Mr. Gordon to accept another loan from her—if he liked to call it a loan!

She had been saving up her allowance to buy a new ball dress and had already set her heart on the thing she would have. But she would deplete the sum by a third for Mr. Gordon's sake if he would take the money.

"Thank you, but Mr. Willing has given me a piece of good advice," said Val. "If it hadn't been for him I shouldn't have thought of it perhaps. He suggests my pawning a few things I have on me."

Now was Isidora's time to speak, and she offered her alternative suggestion, but with some stammering and confusion. As soon as he gathered the drift of her faltering words he broke in, thanking her sincerely, saying that she was most awfully kind, but he couldn't trespass any further upon her goodness. According to Willing, there was a pawnshop just round the corner. They two would go there immediately, and then, with money to pay his debt to her, as well as tide over unforeseen delays, he would be glad to come back for a time.

Luckily for Loveland's fortitude, however, the ordeal—or the out of doors part of it—was brief. He was whisked round the corner and hurried mercifully into a dingy den which Bill Willing seemed to regard as a kind of "home from home," or, at the least, a cold storage warehouse.

HE WAS "NO SANTA CLAUS."

The watch was of gun metal; the sleeve links, the simplest he had owned, were destitute of precious stones, and the pawnbroker, having examined the offered objects with an air of disparagement, mentioned the sum of $9. When urged to make a higher bid he remarked that he was "no Santa Claus" and at last showed himself so indifferent that Loveland was glad to exchange his despised belongings for $1 less than the sum at first refused.

"I expect the old Curmudge will be on for his scene by the time we get back," said Bill as they returned to Alexander the Great's after an absence of nearly an hour, during which time Loveland had provided his shirt front with cheap celluloid studs.

But Curmudge, alias Mr. Solomon, alias Alexander, was still absent. His understudy, Izzie of the almond eyes, continued to reign alone over a kingdom of marble topped tables and empty red chairs awaiting their next occupants, but sixty minutes had changed her oddly. She looked up with a nervous start when Loveland came in with Bill and hid in her lap the newspaper which had been lying before her on the desk.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE MORNING PAPER.

"I SHALL be able to pay you for my breakfast and the messenger now," said Loveland. "And if you've a private room I'd like to engage it till afternoon, when I can send to the hotel again and find the cable telling me how and where to get the money on my letter of credit. It's rather awkward being here in these clothes and"—

"We haven't got a private room," replied the girl, "except our own parlor. I wish we had, because—because I guess you're just about right. You oughtn't to be here today sitting around dressed that way. You might be noticed and—and"— She hesitated, then began to speak again quickly in a low voice. "See here, Mr.—Mr. Gordon, I don't know but I'd better tell you something. Bend down. I don't want the waiters to hear. Dutchy don't catch on to English much, but folks always understand when you don't want 'em to. Of course it's all right about Bill, as he's your friend. I suppose he knows?"

"Knows what?" inquired Val.

"Oh!" The blood sprang to Val's face, his scar showing very white. No need, it seemed, for further questions. He thought he knew what Miss Isidora Alexander had been reading in the paper and cursed himself for having uttered the name of Loveland. If he had not told her that inquiries must be made at the Waldorf for Lord Loveland's cablegram and letters she would not associate Mr. Gordon, Bill Willing's friend, with the hero of the New York Light's story.

The cad Milton had evidently made up some tale on recovering his disgusting senses, a tale not too damaging to himself, and had named his assailant.

"Give me the paper, please," Val demanded.

"Not now," said the girl. "Dutchy's looking, and that silly boy Blinkey has just come in. Better not let 'em guess we're alluding to anything in the paper."

"Is it about my knocking a man down?" asked Loveland.

"Yes, a swell well known in s'ciety. I've seen his name often in Town Chat. And it's about you at the hotel too"—

Suddenly it seemed to Val that he would not have the heart to read that article about himself in the newspaper.

That scene of his humiliation in the Waldorf restaurant and afterward in the hall! How could he bear to see it all set out in vulgar print, accompanied perhaps by an "interview" with the hotel employee who had turned him into the street? No, he could not look at the paper, could not see himself held up to public ridicule, probably by the pen of the man he had ordered from his door with Cadwallader Hunter yesterday in the morning.

He broke in upon the girl's revelations. "Never mind that part now," he said. "That's nothing. Has the man Milton set the police on me?"

"Nope; I guess not. There's a kind of interview with him in the paper, and he says he deserved what he got for having anything to do with a man of your sort. He says after he'd told you exactly what he thought of you you hit him from behind, which I don't believe, because you ain't that kind, I'll bet"—

"Thank you," said Loveland, looking so handsome in the pallor of his anger that the Jewish girl could not take her eyes from his face.

"No, I'm not that kind of man." Val echoed her words. "Evidently the cowardly beast must have picked himself up before he was seen; otherwise, as he was lying on his fat back, his story about having been hit from behind would hardly have held water. Will the police do anything on their own responsibility, do you think?"

"Not unless somebody sends them looking for you, I hope." Isidora reassured him, flattered that she should be taken into consultation. "This Milton says in the interview he don't want to be mussed up in a scandal or called on as a witness against you in a police court."

"It's his own scandal!" broke out Loveland. "He knows I could defend myself only too well. And, being a cad himself, he doesn't know that I wouldn't bring in certain names."

"I shall have to send again for the cablegram, no matter what happens," said Val. "I must get money."

"Sure you can get it?" Isidora asked in a confidential yet somewhat doubtful tone.

"Of course I'm sure. I have my letter of credit—the one thing I did manage to keep."

"Yes, but"—

Edward O. Clark, of 981 West Fourth street, who has been quite ill with gastritis, is reported as being improved.

ENGLISH DRESS GOODS—

Some of the most dependable qualities of dress goods come to us from English mills of which these four are good examples—

Black English Mohair, 44 inches wide, bright and silky; pure dye; our regular $1.10 grade, to be sold on Wednesday and Thursday, English Days, at only 88c.

Black Mohair and Wool Shantung; 42 ins. wide; very silky; one of this season's most popular fabrics; actual value $1.50; to be sold at.....$1.25

Priestley's Black Cravenette, guaranteed rainproof cloth—a perfect black; very fine quality; 54 inches wide; regularly $2.25 a yd.; priced for Wednesday and Thursday, $1.75.

Priestley's All Wool Taffetas, 40 inches wide; fine weave; bright and silky; the regular $1 quality for only 85c.

Unusual Waist Sale
Charming Waists, worth $6 to $7, $3.49

A couple of hundred of these waists will be ready for you tomorrow morning—a most remarkable collection, truly—all strictly new, fresh from the maker who is one of the best makers we trade with.

They are waists that will delight you—made of fine chiffon taffetas, messalines and chiffons in rich novelty and Roman stripes, charming Persian effects, brilliant plaids, shadow brocades and some plain materials; besides many colors, there is a goodly sprinkling of elegant blacks; the variety of styles almost equal to the number of the waists in the lot; some have handsome lace or braided yokes; hand embroidered, braid or button trimmed; long, short or kimono sleeves; high, square or round neck; some have single, others a double frill; some have neither; some have open front, others open backs; the waists are in the most wanted sizes, not the extremes; we would count them excellent value selling at $6 and $7; but we are going to price these for Wednesday's selling at.....$3.49

S. P. C. A. SPECIAL AGENT TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

A well attended meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A., with Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson, of the executive board, in the chair. The report of the special agent, Mrs. Stephen C. Van Hoesen, was read and approved. The report showed that the society is growing not only in usefulness, but in numbers, and is now practically self supporting. Mrs. Van Hoesen has received her credentials from the American Humane Society and is now an accredited member and delegate to the conventions of that association.

Comparing the receipts of the local society for the past three years the figures show that in 1907 the receipts from fines were $5.50; in 198, $20; and in 1909, $110.90. Last year the receipts for fines more than paid the expenses of the society. One new member was added to the roll yesterday.

Mrs. Van Hoesen will leave for Washington tomorrow to attend the world convention of humane societies at which President William H. Taft will preside on Thursday evening. There will be 40 delegates present from all parts of the world including China and Japan.

—Among the specialties at Neuman Bros. is the famous Formoso Oolong tea at 50c and 60 cents a pound. This tea has a delicious flavor, as those who have been using it for years can attest.

JOHNNY CAMPBELL TO MEET WILLIAM NAACK

Local bowling fans will have a chance to enthuse over their favorite indoor sport, Thursday night, when Johnny Campbell, the local champion, will meet William Noach, of Newark, in a match series.

Noach is well known to the followers of the ten pin game in this vicinity, having rolled in two endurance contests here, and as he is rolling big scores on his home alleys in Newark the match should prove to be interesting.

After talking the matter of a bowling tourney over with a number of local bowlers, Johnny Campbell has decided to reorganize the fraternal five-man bowling championship, which has been so successfully conducted here for the past two seasons. A meeting of representatives of the various lodges will be held at Campbell's alleys on Friday night at which officers will be elected.

The teams expected to enter are Miantonomo Tribe, I. O. R., whose representation won the championship last year; Raritan and Somerville lodges of Elks; Knights of Columbus, Loyal Order of Moose, Wodmen of Westfield and Public Service team.

Bound Brook may possibly be represented by a team and there is also a possibility of the Saengerbund coming in.

TEAM MATCH AT P. C. C. FOR COLUMBUS DAY.

There will be a team match at the Plainfie ldCountry Club, tomorrow, Columbus Day. The teams will consist of players chosen by two captains, who will be appointed, player number one on one side to play against player number one on the other side and so on. All members desiring to enter this competition may notify John Hilton, superintendent of the club, on or before this evening or else be on hand at the club before 9:30 tomorrow morning, at which time teams will be chosen.

This competition should attract a great deal of interest and all members expecting to remain at home that day should take advantage of this opportunity to enter this event. There will be an entrance fee to be announced tomorrow morning.

G. O. P. Dollar Dinner.

More than 100 tickets have been sold in this city for the dollar dinner to be given by the Down Town Republican Club, of Elizabeth, together with the Union County Republican Committee tomorrow night, in Elizabeth. Judge William N. Runyon and Vivian M. Lewis, Republican candidate for Governor will be among the principal speakers. The dinner will be held in Turn Hall.

Euchre Party Postponed.

The euchre party which was announced for tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Edward Conshay, Jr., 24 Summit avenue, for the building fund of St. Joseph's church, has been postponed to Friday night, October 14.

REPUBLICAN MASS MEETING

tled conditions in the west. He explained how the Democratic leaders are constantly ringing the changes, and said there is a great sentiment being expressed for the lowest tariff possible.

"We must have protection to guard our industries," said the speaker. The late Tom Reed said that the number of men employed measures a country's prosperity."

Mr. McKinley spoke of a trip he took abroad, and of the labor conditions as he found them there, explaining the low rate of wages paid as compared with those in this country. In his opinion it is the great hordes of people from Asia that this country must fear, and American labor must be guareded.

James W. McCarthy, the next speaker, accepted the opportunity to say a few words in behalf of the candidacy of William N. Runyon, the congressional nominee, adding that if elected he will represent his district honestly and fairly. He said that the voters of this district cannot do anything else but send Mr. Runyon to Washington.

"Progressive principles can only prevail through the Republican party," said Mr. McCarthy, "and not through the efforts of the Democrats. Where does the Democratic candidate for Governor stand this year? He says that he has been interested in the affairs of State. Has he been heard as going on record in favor of any progressive idea or any important measure. No; he deals in glittering generalities, nothing specific. You cannot get him to say where he stands.

"What impression did he leave here a few weeks ago regarding ratemaking power? There is no question as to his ability and intelligence, but he does not come out squarely on any important thing. How did Dr. Wilson get the nomination?"

The speaker then told the story of a meeting held in the Equitable Life Insuranc Company building six months ago, at which Dr. Wilson, Jams Smith, James Nugent, Robert Davis and Col. Harvey were present, and said that it was then decided that Dr. Wilson should be the nominee of the Democratic party for Governor. Mr. McCarthy then referred to the fact that Col. Harvey was the secretary of the late W. C. Whitney, and that it was J. P. Morgan who rescued Harper's Weekly and put Col. Harvey in control, and intimated that it is Morgan and Wall street that want Wilson elected Governor so that he may represent their interests.

"Why," said Mr. McCarthy, "Dr. Wilson admitted that he had not voted in three years and yet he says that he has been interested in State affairs. Two years ago he says he did not vote for Bryan because he considered him a menace to the country.

"Would James Smith allow Dr. Wilson to express his views on ratemaking power or other important issues of the campaign? Why, James Smith was afraid to stand for a direct nomination for United States Senator, but instead put up a stalking horse If Wilson is elected Governor, James Smith, James Nugent and Bob Davis will be his advisers. Isn't it the same old crowd that is behind Dr. Wilson? The old race track crowd that rode rough-shod over the people a few years ago, when Tom Flynn sat in the speaker's chair and refused to give audience to the women and clergy of the State who were present to protest against race track evils.

"The Republicans have made errors, but the record of the party is snow white as compared to that of the Democratic party when it was in power. A few months ago Dr. Wilson at the Millionaires' Club in Philadelphia, said that the labor interests were a menace to the country. A few weeks ago he said they were a boom to the country. That is the trouble with this candidate. He says one thing in one place and something else in another.

"The Republican party is the only progressive party and the only party conducting a progressive fight. The Democratic party has no progressive ideas; it is as dead as Caesar. The party is tagging on behind. In Wilson it claims to have a Moses to lead it out of the wilderness, but instead he will lead them further into the wilderness." Frequently throughout Mr. McCarthy's speech the audience applauded his remarks.

JUDGE W. E. SMITH HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Judge W. E. Smith, of South Plainfield, is nursing some sore ribs and other bruises as a result of tumbling from the hay loft in his barn yesterday. He was at work in the loft when he stepped into the open hatchway and crashed to the floor below.

Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, who was hastily summoned, found that no bones were broken, but the judge's body was badly bruised, and he is suffering greatly from shock. It is considered a miracle that he was not killed outright.

CAUSES OF OBSTINACY

Defined by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews' and Remedies Suggested.

PATIENCE AND LOVE VITAL.

Vigilance in Controlling Environment, Proper Discipline and Painful Experiences Needed.

Another large audience of mothers listened yesterday afternoon to the fourth lecture of the course of lectures to mothers of boys now being given in Y. M. C. A. hall by Rev. F. K. Mathiews. Mr. Mathiews' topic was "Obstinacy and Its Relation to Self-Reliance." As an evidence of the intense interest manifested in the subject by those present, a large number of mothers remained for an open discussion lasting for over an hour.

Mr. Mathiews began by defining the different kinds of obstinacy shown by boys. There are five well defined types, as follows: Atavistic or hereditary, the pervert or habitually obstinate boy, the temperamentally obstinate boy, the stubborn boy and the kind of obstinacy that goes with the first assertion by the boy of his own will.

He then considered the causes of these varying types of obstinacy. The cause of the first type is heredity, of the second a bad environment, of the third a nervous temperament, of the fourth very frequently asking too much of the child; of the last, bad methods of discipline. Speaking of the causes of the stubborn type, Mr. Mathiews said that stubbornness is often due to the physical, mental and moral deficiencies of the growing boy. It is easy to ask too much of him, to push him too far. Duties must not be made too big for him. Of the child whose obstinacy proceeds from delight in the assertion of its own will, he said that mothers must remember in dealing with such a child that the child's will must assert itself if he is to become a resolute man. It should therefore be sought to direct the will and not to break it.

What will cure boys of obstinacy? The sovereign remedy is much love on the part of the parent until there enters into the mother's love the quality of divine love itself. Another remedy is great patience. Impatience will only provoke obstinacy. Again, more knowledge is needed to give depth to love and strength to patience. It is importance to have a technical knowledge of the child. Such close knowledge is of advantage, for instance, in dealing with the problem of selfishness—mothers should know as they face this particular problem that the desirable quality of acquisitiveness in the man, on which rests our material civilization, has its roots in the selfishness of the child.

Another effective cure for obstinacy consists in making commands attractive, goodness charming. Illustrating the application of this principle, Mr. Mathiews said that the boy who might not respond quickly to the command "Go out and rake up the leaves," would be likely to carry out quickly the command, "Go out and burn up the leaves." The simple substitution of one word for another will often bring obedience. So, in teaching such a virtue as generosity, make the command so attractive that the boy will have joy in his generosity. Instead of saying to him that he must give, find a way of appealing to his interests and through them to his generosity.

Vigilance in controlling environment is another cure. Instead of spending much time in thinking of a partcular fault, mothers should provide an environment that will overcome it. This method should be substituted for immediate interference. Finally, mothers must understand the psychology of obedience. An illustration from Dr. Brumbagh's book, "The Making of a Teacher," makes plain the elements in the process of obedience. A school boy hears a missionary from Cuba in an appeal for help in carrying on his work among the needy people of that island. The boy reacts to the appeal in this way: "I never knew of this great need before; now that I know it, I feel that I ought to do something to relieve it; I will give so much to this work." In the process of obedience knowledge, conscience and will operate in just that way. But not always does knowledge so quickly arouse conscience and conscience so quickly prompt the will to action. Time is required even in adults to pass from knowledge through conscience to will and action. A desire for immediate obedience may often develop obstinacy.

Finally, mothers must be willing to let the boy learn through the dis-

Dreamy Dances, Legerdemain, Sing-

Dreamy Dances, Legerdemain Singing and Other Amusements Attract Large and Liberal Crowd.

Gay Parisian life was faithfully depicted last night at the Cafe Chantant given by the City Union of the King's Daughters at the Park club. The auditorium of the club house was artistically and effectively decorated. More than sixty tables besides the fourteen boxes were continually filled and the ubiquitous girl was in evidence. She sold flowers, candy, cigars and other things and was liberally patronized.

Besides the delicious things to eat there was a fine program to entertain the large company. Professor Krieger, of New York, mystified and amused with clever tricks: Miss Florence Wilday gave a Killarney dance gracefully, and Mr. Jacobi sang splendidly, accompanied by Mrs. Jacobi with violin and Miss Ida May Randolph at the piano. A snow dance executed by a sextet evoked round after round of hearty applause. The costumes and setting of the dance were pleasing to the eye and the illusion was made nearly perfect by showers of white confetti. These were the dancers: Misses Helen Ray Hooley, Nancy Vandeventer and Marian Hall, and Herbert Rogers, William Flanders, and Jack Vandeventer.

The surprise of the evening was the Chef Dance beautifully executed by Messrs. Alston M. Abbot, John P. Myers, Herbert Rogers, William Flanders and Harry McGee. John P. Myers was the soloist in this dance and he captured the audience with his singing and effective foot work. The sudden appearance of Miss Elizabeth McGee and Mrs. Alston M. Abbot from beneath the foliage in front of the stage added the needed touch to complete a graceful finish to the dance.

Dancing on the floor began shortly before midnight, to which many remained. Boxes were occupied by Edwin S. Hooley, Walter McGee, Henry McGee, Alexander Milne, George T. Rogers and George E. Hall.

The net result of the affair was about $500, which will be devoted to the Baby Camp, Day Nursery and City nurse. One prominent Boroughite contributed $100.

Mrs. DeWitt Hubbell, general chairman of the reception committee, was assisted by Henry Crofut White, DeWitt C. Hubbell and Everett Murray. Other committees were: Candy, Miss Elsie Suffern, chairman; Mrs. Edmund Rushmore, Mrs. George Worth, Miss Marguerite Long and Miss May Shreve. Those who assisted Mrs. Henry Butler with cigars and cigarettes were Miss Anna Garrigues, Mrs. Kirk, Miss Ethel Most, Miss Gladys Peck, Miss Bernice Sharrotts, Miss Helen Davis, Miss Mollie Perkins and Miss Kate Barlow. Refreshments, Mrs. D. J. Randall, chairman: Mrs. Clifford McGee, Mrs. H. F. Turrell, Mrs. T. E. Rhoades and Miss Annie Murphy. Mrs. Henry Crofut White was in charge of the following waitresses: Gertrude Holmes, May Faber, Mary Barber, Ethel Cotton, Marguerite Campbell, Bessie Flanders, Mabel Hooley Marguerite Vandeventer, Edith Griscom, Eunice Watson, May Murray, Ruth Van Vleet, Helen Phillips, Mildred Berry, Adelaide Ball, Laura Long, Kathryn Ball, Marguerite Long, May Shreve, Mrs. F. E. Dubois, Mrs. Alexander Milne, Mrs. Frank Bayne Ball, Mrs. Gifford Cooley, Mrs. H. Harris, Mrs. Louis Williams, Mrs. William Barlow Jr., Mrs. W. J. Roome and Mrs. Everett Murray.

Col. Jenkins to Speak.

Col. Jenkins, of the National Headquarters of the Salvation Army, will visit this city tomorrow and will conduct two services in the interest of the local corps. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the colonel, assisted by the officers and members of the local corps, will conduct services at the Scotch Plains Baptist church. At 8 o'clock in the evening in the army hall on East Second street, the colonel will conduct a great salvation meeting to which all are invited.

Loretto Frances McCracken.

Loretto Frances, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McCracken, died at the home of her parents at Middlebush, yesterday. The funeral will be private. Mr. and Mrs McCracken were former residents of this city.

DEATH OF REV. DR. TAYLOR

WAS 54 YEARS IN MINISTRY.

Honored by Trinity College With Degree of Doctor of Divinity —Founder of a School— Funeral Tuesday.

Rev. Dr. Joseph Pemberton Taylor, one of the oldest retired Episcopal clergymen in the State, died this morning at 5 o'clock at his home, 698 West Seventh street, from infirmities incidental to old age. The funeral services will be held in Grace Episcopal church on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector, officiating.

Rev. Dr. Taylor was born at Glastonbury, Conn., January 11, 1818. He graduated from Trinity College, Hartford, in 1842 and was ordained at St. John's P. E. church, Stamford, Conn., in 1847 and became assistant to the rector of that church. From Stamford Dr. Taylor went to Christ church, Reading Ridge, where he remained until called to Trinity church, Pittsburg, Pa.

Following this charge Dr. Taylor assumed the rectorship of Christ church, New Brighton, Pa., and while there built the Kenwood school for boys of which he was headmaster for twenty years.

On a special call Dr. Taylor went to St. Paul's New Brunswick, where during his incumbency he built a successful mission. From New Brunswick he became rector of St. John's, Camden, and while there was instrumental in building St. Winifred's church at Cramer Hill, which has since become a large parish. He became rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest in this city in 1885, and after seven years' service there went to Christ church, Middletown, where he preached for nine years.

Rev. Dr. Taylor received an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Trinity College, Hartford, in 1888 and had ceased active church work since 1901.

Eleven members and guests of the Y. M. C. A. baseball team enjoyed the annual banquet of the nine in the parlors of the association last evening. George C. M. Smith, manager of the team, presided and short speeches were made by Secretary Herbert L. Parker, Physical Director Whitaker, John Fritts, captain of the team, and Mr. Smith. The banquet was served by Mrs. Henry Johnson.

Mr. Parker, spoke encouragingly of baseball as a pastime as well as a character builder. He said the team had reflected credit on the association and hoped that next year they would have even a better one. Captain Fritts took the occasion to thank the members individually for their help during the season just passed. Mr. Smith extended his thanks to the newspapers for their interest and help and Mr. Whitaker spoke hopefully for the coming year.

Those present were: Captain Fritts, Jack Peacock, Platt Adams, Benjamin Adams, Frank Hand, William Coyle, Herbert Marsh Herbert L. Parker, G. C. M. Smith and Thomas G. Whitaker.

Great Showing of a $1,000 Car.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 11.—Witt, in a 1911 model E. M. F. 30, second to Lancia in the road race for Tiedman trophy at Savannah today, averaged 55.8 miles per hour for 190.3 miles, beating two Coles and three Maxwells. The nearest Maxwell was 15 minutes behind. The E. M. F. stopped only for oil on the tenth lap. Lancia made a world's record for the class. The E. M. F. was second only to a car that sells for $3,500. This $1,000 car beat everything selling for $1,500 and over. The E. M. F.'s time was better than Cole's time in the Vanderbilt Cup race. This car and the same driver made the remarkable world's record on the Atlanta Speedway last week. ***

Penrose Again in the Toils.

Joseph Penrose, a youth living in New Market, was arrested in Dunellen by Marshal Benson last night, technically charged with breaking his parole imposed by the Middlesex court when found guilty of robbery. It is believed he knows something of a hold-up at New Market two weeks ago and possibly some of the burglaries that have occurred in that section recently. Penrose was taken to the county jail at New Brunswick and will be given a hearing next week.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION ON DEATH OF MR. MARSH

Mayor Fisk, this morning, on hearing the sad message of Plainfield's loss of one of its most eminent citizens, issued the following proclamation:

To the Citizens of Plainfield:

Craig Adams Marsh, for more than 25 years corporation counsel for the city of Plainfield, died at his home this morning.

As mayor of this city, I feel it but fitting to bear public testimony to the memory of one who through long years of service discharged his every duty with absolute fidelity.

Recognized as one of the leaders of the New Jersey Bar, eminent in his profession, and thoroughly wedded to his work, no call upon him ever went unheeded.

The interests of this city, many and diversified, he safeguarded as he did the interests of his own clients, and Plainfield today, fair among all the cities of the State, owes to him now, and for long years to come will owe more to Mr. Marsh than can well be expressed.

Summoned without warning to lay aside his busy labors, he leaves behind him a record without parallel in the history of our city for ability and faithfulness in guiding us in right ways.

Well has he earned the rest which is now his. We have lost an able adviser, a faithful servant and a good friend. Peace to his memory.

Given under my hand at the City of Plainfield, this 12th day of November, A. D. 1910.

WARNOCK'S SOBRIQUET IS "HARD LUCK BILL"

W. W. Warnock, the West Front street baker and confectioner, is a firm believer in the much-used expression that "it never rains but it pours." After the fire departmnet had been summoned to his place of business twice within two hours, yesterday afternoon, there were many inclined to agree with him.

Mr. Warnock had the misfortune two months ago to fracture his ankle and tear the ligaments by a misstep. He is now just recovering from this accident, but is still detained from business. Yesterday morning one of his delivery horses, valued at $175, dropped dead. He refused an offer of $150 for the animal two weeks ago. Mr. Warnock was at his home on Craig place yesterday afternoon when news was brought to him that a bad chimney fire at his bakery had caused $100 damage. He was ready for most anything after that, and when the fire gong blew the same box number two hours later he casually called up on the 'phone to ask if it might be his place again. He was answered in the affirmative, but he had gotten used to things by that time and merely murmured, "Is that so? Well, if anything else happens let me know." The second alarm was for nothing in particular, however, so "Hard Luck Bill" did not add any more to the day's damage list.

The first call to Mr. Warnock's place was at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The chimney leading from his ovens caught fire and blazed up badly. The firemen emptied a tank of chemicals down the opening from the top of the building and part of the liquid and all quantities of soot came out of the bottom, spreading around the bakeshop. Barrels of flour and sugar were spoiled and the nights batch of sponge for bread rendered useless. When the bakers started a new fire in the ovens at 5 o'clock the smoke poured out of an opening in the chimney the firemen had made on the third floor of the building. A passerby thought the place was ablaze and turned in the alarm.

CALLED TO HER REWARD

FALL HASTENED HER END.

Three Sons and Also Three Sisters Survive Her—The Funeral Services Monday Afternoon.

Mrs. Maria O. Willett, widow of Alexander Willett, aged seventy-six years, died at her home, 28 Craig place, at 3 o'clock this morning, following an illness which began six weeks ago, when she fell and fractured her hip. Prior to that time she enjoyed excellent health and was in full possession of her faculties. She sustained a severe shock by the fall from which she seemed unable to recover and during the past few days she failed rapidly.

Mrs. Willett was born at Pluckemin, her maiden name being Maria O. Kline. The family lived a short time in Jersey City, and then removed to North Plainfield, where Mrs. Willett resided for about forty years. She was a devout Christian woman, devoted to her home and her family, and a faithful member and attendant of Trinity Reformed church. She was beloved by all who knew her, and there are many who mourn her loss.

There are surviving three sons, Alfred K. Willett A. H. Wilett, who are engaged in the shoe business in this city, succeeding their father, who was a pioneer merchant and Frank Willett; also three sisters, Mrs. T. S. Armstrong and Mrs. Albertus Swalm, of the borough, and Mrs. Elizabeth Startup, of Middletown, N. Y. There are also four grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Willett.

The funeral service will be held at the late residence, 28 Craig place, Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in the family plot at Bound Brook.

EVANGELIST WILLIAMS LEADS FINAL MEETING

The final meeting in the series of evangelistic services that have been in progress for the past three weeks was held in the First M. E. church last night. In point of attendance and interest manifested it was one of the best of the campaign. The evangelist, Rev. M. V. Williams, had for his topic, "The Great Christian," and embodied the repentant's plea, "what must I do to be saved." His appeal for conversions met with several responses. All those who had asked for prayers previously and who were present, also went forward.

At the close of the service, Mr. Williams was accorded an informal reception. Later in the evening he was taken by automobile to South Plainfield and left on the midnight train for his home in Athens, Pa. He will begin a series of meetings in his own church tomorrow night.

The services just closed proved so successful that it has been decided to continue them for another week. They will be held in the First M. E. church and will be under the auspices of all three local Methodist congregations. Rev. O. J. Shoop, of Grace church, will be in charge tomorrow night.

C. E. CONGRESS MEETING TO BE HELD AT THE Y. M. C. A.

The November Congress meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors on Monday evening at 8 o'clock Several matters of importance will come before the session for consideration. The newly organized society at the West End Tabernacle will be welcomed into the local union and arrangements will be completed for the mass meeting which will be held on December 1.

Jesse Burdick, who is chairman of the committee in charge of the mass meeting, is preparing a special musical program, which will be a feature of the meeting. The singing will be led by a Christian Endeavor male quartet under the direction of Rev. H. N. Jordan, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of New Market.

250 Jewish Families Here.

Morris Abrams, the West Front street shoe dealer, will break ground on Tuesday for his handsome new building on West Front street. Mr. Abrams in conversation with a reporter for The Daily Press said that when he came to Plainfield twenty years ago there were six Jewish families here. Three of the families are now living and three are dead. He says that today there are 250 Jewish families in Plainfield.

MARTINE'S STATEMENT

HAS FAITH IN HIS PARTY.

Refuses to Participate in Any Unseemly Scramble for the Office —Will not "Button-hole" Legislators.

James E. Martine, who received the votes of 48,453 Democrats in the direct primaries as a candidate for United States Senator, yesterday gave out a statement relative to the Senatorship. It reads:

"The next session of the New Jersey Legislature will elect me United States Senator to succeed John Kean. In making this declaration I am not unmindful of opinions to the contrary. But as I have an abiding faith in the honor, intelligence and integrity of the Democratic Legislature, I feel that there is cause for neither apprehension nor misgivings on my part as to the result.

"I entertain no thought but that my candidacy for the important office to which I aspire, which has already been submitted to the people and received their approval, will be heartily acquiesced in by the Democratic members of the Legislature. This conclusion, in my opinion, is justified by political truth, logic and expediency. Were the result to be otherwise the Democratic party would be plunged into a sea of political infidelity, chicanry and double dealing. I know that civic virtue is in the ascendency by reason of Democratic success at the polls last Tuesday.

"As I view the situation, my candidacy personifies a great principle, a great truth in popular government. At this time I believe that important forces of public opinion will be expressed in my favor. These influences will be manifested in my behalf on the basis that acquiesence in the results of the direct primary vote, working progressively and harmoniously toward the goal of popular election of United States Senators, to which the New Jersey Democrats are unequivocally committed by their most recent political questions that may be raised at this time.

"I believe that I have a proper appreciation of the responsibilities of the great office to which I aspire, and in approval of which more than forty-eight thousand Democrats have cast their ballots. Declaring their belief in my fitness for the office and in appreciation of my labors for the party, the Democratic members of the Legislature three years ago unanimously and voluntarily voted to elect me to the United States Senate.

"Woodrow Wilson, in a post election sentiment, declared 'that the present time is a challenge to every man of earnest spirit, and no man should allow a narrow and selfish ambition to rule him.' May I not say that Mr. Wilson's declaration expresses at once a conviction and a hope that crowds itself in upon my own mind?

"I do not consider it consistent with the spirit of the direct primary law, and certainly contrary to the proprieties of the occasion for me to participate in an unseemly scramble to secure my election as Senator. The people have indorsed me and my party has declared itself in favor of the principle predicating the law through which the indorsement was recorded. I reason that this is sufficient. There will be no attempt on my part to buttonhole members of the Legislature in an effort to persuade them to that which I believe will be done in accordance with fidelity to political principles and good government."

E. C. Stokes, who received the highest vote for Republican candidates for United States Senator in the direct primaries, yesterday afternoon sent a letter to James E. Martine congratulating him on the prospect of his being elected United States Senator by virtue of being the high man on the Democratic ticket in the primary count.

C. A. MARSH DEAD

COMMUNITY'S SEVERE LOSS.

Blood Vessel in His Lungs Bursts from Coughing and Noted Lawyer's Death Ensues—City Counsel 28 Years.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh died suddenly this morning at 5 o'clock Half an hour previously he was seized with a fit of coughing which was so intense as to cause a blood vessel in his lungs to burst. His wife hurried to his side and he was in her arms when he passed away. Dr. Norman H. Probasco was summoned but Mr. Marsh was dead before the physician arrived.

Mr. Marsh was one of the most distinguished members of the New Jersey bar and was so wedded to his practice of the legal profession that on more than one occasion he refused the honors of the bench.

On receiving word of Mr. Marsh's death, Mayor Fisk at once issued a proclamation, notifying the citizens of their loss and paying a tribute to his memory. He also issued a summons to the Common Council to convene tonight to take appropriate action. The Union County Bar Association, of which Mr. Marsh was president, will meet on Monday morning at the Courthouse, Elizabeth, for a similar purpose.

Craig Adams Marsh was born in Plainfield, December 8, 1856, and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Warren Marsh. He was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1872 and that year he entered Union College in the sophomore class, graduating from that institution in the class of 1876. He then spent a year in the study of law in the offices of Amzi Dodd and J. Hervey Ackerman, in Newark. At the end of that time he entered the Columbia Law School, from which he was graduated in the class of 1879.

Mr. Marsh was admitted to the New Jersey Bar in 1879 as an attorney, and three years later was admitted to practice as a counsellor. He spent a year or so in California, returning to Plainfield, where he at once entered upon a successful practice of law, which constantly increased year after year. While a student at Union College he met Miss Mary Moore, of Albany, N. Y., and before he began the practice of law he was married.

By appointment of the Chancellor he was made a master in chancery and a special master in chancery, and by the Supreme Court a Supreme Court Commissioner. He was first appointed corporation counsel of Plainfield in May, 1882 by L. V. F. Randolph, who was then mayor serving in all twenty-eight years. He was considered one of the highest authorities on corporation law, and in the opinion of the oldest practioners in Plainfield he saved the city thousands of dollars through his legal advice.

Among some of the most notable cases handled by Mr. Marsh was that of Taylor vs. the Plainfield Fire Department, resulting in the charter of the department being declared unconstitutional. The department was taken out of the hands of the volunteer force and turned over to the city. Another case was that of J. B. Jennings vs. Bishop Scarborough resulting in the reinstatement of the pastor after being dismissed by the then bishop and standing committee of the State.

Mr. Marsh was also the winning counsel in the celebrated suit, Karl Polack vs. Hudson, a pioneer case in the United States, establishing the liability of owners of barbed wire fences for injuries to animals, and was in the successful defense of Daniel S. Beatty, the organ manufacturer, charged with using the United States mails with intent to defraud; also the famous Freehill homicide case; the Long Branch Asphalt Pavement cases and Moore vs. Sheridan, resulting in the breaking of the will of William Moore.

Another notable suit was the Job Male will case, which was bitterly contested. Mr. Marsh drew the will but before he could secure Mr. Male's acknowledgment to his signature, he died. Through the clever work of Mr. Marsh the heirs com-

WHERE YOUR MONEY IS WASTED.

About one million dollars are wasted daily by our government, says Senator Aldrich, and certainly he ought to know. Do you know what that means? That sum is 25 per cent. greater than the combined total wages paid in iron, steel, textile and lumber industries of the whole country. And it is wasted. It goes in little dabs and big gobs. One man holds down a government job that pays forty-five hundred dollars a year, he also draws a $1,200 pension for total disability. In 1911 the railroads will get about forty-five million dollars for carrying mails. They will render practically the same service to the express companies for about eighteen million dollars. This scandalous waste comes out of your pockets. Fix that solidly in your mind. You pay for that waste yourself. It figures in everything you buy. If it's to be stopped it's up to you. How it may be stopped is explained in an article in Pearson's Magazine now on sale. Read that article. It gives facts—surprising but cold, hard facts just the same—on the most important question for you to think about today.

How Mormons manage to beat the laws against polygamy is explained in the same issue by Richard Barry. The story of Senator Beveridge is told by David Graham Phillips; the difference between a fake auction and a genuine auction is explained by H. E. Twinells. Allen Benson tells what vivisection has done for humanity and there are

WHAT THE BEVERIDGE FIGHT MEANS TO YOU.

It means the difference between government by the people and for the people and government by privilege and for the privileged. Just turn that over in your mind. That is precisely what the Beveridge fight means. The story of Beveridge is told by David Graham Phillips in Pearson's Magazine now on sale. How to make that story benefit you is explained by Arthur W. Little. A counterpart of the Beveridge fight is coming off in your own district if you have a single candidate who means to work for you after election. These articles show what men like that will do for you; also why both "machines" fight such men so desperately.

In the same issue of this magazine is an article showing conclusively that Mormons teach and practice polygamy today, despite American law. Another article sets forth what becomes of that 300,000,000 dollars that Senator Aldrich says Congress wastes every year; another explains the difference between a fake auction and the genuine and shows what you get when you buy in the fake store. There are four other articles on interesting subjects, and

There are few who succeed, because there are few who think. It is the thinkers who have the most ambition, the most enthusiasm, the most energy, the most power, and are the most willing to learn. It is the thinkers who solve the problems of the world, and receive the world's reward. Think out your problem carefully, let your ambition supply the enthusiasm, which in action becomes energy, and you will have the power to overcome the hundred hindering trifles which hang to the coat-tails of every undertaking. To think in the right way requires training. You must control and centralze your thoughts, and develop thought capacity. You will find The Caxton Magazine a big help in training your thoughts. It doesn't try to think for you, it doesn't want to think for you, it is simply a thought developer. Thinkers are quality folks, and the intimate stories about quality folks which appear on our pages are thought producers.

SOMERVILLE.

The women of the Second Reformed church gave their annual church supper Thursday evening in the chapel. About 400 people took supper between 6 and 8 o'clock.

Mrs. S. A. Terhune, of Blawenburg, is spending a week in Trenton with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stryker Hoagland.

Professor George A. West gave a lecture Thursday evening in the Third Reformed church chapel on normal training.

St. Bernards' Alumni Association of Raritan, held a most successful ball in St. Bernards' Hall Thursday evening.

Stanley Townsend, of Malvern, Pa., is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Lamoreaux, on South street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wiltse, of New York, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson.

Miss Laura Raymond, of Harlingen, is visiting relatives in Newark.

Mrs. H. Hegeman is a guest of her son in Newark.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Dunellen football club will go to Caldwell this afternoon for a game with the team at that place. The locals will be accompanied by a delegation of rooters.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis De Brigard, who have been living on West Front street, Plainfield, have moved into Madame Cottrelly's house on Front street, the borough.

Rev. Ernest R. Brown, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, will go to Pluckemin Monday night to address a revival meeting in that place.

The restaurant opened in the Runyon building by G. H. McVey is now in full swing and the proprietor is rapidly building up a good business.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Barton, of Roseville, are spending the week-end with Mrs. Barton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Herlich.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The second of the Friday night socials, which have been arranged by the social committee of the B. Y. P. U., of the Baptist church, was held last night in the church parlors. The members and their friends were out in force and a most enjoyable evening was spent playing games and enjoying music. Refreshments were served.

Unless the friends of the Public Library rally to its support, the Library will again be obliged to close its doors for the want of money. It is hoped that some way will be found to raise the $300 which was lost on account of a technicality in the election law.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be morning preaching by the pastor, Rev. Franklin K. Mathews, at 10:45; Bible study, 4 o'clock and B. Y. P. U., 7 p. m., in the church parlors.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Methodist church will be held tonight in the church. Rev. Mr. Hollingshead will lead the meeting.

Miss Lillian Hoyt, who has been visiting Mrs. Charles Haberly, of Front street, has returned to her home in Brooklyn.

John B. Stillger, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Frederick K. Clark, has returned to his home in Brooklyn.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Tonight the members of the church of the Sacred Heart will open a three nights' fair and fancy sale in Washington Hall, which will be continued Monday and Tuesday evenings. There will be many attractions. A Plainfield orchestra will furnish music each evening for dancing. The committee in charge is endeavoring to make it one of the greatest social events of the season, and a good time is promised to all who attend. The proceeds will go toward reducing the debt on the church property.

Mrs. Andrew Armstrong arrived safely in Philadelphia, where she expects to spend the winter, after a months' stay with friends here.

The Lehigh Valley railroad has ordered fifteen new milk cars, from the Standard Steel Car Company, for delivery in March, 1911.

Mrs. David Blackford has recovered from her recent serious illness.

George Worden is convalescing from an attack of pneumonia.

JAMES D. FRASER SAILS FOR VISIT TO SCOTLAND.

James D. Fraser, Plainfield's well known and popular horseman, sailed today on the Anchor Line steamer, "Columbia," for his old home in Scotland, where he will remain about a month. Most of the time will be passed in Edinburgh, his native town, and the home of his mother whom he has not seen since he first came to this country twenty years ago. He will also visit several of the larger cities and places of interest before returning.

Mr. Fraser enjoys a wide acquaintance everywhere because of his genial and Democratic disposition and in show horse circles is regarded as an authority. He has had charge of Edwin S. Hooley's stables and was responsible for the pairing up of "Quaker Maid" and "Doreathea," the finest team of harness horses that ever stepped in the ring. They won repeatedly over C. W. Watson's pair which captured the international cup in England. Mr. Fraser has been with Mr. Hooley for the past twelve years and goes on the trip as his guest.

THINK OSBORNE WILL BE HEAD OF PRINCETON.

No official confirmation of rumors concerning the new president of Princeton University can be secured in Princeton. No one in authority will discuss the matter, or talk about "possibilities." Nevertheless, there seems to be a well-settled conviction that if he will accept the place, Henry Fairfield Osborne, head of the American Museum of Natural History, will be selected to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Woodrow Wilson, now Governor-elect of the State of New Jersey.

No one there takes very seriously the report from Utica, N. Y., that Dr. M. W. Stryker, president of Hamilton College, may be called to the presidency of Princeton.

Mr. Osborne is recognized as a capable executive; he is a graduate of Princeton and is popular with the alumni. In the differences arising out of the graduate school site question he did not become identified with either party to the controversy. This is considered as increasing his availability.

WILSON TO LEWIS.

Vivian M. Lewis, the defeated Republican candidate for Governor, Thursday received a letter from Dr. Woodrow Wilson, dated from Princeton. The Governor-elect writes in his usual frank fashion to the man whom he defeated. He tells Mr. Lewis of his cordiality and is glad that there was nothing personal during the campaign just ended. The letter is as follows:

My Dear Mr. Lewis—I want to thank you most warmly for your letter of congratulation. It was in line with your handsome conduct all through the campaign. I am sure that I need not tell you that my feeling toward you has been of the most cordial kind. It is delightful to feel that there has been nothing personal in our rivalry and opposition.

I feel in this moment of success that a great responsibility has been put upon me.

Strike at Westfield.

The workmen in all branches of their work of the Modern Shop, a Westfield construction company, were called out by Walking Delegate Cosgrove, of Elizabeth. The workmen on a building on Grove street were called out because the lathers on the job were non-union. The operations on five buildings were stopped. It is not anticipated that the work will be held up for any length of time.

Pastor Maguire's Topic.

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will preach tomorrow night on the topic, "You Cannot Keep a Good Man Down." In the morning Rev. Mr. McRae, of the Y. M. C. A., will occupy the pulpit and speak in the interest of the association.

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, gave a lecture in a Brooklyn church, last night.

Organist Russell will give an organ recital at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tomorrow evening from 7:30 to 7:45, preceding the evening service.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Rev. and Mrs. Edward Mount, of Williamstown, will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding on November 18.

The Williamstown M. E. church will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary during the week beginning November 20, and an all-week program has been arranged. Former pastors will make addresses.

Anthony Masters, sixteen years old, is missing from his home, 424 Grand street, Jersey City, since Wednesday. He has a light complexion and light hair. He wore a brown overcoat, black pants and a black cloth hat.

The Passaic police were notified Thursday by a member of the Steinberg Feed Company of that city that Fred Anderson, an elderly laborer in its employ, had been missing since last Saturday. The man boarded at 62 Wall street.

Charged with being intoxicated while on duty on October 29, Policeman Terrence McFarland, of Atlantic City, was dismissed from the force Thursday, after a hearing before Mayor Stoy. McFarland's defense was that he had been ill and took the whisky as medicine.

Franklin Dill, chairman of the Northampton Township Committee, member and district clerk of the Board of Education and president of the Good Intent Fire Company of Mt. Holly, dropped dead from heart disease at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lorenzo L. Sapp, Thursday.

As the New York express over the Central Railroad of New Jersey was entering the yard in Bridgeton Wednesday night, it was sideswiped by a big freight locomotive which was standing ready to go out. No passengers were injured by the collision, but the tracks were not cleared for traffic until nearly midnight.

With hundreds of school boys in attendance, the new gymnasium of the Atlantic City High School was thrown open Thursday and the appreciation felt by the students for the splendid edifice found vent in long-continued cheering for the members of the Board of Education. This is the first gymnasium placed at the disposal of the student body and they are highly jubilant.

N Y AMUSEMENTS.

The role of Gabnor Arany exacted by Leo Ditrichstein in "The Concert" now playing at the Belasco Theatre in New York, is one of the most difficult in all the repertoire of drama, ancient or modern. Gabnor Arany is a piano virtuoso, and only a piano virtuoso could possibly play the part because of the very difficult music which it is necessary she shall execute in full view of the audience. Mr. Ditrichstein, a Hungarian by birth, was a pianist of great promise before he became an actor. At five years of age he was known all over Austro-Hungary as a child virtuoso, and among his dearest treasures today are the programs of a concert tour he made there before he was seven years old.

William Gillette's newest play, "Electricity," in which Miss Marie Doro has the principal part, had its first perfromance in New York at the Lyceum Theatre Monday night, October 31. There is humanity whimsical fancy and a considerable range of humor in Mr. Gillette's newest work as a playwright. In its serious moments the author drives home not a little homely American philosophy, and insinuates rather than expounds the motive behind the play. The cast for "Electricity" includes Oliver D. Byron, Miss Marie Doro, Shelley Hall, Edwin Nicander, Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, Francis D. McGinn and others. Following is the complete cast: Duncan K. Twimply, Oliver D. Byron; Samuel Twimbly, Edwin Nicander; James Hollenden, Shelley Hull; Emeline Twimbly, Marie Doro; Ruth Draycott, Ann Murdock; A. Boker, Harry Barfoot; Ninette, L. De Bellefrale; Thomas Brockway, Francis D. McGinn; Mary Brockway, Mrs. Thos. Whiffen; Bill Brockway, Henry Hall; Joe Mathison, Allan Fawcett; Jennie Parks, Myrtle Tannehill.

ARRESTS FOR VIOLATING THE ELECTION LAWS.

Continuing their work of rounding up those who have been charged with violations of the election law on Tuesday, the Democratic campaign managers in Atlantic City Thursday caused the arrest of Henry Murtland on a warrant charging him with bribery in the Fourth ward. The warrant was issued by Judge Henry Scull on information furnished by E. A. Crosta, who appeared as complainant in the case.

When arraighed Murtland was represented by James J. P. Payes, Jr., one of the prominent workers of the "organization" in the recent campaign. A plea of not guilty was entered to the charge, and Murtland was held in $1,000 bail.

Thomas Hogan, whose lack of memory got him into trouble in the Seventh precinct of the Fourth ward, on Tuesday, was also arraigned on the charge of fraudulent voting. Hogan, it is alleged, attempted to vote the second time, but forgot the name which had been given him and was placed under arrest at that time. He was not so fortunate in securing bail and was held in the sum of $1,000 bail for the grand jury.

A general round-up of those against whom charges are pending is expected Monday, when more than a score of arrests are planned.

PAYS FREAK ELECTION BET.

George McGuiness, of 28 Columbia street, Newark, was one of those persons who pinned their faith on Vivian M. Lewis becoming Governor, and in consequence he was obliged to play the part of a horse Thursday night. He found Charles E. Bader, at whose home he resides, only too willing to wager on the election of Woodrow Wilson, and the two made a bet, the loser agreeing to cart the winner through the streets in a buggy.

McGuinness, rigged out in the costume of a clown and hitched to a buggy in which Bader was seated, attracted attention in Broad and Market streets as he struggled along paying his bet. The line of march was from Bader's house through Lafayette street to Mulberry, to Market, to Broad and Green streets and thence to Columbia street. Supper was served at the conclusion of the ride.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will hold a fair at the chapel early in December.

When You Buy Tools & Hardware

Must Pay for its Mistake.

In an opinion filed in the Supreme Court at Trenton yesterday, Justice Swayze affirmed a judgment recovered in the District Court of Jersey City by Mary Hemburger against the Eclispe Specialty Company. The action involved a trespass in which the apartments of the complainant were entered and some of her personal property taken. This was done under color of a writ of replevin, and the company claimed that the constable was responsible. It appeared, however, that the driver for the Eclispe Company undertook to identify the property which had been replevined and in doing so made a mistake and took some of Mrs. Herburger's effects. This, the Court said, rendered the company liable for punitive damages, which were awarded by the jury.

BASEBALL.

Charlie Dooin will manage the Phillies next season, and the big trade of four players arranged by him and Clark Griffith, of the Cincinnati Reds, will go through as announced.

Horace Fogel, president of the Philadelphia club, who heretofore has declared with a great show of authority that the deal could not stand, has decided to back down. He sent for Dooin yesterday, just as the fighting manager was about to board a train for Rochester, where it had been his expressed intention to go into business with his father-in-law.

The two men had a long conference following which Dooin announced his intention of remaining in Philadelphia. He did not say he was to manage the Phillies, but announced that all information must come from Mr. Fogel. The latter was silent last night, but his friends say the skirmish is over and peace declared.

Secretary Gray, of the Giants, announced Thursday that Third Baseman Arthur Devlin has sent in his signed contract for 1911 to the local National League officials. Devlin is the sixth Giant to sign for next season within the past few days. Devlin was secured from the Newark Eastern League Club. He played his first championship game with the Giants on April 14, 1904. Only three men have been with the team longer than he has, these being Christy Mathewson, John McGraw and Leon Ames. Devlin will spend the winter in Chicago.

GOLF.

Golfers who frequent the Forest Park public links in Brooklyn are hopeful once more. They have been practically assured that nothing is likely to happen with regard to abandoning the course, and it is also noticed that more attention has of late been bestowed on the greens, which are in better condition now than at any time during the season. Last Sunday more than a hundred golfers were on the course at once, causing congestion at every tee.

The handicap against bogie which began on Election Day at the Garden City Golf Club has been won by Thomas T. Rushmore, who returned a card of 90—11—79. George L. Hubbell won the prize for the best selected eighteen-hole out of thirty-six, his card reading 79—9—70. Dr. N. Wylie won second prize in the bogie competition. The eighteen-hole medal play handicap resulted in G. C. Riggs showing the way with 88—15—73. Walter J. Travis playing from scratch made the round in 76.

Members of the New York newspaper Golf Club are preparing to muster in force at a smoker to be held at the Press Club. The affair will start at midnight tonight. In addition to general business and the election of officers for the ensuing year there will be a prize presentation for those who won trophies in the October tournament.

CRAIG ADAMS MARSH.

Plainfield will mourn today and on the morrow for Craig Adams Marsh. His death is a severe, an inestimable loss. As corporation counsel he had served the municipality for twenty-eight consecutive years with rare fidelity and distinguished ability. Recognized as an authority on corporation law and practice he gave the fulness of his powers to the solution of a wide range of intricate questions upon which his opinion was sought. In guiding the administrative authorities, his services were such as to win for him and for the city many notable victories. A deep student of the statute law and of the judicial trend, his advice was always so sound that it has long since come to be a by-word: "Well, if Mr. Marsh says it's so, it's so." In his private practice, he was equally distinguished, his reputation as a profound counsellor and a skillful trial lawyer was State-wide. Above all, he was noted as a barrister whose ethics were of the highest and whose professional life exemplified his ideals. Never did he lend himself to stirring up strife for lucre but rather during his whole career his role was that of a peacemaker. Many a separated husband and wife and parent and child; many a divided business partnership and corporation were happily reunited through his efforts. Unassuming, modest to a marked degree, his intense dislike of the notority seeker, of the shyster and of the man who strives for popularity at the sacrifice of his character endeared him to a community in which he had spent the years of his well ordered life and in which he is now deeply mourned. He was every inch a man and every inch a lawyer.

cipline of pain. They must have the courage to let the child act for himself when they know that the outcome will be distressing. Christ's method in dealing with Peter must be the method of the mother. He knew that Peter would be broken on the wheel of pain if He let him have his own way, but He also knew that Peter would never forget that he had denied his Lord, and would emerge from the experience a new Peter. Like Jesus, mothers must love their chilren so well that they will let them learn for themselves through painful experiences and thus come to character.

promised and as a result the city was given the public library. There are countless other cases tried by Mr. Marsh in the various courts of the United States in which he was successful.

Mr. Marsh was president of the New Jersey State Bar Associa the Union County Bar Association and the Union County Bar Association; also serving as a trustee and member of the executive committee of all three organizations.

One of the oldest lawyers in the city in speaking of Mr. Marsh, today, said, that he considered him to be one of the finest jury lawyers in the State and that he was without a peer as an authority on corporation law. He said that he always exercised the greatest care in the preparation of all cases, and was unusually successful.

Mr. Marsh was a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., and so far as known this was his only fraternal lodge affiliation. It was Mr. Marsh's custom to spend the greater part of every summer abroad and he always anticipated these trips with a great deal of pleasure.

Mr. Marsh is survived by a wife, a sister, Miss Ada Marsh, a brother, Warren H. Marsh, who was associated with him in his law offices here, a brother, Randolph Marsh, of this city and an aunt, Miss Josie M. Adams, of San Francisco.

The funeral service will be held at the late home on West Eighth street, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and will be attended by representatives of the State, county and local bar associations, and Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., as well as many city officials.

A. M. Harris will speak at the Plainfield Rescue Mission meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock. There will be special music.

Rev. George H. Gardner, of the New Market Baptist church, will preach at the Temple Baptist church tomorrow morning in exchange with Pastor Musson. The latter will make an address at the special Bible Day service at the New Market church and at 11 o'clock will preach there.

Fred E. Smith will conduct the meeting at the West End Tabernacle tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The Christian Endeavor Society will meet at 7 o'clock and Miss Nellie Foote, of Elizabeth, will speak. The Sunday school will meet at 2:30 o'clock. There will be prayer meetings Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

The fourth anniversary of the Ladies' Aid Society of the West End Tabernacle will be held Thursday night. There will be special music, and an anniversary address by Rev. Ora J. Shoop, of Grace M. E. church.

The Monroe Avenue church will have its annual thank offering day at the morning service tomorrow. On this occasion all offerings for the church benevolences are received.

HEALTH-GIVING BATHS.

Women unfamiliar with baths, save the ordinary one of warm water and soap or a cold plunge, have a veritable treasure house of good things suited to their moods and requirements.

If we resorted to baths more generally to combat bodily ills and promote general health, a stronger race would result.

Not only are baths necessary to open and cleanse the pores, but they exercise a wonderful beneficial effect upon the nerves, muscles, skin, circulation, and lastly, that exquisite constructed organ, the brain.

Little luxuries may be added to the bath quite inexpensively which beautify the skin and take the place of soap. Among these are dainty bath bags made from various cleansing agents which soften and whiten the skin, and in many cases agree with it, especially the complexion, better than the soap. This is true where it is inclined to be oily.

Bags of bran scented with orris root are very simple. The cheesecloth should be cut about six inches square and only half filled. An ounce or two of orris root to a pound of bran is sufficient. Plain oatmeal boiled fifteen minutes, the nstrained, is convenient. Place the grains in a bag with a little orris root.

An elaborate formula which may be used in any desired proportion contains:

One and one-half pounds of oatmeal, four ounces of powdered orris root, five ounces of almond meal and one-eighth of a pound of olive oil soap, first dried and then shaved or scraped. Mix and place in bags.

Not many women would think of a bath to quiet their nerves, but a specific containing just the proper ingredients is wonderfully soothing and refreshing as well.

Here is an excellent one:

Two ounces of tincture of camphor one ounce of benzoin, four ounces of rectified spirits. Mix thoroughly and pour into the bath sufficient to make the water milky and have a faint odor. Soap of a very good kind may be used in this, or just step into your bath, remaining there for fifteen minutes, frequently sponging the parts of the body above the water—the face, shoulders and arms.

Aromatic Baths—All baths should be taken slowly, relaxing the nerves and muscles and giving oneself up to the enjoyment of the moment.

Aromatic baths especially should be taken in warm weather, for their cooling properties affect the temperature of the blood most pleasantly. However, aromatic baths may be taken at any time of the year, and are not only delightfully refreshing after a period of fatigue, worry, loss of sleep or unstrung nerves, but impart a subtle fragrance to the skin—a fact which appeals very strongly to those of esthetic tastes.

A tepid bath, and especially for an aromatic bath, is the only temperature advised. A cool bath is stimulating and a hot one too relaxing for the majority of people.

SOLILOQUIES OF A BENEDICT.

Marriage is often a short cut to misery.

Any fool can get into trouble, but it takes a wise man to get out of it.

There is many a slip between the engagement and the altar, sometimes resulting in the altar never being reached.

When they take each other for better or worse it is usually the latter.

When a woman loses her temper it is a safe bet that she most certainly possesses one.

Tell a woman she is growing old and she becomes your mortal enemy.

Were it not for the little spats now and then married life would be monotonous.

A Change in Baked Beans.

Instead of using pork in baked beans try olive oil. It is delicious and can be digested by people who have given up baked beans on account of the pork. For two cups of beans, after soaking and parboiling, use two tablespoons of the best olive oil and a bit of butter the size of an English walnut, one teaspoon mustard, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon molasses; fill pot with boiling water and bake as usual (covered), uncover the last hour and brown. A small onion may be placed in the bottom of the pot if desired.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

The Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary in its rooms at Reform Hall, last night, when a special program of music, readings and recitations together with addresses by the members and visiting officers and veterans, combined to make an evening of pleasure for all. There was a large delegation of members from the Women's Relief Corps of New Brunswick, and Department President Mrs. Clara Brown and Mrs. Decker, chief of staff, both of Jersey City, were also present.

Mrs. Henry Frazee, president of the local corps, was in charge of the exercises, and Mrs. Hattie Gibbons was chairman of the entertainment committee, the corps acting as a committee of the whole. The program comprised readings by Mrs. Hattie Gibbons, recitations by Miss Try Mattox, vocal selections by Mrs. John Manley, Miss Evelyn Manley; piano selections by Miss Clara Barton Smith and Mrs. S. R. Struthers.

There were also addresses by Mrs. Henry Frazee, Mrs. Clara Brown, Mrs. Decker, Captain William C. Smith, S. R. Struthers and there were also instrumental selections by Mrs. I. C. Cubberly and Albert Naylor. Captain Smith in his remarks gave an informal historical sketch of the corps recalling the time it was organized and the purpose, which it had carried out faithfully. Among the charter members present last night were Mrs. Charles Westphal and Mrs. W. C. Smith.

Following the program, refreshments were served under the direction of a committee comprising Mrs. Hattie Gibbons, Mrs. Kitchell and Mrs. Albert Naylor. Mrs. Annie Smith received the silver offering at the door.

DR. WILSON PREPARING TO TAKE NEEDED REST.

Swamped with congratulatory letters and telegrams, Governor-elect Wilson is trying to make a personal response to each of them. He remained in his library until 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when he went out for a walk, returning an hour and a half later.

It is probable that Dr. and Mrs. Wilson will leave "Prospect," their home, next week, for some quiet place where the Governor-elect can recuperate from his strenuous campaign.

On the first of January he will vacate his home here but it is not known where he will take up his residence. The "Little White House" at Sea Girt is available and may be occupied by the Governor-elect.

WOMEN'S MISSION BAND DISCUSS IMMIGRATION.

An interesting report of the recent missionary conference held in Newark was given by Miss Winifred Rapalje, at the meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon. The topic "Immigration," which has been chosen for the winter's program, proved interesting to the young women present and gives promise of being instructive.

There was also a discussion of the entertainment to be given at the church on December 9, it being reported that all the details are progressing favorably. Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, as president of the band, conducted the business session; Miss Mabel Wilson led the devotional exercises and Mrs. Cora Ryno had charge of the program.

Y. M. C. A. ANNIVERSARY DAY IN THE CHURCHES

In recognition of the establishment of the local Y. M. C. A., forty-three years ago, special services will be held in the local churches, tomorrow. At the First M. E. church, H. W. Merrill, general secretary of the Atlantic City association, and W. D. McRae, secretary of the State Y. M. C. A. committee, will speak at the Park Avenue Baptist church, in the morning. Charles A. Green, general secretary of the Madison association will speak in the Congregational church. H. W. Herrman, vice-president of the local association, will occupy the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church, and General Secretary H. E. Parker speaks at Warren chapel.

H. W. Herrman will make an address at the First Presbyterian church, tomorrow evening. Arrangements have been made whereby Arthur Rush, national secretary for China, will speak at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday, November 20, morning and evening and Sunday, December 11, there will be a special speaker at the First Baptist church. His name will be announced later. This morning F. P. Lamphear, secretary of the Trenton association, spoke at the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

To the Legislature.

Gentlemen of the Legislature, let us understand each other.

For the first time in years, a majority of you are Democrats. Do not mistake what that means.

New Jersey is not at heart Democratic. It is at heart Progressive.

You, gentlement of the Democratic party, were so fortunate as to discover within your ranks the man whom New Jersey had sought in vain for six years—a leader of the whole people, a man of constructive thought, temperate, seeing the wrongs of the past, and with his heart sincerely set on a program of righteousness in the future.

The people trust him. They have given up hope of the Republican party. Its "regulars" they distrust. And they are afraid of the balance of the Progressives. You are in on trial.

You are pledged to principles. You owe gratitude to no one but to Wilson and the independence of New Jersey. He and it elected you.

Every act of yours will be keenly watched by the Independents that elected you. Your moves will be judged by the evident principle that dictated them. If these Independents see that the same motives guide you as have guided Republican Legislatures in the past they will return to their old allegiance and go on with their fight to make the Republican party the party of progress.

One of your first crucial tests will be the United States Senatorship. On this a majority of you have dallied with the people—but they gave you a chance for the sake of your leader.

If you are going to choose on a basis of gratitude for your election, choose a Republican standpatter—for their actions elected you.

If you are going to choose on the basis of expediency, choose a Democratic progressive—for that is what you are supposed to be.

If you are going to choose because you believe in the principle of popular government, choose Martine. The popular vote at the primary elected him, and the only reason that the vote then was not bigger was because you were not sincere. You were attempting partisan tricks—but the people hoped last Tuesday that your leader and your return to responsibility would bring a return to good faith and that you would abide by the result of your own works.

And if you are going to choose to meet a reverse, landslide——.—Newark News.

Mrs. Lizzie J. Taylor.

Mrs. Lizzie J. Taylor, wife of the late James T. H. Taylor, died suddenly in Chicago, on Thursday, aged 82 years. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were old residents of this city and had a wide circle of friends. The funeral services will be held at her late home, 352 East 22d street, Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y., on Monday.

BABCOCK TREASURER OF PLAYGROUND COMMISSION

At the meeting of the Playground Commission held on Thursday evening, George L. Babcock, who succeeded Joseph W. Gavett as a member of the commission, was elected treasurer. President George P. Mellick appointed Harry W. Marshall and Mr. Babcock to act with himself on a committee to arrange details as to the management of Parker Field next year. The field has been nearly finished under the supervision of Howard Craig and will be ready for use net summer.

It was the sense of the commission that two more playgrounds should be opened and equipped next year which will make a total of four recreation places exclusive of Parker Field. Action toward accomplishing this end will be taken. Misses Harriet E. Moe and Mary L. Childs have been re-engaged to supervise the Franklin and Bryant grounds next year.

The location for the two new playgrounds have not as yet been determined, but they will be centrally located.

C. H. Lowrie Promoted.

C. H. Lowrie has been appointed cashier of the local branch of the United States Express Company, by Agent Wilson S. Frederick, to succeed E. J. O'Connor, who has been promoted to the agency at Parkersburg, W Va. Mr. Lowrie will assume his new duties tomorrow.

STATE CONFERENCE ON TUBERCOLOSIS WORK

Announcement has been made of the program that will be carried out at the conference of the New Jersey Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis to be held in the lecture hall of the Free Public Library, Newark, next Thursday. Vivian M. Lewis will preside at the morning session of the conference, which will begin at 10:30 o'clock, and Governor J. Franklin Fort will be chairman of the afternoon session. Dean Andrew F. West of Princeton, will preside.

Both State and local committees will attend the conference, and topics dealing with the provision of dispensaries, nurses and hospitals for the care of those afflicted with the disease will be discussed.

"The Discovery and Supervision of Cases in the Home" will be the subject dwelt upon at the morning session. General Bird W. Spencer, Mayor of Passaic, will read a paper on "The Enforcement of the Tuberculosis Law;" Dr. William C. Schauffler, of Lakewood, will speak on "The Physician;" Dr. Ralph H. Hunt, of East Orange, "The Dispensary;" Miss Katherine Golding, of Paterson, and Miss Nellie M. Casey, of Frederick, Md., on "The Visiting Nurse;" Dr. O. R. Eichel, of Buffalo, on "The Tuberculosis Inspector," and Miss Martha G. Perrine, of Burlington, on "Relief."

Frederick L. Hoffman, of Newark, and Mrs. Florence Kelley, of the National Consumers' League, New York, will speak at the afternoon session. Other addresses will be made by Dr. Herbert M. King, physician in chief at Loomis sanitarium, Liberty, N. Y., and Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, of Philadelphia.

"Tuberculosis as a School Problem" will claim the attention of the evening session. The discussions will be led by Dr. Woods Hutchinson, of New York; Dr. George J. Homes, of Newark; Leonard P. Ayres, of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York, and Dr. John W. Brannan, also of New York.

GOOD WORK.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Plainfield still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, 304 West Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "A dull heavy, bearing-down pain in my back bothered me a great deal, especially when I caught cold. I also had frequent headaches and was at times so dizzy that I could scarcely see. If I did much stooping or lifting, my back became very lame and though I used plasters, I was relieved only for the time being. Finally on the advise of a friend, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. They acted in every way as represented and in a short time rid me of all symptoms of kidney trouble. I am pleased to recommend a remedy of such undoubted merit."

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AN ORDINANCE

WHEREAS, the Common Council have judged and hereby do judge that the public good requires that Astor Place should be laid out and opened between the points named in the title to this ordinance, therefore

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That a public street to be known as Astor Place, be and the same is hereby ordered laid out and opened in said city as the line of said street is shown on a map made by Andrew J. Gavett, City Surveyor, and filed with the City Clerk, September 19, 1910, entitled "Map showing proposed Laying Out and Opening of Astor Place, from Clinton Avenue to Hunter Avenue and of Lyman Place, from West Third Street to Astor Place, City of Plainfield, N. J., August, 1910," to which map reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

Said street shall be forty-five feet in width, that is to say, twenty-two and one-half feet on each side of the center line shown on said map. Said center and side lines of said street are delineated on the map above referred to.

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken for the laying out and opening of said Astor Place (the larger part of said street having already been dedicated to the public), include that part of the property now or formerly of The Home Real Estate Company and property now or formerly of Sarah C. Runyon and Charles H. Hand, described as follows: Beginning at a point in the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, where the same is intersected by the northwesterly side line of Astor Place produced, and running along said side line of Astor Place produced in a northeasterly direction, a distance of 94.07 feet, to the end of Astor Place as already dedicated to the public; thence along the end of Astor Place as already dedicated to the public, in a southeasterly direction, a distance of 45.25 feet to a point in the southeasterly side line of Astor Place; thence along said side line produced in a southwesterly direction, a distance of 98.05 feet to a point in the northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue; thence along said side line in a northwesterly direction, a distance of 45 feet to the place of beginning.

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken and the lines of the proposed street as the same is hereinabove ordered to be laid out and opened, are shown on said map on file with the City Clerk, hereinabove referred to and made a part hereof.

Adopted by the Common Council October 20, 1910; approved by the Mayor October 27, 1910.

CHAS. J. FISK, Mayor.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-1239 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR SOMERVILLE MURDERER.

Five hours after he entered court Thursday morning to watch the selection of a jury to try him for his life, Guylia Toth went to jail convicted of murder in the first degree. He will be sentenced next Thursday.

Of the time consumed in the trial one hour was taken by the jury to decide on the verdict and another was taken up by recess.

Toth killed his wife in Bernardsville on September 6 last.

The State failed to prove any motive for the crime, and there was no evidence advanced by the defense to show what prompted Toth to kill his young wife.

Justice Parker, in charging the jury, said that while intoxication was not a lawful excuse for murder, the jury must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant was not so much under the influence of liquor at the time the crime was committed as to be incapable of premeditation in order to convict him of murder in the first degree.

WHAT ELECTRICITY IS EXPECTED TO PERFORM.

President Ferranti, of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, lecturing in London last night, predicted marvelous developments in electricity. Having explained a scheme for a universal supply of electricity for all purposes at a sixteenth of the present cost, he declared that when electricity was understood more fully it would probably control the weather, producing or preventing rainfall when and where it was wished.

All things now achieved by coal could be better done by electricity, he said. Consequently all coal should be converted in electricity at a few big centres and retailed from them. This would save annually 90,000,000 tons of coal, while the by-products of conversion would give enough ammonium sulphate to fertilize all the cultivated land of England.

A Dressmaking Hint.

The Riverman

By Stewart Edward White

When a rough, sturdy, man-mastering lumber driver, boss of the lawless "river jacks," starts out to win the heart and hand of an aristocratic young woman of eastern wealth and fashion, interesting things are apt to happen. They do happen, as readers of this story will agree. Jack Orde is the type of man who has gone into the American wildernesses and reclaimed them from themselves, from lawbreaking and debauchery. The brilliant author's descriptions o the battles between man and nature and between man and man in the lumber fastnesses of the great northwest ,set one's blood a-tingle. They show that man is superman when courage swells his heart. And the wooing and winning of Carroll Bishop by Jack Orde supply captivating romance that cannot fail to charm.

Chapter 1

THE time was the year 1872 and the place a bend in the river above a long pond terminating in a dam. Beyond this dam and on a flat lower than it stood a two story mill structure. A crew of lumbermen lounged about two fires at the upper end of the pond—idle because of the strong adverse wind and the unexpected weakness of the current, which had arrested the progress of their thousands of logs. Suddenly a solitary figure appeared around a river bend. His progress was jerky and on an uneven zigzag, according as the logs lay, by leaps, short runs, brief pauses, as a riverman goes. Finally he stepped ashore just below the camp, stamped his feet vigorously free of water and approached the group around the cooking fire.

The newcomer was a man somewhere about thirty years of age, squarely built, big of bone, compact in bulk. His face was burly, jolly and reddened rather than tanned by long exposure. A pair of twinkling blue eyes and a humorously quirked mouth redeemed his countenance from commonplaceness. "Well, boys," he remarked at last in a rollicking big voice, "I'm glad to see the situation hasn't spoiled your appetites."

Tom North, in charge of the lumbermen, rose. He and the newcomer, who was Jack Orde, his principal, sauntered to the water's edge, where they stood for a minute looking at the logs and the ruffled expanse of water below. "It's a pity that old mossback had to put in a mill," said Orde. "The water was slack enough before, but now there seems to be no current at all."

"Case of wait for the wind," agreed Tom North. "Old Daly will be red-headed. He must be about out of logs at the mill, and I expect Johnson's drive will be down on our rear most any time."

"It's there already. Let's go take a look," suggested Orde.

"Sluice open all right," commented Orde.

Orde walked out on the structure and looked down on the smooth water rushing through.

"Ought to make a draw," he reflected. Then he laughed. "Tom, look here," he called. "Climb down and take a squint at this."

The sluice, instead of bedding at the natural channel of the river, had been built a good six feet above that level; so that, even with the gates wide open, a "head" of six feet was retained in the slack water of the pond.

"You haven't been square," said Orde.

"No wonder we couldn't get a draw," said Orde. "Let's hunt up old What's-his-name and have a powwow."

"His name is plain Reed," explained North. "There he comes now."

The owner of the dam flapped into view as a lank and lengthy white haired individual dressed in loose, long clothes and wearing atop a battered old plug hat.

"You haven't been square," said Orde. "You aren't letting us get our logs out."

"How so?" snapped the owner, his thin lips tightening.

"That sluice is a good six foot too high."

"Is that so!" cried the old man excitedly. "Well, I'm giving you all the law gives you, and that's the natural flow of the river, and not a thing more will you get."

Somewhat astonished at this outbreak, the two rivermen stood for a moment staring at the old man. Then a steely glint crept into Orde's frank blue eye and the corners of his mouth tightened.

"We want no trouble with you, Mr. Reed," said Orde. "But this is the only dam on the river wth sluices built up that way, and I do know that we'll never get those logs out if we don't get more draw on the water. Good day."

Followed by the reluctant North, he walked away.

Chapter 2

THE next morning dawned clear and breathless. As soon as the wind died the logs had begun to drift slowly out into the open water. The surface of the pond was covered with the scattered timbers floating idly. After a few moments the clank of the bars and ratchet was heard as two of the men raised the heavy sluice gate on the dam.

Four more had by this time joined the two men who had raised the gate, and all together, armed with long pike poles, walked out on the funnel shaped booms that should concentrate the logs into the chute. Here they prodded forward the few timbers within reach and waited patiently for more.

Jack Orde wandered back and forth over the work, his hands clasped behind his back, a short pipe clinched between his teeth. To the edge of the drive he rode the logs, then took to the bank and strolled down to the dam. Meeting Tom North's troubled glance, he grinned broadly.

"Told you we'd have Johnson on our necks," he remarked, jerking his thumb up river toward a rapidly approaching figure.

This soon defined itself as a tall individual with a choleric blue eye.

"What in hades is the matter here?" he yelled. "We're right at your rear,

"By your own folly shall ye perish."

and you ain't even made a start gettin' through this dam! We'll lose the water next!"

"Keep your shirt on," advised Orde. "If you want these logs pushed any faster, do it yourself."

"If you can't get out logs, why do you take the job?" roared Johnson. "If you hang my drive, blank you, you'll catch it for damages! I tell you our mills need logs, and, what's more, they're a-goin' to git them!"

He departed in a rumble of vituperation.

Orde found the old mill owner occupying a chair tilted back against the wall of the building. His ruffled plug hat was thrust, as usual, well away from his high and narrow forehead. He was whittling a pine stick, which he held pointing down between his spread knees, and conversing animatedly with a young fellow occupying another chair at his side.

"I want to talk this matter over," Orde began. "We can't afford to hang up the drive, and the water is going down every day. We've got to have more water. I'll tell you what we'll do: If you'll let us cut down the new sill we'll replace it in good shape when we get all our logs through."

"No, sir!"

"Well, we'll give you something for the privilege. What do you think is fair?"

"I tell you I'll give you your legal rights and not a cent more," replied the old man.

"Well, Mr. Reed, stop and think what this means," returned Orde. "No logs means no lumber. That is bankruptcy for a good many who have contracts to fulfill. And no logs means the mills must close. Thousands of men will be thrown out of their jobs, and a good many of them will go hungry. And with the stream full of the old cutting, that means less to do next winter in the woods—more men thrown out. Getting out a season's cut with the flood water is a pretty serious matter to a great many people, and if you insist on holding us up here in this slack water the situation will soon become alarming."

The old man brought to earth the front legs of his chair with a thump.

"And if the whole kit and caboodle of ye starved outright," said he, "it would but be the fulfillin' of the word of the prophet who says: 'So will I send upon you famine and evil beasts, and they shall bereave thee, and pestilence and blood shall pass through thee, and I will bring the sword upon thee. I the Lord have spoken it!' And don't forget that. Ye that make of God's smilin' land waste places and a wilderness by your own folly shall ye perish."

Orde whirled on his heel.

The young man, who sat an interested spectator, arose and joined him. He was a very slender young man, with a shrewd, thin face, steel gray eyes.

"Wait a minute," said the young fellow. "Have you any objections to my hanging around a little to watch the work? My name is Newmark—Joseph Newmark. I'm out in this country a good deal for my health. This thing interests me."

"Sure," replied Orde, puzzled. "Look all you want to. The scenery's free."

"Yes. But can you put me up?"

"Oh, as far as I'm concerned," agreed Orde heartily. "But," with one of his contagious chuckles, "I'm only river boss. You'll have to fix it up with the doctor—the cook, I mean," he explained, as Newmark looked puzzled. "You'll find him at camp."

In the center of the stream the work had been gradually slowing down to a standstill with the subsidence of the first rush of water after the sluice gate was opened. Tom North, leaning gracefully against the shaft of a peavy, looked up eagerly as Orde approached.

"Is it peace or war?"

"War," replied Orde briefly.

Chapter 3

AT this moment the cook stepped into view and sent across the water a long, weird and not unmusical cry. The men at once began slowly to drift in the direction of the camp. There, when the tin plates had all been filled, Orde addressed them.

"Boys," said he, "the old mossback has built up the sill of that gate until we can't get a draw on the water, and he refuses to give, lend or sell us the right to cut her out. Now, we've got to get those logs out. Johnny Sims, what's the answer?"

"Cut her out," grinned Sims.

"Correct, replied Orde, with a chuckle. "But it's against the law to interfere with another man's property."

This was so obviously humorous in intent that its only reception consisted of more grins from everybody.

"The nearest sheriff's at Spruce Rapid," commented some one philosophically.

"We have sixty men, all told," said Orde. "We ought to be able to carry it through."

He filled his plate and walked across to a vacant place. Here he found himself next to Newmark.

"Hello!" he greeted that young man. "Fixed it with the doctor all right?"

"Yes," replied Newmark, "thanks. I think I ought to tell you that the sheriff is not at Spruce Rapids, but at the village—expecting trouble."

Orde roared in delight.

"Boys," he called, "old Plug Hat's got the sheriff right handy. Has he a posse?" inquired Orde of Newmark.

"I didn't see any, but I heard that the governor had been advised to hold troops in readiness."

At last Orde's face cleared, and he slapped down his tin plate violently.

"I have it!" he cried aloud.

He instructed a half dozen men to provide themselves with saws, axes, picks and shovels and march toward the mill.

When near the structure the riverman saw the lank, black figure of the mill owner mount a bony old horse and clatter away into the forest.

Orde rapidly designated ten men of his crew. "You make things hum. Get as much done as you can before the sheriff comes, and when that sheriff comes I want you to go peaceably. Understand?"

"Cave in? Not much!" cried Purdy.

"See here," and Orde drew them aside in earnest conversation. When he had finished he clapped each of them on the back, and all moved off, laughing, to the dam.

"Now, boys," he commanded the others, "no row without orders. If there's going to be a fight I'll give the word."

The chopping crew descended to the bottom of the sluice, the gate of which had been shut, and began immediately to chop away at the apron.

The work had continued nearly an hour when Orde commanded the axe or more idlers back to camp.

"The sheriff will be here pretty quick now."

"And leave them to fight alone? Guess not," grumbled a tall, burly individual.

"Am I bossing this drive?" demanded Orde.

The riverman growled.

Smack, smack, sounded Orde's fists. The man went down in a heap, but immediately rebounded to his feet. Orde seized a peavy and stood with the murderous weapon upraised.

"Lie down, you hound, or I'll brain you!" he roared at the top of his great voice.

The man crouched, breathless.

"March!" commanded Orde. "You're through."

The man sullenly arose and slouched away.

The other men turned to the trail, leaving the ten at the sluice. When within the fringe of the brush Orde called a halt.

"Now, boys," he commanded, "squat down and lay low. If fight would do any good you know mighty well I'd fight. And the boys won't be in jail any longer than it takes to get a wire to Daly to bail them out. Smoke up and don't bother."

They filled their pipes and settled down to an enjoyment of the situation.

A half hour elapsed before the situation developed further. Then Tom North's friend Jim, who had gathered his long figure on the top of a stump, unclasped his knees and remarked that old Plug Hat was back.

The men peered cautiously through the brush. They saw Reed, accompanied by the sheriff, approach the dam. The working crew stacked their tools, resumed their jackets and departed with the sheriff.

"Well, I'll be derned!" ejaculated one of the concealed rivermen. "That's the first time I ever see one lonesome sheriff gather in ten river hogs without the aid of a Gatlin'."

Orde watched them disappear.

"Jim," said he, "and you, Ellis, and you, and you, and you, get to work on that dam. And remember this—if you are arrested, go peaceably. Any resistance will spoil the whole game." The men broke into mingled cheers and laughter as the full significance of Orde's plan reached them. They streamed back to the dam.

Reed came out, eyes blazing.

Reed stormed back and forth for a moment, then departed at full speed up the road.

"Now, boys, get as much done as possible," said Orde. "We better get back in the brush . . . arrest the whole b'lling of us . . . some sort of a blanket warrant."

"How about the other boys?" inquired North.

"I gave one of them a telegram to send to Daly," replied Orde. "Daly will be up to bail them out."

Once more they hid in the woods, and again, after a longer interval, the mill owner and the sheriff reappeared. Reed appeared to be expostulating violently and a number of times pointed up river, but the sheriff went ahead stolidly to the dam, summoned those working below and departed up the road as before. Reed stood uncertain until he saw the rivermen beginning to re-emerge from the brush, then followed the officer at top speed.

Without the necessity of command a half dozen men leaped down on the apron. The previous crews had made considerable progress in weakening the heavy supports. As soon as these should be cut out and the backing removed the mere sawing through of the massive sill should carry away the whole obstruction.

At 4 o'clock the sheriff made his third appearance, this time in a side bar buggy.

"I wish I dared join that confab," said Orde, "but he'd jug me sure."

"He wouldn't jug me," spoke up Newmark. "I'll go down." The young man departed in his precise, methodical manner. About sunset he returned.

"Well?" the crew demanded.

"Reed wanted the sheriff to stay and protect the dam," reported Newmark. "Sheriff refused. Said his duty was simply to arrest on warrant and as often as Reed got out warrants he'd serve them. Reed said then he should get a posse and hunt up Orde and the rest of them. Sheriff replied that as far as he could see the terms of his warrant were covered by the men he found working on the dam. Reed demanded protection. Sheriff said for him to get an injunction and it would be enforced."

"Well, that's all right," interjected Orde, with satisfaction. "We'll have her cut through before he gets that injunction."

FIVE PRIZES FOR ESSAYS ON MOOTED SUBJECT

Under what conditions, if any, would a normal woman be justified in entering into a marriage contract with a man who is favorably known to her, but whom she has known only a few minutes?

Would a young and beautiful woman be justified in marrying a man for social or financial reasons, or for the purpose of finding a home, ten minutes after she met him for the first time.

The Daily Press is anxious to find out from the readers of this paper just what their opinions are on the two questions propounded above.

In order to stimulate interest among our readers and bring out the ideas that must exist on such a subject, The Daily Press is going to offer five prizes for the best essays of not less than one hundred nor more than two hundred words each, which, in the opinion of the judges best answer the queries.

A first prize of five dollars in gold will be given to the reader whose essay is considered the best; a box for the performance of "He Fell in Love With His Wife," which is coming to the Plainfield theatre; for the second best essay, four orchestra seats for the performance of the same play, for the third best essay and for the two next best two orchestra seats.

The essays submitted will be passed upon by a committee of judges and the winners will be announced in this paper on Thursday, November 27.

Address your essay to "Judges," care of Daily Press.

WOMEN'S COLLEGE CLUB AND THE DRAMATIC ART

The College Club will produce two plays on Thursday afternoon and evening. "King Renes' Daughter," the music of Henry Smarts' cantata, will be one. The incidental solos will be sung by Miss Elsie Goddard and Mrs. H. R. Moyer. Miss Louise Curtis will appear in the title role and will be supported by Miss Elsie Goddard, Miss Ariadne Gilbert, Miss Alice Forsythe, Mrs. Harold Cuhmier, Miss Phoebe Lovell and Miss Harriet Goddard.

The second play chosen is "The Wigs," by Josephine Preston Peabody. In this the parts will be taken by Miss Isabel Ashwell, Miss Margaret McCutchen, Miss Harriet Goddard and Miss Margaret Mosher. The proceeds will be devoted to the Scholarship Fund.

COURT PLAINFIELD HAS A BUSY SESSION.

At the meeting of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, last night, one candidate was initiated, five applicants elected to membership and three applications were received. Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger W. T. Bingham spoke to the members about the great benefits of the order and the large increase of membership and funds, the reserve fund being now over $16,000,000.

The following committee was appointed for the usual entertainment and dance to be held in January: Louis Feising, Robert T. Skinner, Henry Hansen, John R. Cline, Wm. Skinner, John F. Casey, James T. McCarty, Thomas Fitzgerald, LeRoy DeCamp, James Brown, Frederick Breem and John Vardon.

A fine collation and smoker followed the meeting, during which the pinochle championship was won by Edward J. McCann and Thomas Roddy won the booby prize.

FIRE IN BOROUGH HOME CAUSES $100 DAMAGE.

The borough fire department was called out at 6:15 last evening for a small blaze at the home of William Hanton, Jackson and Westervelt avenues. It was in a clothes press on the second floor and was confined to the one room.

The flames were extinguished by chemicals before gaining any great headway. The press and its contents were destroyed. The damage is placed at $100.

Will Give a Banquet and Dance.

The members of the Plainfield Merchants' Association will tender a banquet and dance to their employes in Sebring's Hall on West Front street, on November 30.

MISS HEATH LOST HER MOTHER AND HUSBAND

Mrs. Emily E. Hoff (nee Randolph), widow of the late Lewis B. Hoff, who died at Overbrook Hospital for the Insane, October 25 last, was the mother of Mrs. Carrie A. H. Heath, who lost her husband on October 24 at Newark.

J. Charles Heath, who was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heath and husband of Mrs. Carrie A. H. Heath, died while on duty at the office of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung, Newark, October 24 last.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Herbert S. Parker and daughter, Mary Alice have returned from a visit to Mr. Parker's parents at Norwalk, Ohio.

Mr. Allen Cowperthwait, of Hydewood Park, has returned from Titusville, Pa., where he attended the funeral of Mrs. Cowperthwait's mother, Mrs. Julius Byles, who died last Sunday and whose funeral took place on Tuesday.

C. William Bingeman, physical director of the boys department of the Y. M. C. A., is spending the week-end at Springfield, Mass. He will attend the football game between the Springfield Training School and the Massachusetts Aggies today. Mr. Bingeman is graduate of the Springfield Training School, class of 1909.

HAT MATERIALS.

Although black velvet will triumph as the leading fabric for autumn millinery there are other materials that will also be much in vogue. Satin, panne, cashmere de soie, peau de suede and Pekin velvet all add to the wealth of materials that are offered to the milliner and will all have their devotees.

A chic touch is imparted at the present moment to the hat of black velvet or stretched black satin by the brim of white lace, sometimes of Irish crochet or print de Venise.

This is a noticeable fashion that has been introduced to carry out the still favorite combination of black and white and the wearing of one huge clematis bloom of white velvet, centered with black, placed at the left side, accentuates the harmony and completes the magpie scheme.

Use of a Bicycle Pump.

If you have a discarded bicycle pump turn it to household uses as a cleaner. It will save you a lot of time in getting the dust from the clogged parts of a sewing machine, washing machine or sweeper. Blow out the worst of the dust with the pump, then finish with wiping with a soft cloth and give a good oiling. The pump saves time for the typewriter in going over her machine each day. Be careful in using it to blow across the dusty parts, not back into the delicate mechanism.

New Scarfs.

A pretty example of the fashionable scarf seen recently was of gray moire on one side and of moire satin on the other, the end finished with little round bows of gray and mauve satin ending in a silk-covered wooden bead. For those in half mourning comes another lovely scarf, of white n'non de soie, with large chenille dots in black. This is very stunning with a black and white costume.

WILSON ENEMY OF LABOR

WORKMEN CONDEMN NOMINEE.

Trades Union Advocate Recalls What He Said to Princeton Graduating Class on June 13, 1909.

The Trades Union Advocate, the official organ of all labor unions, says in its current issue the following about the candidacy for governor of Dr. Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton:

"Wodrow Wilson, the Democratic candidate for governor, spoke at the opera house on Monday evening to a large audience, most of whom were disappointed, because they expected to hear a brilliant orator and to hear him say something. Woodrow Wilson's speech contained nothing to draw him votes, and in fact he lost votes by his appearance before a Trenton audience. His speech showed him to be unacquainted with the practical affairs of life and of State government, and unfit and unqualified to fill the office of governor of the great State of New Jersey, although it is small.

"His statement to the effect that he did not know what influences brought about his nomination, if true, proves him to be too 'innocent' to guard the interests of the State of New Jersey and its citizens. Everybody in the State who knows anything knows that he was nominated by Wall Street financiers, through 'Jim' Smith and 'Bob' Davis, two 'great reformers.' A great many wage-earners went to the opera house on Monday night expecting to hear Wilson try to explain his utterances against wage-earners in his bacalaureate sermon to the Princeton university graduates on Sunday, June 13, 1909, when he said, according to the True American of June 14:

"'You know what the usual standard of the employe is in our day. It is to give as little as he may for his wages. Labor is standardized by the trades unions and this is the standard to which it is made to conform. No one is suffered to do more than the average workman can do; in some trades and handicrafts no one is suffered to do more than the least skillful of his fellows can do within the hours allotted to a day's labor, and no one may work out of hours at all or volunteer anything beyond the minimum. I need not point out how economically disastrous such a regulation of labor is. It is so unprofitable to the employer that in some trades it will presently not be worth while to attempt anything at all. He had better stop atogether than to operate at an inevitable and invariable loss. The labor of America is rapidly becomng unprofitable under its present regulation by those who have determined to reduce it to a minimum. Our economic supremacy may be lost because the country grows more and more full of unprofitable servants.'

"But Mr. Wilson, although so 'innocent,' knew better than to deny his own utterances, as published from furnished copy, in nearly every daily paper in the State of New Jersey and also in New York and Philadelphia papers. And he did not possess nerve enough to even attempt to qualify them.

"Therefore the wage-earner will accept them as his true sentiments, which they evidently are, because they were delivered in a sermon to the graduating class of the university after careful preparation, and were intended to be guiding words to the members of the class, after they left the university and went out into the world as employers of labor, intended to instill in their minds a hatred for and contempt of wage-earners, and especially organized wage-earners.

"And the wage-earners, and especially the organized wage-earners, should and will remember on election day the sentiments of Woodrow Wilson toward them as expressed to the graduating class on June 13, 1909, and will express their sentiments of Woodrow Wilson on election day, 1910, in no uncertain way.

"Union men, be union men this time. Forget party allegiance. Cast your vote against this 'intellectual fop' who has so falsely and wrongfully denounced you and your wage-earning brothers.

"Every union man who is interested in the welfare of the movement should register for the election November 8."

TWO NEW DIRECTORS FOR STATE TRUST CO.

At a regular meeting of the board of directors of the State Trust Company last night R. Henry Depew and George H. Frost were unanimously elected directors.

Mr. Depew is a member of the firm of See & Depew, insurance brokers, of New York city. He is also president of the Peoples Lobby, of the State of New Jersey; president of the Plainfield Protective Association adn is interested in other affairs of the city.

Mr. Frost is president of the Engineering News, president of the Courier-News Publishing Co., and has other large outside interests.

The affairs of the new trust company are moving along satisfactorily many new accounts having been opened. The new manganese steel vault has created widespread interest and a large number of safe deposit boxes have been rented.

The company is using every endeavor to meet the requirements of its clients in every possible way and if careful attention and courteous treatment will win the company friends it will in a short time have a large following.

H. K. CARROLL REVIEWS WORLD MISSION MEETING

At the First Presbyterian church last night H. K. Carroll spoke of his impressions of the recent missionary conference held in Edinburgh, Scotland last June. He said that the scope of the conference was to consider missions among non-Christian people and of these there are about a thousand millions. He spoke glowingly of the wonderful hospitality of the people of Edinburgh, and of the fine weather during the two weeks of the conference.

The conference demonstrated, he said, the essential unity of evangelical Protestantism. Men who spoke at its sessions were of all denominations: High Church, Low Church and Broad Church Episcopalians, Protestant monks, missionaries of all denominations, Oriental Christians in their native costumes, etc. It demonstrated also not only a unity of fellowship of these various denominations but a unity in regard to the great fundamentals of the Christian faith, in loyalty to the Bible and the divinity of Jesus Christ.

Furthermore, he continued, it demonstrated that the Gospel was sufficient to meet the social and intellectual difficulties of all men. It demonstrated that the settled purpose of evangelical Christianity is to give the Gospel to the whole world immediately. There are untold difficulties in the way. One of these is that there are yet in the world 113,000,000 of people who have never heard of Jesus Christ.

The outcome of the conference, concluded Dr. Carroll, was that we all received a new realization of the sufficiency of God as we looked at the many new difficulties in mission work, a new realization of the power of united purpose, and the power of prayer.

MISS BERTHA E. PECK FRED J. BORRUP'S BRIDE.

In the presence of immediate relatives and a few intimate friends Miss Bertha E. Peck, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Peck, was married at 7:30 o'clock last night to Fred J. Borrup, also of this city, at the couple's newly furnished home on Netherwood avenue. The ceremony was performed beneath a bower of autumn leaves by the Rev. John W. Musson. The house was tastefully decorated with smilax.

The bride was given away by her brother, Howard W. Peck. Miss Bertha F. Manning was maid of honor and Albert F. Yaeger acted as best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Florence M. Yaeger and Charles Kirchner acted as usher. The bride was attired in a white messaline gown draped with chiffon and wore a tulle veil caught up with lillies of the valley She carried a shower bouquet of lillies of the valley and bride's roses. The maid of honor was attired in a green silk warped chiffon gown with silver trimming and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The couple received many beautiful gifts consisting chiefly of cut glass, silverware and furniture.

After the ceremony a reception was held before the young couple left on a short wedding trip.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association will meet this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Grace M. E. church.

Frank Hallenbeck, of Somerset street, who was under treatment at Muhlenberg hospital, has recovered and returned to his home.

CASE'S "EDWARD T." WINS

Finishes First in Three Straight Heats in 2:15 Trot or Pace at Driving Park.

FOUR EVENTS ON PROGRAM.

Cortelyou's "Ravenwood" First in the 2:20 Trot or Pace—Yorke's "District Attorney" Wins Running Race.

More than one thousand people attended the money race meet at the driving park, yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Plainfield Driving Association, and enjoyed the fine program, which comprised two trotting and pacing races, a running race and one race for ponies. The entry list was large for each race, including some of the best horses to be found in this part of the State, and all made unusually good time, considering the fact that the weather conditions were not the best for fast time.

The first race, a 2:15 trot or pace, was won in straight heats by A. S. Case's "Edward T.," with Edward McLoughlin's "Orianna" second. A. C. Blairs "Aron B.," a local entry, finished third, much to the disappointment of the Plainfielders.

The second race, a 2:20 trot and pace, was won by H. P. Cortelyou's "Ravenwood," with Dr. Burdick's "Peerless Pete" second. I. Huff's "Bessie Burns," E. B. Allen's "Little Ella A." and A. Schluer's "Dr. Bill" were ruled out in this race, failing to finish within the time limit in the third heat, and they were not allowed to start in the fourth heat.

The running race, three-quarters of a mile distance, was one of the best of the afternoon. This was won by "District Attorney," owned by C. F. Yorke, of Newark the time being 1:18. K. B. Schley's "Genessee" finished second; Hugh Gormley's "Smug" third, and John Booraem's "Mastiff" fourth.

The last race for ponies was won by Harry A. Bourne's "Single O." The distance was three-eighths of a mile, and the time was thirty-five seconds. Harry Rose's "Casabianca" finished second, and "Maid of Erin" was third, while K. B. Schley's "Cheyenne" came in last.

While the races were in progress, the riding members of the Watchung Hunt Club finished their drag hunt at the park, and it was a pretty sight to see them in their bright colored jackets and skirts encircle the park and take a jump prepared for them near the grand-stand. Miss Mabel B. Hooley and Miss Gertrude Noe, together with about twenty men, comprised the hunters who were following the hounds. The summary:

2:15 Trot and Pace—Purse $200.

Threw Stone Through Window.

Someone threw a stone through the window of the home of Mrs. Hegeman at 446 West Second street last night and got away before his identity could be established. Mrs. Hegeman said she had her suspicions, but was not certain that she was right. Anyway, a warm welcome awaits the perpetrator if he repeats the outrage.

Only a Scare.

At 2:45 this morning Joseph Sattell, of 221 East Sixth street, notified the police that someone was prowling around in the house next door who had no business there. Patrolmen O'Keefe and McDonald were sent on the double quick to the address, but after a thorough search no intruder was found.

Two Dollars From Friends.

Two more contributions were received by the Daily Press today for the farmer's boy who lost $38 on October 2. One dollar came from "a friend" and another from A. B. This reduces the amount needed to $26.

LOCAL ELKS AT THE PATERSON DEDICATION

Forty members of Plainfield lodge, No. 85, B. P. O. E., journeyed to Paterson yesterday, and participated in the dedication of the new Elks' club house in that city. Most of the Plainfielders made the trip by auto, leaving at noon, while the remainder went by train. All the machines made the trip without mishap.

The exercises included a parade in which 5,000 of the antlered host were in line, a dedication ceremony in the new home at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and a grand ball in the armory which continued until 5 o'clock this morning. Vivian Lewis, Republican candidate for governor, is a member of Paterson lodge and was one of the reception committee.

The new home is declared to be the finest structure of its kind in the State. It has every accommodation for members and guests and is most elaborately fitted up. It represents an outlay of about $100,000.

DENTAL SOCIETY DINES AT PEDEFLOU'S HOTEL

The Plainfield Dental Society held its first fall meeting at Pedeflous' Hotel, last night, with a full attendance. Dr. C. M. F. Egel, president, presided at the meeting, which preceded the dinner. Those present were Drs. C. R. Thiers, F. W. French, Raymond Stevens, R. W. Emerson, C. L. Moore, G. T. Moore, Grant T. Clawson, O. B. Whitford, Clive Montfort, W. E. Stelle, F. S. Wells, Charles Davis, Guy Hillman, C. W. Leonard and B. F. Leonard, of this city; Dr. C. M. F. Egel, of Westfield; Dr T. J. Hogan, of Dunellen; Drs. Voorhees and Naylor, of Somerville.

It was decided the coming year to secure as speakers leading men in the dental profession and to conduct lantern and table clinics. Announcement concerning the meeting for next month will be made within a short time.

ALLEGED HORSE THIEF CAUGHT ON TROLLEY CAR

A one-legged man giving his name as James Sullivan, of New Brunswick, was arrested by Detective Sergeant John Flynn this morning while passing through this city on a main line trolley car. It is alleged that Sullivan was wanted in New Brunswick on a charge of horse stealing. A description of the man was telephoned to Police Chief Kiely yesterday morning and it was on this description he was picked up by Flynn.

Sullivan was indignant at his arrest claiming that he was a newspaper man and an expert stenographer, and that he was out on legitimate business. He was taken to New Brunswick by Chief O'Connell this morning. According to Chief O'Connell the rig was stolen from in front of a church while the owner was inside. Sullivan drove the horse to Bound Brook where he put it up at a livery for the night. When the proprietor of the stable wanted two dollars for the keep of the animal over night Sullivan did not have the money. He borrowed carfare to New Brunswick, but didn't go there. He came to this city instead and was nabbed.

1911 E.-M.-F. "30" $1,000. Flanders "20" $700.

The announcement made by the Studebaker Company in last Sunday's papers that the price of the E.-M.-F. "30" for 1911 would be reduced to $1,000 complete with magneto and full lamp equipment, and the Flanders "20", with similar equipment, $700, was the biggest surprise in the automobile industry.

The E.-M.-F. is one of the cars that has made good from the start; it has always been considered among the automobile trade as being by far the best car selling around $1,250. It has been greatly refined and improved during the past 3 years, and at $1,000 there is absolutely no car that can even be considered a competitor.

Naturally the competition for this agency has been very keen, and Andrew C. Thompson is the lucky dealer to close up for this section. Mr. Thompson now represents the most complete line of popular cars, ranging in price from $700 for a Flanders "20" to $3,000 for a Chalmers "40", gunboat type. ***

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Lie returned home yesterday on the Scandinavian-American Line steamer, Tietjen, after spending a year and a half abroad, and they are located in their apartments in the Babcock building.

IN MEMORY OF COLUMBUS

AT THE HOTEL WALDORF.

Fathers Bogan and Miller and Others Respond to Toasts—P. H. Burns Toastmaster—An Excellent Menu.

Not the least of the Columbus Day celebrations was the banquet of Watchung Council, No. 552 Knights of Columbus, held at the Waldorf last night. Sixty-four members of the order enjoyed one of Mr. Windhams famous culinary efforts and listened to some eloquent speeches, the last one ending in three cheers for the discoverer of America. Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, was the principal speaker, taking for his topic "Indifference." The other speakers were District deputy J. F. O'Neill, of Jersey City; Rev. William H. Miller, pastor of the St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, and A. E. Kenney, also of the borough. Paul H. Burns, was a capable toastmaster. Mr. Burns said that this was his maiden effort, but he appeared to have been to the manner born, acquitting himself with the ease of an old hand.

Several allusions were made during the entertainment part of the program to several of the candidates now running for office, some of which brought forth cheers while others were accompanied with groans. However, the evening was a pleasant one for all who attended the dinner and the event will no doubt be repeated in years to come as a regular function.

Owing to the lateness of the hour at which the last course was disposed of some of the speeches were brief and the order of sequence was changed in order to allow Mr. O'Neil to catch a train. Mr. O'Neil said that in order to properly appreciate what Columbus Day really means we would have to go back about 450 years to the time when we can in fancy see a man looking for help in the great enterprise in which his soul was wrapped. And taking another look see the same man dying with the chains about his feet in a prison cell. But at last, although his deeds are but a memory, his name is cheered and revered today all over this vast country, and that reverence is due in a large measure to the Knights of Columbus. And the same knights must plead guilty to being responsible for the day which is gradually becoming one of the greatest days in our country.

Mr. O'Neil declared with much emphasis that a year from this November Mark Sullivan, who is a knight, will certainly be elected Mayor of Jersey City. The votes for him are already counted.

Father Miller gave a history of the life of Columbus and showed to the company a photograph of the house in which the explorer was born which is still standing in Genoa, Italy. He concluded by telling the members that they had a great work to do in defending the church, of which they are members and upholding the character of Christopher Columbus.

A. E. Kenney's subject was "Patriotism," to which he devoted about ten minutes. His central thought was that patriotism coupled to faith made an irrestible combination and brought positive results. He declared that the Knights of Columbus ought to be the foremost organization to celebrate the discovery of America by Columbus, not alone as an organization, but as individuals and that the event should be kept alive until the end of time.

Father Bogan's reception as he arose to speak must have warmed his heart. The applause lasted for at least a minute and as usual he started with a joke. "Wouldn't it have been an awful thing," he asked, "if Christopher Columbus had not discovered us? Under these comfortable circumstances, having disposed of a hearty meal the remnants of which will be strewn along the shores of time in the morning, let the melody of a serious thought find its echo in your hearts. A sermon at this time would be eminently out of place, but there are some serious thoughts which wont hurt even now. There are achievements which Columbianism can attain and there are no heights which it cannot scale. This is shown in the determination with which the discoverer of this beautiful land of ours prosecuted his ideals.

"Now the nations of the old world look aghast at our progress and our hearts throb at the spirit of freedom which knocks out the old ideals. Every man may lift his hat in reverence to his fellow and feel the responsive thrill of joy at emancipation from the old rules. The achievements of the past and the opportunities of the future should stimulate you to load, aim straight and fire

VICTIM OF 'IMAGINITIS', IN OTHER WORDS, LIQUOR

John E. Hickey, a horseman, who claims Gravesend, L. I., as his home, was fined $10 this morning for being drunk and forcing an entrance into the hospital nurses' home on Park avenue. Judge Runyon remarked after fining the man that it would be better for him to swear off if liquor led him into such serious trouble every time he indulged.

According to Patrolman O'Keefe, who made the arrest, Hickey forced open a window in the home and, finding the place dark, turned on the lights and apparently was going to make himself at home and comfortable for the night. Naturally the intrusion awoke one of the nurses, who notified police headquarters.

Hickey said that he drove two winners at the races at the driving park yesterday afternoon and his success made him feel like celebrating, which he proceeded to do lavishly. He had no recollection of how he got in the house nor what his intentions might have been after his arrival. He will have to spend twenty days in the county jail if his fine is not paid today. He told the nurse who discovered him that she was suffering from "imaginitis."

FIND YOUNG WOMAN DEAD IN BASEMENT

Miss Alice Callahan, daughter of the late Michael Callahan, of 325 East Third street, was found dead at 10 o'clock this morning in the basement of her home, by Mrs. Thomas, who lives at the same address. Epilepsy with which Miss Callahan had been afflicted is believed to have been the cause of death. Dr. J. F. Lawson was summoned to the house by Mrs. Thomas and after examining the body notified Dr. F. W. Westcott, the county physician, who will investigate the case sometime today.

Miss Callahan had been in the garden picking some beans, when she complained of feeling ill, and she told Mrs. Thomas that she thought she would rest for awhile. Shortly afterward, someone called at the house to see Miss Callahan, and in searching for her, Mrs. Thomas found her dead in the basement.

The young woman had been subject to spells, having experienced an attack a couple of weeks ago while attending service at St. Mary's church. Her father, Michael Callahan, was employed for many years at the home of the late J. T. Closson on East Front street. He died in May last, and the young woman's sister, Mrs. Thomas J. Maher, died about the holidays last year. She was born in Plainfield and always lived here.

FAMED YOUNG 'CELLIST WILL BE HEARD HERE.

An announcement of great interest to the patrons of the McIntyre Chamber Music Concerts is made by Mr. McIntyre today. He has secured the services of Horace Britt, the famous 'cellist, for his trio, and Plainfield will be given an opportunity to hear him at the concerts to be given at the High School Auditorium.

Mr. Britt is a Frenchman and a young man with a most enviable reputation as a solo 'cellist with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and is now with the great Philharmonic Orchestra, of New York.

Mr. McIntyre is congratulating himself upon securing so great an artist as Mr. Britt, and feels that a warm welcome awaits a 'cellist of such excellence from the discriminating musical audiences of his concerts. The first of the series of concerts will be given on Tuesday evening, November 1.

Young People's Topics.

The topics for the Young People's League meetings at the Salvation Army for October, November and December follow: Oct. 16, "A Word to the Unsaved;" 23, "How God Deals with Sinners;" 30, "Walking in the Light;" Nov. 6, "The Service God Requires;" 13, "How are You Building;" 20, "Kept from Harm;" 27, "Thanksgiving;" Dec. 4, "God's Way;" 11, "Abiding in God;" 18, "Praise;" 25, "Our Savior."

Borough Republican Rally.

The regular weekly rally and meeting of the North Plainfield Republican club will be held in the club rooms, 82 Somerset street, tonight. Interesting speakers and music will be provided. An invitation is extended to all voters.

REPUBLICANS ENTHUSED AT THE DOLLAR DINNER

Speeches of Lewis, Griggs and Runyon are Roundly Cheered by Union County G. O. P. Workers at Big Banquet.

Vivian M. Lewis and Judge William N. Runyon, candidates for governor and congress, respectively, received ovations from the several hundred attendants at the dollar dinner last night in Turn Hall, Elizabeth, under the auspices of the Elizabeth Downtown Republican club and the Union county Republican committee. The chief speech of the evening, however, was made by former Governer John W. Griggs, who riddled Woodrow Wilson's arguments for a change in State government, challenged him to show where a dollar of the State's money had been unwisely expended, and scored him sharply for declaring that he was opposed to the whole protective principle.

Charles N. Fowler had been announced in the list of guests, but he was absent. So was Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield candidate for the assembly, who is ill. Others at the guest table were United States Senator John Kean, who was booked for a speech, but begged to be excused because of the lateness of the hour; Samuel G. Berry, candidate for mayor, and Augustus W. Schwartz and Peter H. Meisel, the two other candidates for the assembly.

When Vivian M. Lewis, candidate for governor, was introduced, he apologized for being late, telling how he had attended the dedication of the Elks' home in Paterson, and feared he would be kept until 11 o'clock. He asked that a toast be drunk to President Taft. All present then joined in the singing of America.

Mr. Lewis declared he believed in party government and in the Republican party, but he did not believe the boss should flourish anywhere. Then he began an account of what the Republicans had done for the State and country, declaring that the period in history during which the Republicans had been in control had been its golden era. "It has," he said, "given to the country the great Rail Splitter, Lincoln, he great soldier Grant, the wise statesman and martyr, William McKinley, the intrepid Roosevelt, and the present able occupant of the White House." He told of the Democratic management of State affairs, and how the power to make appropriations had been abdicated by the legislature and vested in the governor. When the Republicans assumed control they found the State on the verge of bankruptcy. Then Mr. Lewis showed how marvelous had been the increase in business in 15 years: how the amount of money invested in manufactures had multiplied and the wages paid to employes jumped from $83,000 on to $162,000. Without taking responsibility for all of this gain, he declared that it would not have been possible except for the wise management of affairs by the Republican party.

What the Republicans have done for the State's schools, health, water supply and roads was briefly rehearsed, and all, he said, without one break of scandal, a single defalcation or direct taxation. He showed how the Republicans had made the big corporations pay the increased taxation, and was vigorously applauded when he reminded his hearers that the State was not only without debt but had a million dollar balance in the treasury.

Mr. Lewis referred to the passage of the public utility law by the legislature last winter and the plank in the Republican platform therein demanding a clause in that law giving the utility board the power to fix rates. If such a measure came to him, as governor, he said, he would sign it. He promised to sign, too, a bill for the extension of the direct primary law, and declared in favor of any improvement in the ballot law that would permit the voters at the polls to express their wishes more clearly.

Mr. Griggs said he was a stalwart Republican. He was not a halfbreed. He deprecated the fashion in some quarters of talking of a change. He praised the Republican party for its achievements. The word Reform, he said, as applied to the Republican party, did not please him. The Republican party, he declared, was not in need of reform. It had nothing to apologize for. Progress onward, he said, is not reform.

Mr. Griggs said a party had to

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The yearly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist church was held Tuesday night in the parlors of the church. Beside the election of officers the reports of the various committee were read. The reports showed the society to be in a flourishing condition; the work accomplished during the past year was most encouraging. The treasurer's report showed a balance in the general fund of $47.14; missionary, $69.20, making a total of $116.34. The report of the music committee of which the pastor, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, is chairman, showed good work accomplished and a most promising outlook for the coming year. All the officers were re-elected. President, Mrs. Edward D. Johnston; vice-president, Capt. H. B. Saunders; treasurer, Miss Joplin; secretary, Miss Wilhelmina Hosinger; chairman missionary committee, Miss Addie Johnston; devotional committee, Mrs. John L. Hatfield; membership, Mrs. George L. Dunn; flower committee, Mrs. Edward L. Hand; music, Rev. F. K. Mathiews; social, Howard Broach. Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Baptist church, is considering the organizing of a choral union among the young people in town. The one last winter was a success and a number of good voices were developed. William Holmes, of Plainfield, was the leader of the union last year and will be engaged again this season if the union is organized.

Capt. H. B. Saunders, of Washington Valley, who has been spending several months along the New Found'and coast in the intreests of Loyds Marine Insurance Company, is expected to return home the last of the week.

Columbus Day was not generally observed by the residents here. The stores and factories did business in the same old way. No special events were scheduled.

Louis Wahl, of Manhattan avenue, has returned from a visit with relatives and friends in Brooklyn.

A number of the lover of horses from her attended the races held yesterday in Plainfield.

James Fitzgerald has returned from a visit with friends at Metuchen.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

It is an interesting fact that the stone used by the Public Service Corporation in re-macadamizing North avenue, is brought to Dunellen from Fairview, a distance of about forty miles. The company has a quarry located near there, the place being just above Fort Lee on the Palisades, and the stone is carried over the connecting trolley lines by cars. The average load is about twenty-five tons. It is said that the stone might be secured from the Dunellen or Plainfield quarries at a much cheaper rate but the P. S. C. prefers its own output.

Music lovers in the borough and village are agitating for the formation of another choral society to give one or two oratorios or cantatas through the coming winter. The fact that the Board of Education may possibly secure the services of William Holmes, of Plainfield, as instructor of music in the schools, has greatly encouraged the hopes of the agitators and they will make an effort to secure his services in the event of his accepting the school position.

The Republican voters in this district are preparing to give a rousing reception to Vivian Lewis, candidate for governor, when he visits the borough next Tuesday afternoon. He is scheduled to speak in front of the postoffice at 3:15. Mr. Lewis will be accompanied by Hon. Benjamin F. Howell and the assembly candidates from Middlesex.

The Dunellen baseball club will hold the season's first dance in Junior Hall tomorrow night. A large number of young people from out of town are expected to attend.

WESTFIELD.

Funeral services of David B. Lent were held yesterday afternoon at the home of Charles S. Beadle, in Garwood. Mr. Lent had lived in Garwood for a long time and was one of the original promoters of the village.

The corner-stone of the new fire department house will be laid Thursday of next week. All of the town officials will be present. The stone is to be given by C. E. Burtis, of Hose Company No. 1.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA.

Scientists are now agreed that the eczema germs are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required, not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommend to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25 cents, will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years, and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

David Belasco is said to have fairly outdone himself in the arrangement of the living room in the Wheeler's home, the scene of the first act of "Is Matrimony a Failure?" Its red plush chairs have become old-rose through age, and the over-decked mantel, with artificial flowers made of wax and shells under glass shades, without which, a few years ago, no suburban home of the better class was complete, never fail to elicit applause. The furniture and every detail of the interior decoration were made in England and imported to this country nearly two centuries ago. The settlement of an estate in the Hudson Valley placed these, almost priceless relics, on the market and Mr. Belasco was not slow to take advantage of the opportunity. This delightful comedy which has been the reigning success of Berlin and Vienna for the last two years and of the present season in this country, has been secured for an engagement at The Plainfield theatre, Monday night, October 17. The same cast and production which achieved so signal a triumph during its run at the Belasco (now Republic Theatre), New York, will be seen here.

"The Lion and the Mouse" Today.

Charles Klein's greatest play, "The Lion and the Mouse," will be presented at The Plainfield theatre today and the rest of the week by the Plainfield permanent stock company. Miss Ilka Diehl, Miss Eleanor Woodruff, Miss Gloria Gallup, Harold Mead and other members of the cast have exceptional roles in this play to display their talent, and a finished performance is promised. On Tuesday and Wednesday of next week "The Great Divide" will be produced.

Bible School Musical Service.

The First Baptist church Bible school extends an invitation to the members and the public in general to take part in a Bible School Song Service, to be conducted at the church Friday night by Grant Colfax Tuller, the song writer.

Mrs. David J. Yerkes, of Grove street, who has been seriously ill for some time, remains in about the same condition.

Thieves Loot Six Houses.

Westfield, Oct. 13.—Burglars made a tour of Cumberland and Downer streets, in the western section of Westfield, Tuesday night, entering the houses of C. L. Malsbury, Louis Davenport, M. Coddington, William Blackman, H. Kromer and Charles Kaylor. The thieves gathered up clothing and broke open children's penny savings banks. The most money secured was $2 at the Malsbury house. In each case entrance to the house was made by forcing up a window, and the thieves left by way of the back door and took the key with them. The police are working on the case.

D. G. Garabrant, of Bloomfield, a prominent Baptist layman, will speak at the First Baptist church, on Sunday, telling something of the work of the Baptist State convention. The convention is raising a large fund with which to extend its work in the State by way of building new churches and assisting weak ones.

The Plainfield-Somerville series of ball games proved rather disastrous for Plainfield, losing three of the four contests. The fans wonder whether "Warry" McLaughlin could not have done as well as Skillman or Ward. "Warry" won the first game at Somerville by a score of 9 to 2, and Plainfield never came near doing as well in the other contests.

It impressed one onlooker in Saturday's game with Somerville that the home team was far belaw its usual playing strength and he wonders how there could be such a difference in the work of the aggregation. The team did not either bat or field as it has been accustomed to doing.

The Plainfield team will meet Bound Brook on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, and the contest should be a good one, provided the locals return to their usual form. "Warry" McLaughlin will be in the box for Plainfield, it is reported.

The Plainfield team has had a successful season, winning a majority of its games. It is unfortunate that it did not make a better showing with Somerville, its old rivals. The result leaves a decidedly bad taste in the mouth of the local fan.

However, the series of four games turned out all right from a financial standpoint, both teams making money. Last Saturday's receipts were about $125, each team taking half.

The local baseball season is about over, and altogether it has been a success. Manager Dorflinger has put forth every effort to give the fans good ball and he has succeeded.

V. W. Nash, Jr., accompanied by a large number of fans went to New York today to see the first game between the Yankees and the Giants.

GOLF.

The house committee of the Plainfield Country Club has planned for an afternoon reception on Saturday and a dance in the evening, to which invitations have been issued. Van Baar's Old Guard Band, of New York, will furnish the music and altogether the affair should prove an enjoyable one. Stages will meet all the trolley cars throughout the afternoon and evening.

In addition to the affair at the club house, there will be golf and tennis on the links and courts, making the day a gala one at the club. There will be the semi-final rounds for the golf championship and the second rounds for the defeated eights, all of which should attract a large crowd.

The finals for the fall championship will be one of the important events at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, and in addition there will be a team match with Bound Brook. The links are now in fine condition and the weather is ideal for playing golf.

The nineteenth semi-annual thirty-six-hole medal play handicap, open only to members of the University Club, will be held over the links of the St. Andrews Golf Club on Wednesday, October 19. The handicaps will be based on the metropolitan list as far as possible. Prizes will be given for the three best net scores and for the best gross score for eighteen and thirty-six holes. Each entrant has been asked to send to the committee his home club handicap and the name of the person with whom he has arranged to play. Entries close on Tuesday, October 18, at 3 p. m., with Arthur H. Lockett, secretary, No. 25 Pine street, New York.

into the bullseye of your ambitions. Load your hearts with righteousness, your minds with learning and your souls with integrity and the day of the truest manhood that Catholic America can give you is yours. How can you be indifferent? It is true that some men are incapable of proper expansion and some will bow to the Giddess of Liberty with one hand extended in gesture and pick her pocket with the other, but we cannot be so low.

"I say to you that you should never cast a sovereign vote for a Catholic simply because he is a catholic and likewise do not vote for a non-Catholic because he is such. Party lines should not count. It is the man you must look at. If he is honest and capable he is the man to vote for. You can say 'my vote is an unpurchaseable treasure, and if I make a mistake God will judge me, not men.' If your conscience is clear you are the best American that can be produced. Act so that your country can trust you. Mark Hanna and the lamented McKinley have said that the principals of the Republic are best preserved through the moral teachings of the Catholic church. The press of our little city has never been afraid to tell the truth to its readers, but there are sheets which cannot tell it no matter how they try, and they are the most misleading sources of misinformation that we have in the country today.

"You are rallied around not only a flag, but a principle. Upright, fearless and courageous you stand today and exclaim that you have the best interests of your country at heart and the day is coming when you will see the best spheres of Catholic Americanism expanding to the limit of the country's possessions."

The committee having the banquet in charge were, D. J. Courain, chairman; H. P. Greenwood, F. J. Harding, F. J. Blatz, J. J. Carty and C. F. Fogarty. Music was furnished by Joseph A. Denny at the piano and a banjoist, while Johnny Campbell filled the room with his melodious voice in popular songs in which the company joined. The end of the fun came at precisely midnight.

REPUBLICAN DOLLAR DINNER

have leaders. Even a mob has leaders or a school of bluefish. He did not favor throwing a leader overboard, either, because he failed to suit everybody, any more than Columbus should have been thrown overboard because he would not heed the demand of his mutinous crew.

Mr. Griggs did not think the time had ever come for bolting the Republican party, though he praised those Democrats who had had the courage in 1896 to vote for him and for McKinley and to vote ever since against Bryanism. He scored Woodrow Wilson for his declaration that he never votes a Republican ticket, even while Bryanism menaced the country. Grover Cleveland, he said, even spoke against the new heresies of the Democratic party, and practically advised Democrats to vote for McKinley.

The speaker denounced the Democratic candidate for governor for his declaration that he was opposed to the protective tariff principle. He riddled the doctor's argument that labor unions and not protection had advanced American laborers' wages, showing that wages rose years before labor unions were thought of. He showed Dr. Wilson's inconsistency in this respect by quoting the doctor's slurry remarks about labor unions and his belief, as expressed, that they had never gained anything for the American workingman.

The free traders, the speaker declared, are, of course, earnestly suppotring Dr. Wilson, for they hope by his election to break down the bulwark of protection. Regarding Dr. Wilson's charge of extravagance in the State government by the Republicans, he challenged Dr. Wilson to go over the appropriations for the past year and show where any money had been wasted. He described the manner in which Dr. Wilson was nominated, scored him for his professed ignorance that any one got the nomination for him, and said the machine leaders picked him because they knew they could not win with one of their old crowd.

Mr. Griggs told about the way Democrats used to do things in the State government and the changes effected for the better in 15 years.

Judge Runyon lauded President Taft, who, he declared, had accomplished more in carrying out the pledges of his party's platform than any other occupant of the White House. He urged that Republican congressmen be sent to Washington to aid the president in carrying out pledges as yet unfulfilled. He defended the new tariff from its critics, saying that few realized what it had done in turning a deficit into a surplus. Necessary changes, he said, would be effected by the commission appointed by the president. The judge said it was no time for the Republicans to go to sleep. He admitted that the Democrats are putting up a strong fight, and that if the Republicans had not nominated a capable, honest man for governor they might be on the defensive. He, too, praised the Republican party for its many accomplishments, and asked personal support that he might help at Washington to uphold President Taft. If elected, he promised to do his best. He expected to make mistakes but they would be honest mistakes. He would be no one's puppet, and his hands would not be tied in any respect. He predicted victory if the party acts unitedly and every member works as he should, for its success.

MOTHER AND SON HURT; AND HIS UNCLE DIES.

Mrs. Mary Teeple and her two sons, Frederick and William, of South Plainfield, are confined to their home with severe injuries, the result of being thrown from a carriage, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Teeple was driving a horse belonging to Jeremiah TenEyck. The animal took fright at something in the road on Maple avenue and collided with a tree at the junction of Maple and Brookside avenues.

Frederick Teeple was picked up unconscious, while his brother and mother were also severely shaken up and injured. Dr. Nelson, of New Market, was summoned and it was several hours later before Frederick Teeple was revived.

The young man is a nephew of George Teeple, who died at South Plainfield yesterday. The latter succumbed to injuries received in a fall two weeks ago. He was a native of South Plainfield and in his younger days was a shipbuilder at Perth Amboy.

The funeral of George W. Teeple will be held from the South Plainfield church, Saturday morning, at 9:30 o'clock, and the burial will be at Perth Amboy.

MISS RUTH GARDNER WEDS WALTER E. NELSON

The First Baptist church at New Market was the scene of a wedding at 6 o'clock last evening when Miss Ruth Allen Gardner, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George H. Gardner, was made the wife of Walter Ernest Nelson, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Nelson, of New Market. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, who is pastor of the church and was witnessed by several hundred relatives and friends from Boston, Plantsville, Conn., Englewood, Trenton, New Brunswick, Plainfield, Dunellen and New Market.

Miss Gardner was attended by her sister, Mrs. E. E. Fitch, of Boston, as matron of honor, while another sister, Miss Frances E. Gardner, and Miss Bertha Nelson, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaids. Miss Elinor Bond, of Plantsville, was flower girl. The bride was charmingly gowned in white satin trimmed with pearls and Irish point lace. She carried a wreath of lilies-of-the-valley and bride roses. Her attendants were gowned in pink messaline with braided trimmings and carried pink carnations.

John L. Nelson, brother of the groom, was best man, and Dr. J. O. Camp, of Plantsville, and Lester Nelson, of New Market, acted as ushers. They were assisted by three ribbon holders, the Misses Hazel Piddington, Virginia Vail and Hannah Nelson. The Euterpean orchestra rendered the Mendelssohn wedding march as the bridal party entered and played appropriate numbers later. The double ring ceremony was used.

The church was elaborately decorated for the occasion, the interior presenting a most attractive appearance. Pink and white were the prevailing colors used. The bride and groom stood beneath an arch and suspended bell.

The church service was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents on Prospect avenue, New Market. Supper was served by Caterer Demolli and at its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Nelson left for a wedding trip. On returning they will make their home in New Market. The groom is a graduate of Rutgers college and was captain of the 'varsity baseball team. He has been catcher for the Plainfield Baseball club during the past season and is widely known as a player. He is employed by the Central Railroad as a civil engineer.

The bride and groom received a large number of presents, the array including silver, cut glass and furniture. The groom presented the best man and ushers with gold stick pins while the bride gave her attendants moon stone rings in Tiffany settings.

MR. SAUNDERS' ARGUMENT FOR "VOTES FOR WOMEN."

William L. Saunders will speak at the next meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of this city. His subject will be "Right and Strength in Equal Suffrage." He has a comprehensive and convincing argument in favor of granting the ballot to women. The Equal Suffrage League considers that they are very fortunate in procuring a speaker who brings to his subject a wide experience in the fields of politics, "business," science and philanthropy.

As a former mayor of North Plainfield, as president of the Ingersoll-Rand Society of Mining Engineers, and as a member of the welfare committee of the Civic Federation of New York city, he may fairly be said to represent many fields of activity. He will be glad to answer questions at the close of his address. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. Admission free.

UNION COUNTY MEDICOS MEET AT THE HUNT CLUB.

The Union County Medical Society held its quarterly meeting last night at the Watchung Hunt Club, there being about fifty members from all parts of the county present. Dr. Frederick Cladek, of Rahway, read a paper on "Some Common Therapeutic Remedies," which was followed by an informal discussion.

The members received a report on milk conditions on one farm in the county and a proper inspection will be made. The presentation of the paper and discussion followed a good dinner served by the club steward.

A Linen Shower.

Miss Flora Garlinghouse, of Scotch Plains, whose engagement to Alfred Lacey, of this city, was announced last week, was tendered a linen shower yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Laura Bornmann, of Westfield avenue, by about twenty of her friends.

RIGHT TO CRITICIZE

IRRITABLE MAN NOT THE BUTTER-IN HE SEEMED.

However, the Passengers Were Ready to Squelch the Man Who Objected to Baby's Crying, but He Got Off the Car.

The patient-looking mother seemed unable to do anything with the child. It hollered and yelled and carried on worse than a fan after a three-base hit by a member of the home team at the opening game.

Other passengers on the car fidgeted in their seats and looked greatly distressed, but said nothing, for the mother was apparently doing all she could to restore quiet.

The heavy chinned man right across the aisle from the woman seemed to be getting more and more annoyed by the racket—even more so than the rest of the people. After a time he was unable to restrain himself any longer.

"It seems to me," says he, turning to the woman, "that it's about time you were doing something to stop that baby's crying. I've sat here and put up with it just as long as I could, but I think it's up to you to see that there's a let up in it now pretty quick."

The patient mother cuddled the wailing youngster to her a trifle closer and gave the irritable male passenger a hurt look, but ventured no retort.

There was no cessation in the noise, but nearly everybody else in the car was in full sympathy with the woman now. Several able-bodied men turned around and glared at the square-chinned passenger who dared to speak his mind.

The latter, however, continued to express himself. "When a kid hollers like that," he opined, "there's some good reason for it. Children don't yell 'emselves hoarse because they've heard that their lungs need the exercise. If it hasn't been getting the right sort of food and feels crabbed and mean on that account, I hope you switch to some other kind of dope, that's all."

It is not improbable that two or three of the more muscular passengers would have spoken severely to the grouchy male complainant after the last outburst if he hadn't risen just then to get off the car. As he started toward the rear platform, the patient-looking little woman got up and followed him. When they had both reached the street, the man turned, took the child in his own arms—he still looking crabbed and it still reciting the lyrics to a war dance—and the trio went on up street.

The man was the child's father, and he had a perfect right to say whatever he wanted to about the manner of its bringing up.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Vacuous Explanation.

Bishop Sanford Olmsted, at a dinner in Denver, said in the course of an argument:

"That explanation not only fails to explain, but it reveals the commentator's ignorance. Thus it reminds me of a talk in a smoking car.

"Two men in a smoking car wrangled over the working of the vacuum brake.

"'The tubal inflation is what pulls up the train,' declared the first.

"'Rubbish! You're wrong,' the other insisted. 'It's the vent of the exhaust that does the business.'

"The brakeman just then passed. The two men halted him. They laid their argument before him for discussion. The brakeman, at the end, laughed heartily and shook his head.

"'Boys,' he said, 'you're wrong about the working of the vacuum brake. It's much simpler than you think. To stop the train we just turn the tap, and that fills the pipe with vacuum.'"

Chicken's Long Fast.

"Here is the story of the feat in the fasting line performed by a Grand Saline chicken. On Easter Sunday W. M. Loid placed a Rhode Island red and black Minorca chicken in his hen house along with other chickens. The next day these chickens were nowhere to be found, and it was believed they had strayed off or had met death. Twenty-eight days after the chickens were placed in the hen house they were found behind some nest boxes, wedged tightly in a crack, where they had probably failed in an attempt to fly out of the house.

The Rhode Island red was dead, but the black Minorca was still alive, though very weak. After being cared for and fed it began to improve and is still alive with every prospect of becoming as spry as ever.—Grand Saline Journal.

Golf With an Expert.

A story is told of two old antagonists who met on a Scotch golf course every Saturday afternoon.

On one occasion, when they were all "square" at the seventeenth and the loser of the previous week had just played his third in the shape of a nice approach to the green, last week's winner came up to his ball with grim purpose. He had an easy pitch to the green; but a number of young sheep were unconcernedly browsing along the edge.

"Run forward, laddie," said last week's winner to his caddie, "and drive awa' the lambs!"

"Na, na!" vigorously protested his opponent. "Bide where ye be, laddie! Ye canna move any growin' thing! That's the rule o' golf!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

LURED THE WORLD

SCOTT'S FICTION DID MUCH FOR NATIVE LAND.

Visitors in Thousands Gathered to See the Scenes Made Famous by Genius of the "Wizard of the North."

It is just a hundred years since Scott's poem, "The Lady of the Lake," appeared. Not in one single year of the century has it failed to bring to Scotland many thousands of dollars, says the New York World. Lockhart tells that immediately after "The Lady of the Lake" was published crowds set off to view Loch Katrine, and every hostelry in that neighborhood was crammed with a succession of visitors, and "from that time the post-horse duty in Scotland rose to an extraordinary degree."

Before "The Lady of the Lake" appeared the highlands of Scotland had been unknown to dwellers south of the Cheviots, but from the date of its publication the southron invaded Scotland, though more peaceably than in days of yore.

Mr. St. John tells us in his "Wild Sports of the Highlands" that young English ladies took to wearing tartans—especially those of a gay color—and the quiet Perthshire loch and glens were overrun by tourists quoting the poem as they climbed Ben Venue. It has been said that Walter Scott brought more money into that country than any other Scotsman.

Tourist "shrines" elsewhere have usually been associated with historic personalities—such as Shakespeare's tomb, Plymouth rock, the cell of Bonnivard. But it is historic fiction that has poured money into the Highlands; for "The Lady of the Lake" is a novel, in rhyme.

Nowadays tourists do the trip in a day from Glasgow to Edinburgh, beginning with Rob Roy country, passing thence into Ellen Douglas' region, and following backward the course of Fitz-James' ride to Stirling castle. This trip, by steamboat, rail and coach, has made Inversnaid, Stronachlachar, the Braes o' Balquhidder, Ben Voirlich, Ben Venue and the Trossachs familiar to more Americans than ever saw Jamestown.

The Glasgow waterworks have rather spoiled Loch Kathrine by flooding the strand where Ellen Douglas kept her boat. But Ellen, says the London Outlook, "dominates the whole poem; and Loch Katrine is surely haunted by her still. Here is the figure one would call up on the silver strand had one the power of Cornelius Agrippa; and the accents of her mountain tongue seem to blend with the breeze from the blue lake.

"And Fitz James and Black Roderick have also their backgrounds, their settings. The knight in Lincoln green, with his black-and-tan bloodhounds, belongs to the Trossachs, with their towering crags and birch trees; while as to the chief, does one not always picture him on his native heath, like his descendant Rob Roy, his tartans waving in the sunlight?

"It was surely this placing of these figures just where they should be placed that sent the English visitors in crowds to see the scenes to which they belonged, to behold the spot where the knight's gallant steed lay dying, to look into the cave where Ellen prayed to the Virgin, to gaze on Lanrick Mead, where the clansmen mustered, and seek Collantogle ford, where the desperate duel took place."

King Rewards Girl's Bravery.

The late King Edward shortly before his death bestowed a medal on Hannah Hugill, 15 years old, of Yorkshire, England, for her bravery in saving her mother from being gored by a bull. The incident occurred last fall. The mother went to a field to bring home several cows. She was attacked by a bull. At first she defended herself with a pitchfork, but she was knocked down by the animal, which began to gore her. Hannah, who had been left at the gate with orders not to enter the field, ran forward, and, picking up the pitchfork, attacked the bull and distracted his attention from her mother. By prodding him she kept the brute away from her mother and enabled the woman to creep along the ground to the fence and get away in safety. The courage of the girl and her presence of mind were brought to the attention of the king.

Side Lights on the Age of Chivalry.

Don Quixote had just proclaimed that the Donna Dulcinea del Toboso was the world's queen of beauty and loveliness, and had offered to shiver a lance with any knight who presumed to dispute the claim.

"Rats!" exclaimed the bystanders; "she's nothing but a hash slinger at a five-cent lunch counter!"

"Well," sturdily rejoined Don Quixote, "that doesn't disprove my assertion. Everybody knows that waiter girls are chosen for their looks, rather than for their efficiency!"

Can't Corner It.

"A woman's logic is a good deal like a flea," remarked the mere man.

"What's the answer?" queried the dense party.

"You know it's there, and it jumps around lively enough, but somehow you can never put your finger on it."

CHAPTER XIV.

THE MAN WHO WAITS.

THERE came no cablegram from Scotland next day. Loveland's mother did not answer his appeal. But Val tried to persuade himself that this was not strange. Perhaps she could not get together such a sum as he had asked for without a little delay, but she would send as soon as possible. He was as sure of that as he was sure that his present address ought to be first circle, hades.

The dollar which remained to him after sending his expensive cry across the sea was gone. He borrowed of Bill Willing, who offered and was delighted to lend. In a day or two at most, Loveland said, he would repay and planned to give Bill a handsome present as well. Meanwhile Loveland passed his time miserably between Alexander the Great's and the Bat hotel or walking the streets in the desperate hope of seeing some English face he knew. He saw many pleasant faces, to whom no appeal of sorrow would be made in vain. But they were strangers' faces, and he was not a beggar yet.

Four days dragged by, including one ghastly Sunday, and when there was still no word from Lady Loveland Val began to feel the heavy conviction that none would ever come. Some awful spell had fallen upon him, it seemed, a curse which made him a pariah even for those who loved him best.

He thought over his past and realized that he had been selfish. Never before had it occurred to him to pity others beyond a "poor old chap, so sorry, don't you know," and a quick forgettting, but now he was filled with a dumb sympathy for every one who suffered.

Loveland did not always take his meals at Alexander's. Sometimes he let a meal time pass too deeply depressed to be hungry, or if Bill Willing insisted on food for both there were places where it could be obtained even more cheaply than at Alexander the Great's—when Alexander himself and not Isidora was behind the counter.

Val had met the "boss" now, though not officially. While he had a few dimes and nickels in his pocket he patronized the restaurant, glad to have a glimpse of Isidora's friendly, pretty face and a chance to warm himself at the glowing stove. The "boss" regarded him as a client—a "queer cuss" down on his luck, but worth being civil to, for in New York you never knew how men's fortunes might change.

Nevertheless, Loveland realized that Alexander had as much real kindness of heart for the world in general as Shylock or a tiger.

If you deserved to get on you got on and devil take the hindmost was Alexander's motto. But he loved and admired Isidora. His chief joy in piling up a fortune was for her future, that she might marry well and hand his name on for posthumous honors. He had already picked out the bridegroom, named Leo Cohen, who would, with Isidora, carry on the restaurant and its glory from generation to generation.

This was Alexander's dream, and woe unto him who should try to interfere with its fulfillment! But he had no fear of any such dangerous person even when Leo was away drumming up interest for a certain firm in the west and a tall, handsome, sulky looking young Englishman was dropping in every day for cheap food and a smile from Isidora.

On the fifth day the situation passed beyond bearing. Not only was Loveland penniless, but he could not bring himself to borrow more of Bill's pitiful nickels and hard earned dimes.

"Bill, I can't stand this any longer. I shall have to work or steal—anything but borrow more—until I can touch my money," Loveland broke out.

"It ain't easy to do either in New York," said Bill mildly.

"To think of my being practically reduced to starvation and nakedness with a letter of credit for a hundred and fifty pounds in my pocket!" groaned Val. "Do you think old Alexander would advance me anything if I told him my whole story?"

"Oh, I guess you couldn't tell him the story," Bill advised hastily.

"Why not?"

"Well, he's got a sharp tongue, Alexander has."

"In England such a fellow could only get at me at all through my servants."

"I suppose so," agreed Bill gently, "but this isn't England."

"I should think it wasn't, worse luck!"

"What's pa been up to now?" pertly demanded the voice of pa's fair daughter.

Isidora had come in while the two were so deeply occupied in conversation and the dregs in their coffee cups that they had not seen her lift the curtain.

"Oh, nothing," replied the artist apologetically. "We was just talkin'."

"I was wondering if he would advance me enough to get back to England with, on my letter of credit?" Loveland frankly explained.

"Oh, he wouldn't!" Isidora hastened to put that idea out of P. Gordon's mind once and forever. "He never trusted anybody yet, and he wouldn't begin with you. Why, he says his success in life comes from never believing anybody but himself. If a man tells him it's a nice day he goes to the window and peeks out before taking a walk without his umbrella. And he'd think 'twas like taking a walk in his best clothes when it rained cats and dogs to lend a furriner money."

"On a letter of credit?"

"Pa perfectly despises that word 'credit.'"

Loveland gave up hope of winning confidence and obtaining dollars from Alexander the Great. "This state of things is enough to make a man blow his brains out!" he exclaimed.

"I guess you need your brains now more than you ever did," suggested Bill, "and you couldn't git 'em put back where they belonged if everything come right directly they was out. What I think of when them ideas get to workin' in my head is the awful long time you have to stay dead, whether you're suited or not. It's a lot easier to pawn your dress clothes and see what turns up."

Before Loveland could answer Isidora clapped her pretty hands, which were much cleaner than usual since P. Gordon had come into her daily life.

"Don't pawn 'em!" she cried. "That's made me think of something. Pa's always talking about visible assets or something like that. Well, your dress suit might be a visible asset if—if you're really sick of life when you can't pay your way. But are you dead sure you are sick of it?"

"Dead sure!" echoed Loveland. "What have you thought of for me to do?"

"You won't be mad if I tell you?"

"What nonsense! Am I in a position to be 'mad'—in the sense you mean—though it's a wonder I'm not mad in another sense? I'd sweep crossings if I could get the job or break stones if any one wanted them broken. But I suppose you're not going to suggest one of these employments, as evening clothes wouldn't be suitable to either."

"I was thinking," said Isidora, "that I might tense pa to take you in—in Dutchy's place if you'd care about it."

"Good heavens! Be a waiter?" stammered Loveland. He had felt ready for any ignominious, if paying, work when in the abstract. But as soon as it took definite form—and such a form as this"—

"Oh, I knew you'd be cross!" Isidora pouted. "I only thought it'd be better than nothing," she explained hurriedly, "if pa'd let you, but perhaps he wouldn't. He'll think he was doing a favor—see? He wouldn't understand how you felt about it. I'd have to explain you was temp'rily embarrassed, and, my, what a howling

"NOW AND THEN FOLKS GIVE A NICKEL."

eil of a waiter you'd look! You'd get two dollars fifty a week to begin and your food. That's what Dutchy did. And now and then folks give a nickel to the waiter, even in a place like this, which I suppose you turn your nose up at after the Waldorf-Astoria. But I shan't say any more. You needn't be afraid"—

"I beg your pardon," said Loveland. "If your father'll take me I'll do it. When he comes"—

"Oh, you mustn't ask him yourself! You'd spoil the whole thing," Isidora broke in. "You must let me get at him. Two or three raw Germans and Swedes are being sent round this morning to look at, but while pa's dressing I'll take you up, and you can be on hand when he gets downstairs. I'll go this minute, and Blinkey can see to anybody that comes in. You call him, Bill."

She darted off, all excitement, and Loveland sat waiting for the great man's verdict, feeling as if he had laid down his soul for sale with the pumpkin pie and pork and beans.

Bill tried to cheer him. He would have practically no expenses and, being such a "good looker," would be sure to pick up a lot of nickels and even dimes. Why, he might save $3 a week, and as for that trifling debt to him—Bill—they would wipe it off the slate and consider it paid, or if Gordon wouldn't consent to do that he might send the money from England when he'd got home—if he really did think it best to go home. At $3 a week it wouldn't be long before a chap could lay up enough to cross in the steerage, the way those big ships were fighting each other for rates. For $15 you could do it on some boats, and at $3 a week—

But before Bill could finish his calculation—a rather intricate one for him—Isidora had flown in, her cheeks as red as her poppy colored blouse.

"Pa's in one of his funny moods," she whispered—"won't give me any satisfaction. But I know he'd take you if you'd let me tell him who you are. I mean if you're willing I'll say you're the man all that stuff was in the papers about, how you was at the Waldorf as the Markis of Loveland and how it was you knocked that swell Mr. Milton down. Nobody appreciates the value of advertising better than pa—Bill can tell you that—and amatoor or no amatoor, you can be getting not only your two fifty a week, but twice that and maybe more out of Alexander the Great."

"I'd rather starve or drown myself," said Loveland, turning red and then white.

Loveland had shuddered at the thought of the steerage when Bill suggested it a few moments ago, but now it seemed to him that the "horrors of the middle passage" would be heaven to the humiliations he endured. For $15, Bill said, he could get back to England. If Alexander would give him $5 a week in three weeks he could be off, or, say, four, having paid Bill what he owed. But, no; that was an eternity—not to be endured. At bay and desperate, Val determined to strike high.

"Tell your father who I am, then," he exclaimed, "but say he can't have me for any beggarly two fifty or even $5 a week! I'll have $10 or nothing!"

Isidora looked at him with respect and dashed away behind the curtain. Neither man spoke. The sound of her little high heeled slippers clicking on the uncarpeted stairs was sharp in their ears. In three minutes—before Loveland had had time to repent—she was down again.

"Pa says 'Done!'" she panted. "He's going to use you for all you're worth."

"I bet he will," murmured Bill, sotto voce. But neither he nor Loveland guessed in what way Alexander the Great meant to make the "swell waiter" worth his wage.

* * * * * * *

"Lesley, wasn't Loveland the name of that lord you knew on the boat?" asked Lesley's aunt, Barbara, peering at her niece from behind an immense newspaper which hid all the upper part of her body as if with a screen.

"Yes," said Lesley. "Don't you remember my telling you his name was the same as yours?"

"There! I thought so!" exclaimed the little dovelike lady. "Only I wasn't quite sure whether you said the name was exactly the same or rather like mine. You didn't talk as if you took much interest in him, and it seemed as though you would, if we'd been namesakes. I don't think you spoke of him more than once, did you?"

"I don't remember. I'm sure," replied Lesley, beginning to scrawl the name of "Loveland" aimlessly across the top of the page which ought by this time to have been covered with brilliant conversation between her hero and heroine.

"Is there something about him in the paper?" asked Lesley, who had been expecting news, but would have preferred to read it herself if she could have chosen.

"I should think there was!" exclaimed her aunt, screened behind the great printed sheets again.

"Is he engaged already?" Lesley inquired, making a sketch of Lord Loveland's profile.

"Engaged!" echoed the elder. "No, indeed! What a mercy he's been found out before some nice girl was mixed up in the scandal. Of course he wanted"—

"A scandal!" Now at last Lesley did lift her head quickly, and the last profile sketch looked as if it had been struck by lightning.

"I mean he isn't a marquis."

The soft outline of the girl's figure stiffened, and she sat up very straight on the sofa.

"Who says he isn't a marquis?" she asked sharply.

"Everybody—the newspaper."

"Oh, the newspaper!"

"But it's true. He's been turned out of his hotel. I'll read you the"—

"Please, I think I'll read it myself if you don't mind, dear," said Lesley—"that is, when you've finished. I can wait."

"I have finished, all I care about reading," Mrs. Loveland hastened to assure her, for she inveriably discovered that she has ceased to want anything which Lesley could even be suspected of wishing for.

"Take the paper, dear. Don't get up. I'll bring it to you."

But Lesley did get up and stood with her back to her aunt as she read the Louisville version of Tony Kidd's sensational "story." She took a long time to read it, and when she had come to the end she laid the paper on her aunt's lap without saying a word.

"Well, has it struck you dumb?" exclaimed Mrs. Loveland, disappointed, for if she spoiled Lesley with petting Lesley spoiled her with responsiveness.

"I am rather horrified," said the girl.

"No wonder. You actually knew him—or thought you did."

"I think so still."

"Well, dear, I don't think I'd talk to any of our friends about having met this dreadful impostor," Aunt Barbara suggested gently. "People might fancy, if you did, that there'd been—oh, some little shipboard flirtation, perhaps, nothing serious, of course, but"—

"So they might," admitted the girl. "I didn't think at the time myself that it was anything serious."

"I should hope not!" breathed Aunt Barbara. "A valet?"

"Marquis or valet?" murmured Lesley, with a quaint little smile. "It sounds like the title of an old fashioned story."

"For goodness' sake don't use it!" begged her aunt. "The material isn't worthy of you."

"Oh, my stories are always new fashioned," said Lesley. "You know the critics reproach me for running ahead of the times in my ideas. But I really ought to write."

HOLY CROSS CHURCH MEN CALLED TOGETHER.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, has called a special meeting of the men of the parish for tomorrow evening at 8:15 o'clock. All those interested in the affairs of Holy Cross are urged to attend.

The rector has received personal assurances that the meeting will be one of the best attended gatherings ever held in his church. The object of it will be disclosed after the meeting is called to order.

Bride and Groom Visiting Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson S. Moore, who were married at the home of the bride in Morton Park, Ill., on September 17, have been spending a few days with Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane, of West Fifth street. They left today for Morton Park. Mr. Moore's former home was at Bridgeton, and he was graduated from Rutgers College, '06, being a classmate and intimate friend of Hervey Doane, youngest son of Chief and Mrs. Doane. During his college days he frequently visited here. His bride was Miss Ina Wilson, of Morton Park.

Heavenly Rest Men's Club.

The Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will resume activities this evening in preparation for the winter season. There will be an election of officers for the ensuing year and plans discussed for entertainment and profitable enjoyment. Committees will be appointed and it is desired by the rector, Rev. C. H. Mallery, that all who can possibly attend, may be there. The meeting begins at 8 o'clock.

Palm trees have the largest leaves. The Iraja palm of the Amazon country has leaves which reach a length of from 30 to 50 feet, and a breadth of from 10 to 12 feet.

BI-PARTISAN LEADERS GIVE THEIR EXPERIENCES

About 100 Independents and Democrats gathered in Reform Hall last night to discuss the issues of the city campaign and several other things. There were no set speeches, individuals speaking as the spirit moved them and several solid shots were fired at the Republican, or machine- earthworks.

The discussions which followed the opening of the meeting by Chairman R. Henry Depew appeared to be more of an effort to get certain facts of delinquency on the part of the so-called "machine" fixed in the minds of those present. Mr. Moy made an answer to an editorial in this paper on the alleged "double salary" question. He stated his arraignment of local office holders on the ground that the people at large do not know what this money is spent for and it was his purpose to tell them so that they might have a clear understanding of the matter.

Mr. Moy called attention to the fact that the city has paid $3,600 in two years and has given house rent free to an employee of a New York concern for testing sewage disposal at the beds in the West End. He added that the arrangement is to be discontinued now. He wanted to know why it was that, if this man is really necessary, what prompts his dismissal at this time.

Mr. Moy also discussed the enforcement of the law, stating that if the Mayor and Chief of Police used the power at their command the laws would be properly enforced. He referred particularly to elections.

P. J. Reville called the attention of the voters to what he referred to as "rottenness" at the polling place in the second district of the fourth ward. Mr. Reville declared that on primary day he saw a Democrat handing out Republican ballots. When he asked for a Democratic ballot he was shown where they were. Inquiry for the ballot box disclosed it located several feet away from the place where it should have been and when he protested against the alleged breaking of the law he was threatened with arrest.

John W. Harrison spoke for a few moments on the alleged corruption at the polls. He urged the purification of politics by taking from it the system of bribery which he claims exists. He pleaded for greater morality and square dealing. Several other short speeches were made by the Independents.

RED MEN OBSERVE THEIR ANNIVERSARY

In celebration of the twenty-second anniversary of its organization, Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., gave an entertainment for members and friends at the rooms in Knights of Columbus hall, last night.

The attendance was fully 200 and included the members of Iona council D. of P.

The program included comic songs by John Marr and sleight of hand work by Professor Irving, both of New York; musical numbers by Paroubek's orchestra and remarks by Great Sachem Joseph Thompson, of Avon; Great Senior Sagamore J. Wright, of Camden; Great Keeper of Records Daniel Stevens, of Camden; and members of the tribe. At the conclusion of the program, adjournment was made to the banquet hall where supper was served.

The committee in charge of arrangements comprised Charles L. Holstein, chairman; Peter Sheridan, Thomas Parson, Albert Rhedier and Jerry Griffin, Jr.

Accountants' Examinations.

The semi-annual examinations for degree of certified public accountants was held at the offices of the New Jersey State Board of Public Accountants, No. 280 North Broad street, Elizabeth, beginning at 9 o'clock this morning, and will be continued tomorrow, when the examination will be in practical accounting. Saturday the time will be divided between auditing and commercial law, half of the day being given to each subject.

James R. Morris.

James R. Morris, aged about thirty-five years, son of Mrs. Harriet Morris and the late James A. Morris, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his mother, 615 South Second street, from dropsy. He formerly lived at Providence, R. I., coming to Plainfield in July last. The funeral will be private, but those wishing to view the remains may do so tomorrow morning between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock.

H. C. Runyon, who recently underwent an operation at the hospital, has been discharged cured.

DEMOCRATIC ARGUMENTS

HUGH F. FOX THE CHAIRMAN.

Wilson a Scientific, Not a Practical, Politician, Declares One of the Speakers at Reform Hall.

National and State issues of the campaign from a Democratic standpoint were discussed at a mass meeting of that party held in Reform hall, last night, by Former Justice Chauncey H. Beasley, of Newark; former Assemblyman A. S. Alexander, of Hoboken; former Judge Robert S. Hudspeth, of Hudson county, and General Charles McC. Reeve, U. S. A., retired. Hugh F. Fox, of this city, presided at the meeting, which was largely attended by both Republicans and Democrats, together with a number of women.

Besides the speakers on the platform, others who presented themselves to give evidence of their support to the party ticket were William L. Saunders, Patrick J. Reville, David J. Carney, Walter L. Hetfield, David T. Kenney, Frank J. Shattle, J. O. Stevens, and LeRoy J. Ellis, the last named president of the Plainfield Democratic Club.

"We are here for a serious purpose tonight," said Mr. Fox in opening the meeting "that of taking account of stock of our affairs and learn what is wrong, and to promote those things which will be for our mutual benefit. Our Federal and State governments seem to be controlled by a favored few and for selfish purposes. I know how the tariff is made, for I attended sessions when this was done under the McKinley, Dingley and Sherman bills, and when the Dingley bill was in process of adoption, Congressman Butterworth said to me, 'It is a case of you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours.' He was afterward read out of his party for his opposition to such methods.

"Internal corruption, wild extravagance seems to be marking the tendency of the prosperous class. High taxes don't concern us so much, it is the fact that we don't get the results. Progress reforms are in the hands of an unwilling legislature. This is shown in the action concerning a child's labor law and liability act. What we want is an efficient Democracy.

"The Democratic party stands for conservation of resources, its citizens and public funds. The question is, can we afford to take chances with the Progressive Republicans or shall the Democrats take the reins."

The first speaker, former Justice Beasley, declared that the days of bossism and Cannonism are passed. The Republican party is split, there is nothing left of it. The Republicans don't know where they are insurgents, mugwumps, suffragists or what they are, but all they care about are the spoils.

The speaker in referring to New Jersey as a great corporation State, suggested that David Baird would make a good president to represent such interest and that Samuel Dickinson would make a good distributor of the funds. He paid his compliments to Leon Abbott, declaring that he was always a fighter and a thorn in the side of the trusts. Speaking of the high cost of living, Mr. Beasley said that the tariff had been raised so high that ordinary people cannot buy the necessities. The consolidation of trusts was responsible, too, for the high prices. "New York may have its Gaynor, Ohio its Harmon, but New Jersey has its Woodrow Wilson," declared the speaker, "and we are going to elect our candidate."

ADD DEMOCRAT MEET

"We are going to have a schoolmaster in the gubernatorial chair after November 8, and he is going to teach some of the people of the State a lesson, but his hands will be tied unless you give him a legislature. I urge you to support the entire Democratic ticket and in 1912 Woodrow Wilson will be nominated and elected President of the United States."

The next speaker, former Assemblyman A. S. Alexander, devoted his few remarks to affairs of State as he found them when a member of the lower house of the legislature. He quoted from the platform of the Republican party in the Legislative Manual, showing how the party had failed to keep pledges made three years ago in reference to franchises, public utilities how the party offered, and how it failed to mean anything. He referred to the great amount of work being done on State roads by the Amiesite Company, which concern was formed by a cousin of State Road Commissioner Gilkyson.

ARRANEMENTS MADE FOR THANKSGIVING SERVICE

At the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association in Grace M. E. church, yesterday afternoon, arrangements were made for the annual union Thanksgiving service. It will be held in the First Baptist church Thanksgiving morning and Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was selected to deliver the sermon. A committee composed of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Revs. C. S. Kemble and Gabriel R. Maguire was appointed to perfect the plans.

A discussion as to the advisability of holding the union service in a different church each year resulted in favorable action. Heretofore it has been the custom to assemble in the same church on each occasion.

Rev. C. S. Kemble was appointed a committee of one to draft resolutions of regret at the withdrawal of Rev. L. R. Howard from the local ministerial field and congratulations were extended Rev. J. O. McKelvey on his victory in the fight against the granting of licenses to North Plainfield saloons.

At the close of the session the ministers enjoyed refreshments provided by Rev. O. J. Shoop. The next meeting will be held the second Thursday in December at the home of Rev. C. L. Goodrich.

'IS MATRIMONY A FAILURE?' FULL OF WHOLESOME FUN

"Is Matrimony a Failure?" the play to be produced at The Plainfield theatre, Monday night, by David Belasco, is one of Broadway's greatest successes, and Wilson S. Ross, manager for the company, has personally assured Mr. Sanderson that a fine performance will be given in this city.

The scene of the comedy is laid in a rural town called Rosedale, a sort of suburban resort the daily routine of which differs very little from one year's end to the other. The opening scene shows the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Wheeler's wedding day and the high lights of the town are assembled around the bounteous table of their host full of good wishes and substantial viands. The peace of the rural community is all at once disturbed by the discovery made by a visiting lawyer that thirty-five of the marriages performed by the clerk of the Justice of the Peace are illegal. This piece of news is the means of the wives being left husbandless and the men going off in a body to live at the village inn. Even those who have been legally tied in wedlock join the happy band as volunteers. The novelty of the situation soon wears off and a happy and wholesale reconciliation is affected by getting the husbands and wives together at a tea party.

Mr. Belasco sought the land high and low for the estimable cast he has secured for the production. In includes among others such well known actors and actresses as: Courteney Foote, Arthur Maitland, James Bradbury, John Webber, Stuart Walker, F. Newton Lindo, Gilmore Scott, Tony Mazzonovitch, Robert Rogers, Louise Woods, Louise Mackintosh, Blanche Yurka, Lou Ripley, Gretta Vandell, Madge West, Julia Reinhardt, Josephine Bernhard, Josie Morris Sullivan Clare Armstrong and twenty others.

LECTURES FOR MOTHERS OF BOYS AT Y. M. C. A.

The first of a series of nine lectures to be given in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium is being given this afternoon to mothers of boys in this city. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor oaf the Scotch Plains Baptist church, is the lecturer, and the topic, "How to Know Our Boys," a most interesting one.

The mothers of boys in this city are earnestly invited to attend the entire series. There is no admission charged. The lectures will be given on Friday afternoons regularly from today to and including December 9.

Miss Anna Case to Sing Here.

Miss Anna Case, lyric soprano from the Metropolitan Opera Company, who will be remembered as the soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church, will give a concert at the Plainfield High School Auditorium, Saturday evening, October 29, at 8:15 o'clock. She will be assisted by Karl Klein, a noted violinist, and Arthur Depew will be at the piano.

Rev. Mr. Bakker to Preach.

Rev. G. F. Bakker, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at Hartsville, New York, will preach this evening at 8 o'clock in the Seventh-Day Baptist church. He came here to perform the marriage ceremony at the wedding of his brother, Hermann Bakker, which occurred Wednesday night.

DECRY BOY SCOUTS ARMY

RESOLUTION OPPOSES IDEA.

The military features of the Boy Scouts, General Leonard Wood's plan to introduce military training in the public schools and other schemes to innoculate Young America with a smattering of the science of war, were severely condemned in a resolution adopted by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of New Jersey in convention at the First Presbyterian church, Newark, yestreday. Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, president of the Plainfield W. C. T. U., took a part in the discussion.

The convention also went on record as opposing lynching and prizefighting. The witnessing of executions was declared to be brutal.

The matter was brought before the convention by Miss Emily B. Stokes, of Woodbury, in her report on the peace and arbitration department. In her report, which she read from manuscript, she stated that a New Jersey branch of the American School Peace League had been organized, with State Superintendent of Public Instruction C. J. Baxter as president. Miss tSokes went on to say in her report that Mr. Baxter, notwithstanding his arduous duties as the head of public instruction, glady consented to lead the new organization.

The report was adopted without a dissenting vote.

Mrs. E. V. Stout, of Beverly, as superintendent of the department on Sunday schools, reported that the attendance in the Sunday schools during the past year was 237,994, and of that number 2,135 signed pledges.

During the afternoon a memorial service was held for 168 members who died during the past year.

Mrs. Margaret D. Ellis, who was secretary of the State Union for fifteen years, but who is now in charge of the legislative bureau at Washington, D. C., made a verbal report of the recent international convention in Edinburgh, Scotland, at which she said twenty-eight countries were represented. She said that there were about 480 delegates present, and of that numbr 350 were from the United States.

Mrs. Ellis also gave a brief review of the work accomplished by the bureaus at Washington.

Mrs. Ellis also gave a brief review of the work accomplished by the bureau at Washington.

Mrs. Emma Bourne, who is State president, and, also directing the convention, in her report, which will be her last as head of the State organization owing to her declination to serve again, stated that $350 had been donated by the Lambertville Union as a memorial to Miss Marja Walker, who had been the presiding officer of the union for many years, and a like sum had been received from the estate of Henry B. Howell, of Trenton. She also stated that there was more unity among the nations for the betterment of all; that in fourteen States laws had been enacted against the white slave traffic, and that children were better protected by the establishing of juvenile courts and the laws against child labor.

Miss Ica Lillian Page, as treasurer, announced that the receipts for the year were $6,010.76; disbursements, $4,488.93, leaving a balance of $1,521.83.

"I agree with Richmond Pearson Hobson," said Mrs. Frances E. Graham, musical director of the National W. C. T. U., speaking at the evening session, "that every child should be made to feel that every saloon is an assassin. We do not realize the importance of the work among the children, and it is among them we are going to win our victories tomorrow." Mrs. Graham, who spent the summer abroad, being sent as a delegate to the great conference at Glasgow, Scotland, told of the methods employed in the work in that country, and of the people whom she met at the conference.

Mrs. Graham, whose duty it is to introduce the musical element into the W. C. T. U. work by sending songs about to the unions and teaching the children to sing, interspersed her remarks with musical selections. During the evening letters were read from absent members by the President, Mrs. Emma Bourne, who occupied the chair.

HEAVENLY REST MEN'S ASSOCIATION MEETING

About forty members of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest attended the first annual meeting last night in the parish house. The feature of the evening was the election of officers for the ensuing year. The committee on constitution and by-laws made its report, as did the treasurer. The retiring president Juan Babcock, was presented with a handsome gold watch fob suitably engraved and the balance of the evening was devoted to a social time with refreshments.

The report of the treasurer showed a neat balance on hand with which to begin the new year. The officers elected were as follows: President, J. A. Maynard; vice-president, Charles Graves; recording secretary, John Ludgate; financial secretary, James Harris; treasurer, Samuel Forster. The new officers assumed their duties immediately. On vacating the chair Mr. Babcock spoke feelingly of the past year's work and thanked the members for the support they had given him. President Maynard responded to Mr. Babcock and asked for the co-operation of every member during his term of office.

There was practically no contention for the offices, all the selections being made by acclamation. Joel Pennington, chairman of the committee on constitution and by-laws, read the revised articles. They are similar to those of last year, but better adapted to meet the needs of the club. Action on the new rules was deferred until the next meeting, October 27. The board of governors and comimttees will be appointed the same evening. William Ochiltree presented to Juan Babcock in a neat speech the fob mentioned above to which Mr. Babcock responded. The gift was a complete surprise to its recipient.

It was announced that at the next meeting Rev. Robert MacKellar, of Red Bank, would entertain the club with a lecture. The evening was enjoyed by all present.

BROKE DRIVING WHEEL NEAR NETHERWOOD STATION.

While running past the Netherwood station this morning, train 600 drawn by engine No. 318, came to a sudden stop, so sudden, in fact, as to throw the passengers forward in their seats. The right forward driving wheel of the locomotive had broken and the engine could go no further.

A delay of an hour, in which traffic was somewhat interrupted ensued and until an engine could be brought from Jersey City the passengers had to be patient. None was injured. The train was on its way from Philadelphia and was traveling at good speed.

Both Were in Danger.

Annie Woods, of the borough, and William McElroy, of this city, were arrested at 5:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the railroad tracks near New street. Both were intoxicated and were taken to police headquarters for safe keeping by Roundsman Higgins. Sentence was suspended in both cases this morning by City Judge Runyon.

Funeral of Miss Callahan.

The funeral service of Miss Alice M. Callahan, who died suddenly yesterday morning, will be held at the late home, 325 East Third street, tomorrow morning at 8:30 and at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church, where a high mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Raised Money for Building Fund.

The members of the home department of Trinity Reformed church met at the church yesterday, bringing in the little bags containing the money raised by them for the building fund of the church. Between $40 and $50 was received toward this fund, representing much hard work on the part of the women.

C. W. Holland to Give a Dinner.

C. W. Holland will give a large dinner party to the members of the Watchung Hunt Club, a week from tomorrow night, to be followed by a vaudeville entertainment. On Tuesday night the club gave a dinner at the clubhouse, after which there was music by a quartet from New York.

Weekly Hunt Tomorrow.

The riding members of the Watchung Hunt Club will meet the hounds at the kennels, tomorrow afternoon and enjoy a a chase in the vicinity of th Delafield farm at South Plainfield, finishing at the New Market pond.

Lecture on Passion Play.

The Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters is expecting to have an illustrated lecture on the Passion Play. The date and place will be given later.

TO ENTERTAIN MR. LEWIS

Senator Ackerman to Give Dinner Party for Gubernatorial Nominee.

BEFORE THE MASS MEETING.

Big Rally to Be Held at Reform Hall Tomorrow Night—Women are Invited to Hear the Campaign Speeches.

One of those rousing big receptions which have been characteristic of his campaign will be received by Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican gubernatoral nominee, when he comes here tomorrow night. The candidate will make an address at Reform hall on the State issues, and as he is a man of experience in State affairs and a forceful and convincing speaker, an instructive as well as entertaining speech may be expected.

Preceding the mass meeting, Mr. Lewis will be the guest of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman at dinner. Mr. Ackerman has invited former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, chairman of the Fifth district congressional committee; County Register Frank H. Smith, Republican county chairman; Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Republican city committee chairman and Mayor Charles J. Fisk to dine with the candidate, and the other speakers, who will include Dr. John D. Prince, of Passaic, formerly speaker of the House and a professor of Columbia university, and Judge William N. Runyon, the congressional nominee.

City Chairman Hetfield has invited a body of representative Republicans to act as vice-presidents of the meeting, which will be enlivened by the presence of a brass band. A special invitation is extended to the women to attend the rally, which will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Lewis will answer the arguments being used by Dr. Woodrow Wilson, his Democratic opponent for the gubernatorial chair. It is understood that Judge Runyon will speak solely on national issues, particularly on the tariff while Dr. Prince will have something to say for both Lewis and Runyon. No seats are reserved, and it therefore behooves the voters to go early if they want to get into the hall.

GEORGE LUHR ENTERTAINS FRIENDS ON BIRTHDAY.

In honor of the forty-first anniversary of his birthday, George Luhr, division superintendent of the Public Service Railway, entertained a large company of friends at his home, on West Front street, last night, at a roast pig dinner. The genial host, assisted by his good wife, prepared a bountiful spread for the guests and everyone had a fine time. During the evening there were informal congratulatory remarks and Miss Jennie Luhr favored the guests with several fine piano selections. Mr. Luhr was remembered by the employes on the main line, who sent him a beautiful bouquet of flowers. There was also a birthday cake, bearing forty-one lighted candles.

Those present were Chief P. S. Kiely, Captain Chris. Frederickson, Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, Patrolman William Messler, J. J. Gettings, Joseph W. Harrigan, George Johnston, William Brown, William Huenke, Hugh Higgins, Frank Keenan, Special Officer R. H. B. Dalley, Councilman Frank DeWitt C. Randolph, of this city; Chief of Police O'Neil, of Westfield, and Frank Girard, of Elizabeth.

Will Open New Store Here

Alexander Neuman, of New York, the well known clothier, has leased the store, 126 East Front street, for a number of years. He will open on or about November 1 with a full line of men's, young men's and children's clothing. Mr. Neuman will have an up-to-date store. He will make a specialty of making suits to order for $12.50 and up. Mr. Neuman says he is on the wrong side of the street, but with the goods and prices he offers it will attract the people.

Give Surprise Party.

Miss Jane Muir, of Essex street, was given a surprise party last night at the home of Miss Edith Meyer, of South Second street. About thirty guests from Plainfield and elsewhere enjoyed games, dancing and music until a late hour. Supper was served at midnight.

Sailor in the Toils.

Tony Condict, a sailor, became too hilarious in the borough yesterday, and ran afoul of the police. He was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver this morning, and fined $2. He paid up.

COURTSHIP OF 23 YEARS; TO WED IN PORTO RICO

Miss Addie Weaver, daughter of Deputy Sheriff Peter V. Weaver, of the New Madison, will leave on October 29, for San Juan, Porto Rico, where upon her arrival she will be married to Walter N. Martin, formerly of this city. The wedding will be the culmination of a romance, which began twenty-three years ago, when the couple lived here as boy and girl. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War in 1898, Mr. Martin went to Cuba to represent Clifton & Campbell in the produce business. Later he was employed by Swift & Co., managing the concern's big beef plant in the islands, and a few years ago he engaged in business for himself at San Juan.

Throughout the long absence, the couple have corresponded and arrangements were finally made for the wedding which will take place immediately upon her arrival in San Juan. Miss Weaver has been a resident of Plainfield for many years. During the past few years she has been engaged as a trained nurse. Mr. Martin has established a fine home at San Juan, completely furnished which he and his bride will occupy at once following the ceremony.

COUNTY PHYSICIAN HITS HEALTH BOARD

County Physician F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, said yesterday he thought it strange that a report of the typhoid fever epidemic resulting from the poisoned lobster salad eaten at the Entre Nous Club dinner at Elizabeth had not been reported to him by the health authorities of Elizabeth.

Dr. Westcott was asked if he had received any report from Professor J. H. Larkin, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, on the findings of the autopsy on the body of Daniel Sullivan, to which he replied:

"No I have not. I think it quite strange that the matter of these lobster salad victims has not been reported to me by the Board of Health of Elizabeth long ago. I doubt now if any report will be made to me."

It is understood that the Board of Health has been reasonably confident throughout that the disease was a virulent form of typhoid fever and has considered it unnecessary for the county health authorities to investigate. Health Officer Richards has stated that upon the findings of his investigation and also from the reports of the representatives of the State Board of Health and the United States Marine Hospital service, he believed there was absolutely no doubt but that the disease was typhoid and that the food served at the banquet was infected by a germ carrier.

Throughout the entire affair Dr. Westcott has followed developments closely, although as county physician he declared yesterday he had not received any report of it.

The patients at the hospital do not show any material improvement with the exception of Dennis Sullivan at the Alexian Hospital, who, physicians there say, is better today. George Marriott and John F. Reagan, at the Alexian Hospital, and Alexander Patterson, at the General Hospital, are very ill. Their condition does not seem to change from day to day.

D. A. R. Going to Jersey City.

Camp Middlebrook Chapter, D. A. R., of Bound Brook, will meet on Wednesday, instead of Tuesday, on account of the meeting of the Daughters of the Colonial Wars to be held at Jersey City on Tuesday. This will be held in connection with the 250th anniversary celebration arranged for that day in Jersey City. The next meeting of Camp Middlebrook Chapter will be the annual one and officers will be elected.

Medical Missionary Here.

Miss Rosa W. Palmborg, M. D., medical missionary at Lieu-oo, China, who is in America on a leave of absence, will speak in the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow morning, at the time of the regular morning preaching service. While in the city she is the guest of Mrs. John G. Spicer, of Central avenue.

Gulick—Barlow.

Rev. Dr. William H. Neilsen, of East Ninth street, officiated at the marriage on Wednesday at St. James' Episcopal church, Piscataway, of Miss Hester Barlow and Clarence Gulick, of New Brunswick. This wedding is the first there has been in this church for thirteen years.

Dayton—Perry.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Etta Perry, of Bayonne, to Albert Dayton, of this city.

TELLS OF LIFE IN JUNGLE

STORY OF A MISSIONARY.

Graphic Descriptions Reveal Pastor in New Light—Sings Native Love Song.

There were no dull moments during last evening at the Park Avenue Baptist church. Six hundred people alternately laughed or kept silent as though hypnotized while Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire graphically described his seven years' experiences in the heart of Africa, and exhibited the trophies brought from the Dark Continent, trophies not won in war, but gatnered in the native wilds with the spirit of love as the impulse for presenting them to the "big missionary."

Mr. Maguire described his entry into the missionary field in Africa from the purchase of the outfit in Liverpool to his arrival on the beach at Mayombi, where for lack of other occupation at the moment he wept at the dreary prospect. However, he soon was met by others who had preceded him, and was glad that one of his new friends was, like himself, an Irishman, and who made him welcome in the true Irish fashion.

At the outset Mr. Maguire deplored the fact that he had to introduce himself, and started out with a few verses of an original poem, the first two lines of which were "From Ireland he came and Maguire is his name." At the conclusion of the ditty the church was in an uproar with laughter. Speaking of the native costume the lecturer said: "It is customary to appear, when one is lecturing, in the costume of the country which one is to lecture about, but I hardly dare to assume the African dress. It is too scant, I therefore apologize for appearing in conventional broadcloth."

Mr. Maguire described an incident which occurred aboard the steamer which carried him to his destination. While at sea, just after leaving Liverpool, a steamer hove in sight having the American flag at the forepeak. When the vessel was near enough Mr. Maguire let go three hearty cheers for Old Glory. An Englishman who was standing near asked rather petulantly why he did not cheer for the English flag which floated above them on their own vessel. "Well," replied the dominie, "if you don't know why I'll tell you. It is because the stars in my flag are like the stars in the blue above. And to force the simile home I'll tell why they are like the stars above. There is no power on earth strong enough to pull them down." Thunderous applause greeted this sally.

The visit of Father Neptune when the ship was crossing the equator was vividly and comically described as were other incidents of the trip. His attempt to kiss the Blarney stone almost convulsed the audience.

With a caravan of twenty-five men, including porters, guides and an interpreter, Mr. Maguire penetrated into the very depths of the jungle in search of the tribes to whom he was bringing the message of the gospel. Once found his labors began as did the fevers which left him a mere skeleton compared with his present avordupois of 240 pounds. He traveled in the center of his men, twelve in front and thirteen following. These precautions are necessary because of the number of wild animals usually encountered on the march through the forests. Mr. Maguire exhibited a pair of gauntlets made from the skin of a leopard shot by himself. He declared that they were the finest pair of automobile gloves in this city. Stepping out to the front and swinging from right to left alternating with a backward and forward movement, Mr. Maguire gave an imitation of the ceremony of cutting out of the hearts of victims of the witch doctor (Nganga). These men had been condemned as harboring evil spirits. They were first poisoned then mutilated and finally burned piece meal. After the dance he said "If any you men think this is an easy 'stunt' come up here and try it." This provoked a hearty laugh.

The speaker declared that conformity to the customs of the natives and patience form the white man's safeguard in the jungle. Any white man, he said, could travel in perfect safety from coast to coast by observing these points. He brought another roar of laughter when after blowing the witch doctor's curved horn, he said that the audience had at last heard "Gabriel blow his horn." The instrument is used by the witch doctor to blow away evil spirits. Mr. Maguire showed considerable histronic ability in the description of his reception by the

BANQUET VICTIMS HAD TYPHOID, SAY DOCTORS

An autopsy was performed Tuesday afternoon on the body of Daniel Sullivan, the fifth to die from typhoid fever following the banquet of the Entre Nous Club a month ago in Elizabeth. It was made by professors from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, who issued the following statement:

"The typhoid fever resulting from that dinner is very virulent. We will have to make several tests in the New York laboratory before we can say whether or not there are other complications."

The typhoid germs are supposed to have been contained in a lobster salad which was served at the club dinner.

Health Officer Richards said Tuesday that the Board of Health had not asked for the autopsy.

"The Board of Health is satisfied," he said, "that it is typhoid. The doctors from the United States Marine Hospital service and also the one from the State Board of Health, pronounced it typhoid. That is convincing enough to the board."

Ten of the thirteen patients who have fallen prey to the disease have failed to respond to treatment and some of the physicians admit that there is doubt as to the exact cause of their illness, although it is stated positively that typhoid fever is the fundamental disease. That the fever is very malignant is shown by the percentage of deaths. Those who have succumbed are Richard F. McMahon, John Sullivan, F. Lee Platz, Owen Farrelly and Daniel Sullivan, the last named being a brother of John, who died.

In addition to the five who have died there are five who lie critically ill in the Alexian and General hospitals, apparently failing to respond to the usual treatment and all of whom, the doctors say, will die.

These patients are John F. Reagan, Dennis Sullivan, Alexander Patterson, George Mariott and Jeremiah Connor. Of these Reagan and Marriott became ill soon after the banquet and after a few days apparently recovered, only to be seized later more violently than before.

Cornelius Reagan, Peter McCarthy and John Lavin were ill, but speedily recovered. As yet they have had no relapse, although physicians say they are subject to a return of the disease.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

A feature of "Is Matrimony A Failure?" the comedy adapted from the German by Leo Ditrichstein, which took New York by storm last August and taxed the seating capacity of the Belasco Theatre for seven months and commenced the present season at the same playhouse, is the wonderful realism of the stage settings. David Belasco, who has always been regarded as the past master of stage technique, has fairly outdone himself in this production. His genius for quiet realism was never more apparent than in this play. The Wheeler living room, in which the first act takes place, is a veritable masterpiece from the books in the bookcase to the pictures on the wall. The exterior of the house is another triumph of stage craft. The weather beaten brown of the clap boards, the drapery of vines and the great array of hollyhocks, and the old piazza which plainly shows its age are wonderful specimens of scenic art. Add to all this an unusually brilliant cast, practically an all star one, and one can get a brief idea why "Is Matrimony a Failure?" is the phenomenal success it is. It comes to The Plainfield theatre Monday night, October 17, with the original New York cast.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. Winship, of the Bronx, spent Columbus Day with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thorne, of Brookside avenue.

Several of the young folks were present at the marriage of Walter Nelson to Miss Ruth Gardner, both of New Market.

The young people of the village attended the races at the driving park in full force Wednesday afternoon.

The house recently owned by the late Mrs. Hogan has been repaired and given a fresh coat of paint.

The stage run by Elias Bailey is to make five trips daily, and the price each way will be ten cents.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A horse belonging to D. Demolli & Co., of Plainfield, who catered at the Gardner-Nelson wedding, ran away from in front of the Gardner residence Thursday night. The animal ran as far as the Central crossing on Prospect avenue, where the lowering of the gates for a train blocked its progress. It swerved to one side, overturning the wagon and causing a general mixup. The runaway was caught at this juncture and returned to the owner.

At the last session of Court Dunellen, I. O. F., the members enjoyed an entertainment provided by the social committee. The program's feature was sleight-of-hand tricks by H. Warren Rankin, of Plainfield, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Rankin. Afterward the gathering adjourned to the banquet room where supper was served.

Bert Richardson, of Lancaster, Pa., and Bert Apgar, of Columbia, Pa., are both visiting relatives in the borough. Both are engaged in the electrical business and came down to attend the New York electrical show.

George Schlereth, of Penfield avenue, has been confined to his home by an illness bordering on pneumonia. Dr. P. W. Brakeley has also been detained at home by illness the past few days.

Russel Runyon, who recently resigned as president of the Junior class of the Plainfield High School, has been elected temporary manager of next season's baseball team.

George Booth, a former Dunellen resident, but lately of Keyport, has returned to the borough and taken a position at Taylor's hotel.

SECOND RECEPTION AT THE RED COTTAGE.

The second and last afternoon reception was given Wednesday by Mrs. Charles L. Sykes and Mrs. Thomas Francis Sykes, at their home, "The Red Cottage," Scotch Plains, the affair being in honor of Mrs. Thomas Francis Sykes, who was recently married. The reception was largely attended by society people from New York, Scotch Plains and this city.

The home was attractively decorated with garden flowers. Cosmos were used in the dining room, nasturtiums in the library and chrysanthemums in the drawing room.

Mrs. Charles L. Sykes and Mrs. Thomas Francis Sykes received the guests. Those in the dining room were Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, of this city; Mrs. Rutherford M. Shepherd, of Scotch Plains; Mrs. Roff Mersereau, of Ridgewood, and Miss Jane Walker, of New York. They were assisted by Miss Isabelle Ashwell, Miss Dorothy Fleming and Miss Elsie Goddard, of this city, and Miss Abi Sykes, of Scotch Plains.

To Give Bible Reading.

Rev. Thomas Francis, of Jersey City, will give a Bible reading at the German Reformed church, corner of Craig place and Duer street, North Plainfield this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. At 7:45 Mr. Francis will give a talk on "Redemption." The subject for the afternoon reading will be Romans 8:14. All are invited.

The "Free" Sewing Machine

This "different" machine, this "superior" machine, this perfect masterpiece—the very machine you have wished for so many years—the machine of your imagination which you have sighed for every time the thread slipped around the spool pin of your old machine and broke, every time its shuttle wore out, every time its stitch skipped, every time its needle broke, every time your back became weary and your feet tired. This machine, with its 32 fault-removing inventions, is now on sale on our fifth floor, and we urge every woman who has labored with the old style, nerve-racking machine to come and see it. We know all about other sewing machines, from treadle to spool pin; we know them all, the cheapest and the highest priced. We have investigated them all. Every one of them has been found lacking in some real essential; every one of them has some glaring faults. The "Free" machine is the machine of the hour—the machine of the future. If you do much sewing you cannot afford to be without it. Sold on our liberal club plan; $2.00 down (which amount applies directly to the cost of your machine) and $4.00 a month or $1.00 a week. Fifth floor.

PLAINFIELD MEETS BOUND BROOK IN FINAL GAME

The Bound Brook team will make its first appearance on Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon, when it will meet Plainfield in the last game of the season for the locals. Manager Dorflinger announces that "Jimmy" Montross, who is always a favorite with the fans, will be in the box for Plainfield, and his friends believe that this will mean victory for Plainfield. Walter Nelson, who has just forsaken single blessedness to get married, will be behind the bat, and the local lineup otherwise will be the same

There is considerable rivalry between these teams and that tomorrow's contest will be a hard-fought one, goes without saying. Ortleib, whose work as a pitcher is well known, will oppose the Plainfield boys, and Bruggy will receive him behind the bat. Popular prices will be charged to the game, 25 cents general admission and ten cents extra for the grandstand. The game will be started at 3:15 and the teams will lineup as follows:

GOLF.

The big event at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow, will be the continuation of play for the golf championship, and in addition an afternoon reception followed in the evening by a dance for which Van-Baar's Old Guard Band will furnish the music.

The Plainfield Country Club has been unusually active this season and there are still many pleasing events planned before snow flies. Those intending to have dinner at the clubhouse tomorrow night should notify Superintendent John Hilton at once.

The event of interest at the Park Golf Club tomorrow will be a team match with Bound Brook. It was expected that the fall championship play would be concluded tomorrow, but this was finished on Wednesday, when W. E. Lough defeated R. V. Carpenter for the honors, by a score of 4 up and 3 to play.

The Plainfield Country Club golf course is in fine condition, in fact it is better than ever. "Marty" O'Loughlin, who has charge of the links, has been doing good work, which is appreciated by the members.

W. E. Lough the Champion.

In the finals for the fall championship at the Park Golf club Wednesday, W. E. Lough won the honors by defeating R. V. Carpenter, 4 up and 3 to play. The match was a close one throughout, and was followed by a number of friends. The two players were evenly matched, but Mr. Lough was going particularly strong Wednesday and won the trophy offered by the club.

P. H. S. Defeats New Brunswick.

The Plainfield High School football team defeated New Brunswick High School at the latter place Wednesday afternoon by the score of 8 to 6. This was the first game for the locals, and the players and their supporters are pleased with the result. The Plainfield boys showed up strong and gave a fine exhibition of the game under the new rules.

"It has been charged," said Mr. Alexander, "that our candidate is not a friend of labor; neither is he a friend of capital. He says that if the labor unions do wrong he is for correcting those wrongs and in this respect he takes a manly stand. We have had enough of the practical politician, now we want a scientific politician in the gubernatorial chair."

In referring to the Republican party, Judge Hudspeth, the next speaker, likened it to Zaccheus of Bible times, as being "up a tree." He said that he had allied himself to the party of Jackson and Johnson, which was near to the heart of the people. The first part of Mr. Hudspeth's talk dealt with generalties, during which he paid his compliments to the women, quoting that phrase, "that the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world." In this connection he recalled a political address made by James E. Martine in Jersey City some time ago. There was one lone woman in the gallery at this meeting, and the "farmer orator" the speaker said, talked to her for over an hour. As a result her five sons voted the Democratic ticket at the next election.

"Why is there such a revolution of feeling all over this country," said the speaker. "It is because there has been too much apathy. The people are aroused and are going to do something. The party has been derelict in the past, but it is now rejuvenated. Dr. Wilson secured his nomination not through the bosses or through any ulterior motive, but because the people want him. The opposition is trying to be-little our candidate and the efforts of the party. They refer to him as a schoolmaster and that the 'same old gang' is behind him.

"The Republican party has been a wonderful organization, and it has achieved great things, but it is now entagled with the 'over lords' and if it were not for this fact it would be as strong as ever. I will not mention any names, but I know the men who have been a menace to the Republican party in the State and nation. At one time the Camden and Amboy Railroad controlled the State its representative made and unmade the careers of legislators, and when he died his mantle fell on the shoulders of several who are known as 'over lords' of State. I am not charging corruption, but by certain methods they have taken away the right of self-government.

"I have known Vivian Lewis for years. He is a fine young man, has ability and has been in office for years, fulfilling his duties satisfactorily. But when John W. Griggs attempts to compare a man like Lewis with Dr. Wilson, he is simply trading on the credulity of the people. Mr. Lewis is not on record as favoring any of the great measures before the people. I wish I had time to tell you the record of Mr. Lewis the three years he was leader of the Assembly. He never formulated anything during his legislative career. I ask you are you going to forget the scenes of out last session of the Legislature, and how the members were controlled body and breeches by the corporate interests?"

The last speaker was Gen. C. McC. Reeve, who talked briefly on national issues, telling the voters why they should support the Democratic ticket.

chiefs of the tribes and told how heartily disgusted he was while attempting to eat the "peace feast." "One of the happiest moments of my life," he declared, "was when I stood for the first time in my own hut." This was purchased for a few pieces of cloth and some brass buttons. With the hut went about two acres of hilly land.

The exorcising of evil spirits brought Mr. Maguire's acting ability to the fore in wonderful facial contortions to say nothing of imitating the native dances. He said that the natives have no sense of wit. They attempt to cure diseases with the powered dried snake heads and practiced unheard of cruelties on those afflicted with the evil spirits. When any thing strikes the native as supernatural they take to the tall grass in a hurry. A certain bishop who wore a wig accidentally pulled his top knot off. The natives ran away screaming that he had lost his head. A baby in the audience began to whimper at this point just as the lecturer was about to play a solo on an African piano. "That's good music," cried the speaker, I like to hear babies cry, it shows that they are alive." Mr. Maguire received an encore for his effort and played a short tune on the native reed organ (two reeds).

Coming to the serious part of his talk the pastor described the Christian transformation of the witch doctor and finally one of the princes of the tribe. Their conversions were absolute.

Mr. Maguire concluded his lecture with a love song sung in the Mayombi tongue. It was a series of tuneful sounds with a tendency to minor keys, but was musical.

It was the opinion of many that the lecture was equal to anything if not superior to many others of the kind and there were murmurs of "He'll have to lecture again soon."

THE FORUM.

Cowardly Campaign Tactics.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The gentleman who introduced himself last night at the Democratic meeting as like "Zaccheus up a tree" proved himself not only up a tree, but unmanly when he charged some of the opposite party as corrupt, but said he "would not mention names." The man who strikes in the dark is a coward. That same man talked about the Democratic party just as the Democrats in the State of Maine did after the Independents of that State defeated the Republicans a few weeks ago. It is my opinion that the New Jersey Republicans will be defeated, and so far as my vote and influence goes, I will help to contribute to that defeat. But it appears to me that the Democrats seem to think that they are going to defeat the Republicans. Now if that is what they mean and claim, I want to remind them that they have not votes enough to do so without the aid of Independent voters from the Republicans, and votes of an independent turn of mind, who have no use for a party as such, but who vote as lovers of their fellow-men and their country. Only a few more speeches such as the man "up the tree" delivered last night are needed to drive all Independents into the Republican ranks rather than vote for those who make charges of corruption and are too cowardly to give names. Let us call a "spade a spade."

J. W. HARRISON.

After the Verdict.

Representative Charles N. Fowler attended a Democratic mass meeting at Paterson on Tuesday night. Representative Charles N. Fowler did not attend the Republican dollar dinner at Elizabeth on Wednesday night.

P. H. S. NOTES.

At a sophomore class meeting yesterday it was decided to begin work at once on the freshman reception. Money will be collected for the purpose.

The death of Principal Lindsay Best's only daughter of which the P. H. S. learned yesterday, brought forth a telegram of condolence from the entire school. The message was sent yesterday afternoon.

The annual physical examinations of the pupils of the High School are being conducted by Dr. Tomlinson.

Several practice games were played by the basket ball squads on the outside courts yesterday.

Today's games will complete the semi-finals in the High School tennis tournament and the finals will be played next week. Yesterday's results follow: J. Uhler and S. Vandeventer defeater J. Strong, 7-5, 6-4. Woodhull and Clark defeated Newel and Fountain, 6-4, 6-3. Miss Day and Woodhull defeated Miss Durar and Vichte, 6-3, 6-2. Miss Uhler and J. Uhler defeated Miss Hardwick and Mr. Clark, 6-2, 6-3.

Charles S. Mehlenbeck.

Charles S. Mehlenbeck, the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Mehlenbeck, of 645 East Sixth street, died at 3 o'clock this morning, following a short illness with tonsilits and heart trouble. The death of the young man is particularly sad. He was unusually bright, standing high in his studies at the Bryant School, and being beloved by a large circle of friends. He attended Trinity Reformed church and was a member of the Sunday-school. The young man was born in this city. The funeral service will be held from the late home, Sunday, and Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate. The burial will be in Somerville.

Other Friends Contribute.

Three more contributions were received yesterday to be applied to the relief fund of the farmer's boy who lost $38 on October 2. A neighbor sent in $3 and two "friends" helped the good work along by sending $1 and $5 respectively. This brings the total up to $21 and leaves only $17 to make the total of $38.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS HOLD ANOTHER BIG RALLY.

The North Plainfield Republican club had another large crowd at its weekly rally in the Somerset street headquarters, last night. Addresses were made by Captain W. C. Smith and B. J. Phelps. There were also several musical contributions. The officers of the club are making an effort to have a big mass meeting towards the close of the campaign. It is probable that Vivian Lewis and other candidates will be in attendance.

Funeral of Bernhard Gustafson.

The funeral services of Bernhard Gustafson, who died at his home, 244 East Ninth street, on Tuesday, will be held today at his former home at Shepherdstown, West Virginia. Mr. Gustafson was the son-in-law of Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson. His death was due to typhoid fever. He had been ill but a short time.

Goes to County Jail.

In default of the paymentof his fine of ten dollars, James E. Hickey, who entered the nurse's home, on Park avenue, on Wednesday night, was taken to the county jail, at Elizabeth, this morning to serve his sentence of twenty days.

ROOSEVELT PREDICTS CATHOLIC PRESIDENT

Theodore Roosevelt was the guest at Peoria, Ill., Wednesday afternoon and night at the Columbus Day celebration by the local council of the Knights of Columbus. He was the principal speaker at the banquet in the Coliseum, which closed the day's proceedings. His speech at the banquet was notable for a reiteration of a prediction, which he first made as President several years ago, that in the course of time there would be a Catholic President of the United States. It was his first public utterance to Roman Catholics since the Vatican incident last spring.

"There is no other country in the world," he declared, "where Catholic and Protestant get on as we do here, each treating the other on the basis of our common citizenship, and judging him, not as to how he worships his Creator, but on his conduct toward his fellow-men, on his own worth as a man. We must never permit anything to make us deviate from this standpoint.

"Perhaps I can give you my own theory in short form by telling you of a correspondence I once had. Of course, in every church there are some good men who are narrow, and one of these good narrow men, a Protestant clergyman, wrote me a letter of protest about my receiving Cardinal Satolli at the White House.

"I wrote him, saying that I had received the cardinal just as, for instance, I had received bodies of German Lutherans and Welsh Methodists, and as I was expected to receive the Archbishop of Canterbury, and that I would hold myself to be a poor representative of the people and an unworthy President of the United States if I failed to treat with good will and friendliness all good men, no matter what their religious faith might be."

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Henry W. Savage presents "The Little Damozel," at the Nazimova theatre. It ran all last season in London, making new records of attendance at Wyndham's, while it achieved the rare distinction of being thrice "commanded" at Sandringham by the late King Edward, one of the most exciting of drama's patrons. "The Little Damozel" is a comedy of sentiment that is unusually rich in that elusive thing called "atmosphere" and that pictures with great charm the recklessly gay bohemians who are to be found in the Soho district of London, semi-declasse life. In addition there that center of the British capital's is said to be a moving love story and a great deal of piquant satirical humor. In the cast Mr. Savage has a number of well known English players, including Cyril Keightly, Frank Lacy, George Graham, Henry Wenman and Mary Corse, while he has entrusted the title role to the delightful California actress, May Buckley. Others of note in the company include Henry Vogel, Harry Fraser, Raphael Newman and Harry Child.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," under the direction of Joseph Brooks, has scored a big success at the Republic Theatre, New York city. The dramatization of the Rebecca stories made by the author, Kate Douglas Wiggin, and Charlotte Thompson. Edith Taliaferro plays the role of the little heroine. Mrs. Wiggin took an active part in the rehearsals. Roughly speaking, "Rebecca" is intended to appeal to young people between eight and eighty! But no astute author or manager could wish to fix an age limit in his audience. I should be sorry to see "Rebecca" gain any but the usual mixed audience, for it would gradually grow feeble and emasculated if played to young people alone, though we hope they will always find enjoyment in it. Incidentally I suppose it might be useful to have a few entertainments to which the old fashioned girl might go without seeing all the commandments broken before her very eyes. However, one must be universal and not write for the "jeune fille" alone.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent, will preach at the First M. E. church, Sunday morning.

The officers and teachers of the First Presbyterian church Sunday school will hold a dinner tonight in the chapel.

The Young People's Association will resume its meetings for the fall and winter at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church this evening.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will hold a sewing meeting in the church parlors this afternoon.

The Sunday school of the First Baptist church enjoyed a musical service last night, conducted by Grant Colfax Tullar, composer of hymns. The new singing books were used, many of the hymns in which were composed by Mr. Colfax. A trumpet soloist also assisted in the service. The service was held for the purpose of acquainting the members with the new hymns.

Store closes daily at 5:30 p. m., except Saturdays, when store will remain open till 10 p. m.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Only 88 per cent. of the real efficiency of a ton of coal is utilized. The remainder is wasted.

Weighing less than fifty pounds, an electrically-driven machine has been invented for scrubbing floors.

Mountains of pure marble have been discovered in German South Africa, the like of which are unknown in the world.

English telephone subscribers do not look for any betterment of the service when the government takes possession next year.

Small farmers are encouraged in Egypt by government loans, for which 9 per cent. is charged and collected by the taxgatherers.

In most of the civilized countries of the world, except Ireland, Italy and Bulgaria, the death rate is lower among females than among males.

A stone-blind pigeon is one of the flock which frequents the Lama (Ohio) Court House. It makes its home in the dome, and flies there with unerring accuracy.

The influence exerted by the Ladies Educational Association, of Tokio, Japan, is increasing. Among its members are the wife of the Mayor of Tokio, the crown princes and Princess Mori.

Blood letting was the great heart depressant until modern times. Now digitalis, veratum and the coal-tar extracts are just as powerful and deadly as was the lance.—Homeopathic Envoy.

FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE.

Continued heat, dampness and humidity are liable to make you feel despondent. This must be fought out.

Be cheerful, don't worry about anything. Let the other fellow do the worrying.

Follow this method of breathing pure air for five or ten minutes morning and night, and great benefit will result.

Keep away from all alcholic drinks and ice water. Buttermilk, lemenade or ice tea—tea cooled by contract, not with ice dissolved in it—are the safest.

Perspiration is caused by parts of the fluid of the blood being driven out through the pores of the skin when the body is heated. It always contains a certain amount of waste matter which should always be get rid of by washing or dry rubbing, so that it may not be reabsorbed into the blood.

To have suffered, nay to suffer, sets a keen edge on what remains of the agreeable. This is a great truth, and has to be learned in the fire.

SOLIOQUIES OF A BENEDICT.

There is no hope for the man who points to his weaknesses as virtues.

Some people are so pessimistic that they are optimistic that everything's going wrong.

To avoid falling in love keep away from blondes and brunettes.

The fairy tales are wrong—they did get married, but they didn't live happily ever after.

Although he won't admit it, a man would be better off if he took his wife's advice.

A "CONVERSATION" EVENING.

This is a "bright idea" for entertaining a party of friends. When a girl hostess sends out invitation cards for this particular form of entertainment she writes "Conversation" in one corner, and it is an understood thing among her guests that "The Almighty I" is a forbidden subject. They may talk of anything under the sun that they think will interest their "partner," who is drawn by lot every quarter of an hour, but they must not fall back on their own experiences and talk "shop." An occasional evening spent in this way is an excellent corrective to egotism, and it is a shock to many young people to realize their own sweet selves, and what they like and what they don't like, may not be discussed.

HIS EVENING OUT

"Oh, by the way, Jack, I nearly forgot to tell you," said little Mrs. Northway, a bride of seven weeks, as she ended with a growling discord the march she had been playing, and whirled about on the piano bench. There she faced her boyish husband, who had just settled down on this their first free evening in two weeks to the rare luxury of a magazine and a pipe. "It came in the mail," went on Mrs. Northway, beginning to hunt in the litter on her writing desk.

"What is it, anyway?" asked Jack, without looking up.

"The Greek letters of your fraternity were in the corner. It had been forwarded from your father's to the hotel where we honeymooned and back here again. That's why you have such short notice. However, if you hurry, dear, you can get out in time. It's only"—Mrs. Northway consulted the little French clock on her desk—"only 7:15 now, and—"

"What did you say the thing was? Do we go gadding again tonight? By Jove, Beth, can't we have at least one— There, there, dear, I'm a brute!"

Penitently Jack ran after Beth, who, having tossed her head, had rushed away, sobbing.

"Of course we'll go, dear," he said, with hypocritical lightness, as he tried to get his arms about her. "The fact is, I need to go out. Sitting about in these little rooms makes a fellow dull."

To show his very special joy at getting out of his comfortable lounging clothes into formal dress Jack hurried to his bedroom, where he kicked off his slippers, tore open the chiffonier to extract a white shirt, hunted his gold collar button from its hiding place, pulled his patent leathers from behind Beth's shirtwaist box and emptied out a dozen brand-new collars to select a special one, though they were all alike.

"Beth, what sort of doings are on tonight, anyway?" he called a few minutes later, as he stood surveying himself in the mirror and feeling his chin. "Must I shave, or—"

"I started to tell you that it was a smoker," called back Beth, with great frigidity. She was back at the piano, murdering one of the 57 varieties of love song. "But you growled so and acted like a hyena and—"

"Smoker!" Jack rushed to her. "Why, girlie, did you think for one minute that I'd go out alone and leave you here to the protection of the cook? Never! What could you have been thinking of?" Jack kneeled down and stroked his young wife's cheek, glancing furtively, however, through the blonde jungle of her coiffure to where his magazine lay on the floor.

"Jack, I insist that you go!" With a wrench Mrs. Northway freed herself and stood over her sheepish-looking husband. "Get up; you look so ridiculous. Remember what sarcastic remarks you used to make about the fellows who married and forever afterward were tied to their wives' ribbons! You must go! No one shall have a chance to say that I have buried you alive."

Jack got to his feet. In less than five minutes he was ready to leave the house and bending over Beth's shoulder to kiss her goodby.

"I hate to— Why, Beth, what's this? Crying! What—"

"I just knew you were tired of me," wailed his wife. "To go and leave me like this, and married just seven weeks and three days! If I'd married George instead of you he'd never have left me to go on a lark with the fellows. He always was so considerate! Only seven weeks! Oh-h-h!"

Somewhat doubtful as to the wisdom of the action, Jack changed back quickly to his smoking regalia, recovered his magazine and pipe and, with lips pressed tight, looked glassily at the pages held upside down.

"Jack, darling!" It was Beth on the arm of his chair! "I wonder if you realize how noble it was of you to give up your fun with the fellows tonight just to stay here with little dull me?" She smiled adorably.

"It's just as well, dear, that you decided not to go to the smoker tonight, though," Beth thoughtfully remarked presently. "I wasn't exactly sure of the date anyway and when I looked it up a few minutes ago I discovered that the smoker was night before last!"

Pittsburger's Bad Break.

A new angle on table etiquette was obtained by a Pittsburg man on a recent visit to the country.

He tells it as follows:

"As the family with whom I was dining was a typical backwoods one, I was somewhat surprised to observe beside each plate a small dish resembling a butter chip, but a trifle larger. Now individual butter chips are somewhat of an innovation on the farm, but, I thought, the good people are putting on a few frills on my account. So I helped myself to butter and placed it on the small dish. Scarcely had I done so when I discovered I was in wrong—very wrong. Each member of the family, as if in rebuke of my ignorance, proceeded to pour his coffee into his saucer, then setting his cup in the little dish, began to sip from the saucer with a long syblant s-s-c-sp!

"I suppose my lack of table manners is the talk of the country side out there."—Pittsburg Times-Gazette.

GOING AWAY

"Oh, thank you!" said the young woman who was just about to depart for Michigan for the summer. "Yes, it is kind of you to wish me a pleasant trip. If it isn't pleasant, at least it will be interesting, I am sure.

"In fact, I am quite looking forward to the moment of my departure because I am so curious to know just what I shall take along. You know, when I travel I always yearn to start away looking like the girls in the railroad advertisements. They are invariably attired in the freshest of tailor suits. Each carries one attenuated, natty suitcase and a tightly rolled umbrella built on lead pencil lines, and displays a pleasant, carefree smile. They all appear to have successfully packed everything they own in trunks that have gone on ahead. It rests me to look at them.

"Somehow, though, no matter how hard I try to reach the ideal of a railroad girl in a picture, something invariably interferes.

"One year somebody brought me a dozen jars of jelly at the last minute. These I had to carry along with the umbrella. Then my cousin added a paper package containing the rubber overshoes which she had worn away last year by mistake and which belonged to the cottager next door. She said it would relieve her conscience if I would take them along. So I did. I dropped them overboard just as soon as I got on the boat, however. Her conscience never knew the difference and it was lots nicer for me.

"This year it is going to be even worse. It started with the bulldog. Dick Patterson owns the dog. He said some friends of his had it and also had a little baby, and couldn't manage both, so they let him take his choice. He decided after some thought he'd take the bulldog, because he could keep it at the stable with his riding horse, and he couldn't dispose of a baby that way, although he really regretted the baby, because he said it was a very nice one.

"The dog is a white, meek-eyed creature and so affectionate that he weeps if you raise an eyebrow at him. He looks as though butter wouldn't melt in his mouth, yet one day when I had him out he jumped on an innocent fox terrier that was attending strictly to its own affairs and licked the daylights out of it in a disinterested sort of way. I quit hauling him around by his collar right then and there!

"When in a jesting moment I suggested that Dick board the dog this summer at my house he jumped at the idea because it seems he is going away and there was nobody to leave the dog with. So I've got the bulldog to lead on a chain in one hand. No doubt I shall spend my summer alternating between the rural police court and the jail, because the bulldog will chew up all the other resorters' offspring, cats and poodles. I asked Dick what on earth I'd do if there was an awful dog fight because of the bulldog. He replied that I must go into the house and close the windows so that the noise would not disturb me and then let the best dog win. I am almost certain that I shall not have a dull summer.

"Then just last night John Gordon and I went out to one of the newly opened amusement parks and we came to a booth where people were buying ten-cent chances on birds. There was everything from sea-green parrots down to darling little gray birds with red throats. John bought a couple of chances. Just as I was explaining what kind of cage I should get to match the gray bird that I was going to win the man called out my number in such a loud voice that I was dismally positive I had drawn a parrot at least. What do you suppose I got? A globe with three gold fish in it. John got nothing.

"I was so dazed that I let the man hand me the globe and then I walked away before I realized that I had accepted the responsibility for the welfare of three innocent fish, at that moment flopping about in the water and gazing at me trustfully. There was a wire on the globe so I could carry it, and John said of course I wouldn't think of leaving it behind. I've got to take it along or hurt his feelings, and as my other hand is busy with the suitcase I shall have to hang the gold fish globe about my neck. I can fry the fish for breakfast after I get to Michigan.

"I nearly forgot to mention my tea tray. It is one of those framed, glass-covered trays and so big that it wouldn't go into a trunk. It is wrapped in burlap with one handle sticking out for me to hang on to, because it would have been too much trouble to crate it. I think I shall carry that in my teeth.

"Then there is the little satchel with all the solid teaspoons and other silver in it and there will be three or four late packages from the stores that I'll have to take along. Mother said she wanted to send a little red wagon to the caretaker's child if it wouldn't trouble me too much to include it in my luggage. I may have forgotten some things, but those are the chief articles that I shall have to carry."

"Goodness!" said the listener. "You can't travel on one ticket as a single individual, can you? Why, you're a whole caravan!"

Talk about heroes: a Virginia clergyman has just been married for the fifth time.

How to Have a Warm House

Then—in the morning before business and in the evening before retiring, step down and turn the BOYNTON clinkerless, ash-cutting grate. This clears the fire perfectly. Now put in a little coal; set the dampers for the degree of heat you wish, and leave the to do the rest. The BOYNTON is the most reliable house-heater known. It consumes less coal and gives more heat for the coal consumed, than any other heater on the market.

The BOYNTON "Square Pot" never holds dead fire. BOYNTON Boilers are now equipped with this same economical fire box and quick clearing grate. See your dealer about BOYNTON "Square Pot" furnaces and boilers.

W. C. T. U. PRESIDENT TELLS OF GOOD WORK

Interest at yesterday morning's session of the New Jersey W. C. T. U. convention in the First Presbyterian church, Newark, centred in the annual address of Mrs. Emma Bourne, the State president. The address was regarded by the delegates in the nature of a farewell, Mrs. Bourne having definitely refused to be a candidate for re-election, after nineteen years of service. Three hundred delegates attended the session.

"We have organized more new unions than in any previous year," declared Mrs. Borune in her address. A gain of 836 members was noted, making a total membership for the State of 10,314. Continuing Mrs. Bourne said in part:

"We have received two gifts for the endowment fund; $350 was given by the Lamberton union as a memorial to their loved president, Miss Maria Walker, who served them until death. The other was the bequest from Henry B. Howell, of Trenton.

"The nations are coming together more closely in the unity of work and purpose for the betterment of all. There is better protection for women. In fourteen States laws have been passed against the white slave traffic, our own among the number. The children will be protected by the juvenile court and the anti-child labor legislation.

"The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is the child of the church. Its members being from all denominations tend to unify the church, whose greatest enemy is alcoholism. Prohibition is continued in nine States, despite the interstate traffic, the connivance of officials, the shield of the federal tax receipt and the criminal anarchy of the liquor traffic. In Kansas it was never so popular as now, after thirty years' trial. Kansas, with one-fifth the population of New York, has one-tenth the number of insane; eighty-seven counties have no insane inmates, fifty-four no feeble minded, twenty-eight county poor farms no tenants, fifty-two counties no prisoners serving sentences in county jails and sixteen without a prisoner in any institution. Atlanta, Ga., began its first prohibition year owing $386,000 and closed with $233,000 in the sinking fund and all obligations met.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Garfield Watson, of Woodbury, has been missing from home since September 29.

Secret service men are in South Jersey trying to locate the circulators of spurious dollar bills.

Game Warden John M. Avis, of Woodbury, finds plenty of ring-neck pheasants, but finds few quail and every indication of a plentiful supply of rabbits.

Rev. Father Michael J. McGuirk, curate of St. Nicholas' Roman Catholic church, Passaic, has been transferred to Edgewater. There he will take charge of the Church of the Holy Rosary.

George Wagner and George Sposetti, employes of the Steam Heating Company at Camden, were fatally scalded Wednesday at Allentown, Pa., when a six-inch steam main burst in the private lighting plant of Koch Brothers, in that city.

Caught between the bumpers of two freight cars at Gibbstown Wednesday, William H. Matlack, twenty-one years old, brakeman, of 626 North Fourth street, Camden, had his right leg badly crushed. The injured man was taken to Cooper Hospital.

Fine Production at the Theatre.

"The Lion and the Mouse," a play of intense draamtic interest from the pen of Charles Klein, was presented at The Plainfield theatre, last night before a large and enthusiastic audience by the permanent stock company. The play will be offered today and tomorrow, afternoons and evenings. Miss Ilka Diehl and Harold Mead score heavily in this production, as does also the other members of the cast. The performance is a worthy one, and deserves liberal patronage on the part of theatregoers.

Father Bogan's Speech.

In the report of Rev. B. M. Bogan's speech to the Knights of Columbus reported in yesterday's Daily Press, two little words were omitted which changed the meaning of Father Bogan's remarks about voting. It should have read: "I say to you that you should never cast a sovereign vote for a Catholic because he is a Catholic, and likewise do not refuse to vote for a non-Catholic because he is such." The words "refuse to" were the ones omitted.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, of Jersey City, have returned home after a visit with friends in this city.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue, left yesterday for Charleston, W. Va., where on Monday, Dr. Chambliss will officiate at the wedding of his granddaughter, Miss Mary Caperton. Mrs. Gifford Cooley, of the borough, a cousin of the bride, will be matron-of-honor, and Miss Bessie Flanders, of the borough, will be a bridemaid.

COME ONE, COME ALL

You are welcome to enjoy the pleasures of shopping under one great roof. Many people have said Plainfield has been waiting for a city market for the last 30 years, and the management should not only be congratulated for their skill and enterprise, but should have the hearty, substantial support of all who have the welfare of our beautiful city at heart. The City Market has put new life into a hitherto quiet section by attracting a great crowd of shoppers—consequently increasing values in all real estate in that vicinity. All merchants should be a veritable board of trade to make Plainfield one of the great shopping centres of our State.

WHY NOT?

If there is a city near New York more healthful, and beautiful that can offer the same pleasures of living, opportunities for buying or renting of beautiful homes, we have not seen that city.

WM. NAACK TOO MUCH FOR JOHN CAMPBELL

Before a large crowd of local bowling fans Johnny Campbell, Plainfield's champion, went down to defeat at the hands of William Naack, of Newark, in a match series at the local alleys last night. Campbell was decidedly off his game, as may be readily seen by a glance at the scores, but even had he been at his best it is doubtful if he would have beaten the Newarker.

Rolling a modest total of 194 in the first game Naack followed with 278 in the second game, establishing a high score for the season at the local alleyes.

Naack easily captured the next two games and the match with totals of 215 and 195.

A second series was then rolled, and although Campbell won the first two games, Naack captured the match by taking the final three games with scores of 238, 215 and 226.

It can be truthfully said that Naack gave the best exhibition of ten pins ever witnessed in this city. For the nine games which he rolled, he averaged 213.1 and did not have a missed spare.

Campbell's average was 184.1.

The scores of both:

Naack	194	278	217	195
Campbell	162	174	179	182
Naack	184	171	238	215	226
Campbell	198	191	192	196	183

HEBREWS CAST ASIDE GARBS OF PENITENCE.

With sundown last eevning, Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement for the Hebrew, came to an end, and then the faithful in Plainfield, spiritually strengthened for the new year, cast aside their garbs of penitence. Yom Kippur began Wednesday at sunset, and in the evening services were held in the synagogue of the children of Israel on New street.

The Day of Atonement is not a day of sadness, according to the Hebrews. The fasting is not a sign of mourning, but is meant to remove the faithful from things earthly and cause them to consider things spiritual.

TABLET FOR TAFT.

Slab Marking Passaic Visit to Be Dedicated.

In conection with its celebration of Jahn Day tomorrow, the members of the Passaic Turn Verein will dedicate the tablet purchased by the Passaic Board of Trade and presented to the Verein to commemorate the visit of President Taft to Turn Hall, Passaic, on May 9 last.

Elaborate preparations are being made. A delegation from the Board of Trade will take part in the festivities, and President Victor L. Mason will deliver an address.

—Constable John Manley is out gunning for some miscreants whom he claims are guilty of contempt of court. Mr. Manley fastened notices of attachment to the premisse at 320 Park avenue Wednesday and at 11 o'clock Wednesday night the notices were torn down and destroyed.

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1910, by Doubleday, Page & Company. Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company

"I do hope I haven't taken your inspiration away, dearest."

"No; you've given me one."

"I'm so glad. Well, I'll run away now. I've lots of things to see to. Forget all about the Marquis of Loveland—I mean the valet. Put him out of your mind."

"Don't worry, auntie. It's quite easy to put a valet out of a tidy, well regulated little mind like mine."

"Think of Dick," said Mrs. Loveland. He's going to be a splendid fellow."

Lesley did not go back to her sofa and her story writing. She picked up the paper which Mrs. Loveland had left lying on the table, but she did not read. She went to the desk where she kept papers and took a check book from a drawer.

"No, that won't do," she said to herself after thinking for a minute. She put the check book back in its place and opened another drawer, not locked, for neither drawers nor cupboards nor hearts were ever locked in this old fashioned Kentucky house.

"THINK—IF HE'D MARRIED SOME GIRL."

The second drawer was full of greenbacks. Perhaps it was a kind of savings bank for the young author; but, poor or rich, authors are proverbially easy about parting with their earnings, and southern born Lesley was no exception to the rule.

She counted out a number of bills—more than half—folded them up in a blank sheet of paper torn off the writing pad, that there might be no address upon it, and pressed the flattened parcel into a large, stout envelope. This she sealed with blue sealing wax and after a moment or two of puzzled reflection began to print in big black letters:

THE MARQUIS OF LOVELAND,
WALDORF-ASTORIA HOTEL,
NEW YORK.
To be sent immediately to present address.

CHAPTER XV.

THE MARQUIS OF TWELFTH STREET.

IT was Isidora who found out first what was in her father's mind, because she saw the advertisement which Alexander the Great had written for the papers. It lay on the parlor table in clear black and white for any eye to read when Isidora came to clear away the litter of odds and ends that Emmie, the hired girl, might lay the dinner things.

"Oh, pa," she gasped, "is that what you're going to do? He won't stand being advertised."

"Pooh!" said Alexander.

"I tell you he won't. He'll quit. He's afraid the police are on to him anyhow."

"Milton ain't lodged no complaint. Nobody has or I'd have kicked de feller out first thing when you tol' me who he was. Nobody ain't goin' to touch him."

"And nobody ain't going to keep him when he sees that," added Isidora, pointing to the paragraph written in Alexander the Great's clearest handwriting.

"He needn't see it unless you blab, silly girl," said her father. "What for should he read newspaper advertisements? I guess he got somet'in' else to do."

"Somebody 'll tell him."

Sure Cure.

Boatman—Come for a row, sir?

Tripper—No; I feel too sick. Ate something for breakfast that disagreed with me.

Boatman—Best come for a row, then, sir. I'll take all that out of yer.

"HE NEEDN'T SEE IT," SAID HER FATHER.

And it went.

It went to several papers, and, though Alexander the Great paid only for the insertion of small paragraphs in the columns of the journals, he chuckled to himself in anticipation of receiving far more valuable advertisements gratis, nor was he wrong. In matters of business within the scope of his capabilities Alexander was seldom wrong. That was why he was great. True it might be that "Lord Loveland of the Waldorf-Astoria" (as Tony Kidd had dubbed him) was a back number and had been superseded in public esteem by at least two promising murderers and one extremely lively divorcee. But Tony Kidd's enterprising eye lit on Alexander's inspiration, while it was still as fresh as tomorrow's bread, in the issue of the New York Light, which was in the making, and Alexander's own paragraph was quaintly quotable.

"Lost at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, the Marquis of Loveland. Found, ditto, at Alexander the Great's, in Twelfth street. If you want to be served by a lord dine at Alexander's for 25 cents, marquis included. You eat your dinner; Walter Loveland does the rest."

Tony was very busy just then, having an important errand out of town by the first train in the morning. But he secretly commissioned an understudy to be at Alexander's when the red restaurant should open its doors to order breakfast and while seeming to eat to sketch the new English waiter. The understudy was not to question Loveland himself, but if possible Alexander, and was not to let the waiter see that he was under fire of attention. Notes of Loveland's appearance as well as a drawing must be made for Mr. Kidd's benefit.

When he came back from the country late in the afternoon, however, Mr. Kidd at once recognized the cleverly executed sketch. There was no longer any doubt in his mind that the young man who had slammed the door in his face at the Waldorf-Astoria was now "pie slinger" in a cheap downtown restaurant. Next morning there was half a column on a good page of the Light, including space for the understudy's line portrait of a tall young man in evening dress, with a coffeepot in one hand and a milk jug in the other, and even the printers grinned at the heading, "The Marquis of Twelfth Street—Newly Acquired Title."

* * * * * * *

She was on shipboard again. It was moonlight, and Lord Loveland was telling her that he really cared a great deal more for her than for Lesley Dearmer. She confessed that she liked him, too, and he was just asking her to come and reign over Loveland castle as well as his heart when the distant though disturbing notes of an amateur concert in the music room of the Mauretania turned definitely into the shrill burr of that wretched telephone. The dream broke like a rainbow bubble, and Fanny sat up in bed, disappointed with life.

She seated herself by the telephone and snatched up the receiver as if she were going to shake it. But she soon settled down to an absorbing interest in the give and take of conversation with the instrument.

"Hello!" she said. "Who are you? Oh, Elinor Coolidge—what? Why, Elinor Coolidge, you don't mean it—waiting in a cheap restaurant! I don't believe it's true. In the paper? Well, there's nothing in that. I know a newspaper man myself. What? Oh, his name's Tony Kidd.

"Oh, Elinor, I think it would be horrid to make up a party and go to that restaurant. Yes; I like slumming and seeing bohemian places pretty well. I don't believe we'd find him there if we went, but all the same I don't want to. Why, I can't help it if you ask mamma to chaperon a party. I won't go. Nothing will make me. I think if you and mamma and your Comte de Rocheverte go you'll be just like ancient Romans watching the martyrs eaten up by lions. I believe you were a Roman woman in another state of existence. I won't talk about it any more. You can ring up mamma if you like. Goodby!"

Down went the receiver, and back scrambled little Fanny Milton into her lavender scented bed, shivering, not with cold, but with emotion. Her telephone was silent at last, but she could not find her way into the dream again. The door of that dream was shut forever, and Fanny was not jealous even of Lesley Dearmer now.

Elinor Coolidge's first thought after reading Tony Kidd's very entertaining story in the New York Light went no further than the fun of paying a visit to Alexander the Great's and being waited upon by the man whose superfilious airs on the Mauretania had made her feel "ready to burst with spontaneous combustion." Then it occurred to her that it would be dramatic to collect the whole circle of girls, excepting little spoil-sport Fanny, to whom Lord Loveland had been attentive on board the Mauretania. Each girl must if possible bring a man. Elinor naturally picking out the best for herself, and the most desirable seemed to be Comte de Rocheverte, a new arrival in America, whom she had met for the first time a night or two after returning to New York. His answer having assured her that Raoul de Rocheverte was "entirely and devotedly at her service when, where and how she liked," she telephoned to the four girls she wanted for the adventure. Of these one could not come; another could, but wouldn't for the same reason as Fanny's (this was Madge Beverley), and the remaining two thought it would be "more fun than a wedding." Each would bring a man (Mrs. Milton also could be trusted to find one), and the party would therefore consist of eight.

Never since Bill Shilling had first made the fame of Alexander the Great had there been such a busy day in the red restaurant as the day when Tony's story and sketch of "The Marquis of Twelfth Street" appeared in the New York Light.

There was more work than Alexander, Loveland and the two others could do; therefore soon after 12 the aid of "Miss Izzie" had to be called in. The colored cook and the cook's assistant worked until their brains were as nearly addled as any egg ever employed in their most economical moments, and to several members of the staff the reason for the rush remained a mystery. Alexander knew and smiled in his sleeve. Isidora knew and cast reproachful "I told you so!" glances at her father as she heard the rustle of opening newspapers. But the Pole did not understand the curious questions people whispered to him, Blinkey was stupid as well as sullen, while as for Loveland himself, none dared to catechize him, so set were his lips, so threatening his brows.

Of course he suspected that it was he who brought the crowd and raged in the shame of his burning martyrdom. Alexander had said that he was to be "used for all he was worth," and he was sure that already he was in some way being used. But he did not know how or guess the worst.

His one consolation was that the crowd Alexander had drawn to gaze at the tame marquis was a common crowd. Indeed, he thought there was no danger that the red restaurant would be invaded by the upper classes.

With the feigned indifference of a caged white bear for a bank holiday crush the new waiter performed his duties during the day. If the restaurant were crammed throughout the afternoon, by 6 o'clock there was a mob. By 7, however, the place began to clear, and Alexander rejoiced, because there was much work for his staff to do before 8. Dishes must be washed and special food cooked and a dozen tables prepared for two "crowds" that had engaged accommodation in advance.

One was a wedding party of Italians, numbering fifteen. The other was something more exciting—a party of "swells" who had telephoned for dinner at 8.

Laughing and talking, they all trouped into the restaurant—Elinor Coolidge and Comte de Rocheverte, Eva Tanner and Kate Wood, with the handsome Hungarian twins, who were rather sought after in New York just then; Baron Ludovic Zsencha and his brother Paul; last Mrs. Milton and Tony Kidd.

DID CLEVER WORK

CANADIAN COINERS LONG BAFFLED AUTHORITIES.

Peculiar History of "Blacksmith" Tokens That Are Interesting to Numismatists—Began With Necessity for Small Change.

A good deal has been heard of late years among coin collectors about the so-called "Blacksmith" tokens of Canada. The unsatisfactory condition of the currency in Canada up to comparatively recent times explains the reason for the issue of such coins.

For many years the supply of legal copper coins had been altogether inadequate, so that often anything in the shape of a copper passed current. At the beginning of the nineteenth century the only legal copper circulating medium was an insufficient and diminishing supply of worn out British half pence sent over from England.

A little later this was supplemented by a deluge of imported private tokens. Their overabundance, according to a writer in the Numismatist, soon caused them to be discredited and stringent means were adopted to prevent further importation of such coin into Canada or its manufacture there.

But as the necessity for an adequate supply of small change became more pressing, various ways for evading the blockade were evolved. One of these was by making or importing tokens which bore a date previous to the date of the edict excluding private coins. Another way, which was at one time very prevalent in England, was to evade the counterfeiting laws by suppressing the legends and substituting instead some capricious or meaningless legend, as "Claudius Romanus," "Georgius Ti Rex," "George Rules," "Glorius Ier Vis," etc. These spurious coins presented the same general appearance to the ignorant populace as the regal coinage.

A third means, and this is characteristic of the Canadian Blacksmiths, was by counterfeiting the worn British half pence, the only legal copper coins in circulation, on which the date, legend and all but an indistinct outline of the design had been effaced. Although they thus produced a rude coinage these early Canadian coiners showed considerable skill in so making fresh coins bear the appearance of an old worn out but still legal currency that they were able to circulate vast quantities of their spurious imitations. It is worth noting that the designs on these Blacksmiths often face in the opposite direction to their prototypes.

As an explanation of their name the story is told that a blacksmith of dissolute habits lived in Montreal and "when he wished to have a 'good time' struck two or three dollars of these coppers and thereby supplied himself with sufficient change to gratify his wishes." The name was adopted by numismatists and applied to the whole series.

Mothers-in-Law in Bethlehem.

Many of the people in Bethlehem emigrate, for they have no fear of travel and make excellent colonists. It is possible to come upon men of Bethlehem in eastern Africa and even in Haiti. Now for the first time I saw the remarkable head-dresses for which the married women of Bethlehem are famous. They are large and entirely conceal the hair. I was told that the foundation is a fez, stiffened and covered with cotton. Chains of silver on which are strung rows of silver coins ornament the front, and a great white veil made of cotton gives the finishing touch. Strongly built and active, the matrons of Bethlehem look very imposing as they go about their affairs, and I should scarcely think they live in great subjection to their husbands. That they make alarming mothers-in-law I can well believe. There is a proverb in Palestine: "Were the mother-in-law to love her daughter-in-law, dogs would go into paradise."—Robert Hichens, in Century.

The Major's Value.

Gen. W. H. Lemon of the Grand Army of the Republic was recounting at a dinner at Lawrence, Kan., tales of the Civil war.

"Major Bunks," he said, smiling, "was a pompous chap. The boys had a good deal of fun once over his exchange.

"It seems that on a very dark night a stalwart confederate took the major prisoner. This fact, together with the narrative of the prisoner's return to camp, was signalled to headquarters tersely:

"'Major Bunks, captured during night march, exchanged later for two plugs tobacco.'"

Missions as a Commercial Investment.

Missions are the greatest investment that can be made to bring returns in material as well as spiritual things. The United States holds over one-third of the total banking power of the world; $25,000,000,000 is in the hands of Christians, and $50,000,000 would not be too much to give yearly to spreading the Gospel in the far east. Every missionary sent to the foreign field pays back a thousand fold. There is no trade-opener equal to the Gospel. If boards of trade and chambers of commerce would finance the presentation of the Gospel to heathen lands, it would pay enormously.—Christian Herald.
